COMPUTER Vs. CRIME

By BOB SCHMIDT
L-P-T Staff Writer

Society, angry and frightened, is laying down its bows and arrows and spears and picking up new weapons with which to conduct its war against crime.

The same minds which hurled Mariner II into space to probe the mysteries of Mars and which guided Gemini 6 and 7 into their historic rendezvous are attempting to fathom why men break the law, and are helping police track down those who do.

FIRST OF THREE PARTS

Prime weapon in this offensive against the criminal is the computer, that awesome creation which is playing an increasingly important role in today's world and might very well dominate tomorrow's.

* * * *

AND THE raison d'etre for the incredible electronic monster is that which the criminal fears most: information. Information about the man, about his tools, his habits, his background.

And, even, his future!

A blue, late-model automobile zips along a freeway at 60 miles an hour. On a bridge arching over the freeway, a television camera is focused on the speeding cars below.

The license plates on the blue car are picked up, translated into symbols, and transmitted, along with the symbols of hundreds of other cars, to a giant computer located somewhere in the Los Angeles area.

In the computer's memory banks are stored thousands of symbols representing the license plates of "wanted" cars. The symbols transmitted from the camera flash through the computer, jogging a memory cell. Symbols representing stored information are transmitted to a station 900 feet from the camera, in the direction the blue car is traveling.

The symbols are translated into meaningful words. The plates are from a stolen car.

Elapsed time, seven seconds! Policemen at the second station flag down the car and approach the driver.

* * * *

THEY tell him why he's been stopped, and ask him to extend his hand, palm up. An officer points a tube attached by a cord to a device on his motorcycle, flicks a switch, and a light scans the hand.

This "fingerprint" image is transmitted to the computer, where it is converted into symbols which probe a second memory bank. Sure enough, a cell is jostled, and symbols are spewed out which indicate that the driver is wanted.

So a stolen car is returned to its owner and a thief is led off to jail.

Or:

A druggist, late one evening, observes a man standing by a magazine rack, thumbing through a book but obviously not looking at the pages as he glances nervously around the store.

The druggist's fears are confirmed in a few moments when the man approaches, displaying a gun, and demands money and morphine.

After the bandit leaves,

2 Yanks Among 7 Killed by Cong Terrorist Mine

SAIGON (UPI)—A Communist Viet Cong terrorist calmly walked into a crowded South Viet Nam bar Saturday night and planted a grenade and mine which exploded and killed seven persons, including two American soldiers. The incident occurred 70 miles southwest of Saigon.

A package, placed on a table by the terrorist, contained a deadly Claymore mine, made of hundreds of scraps of metal around a core of explosives. The grenade was dropped as the terrorist walked out and was shot and killed during a brief gun battle. An American military spokesman said six Americans and 12 Vietnamese were wounded in the blasts.

The incident occurred while the U.S. 1st Cavalry Division and a task force of American Marines pushed westward from the seacoast about 300 miles northeast of Saigon in the biggest campaign of the Viet Nam war.

The terrorist attack occurred in the Mekong Delta city of Vinh Long, where a U.S. Army helicopter outfit has headquarters. The American spokesman said the terrorist wounded two Vietnamese soldiers in the gun battle outside the bar.

Police arrested two wounded Vietnamese as possible accomplices. They also seized some Communist leaflets.

The 15,000-man 1st Cavalry Division has thrown most of its combat units into the giant push in South Viet Nam's central coast, making their task force the biggest ever assembled by Americans in Viet Nam. The drive was aided by 155MM artillery pieces airlifted into action by helicopters for the first time in military history.

More than 5,000 American Marines were driving along a parallel course inland and thousands of Viet Cong could be trapped if the two forces linked up deeper in the mountains.

Dragster Dies in Crash

A Buena Park man was killed Saturday when his dragster went out of control and overturned during a race at Lions Drag Strip.

Joseph M. Jackson, 22, of 7291 Ninth St., was admitted at 5:40 p.m. to Long Beach Memorial Hospital, where he was taken after the accident. He died at 7:55 p.m.

Drag strip officials said no one else was injured.

Witnesses told Harbor Division Patrolman T. R. Brummitt that Jackson had made one run at 140 mph. On the next run the car went out of control at about 100 mph and hit a fence.

The death was at least the sixth fatality at the drag strip, located just west of Long Beach near 223rd and Alameda streets since its opening in March 1955.

PICTURE PICKUP

British 'Scoop' Annoys Soviet

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union Saturday night showed its own people pictures of the moon's surface and for the first time gave details about the structure and flight of history-making Luna 9.

The rest of the world already had seen the pictures a day before, thanks to an intercept by Britain's Jodrell Bank telescope, but found out what the space station was like at the same time as the Russians.

The Kremlin's space chief charged that Britain made the pictures public from "certain motives of a sensational nature."

Sir Bernard Lovell, director of the British observatory, replied through a spokesman that the pictures were of such international importance that their immediate release was justified.

The Russians also disclosed details about Luna 9 for the first time. They reported that it weighed 3,482.6 pounds and contained a television system ensuring a 360-degree view and transmission of pictures to the earth.

Tass said Luna 9—details of which have been secret until now—consisted of the automatic station itself, which was safely landed on the moon softly enough for its apparatus to continue to function.

It said that this was an airtight container holding a radio system, a program-timer, a system of thermo-regulation ,energy-supply sources and the picture system.

The Soviet news agency said antennas were mounted on the outside set to open automatically after the station settled on the ground, with a shock-absorbing system, and petal-like screens of metal to protect the television unit during landing.

It said that just before landing the space station detached itself from the engine and the two units landed at some distance from one another.

It said that in the first phase, which began Jan. 31, Luna 9 was launched as an earth satellite. Its engine was

Few Picket Signs Say 'Go Home'

HONOLULU (UPI) — President Johnson arrived in Hawaii Saturday night to a mixed welcome, with anti - Viet Nam war pickets prominent among an otherwise enthusiastic crowd of 6,000.

Johnson landed at Honolulu International Airport with top members of his cabinet for Viet Nam war talks, expected to begin Monday at Pacific Military Headquarters. Leaders of South Viet Nam's government are due in Honolulu today.

Johnson, making his first journey away from the continental United States as President, received Hawaii's traditional floral welcome. But the usual entourage of dancing girls gave way to the more formal military band and guards of honor.

Hawaii's congresswoman, Rep. Patsy T. Mink, draped a brilliant red carnation lei around the President's shoulders after he had been formally welcomed by Hawaii Gov. John A. Burns and Honolulu Mayor Neil S. Blaisdell.

Johnson paused to talk with Adm. U. S. Grant Sharp, the Pacific commander. Then Catherine Westmoreland, teen-age daughter of Gen. William Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in Viet Nam, who traveled aboard the President's plane, rushed past Johnson and into her father's arms.

Johnson stepped forward and appeared somewhat surprised when the girl threw her arms around his neck and kissed him, too.

The crowd applauded as the President approached the airport retaining fence.

Police shot and killed a 41-year-old assault suspect at Ninth Street and Long Beach Boulevard Saturday night after he apparently wounded a Daisy Avenue bartender.

Lewis W. Howell, of 237 Linden Ave., died in an ambulance en route to St. Mary's Hospital at 10:35 p.m.

Howell, identified as a retired Navy man employed as a postal clerk, received multiple wounds in the chest minutes earlier when he fled from police.

Officers Paul Vierregger and Carl Bloom attempted to capture Howell near a car lot on the southeast corner at Ninth and Long Beach Boulevard.

Vierregger said they spotted Howell running east across the boulevard, and noticed that he matched the description broadcast earlier from the scene of a shooting at the Royal Cuckoo Bar, 948 Daisy Ave. The officers got out of their car with drawn guns and shouted for Howell to stop.

Officer Vierregger said Howell turned, crouched and pulled a pistol from his pocket and pointed it at the approaching officers. Bloom

Escobedo Relative Slain Gang Style

The brother-in-law of Daniel Escobedo, central figure in a landmark Supreme Court decision, was killed in gangland fashion Saturday by a shower of bullets from a passing car.

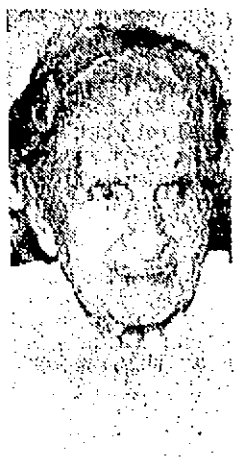

Mitsuru Wakita, 43, was slain as he rejoined his wife and two daughters in their car after fixing a flat tire. His wife, Grace, said eight shots were fired from the left front window of a car which had been cruising in the area.

Escobedo, who was convicted and then freed of charges of killing Mrs. Wakita's first husband, drove his sister home after the slaying. He refused to talk to police on the advice of his lawyer.

Mrs. Wakita's first husband, Manuel Viltierra, was killed Jan. 19, 1960. Escobedo, then 20, was arrested the next day.

Police said Escobedo confessed he had hired two men to kill his sister's husband and that he had driven the getaway car. But, while Escobedo was making his statement, his lawyer, Warren D. Wolfson, was waiting to see him. He was not allowed to do so. Wolfson protested that his client's rights were being violated.

Escobedo was sentenced to 20 years in prison and began serving his term. In 1964 his case came before the U.S. Supreme Court and Escobedo went free by a decision which still is debated hotly.

He claimed he was injured because the listing failed to state that his practice was limited to gynecology and infertility.

Britain's Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip were serenaded by 1,000 schoolchildren Saturday on the second day of their royal visit to British Guiana.

The children were among 10,000 who gave the queen and her husband an uproarious welcome at a rally at the Georgetown Cricket Club. They sang songs and performed native dances.

The queen, wearing a peach-and-white ensemble in the tropical sunshine, drove around the cricket ground before masses of children waving British Union Jacks.

Later the royal couple traveled by train to Labonne on British Guiana's east coast where another exhibition was staged.

Despite a boycott by former prime minister Cheddi Jagan's People's Progressive Party, thousands of cheering men, women and children from rural areas lined the the train's route.

Solons Return to Jobs Monday

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Bearing the political scars of last year's reapportionment struggle and faced with another record spending program, California lawmakers return to the Capitol Monday for what shapes up as a stormy election-year session.

Gov. Brown will offer a budget that could go as high as $4.6 billion — largest in the nation — and controversial measures to cover a deficit of $250 million to $300 million without hiking taxes.

The governor also has indicated he'll ask for action on such touchy issues as smog-control, rapid transit and Lake Tahoe pollution. Another possibility is a constitutional amendment to create a full-time legislature empowered to set its own pay.

The last proposal appeals mightily to lawmakers, but with elections later in the year ahead for many of them, and others winding up careers after being reapportioned out of seats, they may be unwilling to come to grips with time-consuming and politically unpopular legislation.

* * * *

BROWN, a candidate for a third term, is determined to hold the line on taxes.

He's announced a new bookkeeping plan that will trim the deficit by $110 million. Republican leaders have called it a gimmick, but they won't get a chance to vote on it since it will be handled as a simple administrative change.

Another Brown proposal ultimately would increase state income taxes for nearly every Californian by sharply reducing deductions. But it wouldn't be felt until 1966 taxes are due in April 1967.

In the meantime, it will slash another $136 million from the deficit, about enough to balance the budget.

* * * *

REPUBLICANS are expected to take dead aim at this plan, but it's doubtful they'll be able to muster the votes to block it. The measure would need only simply majority approval, and the Democrats hold edges of 49-31 in the Assembly and 23-14 in the Senate.

Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh, D-Inglewood, will be pushing for a one-cent sales-tax increase that would raise $360 million for state aid to public schools. Enactment of his measure, says Unruh, would allow a 25% slash in local property taxes that go to support education.

State Fiscal Chief Offers Tax 'Report'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown's chief fiscal officer Saturday released a tax report supporting legislative plans to reform the local property tax and prevent another big assessment scandal.

But the report, issued by Finance Director Hale Champion, opposed or failed to consider proposals from Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh and others to grant major property-tax cuts to businessmen and homeowners.

Property-tax reform and relief were major items on the agenda for the 1966 legislature, which convenes Monday, but while there was general agreement on the need for reform, there was a 1966 election surrounding the issue of tax relief.

* * * *

BROWN, a third-term candidate, has indicated he wants to keep any state tax increase at a minimum this year and reportedly is ready to propose a $136-million boost in the income tax.

Last year, Unruh and Assemblyman Nicholas C. Petris, D-Oakland, proposed a $1-billion state-tax hike to support $700 million in local relief, but the program, opposed by Brown, died in the Senate.

Unruh has announced that he will reintroduce a major feature of last year's Petris-Unruh bill, a $360-million boost in the sales tax by raising the rate from four to five cents on the dollar. The money would finance an average 25% reduction in school-district property taxes.

The Champion report was the second part of an administration-sponsored study of tax alternatives. The first part, dealing with possible state tax increases, was released late in December.

* * * *

"IT IS NOT a tax program," Champion said, explaining that it was prepared by high-level state employes who advise on tax matters. The 83-page document, Champion continued, "was prepared to assist policy-making officials."

Weight Limit Set for Lift, Carrying

GENEVA (AP)—"No worker should be required, authorized or permitted to engage in the manual transport of a load which, by reason of its weight, is likely to jeopardize his health or safety," reads a draft recommendation of the International Labor Organization. Or in other words, it specified, he should not have to lift and carry more than 110 pounds.

Boat-Seizure Protests Hit by Colombia

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Foreign Minister Castor Jaramillo said Saturday that three California legislators who protested the seizure of an American fishing boat "have made this a tempest in a teapot."

The three, Sens. George Murphy and Thomas Kuchel and Rep. Bob Wilson, all Republicans, suggested President Johnson send an American warship to intercept the Colombian destroyer that stopped the U.S.-owned tuna boat, Day Island, Thursday.

* * * *

THEY also said the U.S. government should consider refusing aid to Latin-American countries that unlawfully seize U.S. fishing boats.

Jaramillo said he didn't believe "the nervousness of the U.S. congressmen is justified." He said the Day Island crewmen are getting "sufficient protection" from Colombian authorities.

The captain of the Day Island, O. W. Martin of San Diego, radioed Thursday that his craft had been seized by a Colombian destroyer 10½ miles off the coast and half of the 16-man crew was taken aboard the destroyer.

* * * *

JARAMILLO said the Americans were being questioned as part of the Colombian investigation.

Colombia and other South American countries claim their territorial waters extend beyond the three-mile limit recognized by the United States.

ALL VERY CHI CHI

An International Love Affair Set

LONDON (AP)—The matrimonial future of the London Zoo's giant panda started looking up when Dr. Desmond Morris, curator of mammals of the zoo, flew to Moscow for a summit conference with his opposite number in Moscow.

London has the only known female giant panda (Chi-Chi) in captivity outside Red China, and Moscow has the only known male of the species. The problem of getting them together has been discussed for about a year.

Dr. Morris was reserved about mating prospects last week.

"At the moment it's a question of having a male panda in Moscow and a female in London," he said. "This is a situation to be looked into. Any animal that is as rare as the giant panda and as interesting makes a possible breeding of this sort of interest to zoologists."

Dr. Morris estimated there might be from 100 to 1,000 giant pandas living in natural conditions in Red China. He did not know how many were in captivity there.

"No one really knows how many there are in the world," he explained. "The country they live in is so rough.

Protesters of War Snowball Targets

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Demonstrators protesting the resumption of U.S. bombing in North Viet Nam continued a vigil in front of City Hall Saturday after being pelted with snowballs and having some of their signs torn up.

The group started its 24-hour vigil at 4 p.m. Friday. Youths of high school age ripped the protesters' signs about 9 p.m. Friday and another group of youths pelted the demonstrators with snowballs about midnight.

West Coast Victory Ship Jobs Sought

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Pacific Coast shipyards have begun a campaign to get contracts for reconditioning 15 World War II Victory ships needed because of the Viet Nam war.

Robert E. Mayer, president of the Western Shipbuilding Association, told Lloyd C. Flemming, Pacific Coast director of the U.S. Marine Service, Saturday that yards in Seattle, Portland, San Francisco Bay and the Los Angeles area are prepared to take on the work.

* * * *

THE government recently ordered 25 ships taken out of mothball fleets and put in service. Mayer said 10 of the vessels already have been assigned to East and Gulf Coast ports.

Fleming said San Francisco Bay yards could begin work on four ships Monday and three more a week later. Portland could handle two next week, Los Angeles two by Feb. 15, and the Seattle area four by Feb. 15, he said.

It costs about $400,000 to recondition each ship.

Democrat's 2-1 Win 'Close' in N. Carolina

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Democratic State Sen. Walter Jones, a veteran of North Carolina politics, Saturday night won a surprisingly close victory over Republican John East in the First Congressional District's special election.

Jones, 54, who has been active in Tar Heel politics for almost two decades, led East, 34, a college professor and political newcomer, by a 2-1 margin.

With 101 of 172 precincts reporting, Jones had 11,152 votes to 6,272 for East.

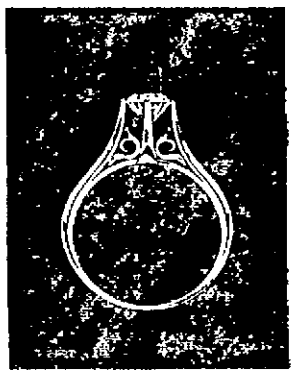

Jones will fill the seat vacated by the death of Rep. Herbert Bonner, D-N.C., who died in November after 25 years in Congress. He was chairman of the House Merchant Marine Committee.

The Democratic victory was no surprise in this 15-county district along the state's eastern seaboard. Democrats have ruled the area since Reconstruction.

Jones, an easy winner in last month's five-candidate primary, took an early lead and never was in trouble.

Escobedo Relative Slain Gang Style

Mitsuru Wakita, 43, was slain as he rejoined his wife and two daughters in their car after fixing a flat tire. His wife, Grace, said eight shots were fired from the left front window of a car which had been cruising in the area.

Escobedo, who was convicted and then freed of charges of killing Mrs. Wakita's first husband, drove his sister home after the slaying. He refused to talk to police on the advice of his lawyer.

Mrs. Wakita's first husband, Manuel Villierra, was killed Jan. 19, 1960. Escobedo, then 20, was arrested the next day.

Police said Escobedo confessed he had hired two men to kill his sister's husband and that he had driven the getaway car. But, while Escobedo was making his statement, his lawyer, Warren D. Wolfson, was waiting to see him. He was not allowed to do so. Wolfson protested that his client's rights were being violated.

Escobedo was sentenced to 20 years in prison and began serving his term. In 1964 his case came before the U.S. Supreme Court and Escobedo went free by a decision which still is debated hotly.

Hedda's Rite

Private funeral service was held Saturady in the Pierce Brothers Beverly Hills Mortuary for Hedda Hopper, former actress turned newspaper gossip columnist.

In accord with instructions set forth in the 75-year-old columnist's will, cremation followed the service held for members of the immediate family. Inurnment will be in Martinsburg, Pa.

Consul Bombed

A home-made bomb exploded beneath the living-room window of U.S. Consul Thomas Duffield's official residence early Saturday, police reported in Porto Alegre, Brazil. No one was hurt.

$50,000 Error

The California Public Utilities Commission Saturday said it would hear a complaint Feb. 8 by Santa Barbara physician Robert P. Horton seeking $50,000 in damages for an alleged error in the telephone directory yellow pages. He claimed he was injured because the listing failed to state that his practice was limited to gynecology and infertility.

Serenaded

Britain's Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip were serenaded by 1,000 schoolchildren Saturday on the second day of their royal visit to British Guiana.

The children were among 10,000 who gave the queen and her husband an uproarious welcome at a rally at the Georgetown Cricket Club. They sang songs and performed native dances.

The queen, wearing a peach-and-white ensemble in the tropical sunshine, drove around the cricket ground before masses of children waving British Union Jacks.

Later the royal couple traveled by train to Labonne on British Guiana's east coast where another exhibition was staged.

Despite a boycott by former prime minister Cheddi Jagan's People's Progressive Party, thousands of cheering men, women and children from rural areas lined the the train's route.

SIR JOHN HUNT

Ignominious

Sir John Hunt, who led the first successful expedition up Mount Everest in 1953, cracked a rib and injured a knee Saturday after slipping down the 3,059-foot Cairnwell Mountain in Scotland.

Hunt, who was making his way down the mountain after presenting ski-championship prizes, finished the journey on a stretcher after receiving first aid.

Stricken

The body of American painter Ben Turner, 53, who died in Mazatlan, Mex., Thursday, was flown Saturday in a chartered plane to Albuquerque, N.M., his hometown, for burial.

Solons Return to Jobs Monday

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Bearing the political scars of last year's reapportionment struggle and faced with another record spending program, California lawmakers return to the Capitol Monday for what shapes up as a stormy election-year session.

Gov. Brown will offer a budget that could go as high as $4.6 billion — largest in the nation — and controversial measures to cover a deficit of $250 million to $300 million without hiking taxes.

The governor also has indicated he'll ask for action on such touchy issues as smog-control, rapid transit and Lake Tahoe pollution. Another possibility is a constitutional amendment to create a full-time legislature empowered to set its own pay.

The last proposal appeals mightily to lawmakers, but with elections later in the year ahead for many of them, and others winding up careers after being reapportioned out of seats, they may be unwilling to come to grips with time-consuming and politically unpopular legislation.

* * * *

BROWN, a candidate for a third term, is determined to hold the line on taxes.

He's announced a new bookkeeping plan that will trim the deficit by $110 million. Republican leaders have called it a gimmick, but they won't get a chance to vote on it since it will be handled as a simple administrative change.

Another Brown proposal ultimately would increase state income taxes for nearly every Californian by sharply reducing deductions. But it wouldn't be felt until 1966 taxes are due in April 1967.

In the meantime, it will slash another $136 million from the deficit, about enough to balance the budget.

* * * *

REPUBLICANS are expected to take dead aim at this plan, but it's doubtful they'll be able to muster the votes to block it. The measure would need only simply majority approval, and the Democrats hold edges of 49-31 in the Assembly and 23-14 in the Senate.

Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh, D-Inglewood, will be pushing for a one-cent, sales-tax increase that would raise $360 million for state aid to public schools. Enactment of his measure, says Unruh, would allow a 25% slash in local property taxes that go to support education.

State Fiscal Chief Offers Tax 'Report'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown's chief fiscal officer Saturday released a tax report supporting legislative plans to reform the local property tax and prevent another big assessment scandal.

But the report, issued by Finance Director Hale Champion, opposed or failed to consider proposals from Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh and others to grant major property-tax cuts to businessmen and homeowners.

Property-tax reform and relief were major items on the agenda for the 1966 legislature, which convenes Monday, but while there was general agreement on the need for reform, there was a 1966 election surrounding the issue of tax relief.

* * * *

BROWN, a third-term candidate, has indicated he wants to keep any state tax increase at a minimum this year and reportedly is ready to propose a $136-million boost in the income tax.

Last year, Unruh and Assemblyman Nicholas C. Petris, D-Oakland, proposed a $1-billion state-tax hike to support $700 million in local relief, but the program, opposed by Brown, died in the Senate.

Unruh has announced that he will reintroduce a major feature of last year's Petris-Unruh bill, a $360-million boost in the sales tax by raising the rate from four to five cents on the dollar. The money would finance an average 25% reduction in school-district property taxes.

The Champion report was the second part of an administration-sponsored study of tax alternatives. The first part, dealing with possible state tax increases, was released late in December.

* * * *

"IT IS NOT a tax program," Champion said, explaining that it was prepared by high-level state employes who advise on tax matters. The 83-page document, Champion continued, "was prepared to assist policy-making officials."

Tijuana's New Breed of Politician

By BILL DUNCAN
I. P-T Staff Writer

There is a new breed of politician emerging in Tijuana de Saragosa, Baja California, Mexico.

He is young, fiercely patriotic, dedicated, ambitious, college-educated and, except for the Mexican penchant for ceremony, emotion and effusiveness, he acts more like his political counterpart north of the border than the traditional Mexican politico.

This new breed took office in Tijuana in December under leadership of Presidente Municipal (Mayor) Francisco Lopez-Gutierrez, a 37-year-old real estate developer who already has made sweeping changes in the moral climate of the border town.

One of his first official acts was to fire 200 policemen and replace them with "men of moral character who are patriotic enough to help the administration clean up Tijuana."

The first moral-cleanup campaign was on Tijuana's ill-famed sin strip—dirty-show row. Today in Tijuana's downtown nightclub strip the most daring show is a girl dancing in a bikini or a Cole's mesh-front bathing suit in a brassy "go-go" joint.

Even these shows are watched closely by the police department's new morals squad. B-girls still work some of the bars, but face arrest if they entice a customer beyond buying them a drink.

Cooperating in the cleanup campaign is the city's six-member Cabildo, or city council, all young, college-educated men. The median age is 36.

Different from mayors in United States cities, the mayor in Tijuana simultaneously becomes city manager as soon as he is elected for a 3-year term.

Lopez-Gutierrez appears to be trying to accomplish as many reforms as possible during his 3-year term and build an image that will assure his administration re-election.

He needs, he says, the cooperation of the United States.

He was asked:

"What can the United States do to help Tijuana's new administration?"

"First," he said, "if something displeasing happens to an American citizen, please don't criticize the city before you have brought it to my attention."

THE AMERICAN tourist in his city is important to the economy of Tijuana, but the administration believes he must realize he is a guest in Mexico and act as if he were a guest in any American city.

"The greatest problem is the language barrier and cultural difference between the two countries," he said. "I would not insult you if I were a guest in your country and I did not expect to be insulted when you are a guest in my country."

Lopez-Gutierrez was born in Juarez, but his family moved to Tijuana when he was an infant. He studied accounting in the United States and then joined his father's real estate and development firm in Tijuana.

The problems facing Lopez-Guiterrez are mountainous compared to those facing the burgeoning Southern California cities. Tijuana, like its neighboring cities in Southern California, is a boom town. Its population in the last 20 years has climbed 155%.

With a population of 220,000, the number Tijuana authorities describe as "stable" residents, the city is the second largest in Baja California, exceeded only by the state capital at Mexicali.

THE CITY has problems with schools, housing, traffic, water supply and urban renewal—the same problem facing Southern California with its mushroom growth, but trebled in complexity in Tijuana.

Its salvation appears to be in its steadily growing middle class — a status almost nonexistent in most areas of Mexico. This middle class, mostly merchants and professional men, helped elect Lopez-Gutierrez and the present city administration and are enthusiastically behind the new presidente municipal.

The middle class is his brain trust —the idea men who have already displayed a willingness to contribute time and money toward improving the 70-year-old border town.

They express anger over the Mexican who emigrates to the United States "instead of staying here and helping to build Mexico." They vent their disgust over the squatters who build their jacales (shacks) in the riverbed and on precarious hillsides "and refuse to be governed."

TYPICAL of the new, middle class movement in Tijuana is Rogelio Ramirez, a 38-year-old merchant who owns a photographic studio and a textile store in Tijuana's business district. Ramirez, a Rotarian and civic-minded idea man, has received the cooperation of six service clubs in an ambitious campaign to raise 100,000 pesos ($8,000) to purchase 10 trash trucks to help in the physical cleanup of Tijuana.

The trucks, declared surplus by the City of Los Angeles, will be purchased with the funds raised in an 8-hour campaign. Ramirez's idea is to collect 100,000 silver pesos which will be laid in rows three abreast down the center of the business district streets "to form a ruta de plata (silver route)." Businesses are to donate 33 pesos for each meter (39 inches) of store frontage.

"The live forces of the city are uniting behind the presidente municipal," Ramirez explains exuberantly, sum to come from the man on the street."

The physical cleanup of Tijuana has been thwarted by rains that have washed mud and debris in the street off barren hilltops. But the campaign is deinitely part of the new administration's plan to attract more tourists to Tijuana.

TOURISM is Tijuana's major industry. An average of 13 million Americans cross into Tijuana annually, but one weakness in the border-town's economy is that the big spenders are passing up Tijuana for cities farther south. Reason: the honky-tonk environment.

With all its glitter, the honky-tonk entertainment district of Tijuana was drawing only about 10% of the city's tourist money, but was chasing the tourist dollar away from the legitimate businesses.

To watch the Lopez-Gutierrez administration at work is dizzying. The mayor is a driving man. His associates say he works as long as 16 to 18 hours a day and receives a steady stream of well-dressed, young idea men in his walnut-paneled office.

The office is guarded by a male secretary who harriedly screens phone calls and visitors, but admits he can't keep up with the mayor's appointment list.

In a typical day, he:

Sees an American delegation wanting assurance that hotel and motel accommodations will be available for their March convention.

Review plans with city officials for the most bold venture of all, converting the shanty-strewn Rio Tijuana into an architectural masterpiece to be called Nueva Tijuana.

Sends out a personal message to an humble, shawl-wrapped Indian mother who has asked his intervention on her son's behalf to free him from jail. "It will be looked into," is the promise.

The parade of appointments continues until late into the night. Occasionally a pert young secretary, her shiny black hair swept into an attractive roll at the nape of her neck and held by a jewelled comb, carries a tray of cafe negro (black coffee) into the mayor's office.

It is an indication that a long night is ahead for Presidente Municipal Francisco Lopez-Gutierrez — a man whose dream of pulling Tijuana out of the quagmire is being watched closely by Mexico and the United States.

Tijuana's New Breed of Politician

By BILL DUNCAN
I. P-T Staff Writer

There is a new breed of politician emerging in Tijuana de Saragosa, Baja California, Mexico.

He is young, fiercely patriotic, dedicated, ambitious, college-educated and, except for the Mexican penchant for ceremony, emotion and effusiveness, he acts more like his political counterpart north of the border than the traditional Mexican politico.

This new breed took office in Tijuana in December under leadership of Presidente Municipal (Mayor) Francisco Lopez-Gutierrez, a 37-year-old real estate developer who already has made sweeping changes in the moral climate of the border town.

Computers Will Outthink Sharpest Masterminds in Realms of Crime

the druggist calls police, and describes the holdup.

"What did he say?" an officer asks. "Exactly!"

The druggist recalls vividly. "He said 'I'm not fooling, give me what I want and you won't get hurt'."

The officer jots down the quotation and the physical description of the robber, then flicks a switch which hooks him up with a computer. He speaks into a microphone and says "Drug store, nighttime, magazine rack, money, morphine, 'I'm not fooling give me what I want and you won't get hurt.'"

* * * *

IN THE computer, thousands of words are stored alphabetically, as in a Bible concordance, with a reference to the crime report in which they are used.

The computer searches itself for the 19-words contained in the description of the drug store robbery, notes the reports in which the 19 words appear, searches those reports for the ones most similar to the drug store case, and prints abstracts of those finally selected, including a description of the robber if his identity is known.

The reports are provided by the "modus operandi" memory bank of the computer, into which are fed crime reports detailing the manner in which a crime was committed, the language used by the criminal, the object of the crime, and, where possible, the identity of the offender.

During the few seconds it takes the computer to search the "modus operandi" memory bank, another bank is being fed symbols representing the description of the robber, and, again, the object of the crime. In seconds, a number of known morphine users whose description tallies with that of the drug store bandit, are identified.

* * * *

THEN, the two collections of information are correlated, and in another few seconds police have the names of a handful of suspects whose physical description and method of operating largely match those of the newly wanted man.

Pictures of the suspects are flashed by radio to the patrol car now outside the store, and the druggist picks one out. No more than three or four minutes have elapsed since the officer first spoke the 19 key words into the computer. In a few more moments, the suspect may be in custody.

Farfetched? As a matter of fact, the incident related here involving the license plates has been partially a fact in California's Space Age war against crime for nearly a year now.

Called "Auto-Statis," the program combines ultra-high-speed teletypes with sophisticated computers, and provides law enforcement authorities all over the state with an instant index of vehicles in which police have an interest.

* * * *

AND the capability of performing most of the other tasks already exists, according to Lt. William T. Herrman, head of the Los Angeles Police Department's Bureau of Systems Research and Development.

Lt. Herrman points out that the Los Angeles Police Department, in conjunction with the System Development Corp. of Santa Monica, has been experimenting with the idea of a computer-based information system for two years. Late in January, the Santa Monica firm, which developed the computer-based SAGE air defense system for the Air Force, handed to LAPD Chief William H. Parker a 135-page report on the results of a six-month feasibility study. The report is being studied, and a recommendation to the City of Los Angeles will be forthcoming shortly.

* * * *

WHILE SDC was studying one particular problem, another aerospace firm, Space General Corp. of El Monte, was in 1965 commissioned by the State of California to study the adaptability of data-processing systems to the prevention and control of crime and delinquency.

Space General's 260-page report verified what law enforcement officials have been saying for years:

Crime in California is a major social problem of rapidly increasing severity, against which society has been waging a losing fight. New methods must be found to combat crime because present methods are no longer adequate.

First, the very definition of crime is being examined. What is crime, and who is the criminal? From what collection of circumstances is criminal activity most likely to spring, and where in the community are those collections of circumstances to be found?

Second, how can society make it more difficult for the criminal to commit his crime, and how can it decrease his chances of escaping detection and apprehension?

And, finally, what should judicial, probation, correction, and parole authorities do with the convicted criminal? How can the criminal with violent tendencies be recognized, or those most likely to return to crime after jail or prison?

Computer - based systems, which help store, organize, and analyze information collected about criminals, give promise, according to Atty. Gen. Thomas C. Lynch, "that law enforcement is ready to take its biggest scientific step forward in the last three decades."

Lynch, a member of President Johnson's 19-man National Crime Commission, heads a newly established California Joint Council on Technology and the Administration of Justice to coordinate the implementation of modern scientific technology in the fight against crime.

And authorities are in general agreement where the Space Age crime war's most intensive effort should be made.

YOUNG REPUBLICANS CHEER

Reagan Calls for 'Creative Society'

Speaking in the International Ballroom of the International Hotel, Reagan called for the "creative society" during a bid for the endorsement of the Young Republican convention. Also appearing with Reagan on the podium were other Republican hopefuls, George Christopher and William Penn Patrick.

In their 10-minute talks to the delegates, all the prospective candidates called for party unity and pointed to the necessity of winning in 1966.

Before speaking, Reagan received a standing ovation from the 400 delegates.

Reagan quipped that the "first man to give his entire salary to the government was Herbert Hoover. Now it appears that we will all do it."

He said, "America needs statesmanship — Americans have had enough of politics."

Reagan called for the end of mass welfare and government interferrence, and said his creative society would use the abilities and the resources of all the people to solve the states' collective problems.

He promised he would spell out a program in the coming months that would answer many of the state's problems.

Christopher reviewed his record as mayor of San Francisco and supervisor of the city and county, and said he was running on his experience and past record.

He blasted the John Birch Society, the Communist Party, the Klu Klux Klan and the Minutemen. He said, "The Republican Party should shun bigots and extremists of both the left and the right."

Demons Face Draft Into Viet War

The congressman thinks that our forces could use good modern psychological warfare techniques to conjure up these gods, devils and animistic spirits to demoralize an enemy that thus far seems relatively unfazed by the high explosives our forces have been raining upon them.

Some of the ingredients in the witches brew prescribed by Hosmer:

—On hearing an owl cry thrice in the night, North Vietnamese really expect death in the immediate family and the cries cause great dread. Cheap air drop devices which simulate three hoots of an owl should be easy to design.

—In Viet Nam the ace of spades is considered a deadly omen. Hundreds of thousands of plastic aces of spades, adorned with pictures of Ho Chi Minh and Mae Tse-tung, could be dropped in North Viet Nam and along the Ho Chi Minh trail. The symbol also could be patterned onto hillsides by detoliation and overhead by skywriters.

—Scatter the infiltration routes with devices which emit sounds and odors manifesting doom and sowing chemically treated seeds which grow into bizarre and ominous plant forms.

—Conversely, good luck charms with identification with the South Vietnamese government could be used to induce a "Pavovian reaction."

Hosmer also suggested adoption of a technique used by the Dutch against Indonesian rebels 20 years ago when harmless dye was dropped into rice paddies.

Noting that Orientals are sensitive to the aesthetics of their food, Hosmer said a solution could be dropped into the paddies of the North Vietnamese "rice bowl" which would give the grain an unpleasant color and odor but would leave it edible.

"The need to eat this kind of unsightly, unappetizing but harmless and nutritious mess day after day could become a dear price to pay for Hanoi's transgressions," Hosmer said. "It also will deprive the North of its principal export commodity helping to pay the cost of the war."

Hosmer, who plans to take his proposal onto the floor of the House on Monday, predicted that his suggestions would be ridiculed by the "defense intellectuals" in the Pentagon.

He accused "semi-anonymous" civilian planners in the Defense Department with a lack of "creative imagination" in running the Viet Nam conflict.

"Catching a criminal and putting him in prison," says California's Department of Corrections director, Walter Dunbar, "is like giving a shot of vaccine to someone who already has polio.

"What we must do is get to the crime-prone citizen before he becomes a criminal."

The computer is helping to do just that.

the druggist calls police, and describes the holdup.

"What did he say?" an officer asks. "Exactly!"

The druggist recalls vividly. "He said 'I'm not fooling, give me what I want and you won't get hurt'."

The officer jots down the quotation and the physical description of the robber, then flicks a switch which hooks him up with a computer. He speaks into a microphone and says "Drug store, nighttime, magazine rack, money, morphine, I'm not fooling give me what I want and you won't get hurt."

* * * *

IN THE computer, thousands of words are stored alphabetically, as in a Bible concordance, with a reference to the crime report in which they are used.

The computer searches itself for the 19-words contained in the description of the drug store robbery, notes the reports in which the 19 words appear, searches those reports for the ones most similar to the drug store case, and prints abstracts of those finally selected, including a description of the robber if his identity is known.

The reports are provided by the "modus operandi" memory bank of the computer, into which are fed crime reports detailing the manner in which a crime was committed, the language used by the criminal, the object of the crime, and, where possible, the identity of the offender.

During the few seconds it takes the computer to search the "modus operandi" memory bank, another bank is being fed symbols representing the description of the robber, and, again, the object of the crime. In seconds, a number of known morphine users whose description tallies with that of the drug store bandit, are identified.

* * * *

THEN, the two collections of information are correlated, and in another few seconds police have the names of a handful of suspects whose physical description and method of operating largely match those of the newly wanted man.

Pictures of the suspects are flashed by radio to the patrol car now outside the store, and the druggist picks one out. No more than three or four minutes have elapsed since the officer first spoke the 19 key words into the computer. In a few more moments, the suspect may be in custody.

Farfetched? As a matter of fact, the incident related here involving the license plates has been partially a fact in California's Space Age war against crime for nearly a year now.

Called "Auto-Statis," the program combines ultra-high-speed teletypes with sophisticated computers, and provides law enforcement authorities all over the state with an instant index of vehicles in which police have an interest.

* * * *

AND the capability of performing most of the other tasks already exists, according to Lt. William T. Herrman, head of the Los Angeles Police Department's Bureau of Systems Research and Development.

Lt. Herrman points out that the Los Angeles Police Department, in conjunction with the System Development Corp. of Santa Monica, has been experimenting with the idea of a computer-based information system for two years. Late in January, the Santa Monica firm, which developed the computer-based SAGE air defense system for the Air Force, handed to LAPD Chief William H. Parker a 135-page report on the results of a six-month feasibility study. The report is being studied, and a recommendation to the City of Los Angeles will be forthcoming shortly.

* * * *

WHILE SDC was studying one particular problem, another aerospace firm, Space General Corp. of El Monte, was in 1965 commissioned by the State of California to study the adaptability of data-processing systems to the prevention and control of crime and delinquency.

Space General's 260-page report verified what law enforcement officials have been saying for years:

Crime in California is a major social problem of rapidly increasing severity, against which society has been waging a losing fight. New methods must be found to combat crime because present methods are no longer adequate.

First, the very definition of crime is being examined. What is crime, and who is the criminal? From what collection of circumstances is criminal activity most likely to spring, and where in the community are those collections of circumstances to be found?

Second, how can society make it more difficult for the criminal to commit his crime, and how can it decrease his chances of escaping detection and apprehension?

And, finally, what should judicial, probation, correction, and parole authorities do with the convicted criminal? How can the criminal with violent tendencies be recognized, or those most likely to return to crime after jail or prison?

Computer - based systems, which help store, organize, and analyze information collected about criminals, give promise, according to Atty. Gen. Thomas C. Lynch, "that law enforcement is ready to take its biggest scientific step forward in the last three decades."

Lynch, a member of President Johnson's 19-man National Crime Commission, heads a newly established California Joint Council on Technology and the Administration of Justice to coordinate the implementation of modern scientific technology in the fight against crime.

And authorities are in general agreement where the Space Age crime war's most intensive effort should be made.

"Catching a criminal and putting him in prison," says California's Department of Corrections director, Walter Dunbar, "is like giving a shot of vaccine to someone who already has polio.

"What we must do is get to the crime-prone citizen before he becomes a criminal."

The computer is helping to do just that.

Next: Using the computer to spot, today, the criminal of tomorrow.)

YOUNG REPUBLICANS CHEER

Speaking in the International Ballroom of the International Hotel, Reagan called for the "creative society" during a bid for the endorsement of the Young Republican convention. Also appearing with Reagan on the podium were other Republican hopefuls, George Christopher and William Penn Patrick.

In their 10-minute talks to the delegates, all the prospective candidates called for party unity and pointed to the necessity of winning in 1966.

Before speaking, Reagan received a standing ovation from the 400 delegates.

Reagan quipped that the "first man to give his entire salary to the government was Herbert Hoover. Now it appears that we will all do it."

He said, "America needs statesmanship — Americans have had enough of politics."

Reagan called for the end of mass welfare and government interferrence, and said his creative society would use the abilities and the resources of all the people to solve the states' collective problems.

He promised he would spell out a program in the coming months that would answer many of the state's problems.

Christopher reviewed his record as mayor of San Francisco and supervisor of the city and county, and said he was running on his experience and past record.

He blasted the John Birch Society, the Communist Party, the Klu Klux Klan and the Minutemen. He said, "The Republican Party should shun bigots and extremists of both the left and the right."

The congressman thinks that our forces could use good modern psychological warfare techniques to conjure up these gods, devils and animistic spirits to demoralize an enemy that thus far seems relatively unfazed by the high explosives our forces have been raining upon them.

Some of the ingredients in the witches brew prescribed by Hosmer:

—On hearing an owl cry thrice in the night, North Vietnamese really expect death in the immediate family and the cries cause great dread. Cheap air drop devices which simulate three hoots of an owl should be easy to design.

—In Viet Nam the ace of spades is considered a deadly omen. Hundreds of thousands of plastic aces of spades, adorned with pictures of Ho Chi Minh and Mae Tse-tung, could be dropped in North Viet Nam and along the Ho Chi Minh trail. The symbol also could be patterned onto hillsides by detoliation and overhead by skywriters.

—Scatter the infiltration routes with devices which emit sounds and odors manifesting doom and sowing chemically treated seeds which grow into bizarre and ominous plant forms.

—Conversely, good luck charms with identification with the South Vietnamese government could be used to induce a "Pavovian reaction."

Hosmer also suggested adoption of a technique used by the Dutch against Indonesian rebels 20 years ago when harmless dye was dropped into rice paddies.

Noting that Orientals are sensitive to the aesthetics of their food, Hosmer said a solution could be dropped into the paddies of the North Vietnamese "rice bowl" which would give the grain an unpleasant color and odor but would leave it edible.

"The need to eat this kind of unsightly, unappetizing but harmless and nutritious mess day after day could become a dear price to pay for Hanoi's transgressions," Hosmer said. "It also will deprive the North of its principal export commodity helping to pay the cost of the war."

Hosmer, who plans to take his proposal onto the floor of the House on Monday, predicted that his suggestions would be ridiculed by the "defense intellectuals" in the Pentagon.

He accused "semi-anonymous" civilian planners in the Defense Department with a lack of "creative imagination" in running the Viet Nam conflict.

Lack of LSD Laws Hinders Police

By BILL HAZLETT

The junkies, hypes, weedheads and pill-poppers have been joined by a new, self-styled sophisticate in the twilight world of drug use—the acid freak—dabbler in LSD.

And police efforts to control this new and terrifying hallucinogen are handcuffed.

"We have no laws, either locally or on a statewide level, to deal effectively with the problems of LSD," Lt. Willis Penhollow, chief of the Long Beach Narcotics Bureau, explained.

The chemical name for LSD is d-lysergic acid diethylamide, from which the slang name "acid freak" grew. It is also called a hallucinogen (capable of producing hallucinations), a psychotomimetic (creating a mimic of psychosis), and by other descriptive labels.

Narcotics officers, however, feel the best labels are "dangerous and troublesome."

So far, narcotics officers in California have met dismal failure in their efforts to deal with LSD through existing laws, ordinances and codes.

"A few of our ordinances deal with selling drugs without a license, or possessing a quantity for sale, but most of these are misdemeanor violations.

"Besides, the courts in San Francisco have already thrown out some test cases, and no decisions have been reached in recent LSD arrests made in Los Angeles," Penhollow said.

* * * *

ON ANOTHER front, police have made a few LSD arrests on the authority of a statute dealing with being drunk on drugs, but in most cases this has been tough to prove.

"Most LSD users participate in acid parties, and we seldom find them wandering around the streets in a drug stupor," Narcotics Sgt. Jim Miller said, "and without that evidence, we can't make a 647-F arrest stick."

An unidentified Long Beach psychiatrist recently told Independent, Press-Telegram Medical Editor Ben Zinzer that there is a "tragic" increase in the use of LSD throughout the Greater Long Beach area.

He described the growing crowd of acid freaks as young persons from the middle- and upper-income groups, who "are those with the greatest intellectual achievement."

Narcotics officers, who refer to this group as "pseudo-intellectuals," say that the very makeup of the LSD crowd presents a control problem.

"Most of the junkies and hypes, who deal in heroin, and the weedheads and pill-poppers, who smoke marijuana and consume drug pills, are known to the police.

* * * *

"BUT THIS new group—who come up with such profound statements as, 'LSD separates the nitty from the gritty,' are relatively new entrants into the field of drugs," Sgt. Miller said.

"LSD is a glamor drug, and a lot of these kids will fool around with it, when they wouldn't touch marijuana, heroin, barbiturates or amphetamines," he added.

Because of the close-knit nature of the LSD group, and the simple ease with which they obtain their drug, police find it difficult to infiltrate and investigate.

"Just about any kid with high school chemistry can make bathtub LSD, which adds to that being smuggled in from Mexico.

"We understand it can be made synthetically, or from plain old seaweed," Miller said.

Besides, he pointed out, even in their smuggling, the LSD users work through different channels than ordinary narcotics addicts and pushers, which adds further to the problems.

"What narcotics officer would stop and search a fuzzy-faced kid and his girl—even though they might be carrying $50,000 worth of acid?" one old-line investigator asked.

Another problem in controlling LSD is the investigative costs for undercover probes.

"IF THE undercover officer making a black-market buy has a choice between a 'block' of LSD for $50, or a half-kilo of marijuana, he's going to spend the city's money on the weed, because he has a felony statute to back him up," Lt. Penhollow said.

"Besides, most of the LSD types want to peddle you a single sugar cube, or capsule, and they want you to take it right there—for a joint blast into 'high.'

"We'd have to subject our undercover officers to this danger, in addition to losing the evidence purchased from the LSD pusher," Sgt. Miller explained.

"It just isn't worth it, until we get laws—with teeth."

The very newness of the LSD problem has caught many enforcement agencies unprepared. Lt. Penhollow said the problems created by the hallucinogenic drug came under discussion at the California State Narcotics Officers Conference in Sacramento in December.

"Recent legislation on the national level has given the Food and Drug Administration new police powers, and we are hopeful this will aid us.

"However, they have a long way to go in establishing their enforcement organization, and even then we expect them to be short-handed in many areas," the Long Beach narcotics chief said.

* * * *

THERE ARE no laws against the possession of LSD, and few to control its traffic. There is only one legitimate manufacturer of the weird new drug—but a lot of do-it-yourself makers.

"The stuff's so new, even the dopies haven't had time to make up much slang about it," a narcotics officer said.

LSD is so new that a lot of would-be acid freaks are being tricked into thinking they are taking the chemical, only to be given a blast of amphetamine, instead.

The dangers of drug usage—especially LSD—have been vividly described many times. The Long Beach psychiatrist calls use of the vision-producing drug "potentially devastating," and capable of reducing a user to "an infantile state."

The doctor, who is treating a number of LSD users, said many are attempting to escape from society and evade social responsibilities.

LSD, only one of several hallucinogens, was discovered by accident in 1938 by Dr. Albert Hofmann of the Sandoz Ltd. laboratories in Basel, Switzerland. However, it was not until 1943 that the research disclosed the drug's potent capacity to produce hallucinations.

Other hallucinogens include peyote, psilocybin and mescaline, but LSD is hundreds of times more powerful.

EYES OF LSD USER look through widely dilated pupils into an unreal world. LSD hallucinations can lead user to self-destruction.

On the second stage, it was put on a trajectory of the moon.

The third stage was the correction of the flight trajectory ensuring that the station would land in the area of the Sea of Storms.

The fourth stage was the braking and soft landing.

The correction was made Feb. 1 on command from the earth, Tass said, while other systems continued to operate automatically.

The correction changed the speed of Luna 9 by 71.2 meters (238 feet) per second and its trajectory, which passed about 6,000 miles from the center of the moon, began to pass practically through the planned landing point.

By four p.m. Moscow time Feb. 3 the computing center on earth had determined the necessary landing data.

While still about 5,000 miles from the moon, the station and its engine were oriented strictly along the lunar vertical. This direction was kept for an hour with the help of optical aspects fixed on the sun and the earth.

Then the braking system was switched on.

The braking system was ignited by a radioaltimeter on earth 48 seconds before the landing. The station was then about 45 miles above the moon's surface.

While the retrorockets were operating, the shock-absorber system was readied for a landing. The landing-directing system ensured a slowing down from 2,600 meters a second to what Tass called "several meters per second."

The station landed on the moon Feb. 3 at 21 hours 45 minutes 30 seconds Moscow time. The antennas unfolded four minutes 10 seconds later and transmissions of pictures to earth began at 4:50 a.m. Moscow time, Feb. 4.

Orders to take and transmit the pictures were sent from earth.

All systems operated normally.

Tass said the area of the moon chosen for a landing was typical of that earth satellite and "of obvious interest for detailed studies."

It said Luna 9 brought the day closer when man will land on the moon and observatories will be set up there.

In Britain, where four new photographs of the lunar surface were received, scientist Sir Bernard Lovell expressed doubt that this was the end for the first space station to transmit close-up pictures of the moon's surface to the earth.

"There is no reason to think that this is the end of the research with Luna 9 and it is possible there may be some other events," Lovell told newsmen at his Jodrell Bank Observatory in England. "It is inconceivable that this should be all, because this system is working superbly."

Russians saw two pictures of the lunar surface in a special Moscow television broadcast. A commentator, describing the photographs, said they were transmitted Friday. Thus they were the same as those received at Jodrell Bank and distributed around the world 24 hours before.

ARTIST'S CONCEPT OF LUNA 9, released Saturday by Soviet news agency Tass, represents Russian spacecraft after soft-landing on surface of moon. Four rods extending from station's body are antennas which open automatically on touchdown, and the petal-like screens protect the television unit from in-flight, landing harm.

fired four times and Vierregger twice, and Howell crumpled to the sidewalk.

Police were hunting for a man who, shortly after 10 p.m., shot 25-year-old John Manley, 1164 Daisy Ave., bartender at the Daisy Avenue tavern.

Officer Bill Ellis said Manley suffered a wound in his left side while struggling with an assailant who then fled on foot. A description of the assailant and his direction of flight were broadcast and police units began scouring a mile-wide area.

Nurses at St. Mary's Hospital said Manley's wound did not appear to be serious. However, he was admitted for observation.

Gold Mines on Moon May Await Spacemen

MENLO PARK (AP) — Russia's moon-landed Luna 9 spacecraft may be sitting on a gold mine.

The sharply defined surface pictures transmitted by Luna 9 show a glassy volcanic lava bed like many found in California, lunar geologist Harold Masursky said Saturday.

A study of the pictures seems to prove beyond doubt that volcanoes have exploded over vast areas of the moon and may still be active in some sectors, Masursky said.

Masursky works with the astrogeology branch of the U.S. Geological Survey. His group is helping on advance planning for the American effort to land astronauts on the moon.

He said the lava flow type indicated in the pictures often is associated with veins of gold and other metals on earth.

The veins result when boiling metal is thrust into lava fissures from the earth's hot, pressurized interior.

Masursky suggested the same thing may have happened on the moon.

He said it's possible that some day men may be mining gold on the moon.

Masursky classified the material identifiable in Luna 9's closeup pictures is scorious lava debris.

He described it as a crunchy, glassy stuff that quickly would cut an ordinary pair of leather shoes to ribbons.

The Luna 9 pictures completely squash the theory that the lunar surface is deeply covered with soft dust churned up by impacting meteorities, the geologist contended.

Jan. 17, and since then she, Rabb's sister, Mrs. Ethel Rainey of Chattanooga, Okla., and two other nieces of the oilman have been following the case closely.

Initially, she said, the Odessa jurist seemed ready to accept the unsigned document, which gave Rabb's oil fortune to charities and religious and scientific groups.

But then a respected old friend of Rabb came forward to tell how the oilman had torn up the signed copy after a change of heart. Until that time, no one knew the document had been destroyed, said Mrs. Branch.

To clinch matters, the First Bank of Odessa, which filed the will, said Friday it would not contest Fugit's ruling, thereby forfeiting the estate to the family.

Under Texas law, however, the heiresses won't receive any money for at least a year.

Mrs. Rainey will get one third of the estate, which is in the form of oil properties, securities and cash. Mrs. Branch will receive a third, and the other two nieces, both of Oklahoma, will share the remaining third.

* * * *

BUT MRS. BRANCH, HER PESSIMISM unshaken by the good news, is taking nothing for granted. "Until I see the money in my hand, I'm not saying I have it," she declared imperturbably. Nor was she ready to pose for pictures, she said. That, too, would have to wait.

The Branches live in a modest two-bedroom home. Mrs. Branch was born in Compton, and has lived all her life in this area.

When he visited her father's family.

A "favorite niece" of her uncle, she used to see him "I thought he was a terrific guy," she said.

VENTURA (UPI) — High tides with towering 20-foot waves battered Ventura County beaches for the second day Saturday, flooding some coastal roads.

A seawall at Solimar Beach, 10 miles west of here, took a heavy pounding and sandbags and rocks were used by 125 workers from the flood-control agency to fill a gap caused by the waves.

At nearby Seacliff, water seeped into five houses and caused several cesspools to overflow but no serious damage was reported.

The stretch of U.S. 101 between here and the Santa Barbara County line was partly covered with debris

DOWN WITH THE (U.S.) FLAG!

West Berlin student demonstrators, protesting U.S. actions in Viet Nam, lower America's flag to halfmast in front of city's "Amerika Haus."

1,500 West Berliners in Anti-U.S. Protest

BERLIN (AP)—An anti-Viet Nam War protest march by 1,500 leftist students and workers ended Saturday in a free-swinging melee between police and demonstrators at "Amerika Haus," the U.S. cultural center in West Berlin.

Police armed with clubs waded into about 100 sit-in demonstrators grouped around an American flag pole in front of the center. The demonstrators jumped to their feet and fought back.

A police spokesman said several persons were slightly injured and several were taken into custody.

Police commanders gave the order to remove the group physically after other demonstrators threw eggs at the front wall of the center.

Ernest J. Colton, Amerika Haus director, said about 100 other demonstrators had entered the building, but "I talked them out of staying."

The center was undamaged except for the egg stains.

The demonstrators had lowered the American flag to half-mast, shouting in German "Amis (Americans) out of Viet Nam" and in English, "LBJ, LBJ, how many kids have you killed today?"

Latin America Again Notes Gain in Economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Preliminary estimates by U.S. economists indicated Saturday that for the second year in a row, Latin America's economic growth will surpass the target set under the Alliance for Progress.

That 10-year program for social and economic progress in this hemisphere aims at boosting average individual incomes by at least 2.5% a year.

According to preliminary forecasts made available here, the 19 Latin American republics are likely to record in 1966 an average income increase of 2.7% per person.

This compares with a 2.8% per capita income rise reported for 1965 and a 2.4% increase in 1964.

* * * *

OVER-ALL production is expected to climb even more, as measured in constant 1962 (first year of the alliance program) dollars. The gross national product of the 19 nations was tentatively forecast at $75.57 billion in 1965, a 5.6% boost above last year.

Latin America's gross national product—a total value of goods and services—rose 5.7% in 1965 and 5.3% in 1964. However, the per-person increase has been less than half this percentage because of rapidly expanding populations.

* * * *

THE NEW statistics are being read with considerable pleasure in Washington, which supplies some $2 billion a year to aid the alliance program.

Part of the good showing concededly represents a recovery from Latin America's depressed levels in the early 1960s. But U.S. officials believe the figures indicate also that the economies of the hemisphere republics in general are making sustained progress.

About 88% of the GNP is found in 7 of the 10 countries: Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Mexico, Peru and Venezuela.

* * * *

IT IS TO stiffen the backbone of the local population, to try to persuade them that they have much to gain personally and as a nation from American presence in South Viet Nam, that the "Great Society" portion of our basic strategy is now being pushed.

If life can be made more livable, if diseases can be cured, if agricultural products can be diversified and produced in greater quantities, and if the distribution thereof can be made more equitable, then, it is reasoned, the average South Vietnamese will understand that he has a stake in the eventual outcome of the war—and will cease and desist from giving aid and comfort to the enemy.

Whether such results will actually stem from increased aid activity cannot now be known. However, it is clear that President Johnson is going to give it an all-out try. He is thus moving up his heaviest guns in the economic war in the persons of Freeman and Gardner.

Save Owner After Sloop Sinks at Sea

A 48-year-old Beverly Hills man was rescued from a choppy sea Saturday night after his $10,000 sloop sank four miles off Catalina.

The Coast Guard said Joseph Burns was picked up by a passing cabin cruiser after he fired a red flare from the dingy in which he escaped.

Burns apparently left the island about 5:30 p.m. when his 32-foot sailboat, Baby Grand II, began taking on on water.

* * * *

BURNS said he tried to hail and steer at the same time but his boat sustained hull damage and went under.

Jack Harmon, Inglewood, was passing nearby in his 30-foot cabin cruiser Squire when he spotted Burns's flare.

The Squire picked up Burns and carried him to Marina del Rey and safety.

LBJ Moves Up 'Big Guns' for Viet Economic Barrage

By WALTER T. RIDDER

News Behind The Headlines

WASHINGTON—President Johnson hastily called a press conference Friday afternoon and told reporters he had "a little announcement" to make. The "little" announcement was the first news to the public of the President's trip to Hawaii, where he is today conferring with the leaders of South Viet Nam and with the American high command in that area.

The President is being accompanied, as might have been expected, by Secretary of state Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara. Totally unexpectedly, however, he is also being accompanied by Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman and Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare John W. Gardner.

The presence of Freeman and Gardner on the high-level journey would appear to indicate that President Johnson is attempting to do on the foreign front exactly what he is attempting to do on the domestic front. That is, he is trying at one and the same time to fight a war and create a Great Society.

* * * *

BOTH Freeman and Gardner are slated to go on to Saigon after the Hawaii conference has ended. They will presumably propose expansion of agricultural, educational and health aid to the South Vietnamese as the United States steps up its campaign to win the hearts and minds of the people of South Viet Nam.

One of the gravest problems faced by the United States in that area is that we don't have the full support of the whole population.

Many South Vietnamese are frankly baffled by what the U.S. is doing in their country. Others are either openly hostile or cautiously disapproving. Still others think of their own personal futures. They regard the U.S. presence as meaning the war will linger on interminably.

* * * *

THE U.S. is therefore seeking to persuade the people of South Viet Nam that it is to their material as well as spiritual benefit to have the U.S. actively participating in the Vietnamese War.

There is no doubt that the Communists have effectively used history to discredit American presence in Southeast Asia. They point to the long rule of French colonialism and repeat over and over again that it is to reimpose that colonialism which is the real aim of American participation in the war. Never having known white men who were not colonialists, many of the South Vietnamese are inclined to take the Communist line and swallow it hook, line and sinker.

It is obvious that the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese guerrilla forces could not exist in South Viet Nam unless they had the active support of many South Vietnamese inhabitants. Guerrillas cannot last long in a place where the population is 100% against them. They must have covert help, given either willingly or through fear, by local people, and that help is being given to the Viet Cong by a considerable number of South Vietnamese.

* * * *

IT IS TO stiffen the backbone of the local population, to try to persuade them that they have much to gain personally and as a nation from American presence in South Viet Nam, that the "Great Society" portion of our basic strategy is now being pushed.

If life can be made more livable, if diseases can be cured, if agricultural products can be diversified and produced in greater quantities, and if the distribution thereof can be made more equitable, then, it is reasoned, the average South Vietnamese will understand that he has a stake in the eventual outcome of the war—and will cease and desist from giving aid and comfort to the enemy.

Whether such results will actually stem from increased aid activity cannot now be known. However, it is clear that President Johnson is going to give it an all-out try. He is thus moving up his heaviest guns in the economic war in the persons of Freeman and Gardner.

Enthusiastic Welcome for Johnson in Hawaii

"Aloha Lynda Bird's Dad." Next to it, but unnoticeable through the glare of television flood lights, were anti-Johnson picket signs with slogans such as "Murderer Go Home" and "Stop Johnson's War."

The President shook hands at the fence with people in the crowd for less than 30 seconds. He was driven directly to the Royal Hawaiian Hotel in Waikiki.

Among those following Johnson from the aircraft were Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Defense Secretary Robert McNamara, and Gen. Earle Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

A second plane will leave Washington today bringing officials who will play key roles in discussions of economic, social and political affairs in South Viet Nam.

Also joining the President here today are South Viet Nam's Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky and Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu.

After the President's motorcade left the airport, police had to separate anti-Viet Nam war pickets who were jeered by several hundred persons who disapproved of their signs.

The confrontation took place in front of the domestic arrivals sections of the airport where the pickets were booed by those supporting U.S. policy in Viet Nam. Police dispersed the crowd after forceably restraining the pro-Viet Nam people.

The trip to Hawaii, the President said in announcing it late Friday, will give him "a chance to review . . . our complete program" there."

As Johnson put it at a news conference Friday:

"I wouldn't want to anticipate getting off and making any changes one way or another. I wouldn't say that we wouldn't learn some things from the meeting that would cause us either to improve the situation or strengthen it, but I would not want you to anticipate that the purpose of the meeting was to formulate any different policy at all, because that is not the purpose."

DOWN WITH THE (U.S.) FLAG!

West Berlin student demonstrators, protesting U.S. actions in Viet Nam, lower America's flag to halfmast in front of city's "Amerika Haus."

1,500 West Berliners in Anti-U.S. Protest

BERLIN (AP)—An anti-Viet Nam War protest march by 1,500 leftist students and workers ended Saturday in a free-swinging melee between police and demonstrators at "Amerika Haus," the U.S. cultural center in West Berlin.

Police armed with clubs waded into about 100 sit-in demonstrators grouped around an American flag pole in front of the center. The demonstrators jumped to their feet and fought back.

A police spokesman said several persons were slightly injured and several were taken into custody.

Police commanders gave the order to remove the group physically after other demonstrators threw eggs at the front wall of the center.

Ernest J. Colton, Amerika Haus director, said about 100 other demonstrators had entered the building, but "I talked them out of staying."

The center was undamaged except for the egg stains.

The demonstrators had lowered the American flag to half-mast, shouting in German "Amis (Americans) out of Viet Nam" and in English, "LBJ, LBJ, how many kids have you killed today?"

Latin America Again Notes Gain in Economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Preliminary estimates by U.S. economists indicated Saturday that for the second year in a row, Latin America's economic growth will surpass the target set under the Alliance for Progress.

That 10-year program for social and economic progress in this hemisphere aims at boosting average individual incomes by at least 2.5% a year.

According to preliminary forecasts made available here, the 19 Latin American republics are likely to record in 1966 an average income increase of 2.7% per person.

This compares with a 2.8% per capita income rise reported for 1965 and a 2.4% increase in 1964.

* * * *

OVER-ALL production is expected to climb even more, as measured in constant 1962 (first year of the alliance program) dollars. The gross national product of the 19 nations was tentatively forecast at $75.57 billion in 1965, a 5.6% boost above last year.

Latin America's gross national product—a total value of goods and services—rose 5.7% in 1965 and 5.3% in 1964. However, the per-person increase has been less than half this percentage because of rapidly expanding populations.

* * * *

THE NEW statistics are being read with considerable pleasure in Washington, which supplies some $2 billion a year to aid the alliance program.

Part of the good showing concededly represents a recovery from Latin America's depressed levels in the early 1960s. But U.S. officials believe the figures indicate also that the economies of the hemisphere republics in general are making sustained progress.

About 88% of the GNP is found in 7 of the 19 countries: Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Mexico, Peru and Venezuela.

The Coast Guard said Joseph Burns was picked up by a passing cabin cruiser after he fired a red flare from the dingy in which he escaped.

Burns apparently left the island about 5:30 p.m. when his 32-foot sailboat, Baby Grand II, began taking on water.

* * * *

BURNS said he tried to bail and steer at the same time but his boat sustained hull damage and went under.

Jack Harmon, Inglewood, was passing nearby in his 30-foot cabin cruiser Squire when he spotted Burns's flare.

The Squire picked up Burns and carried him to Marina del Rey and safety.

AIMING FOR MORE AID

LBJ Moves Up 'Big Guns' for Viet Economic Barrage

By WALTER T. RIDDER

News Behind The Headlines

WASHINGTON—President Johnson hastily called a press conference Friday afternoon and told reporters he had "a little announcement" to make. The "little" announcement was the first news to the public of the President's trip to Hawaii, where he is today conferring with the leaders of South Viet Nam and with the American high command in that area.

The President is being accompanied, as might have been expected, by Secretary of state Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara. Totally unexpectedly, however, he is also being accompanied by Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman and Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare John W. Gardner.

The presence of Freeman and Gardner on the high-level journey would appear to indicate that President Johnson is attempting to do on the foreign front exactly what he is attempting to do on the domestic front. That is, he is trying at one and the same time to fight a war and create a Great Society.

* * * *

BOTH Freeman and Gardner are slated to go on to Saigon after the Hawaii conference has ended. They will presumably propose expansion of agricultural, educational and health aid to the South Vietnamese as the United States steps up its campaign to win the hearts and minds of the people of South Viet Nam.

One of the gravest problems faced by the United States in that area is that we don't have the full support of the whole population.

Many South Vietnamese are frankly baffled by what the U.S. is doing in their country. Others are either openly hostile or cautiously disapproving. Still others think of their own personal futures. They regard the U.S. presence as meaning the war will linger on interminably.

* * * *

THE U.S. is therefore seeking to persuade the people of South Viet Nam that it is to their material as well as spiritual benefit to have the U.S. actively participating in the Vietnamese War.

There is no doubt that the Communists have effectively used history to discredit American presence in Southeast Asia. They point to the long rule of French colonialism and repeat over and over again that it is to reimpose that colonialism which is the real aim of American participation in the war. Never having known white men who were not colonialists, many of the South Vietnamese are inclined to take the Communist line and swallow it hook, line and sinker.

It is obvious that the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese guerrilla forces could not exist in South Viet Nam unless they had the active support of many South Vietnamese inhabitants. Guerrillas cannot last long in a place where the population is 100% against them. They must have covert help, given either willingly or through fear, by local people, and that help is being given to the Viet Cong by a considerable number of South Vietnamese.

* * * *

IT IS TO stiffen the backbone of the local population, to try to persuade them that they have much to gain personally and as a nation from American presence in South Viet Nam, that the "Great Society" portion of our basic strategy is now being pushed.

If life can be made more livable, if diseases can be cured, if agricultural products can be diversified and produced in greater quantities, and if the distribution thereof can be made more equitable, then, it is reasoned, the average South Vietnamese will understand that he has a stake in the eventual outcome of the war—and will cease and desist from giving aid and comfort to the enemy.

Whether such results will actually stem from increased aid activity cannot now be known. However, it is clear that President Johnson is going to give it an all-out try. He is thus moving up his heaviest guns in the economic war in the persons of Freeman and Gardner.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Capital Silent on Peace Report

LONDON (UPI)—Diplomatic moves are being made to arrange a Viet Nam peace conference in Switzerland at which President Johnson will personally represent the United States, the London Evening News reported Saturday.

In Washington, both the White House and the State Department refused to comment on the report. In Bern, an authoritative Swiss government source denied any knowledge of such moves.

The newspaper said in a front page dispatch from Geneva that the highly secret moves were being made by neutral diplomats and representatives of the Vatican.

"A summit conference in Viet Nam, possibly in secret, within the next three months is in the cards, with President Johnson personally representing the United States," the dispatch stated.

Moro Quits

ROME (AP)—Aldo Moro resigned Saturday night as premier-designate of Italy after trying for more than a week to form a new government. President Giuseppe Saragat accepted the resignation and set up consultations to pick a new premier.

MORO

Saragat summoned Moro to the Quirinal Presidential Palace after concluding a second round of talks with parliamentary leaders in an attempt to end Italy's three-week-old government crisis.

Moro had told Saragat two nights ago that he had run up against a stone wall in negotiations to regroup the center-left coalition made up of his own Christian Democrats plus Socialists, Democratic Socialists and Republicans.

Big Greek Quake

ATHENS (AP) — A predawn earthquake struck north-central Greece Saturday, killing one person, injuring 20 seriously and leaving hundreds, perhaps thousands, homeless.

The Greek government declared the area from Larisa in Northern Greece south to Karpenision in a state of emergency.

Greek military rescue units raced to reach badly hit villages before nightfall over snow-covered roads that were reported blocked by landslides caused by the sharp tremors that hit just after 4 a.m. More than 20 tremors had been felt up to noon, and lighter ones continued into the afternoon and night.

Doctors to Strike

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — King Baudouin declined to accept the resignation of Premier Harmel's coalition government Saturday and Belgium's doctors immediately announced they would go on strike at midnight tonight.

BAUDOUIN

The doctors rejected appeals by both the king and prime minister for a truce, and said they were maintaining their decision to strike unless the government modifies the state-operated health insurance system and increases fees paid to doctors and dentists.

Baudouin, in a stern message to the coalition government of Socialists and Social Christians, urged it to make a last effort toward finding a solution to the problem and then "to submit this without delay to parliament approval."

Plane Wreckage

TOKYO, Saturday (UPI) — A Japanese ship crew today sighted the main fuselage of the Boeing 727 jet which crashed in Tokyo Bay with the loss of 133 lives.

The discovery was announced after All Nippon Airways took advertisements in local newspapers to apologize for the crash — the worst single-plane disaster in history.

Pike in Mourning

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Very Rev. James A. Pike, Episcopal Bishop of California, went into seclusion in his San Francisco home Saturday night in mourning for his son, James A. Pike Jr., 22, who shot himself to death Friday in a New York hotel.

U.S. Tanks Delivered to Israelis

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department said Saturday the United States has sold Patton tanks to Israel.

The number of U.S. tanks shipped to the Middle East country was not disclosed. Reliable sources said, however, the figure was in the neighborhood of 200.

U.S. sources say the military sales deal was made about one year ago.

State Department Press Officer Marshall Wright made the announcement after publication in Cairo of a report that American tanks had gone to Israel.

* * * *

HE SAID the Soviet Union had made massive arms sales in the Middle East. Egypt, Syria and Iraq are reported to have received substantial Soviet arms.

The United States, while attempting to limit the Middle East arms race but at the same time maintain a balance, has also sent tanks to Jordan and antiaircraft missiles to Saudi Arabia and Israel, Wright said.

Hungary Jails 2 as U.S. Spies

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—A Hungarian university associate professor and a legal expert have been arrested on charges of spying for the United States, the Hungarian Interior Ministry announced Saturday.

This brought to three the number of Hungarians arrested within two weeks on espionage charges. There was no announcement of any connection between the two cases.

The ministry said Dr. Elemer Egedy, associate professor at Budapest University, and Dr. Lehel Egedy, a legal counselor, "carried out hostile activities against Hungary after having been recruited for espionage by U.S. intelligence organizations during their repeated trips in Western countries." The announcement did not say if the Egedys were related.

The charge was similar to that against retired teacher Laszlo Asboth, arrested on Jan. 23.

Saturday's announcement said the two Egedys "undertook to collect military, political, economic, scientific and cultural secret information and to send these on to their recruiters.

"They received specialized training and were equipped with means necessary for their espionage activities. Although their income (from their Hungarian positions) was well above the average, they undertook espionage activities for the sake of gain. During their activities, they actually obtained secrets and, endangering the interests of the Hungarian People's Republic, they sent these on to American intelligence organizations."

Industrial Injury Accidents Drop

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Industrial accidents causing disabling injuries probably dipped to a rate of 31 per 1,000 workers last year from 1964, Gov. Edmund G. Brown said.

He said the rate, a decline of 4%, would be an all-time low for California. The projected figures were based on data compiled from January through September.

Argentine Labor Center Bombed

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — A bomb severely damaged the offices of the General Confederation of Labor (CGT) Saturday in the latest incident in the bitter struggle for control of Argentina's powerful Peronist movement.

There have been other bomb attacks and Thursday night there was an attempt to kidnap a key leader of the movement.

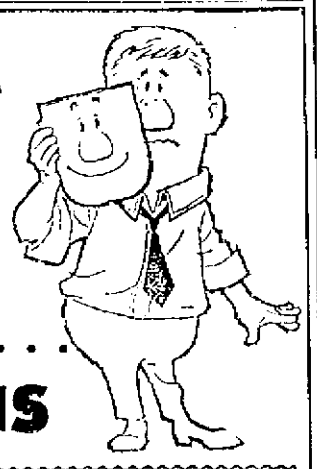

Police said there were no injuries in Saturday's explosion, but there was considerable damage to the building.

Jose Alonso, a supporter of exiled dictator Juan D. Peron, was ousted from leadership of the union last week in a faction parliamentary maneuver spearheaded by Augusto Vandor, head of an anti-Peron

New Oilfield Finds Seen for Alaska

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Alaska was described this week as the nation's most likely spot for the discovery of giant oil fields.

The Oil and Gas Journal estimated Alaska's crude oil production in 1965 at 30,000 barrels a day but said the Cook Inlet area came into its own as new fields and development drilling pushed the basin into prominence.

"There is no doubt now that the inlet's waters hold some of the world's big oil fields," the publication said. "This enthusiasm will gather steam this year as platform drilling picks up."

Estimates of Alaskan drilling expenditures for 1966 were said to run as high as $130 million.

* * * *

THE JOURNAL also said: "There should be a much-needed exploratory advance into the interior of the state soon . . . a push that will extend into the Arctic slopes where vast oil and gas reserves are already known."

The bright prospects for Alaska were outlined in the weekly magazine's annual review and forecast edition on the status of the domestic petroleum industry.

The journal said drilling was the only soft spot in last year's performance but added there is indication drilling contractors will be busier in 1966.

Total well completions for 1966 were estimated at 43,155, compared to 41,423 in 1965 and 45,236 in 1964.

The industry is expected to include 8,859 exploratory wells this year, compared to 8,265 last year and 9,258 in 1964.

* * * *

THE JOURNAL said the relatively poor drilling and exploration program in 1965 is a factor that will tend to promote wildcatting in 1966.

"Also, the firm crude market will add wells that need the boost of uptrending prices," the magazine said.

"Crude markets in almost all producing areas are very firm, with little in the supply-demand picture to cause any surplus of domestic crude that would reverse the trend toward higher demand and probably higher prices."

The 1966 wildcatting agenda was termed exciting.

"Last year's success figures totally weren't as good as had been expected, but wildcatters were busy in many of the basins around the map," the publication said.

"Ultradeep and ultrashallow drilling brought new success to scattered portions of the oil scene. Giant discoveries were scant but the hint of big things to come has 1966 off to a good start."

Other exploration drilling prospects were described this way:

California—"The state will offer new offshore leases . . . deeper drilling in the older areas, particularly around the fabulous flush McKittrick fields . . . there should be a return to gas exploration in the Sacramento Valley."

Louisiana—"Offshore waters will continue to bring in flush new oil reserves."

Texas — "Offshore parcels got a smattering of drilling last year and interest is beginning to soar in this long-neglected province."

Deep drilling—More rigs are running to great depths in west Texas and south Louisiana, promising that both drilling and producing-depth records may once again be shattered in 1966.

Place Going to Dogs, Asks Tax Cut

BOURNE END, England (UPI)—W. H. White asked for a reduction in his property taxes on the grounds that the place outside his home where a lamppost and telegraph pole are located "seems to be the meeting place for all the dogs in the area." The request was turned down.

Reception for Demo Women

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson has invited 3,500 Democratic women delegates to a White House reception Tuesday April 19, the Democratic National Committee announced Saturday.

The women, representing 50 states, will be in Washington to attend the 1966 campaign conference which opens Sunday, April 17.

Mrs. Margaret Price, vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee, said the reception will climax the three-day meeting.

The delegates also will go to the Capitol to visit their senators and congressmen. They will hold workshops at their Washington Hilton Hotel headquarters.

* * * *

ONE OF THE big events will be a luncheon honoring nine national "doers" chosen from names submitted from throughout the country. The delegates also will be briefed by top administration officials and will attend a luncheon honoring the wives of 33 Democratic governors.

Joining Mrs. Price in inviting women, President Johnson said in a statement: "The elections of 1966 will be vital in determining whether we continue our forward movement toward the Great Society, a society in which the quality of life matches the quantity of our goods; a society which pursues and achieves the highest in its cities, in its countryside, in its classrooms.

"In quest of these goals, we need—more than ever before—the special talents and the energy of Democratic women."

Powers Silent at Trial but Aunt Is Animated

By CHARLES E. TAYLOR

MIAMI (UPI)—Melvin Lane Powers is the silent man of his murder trial, in striking contrast with the codefendant, with whom the state says he shared love and a deadly plot, Candace Mossler, the glamorous grandmother.

For three weeks they have been on trial together in Dade County Circuit Court for the slaying of Candy's millionaire husband, Houston financier Jacques Mossler.

They sit at opposite ends of the long row of defense attorneys, a study in contrasts. Candy is 45; Powers is 29. She is his aunt.

* * * *

NOW THAT the testimony has begun, Candy's face is more animated. She shows attentiveness when she listens. She grimaces. She gasped her disagreement with the story told by a witness for the prosecution.

When the defense is cross-examining a witness, she whispers questions to her attorneys. The strain shows on her face, but only once has she wept — when a medical examiner testified in clinical detail about the autopsy performed on the body of her late husband.

Powers, who wears dark suits and most often a maroon tie, gives little hint of his thoughts. When his principal attorney, tall Texan Percy Foreman, makes the going funny, Powers smiles and just his upper teeth show. Infrequently, he whispers to Foreman.

* * * *

WITH NEWSMEN, Candace is a pleasant chatterbox. She will talk about the trial and about her children, always with one of her attorneys within earshot. She is most cordial.

Powers will speak when spoken to, but only to pass the time of day. Never in more than one sentence. This, however, may not be altogether his nature or his choice.

As a matter of principle, Foreman has sought to avoid having Powers "tried in the papers." He says one of the highest compliments paid him in nearly 40 years as a criminal lawyer came from a California judge who praised his restraint in discussing a sensational case with newsmen.

Newsmen who asked Foreman if they could talk with Powers about his personal background were turned down.

Powers is not shy, he paces the courtroom among spectators and newsmen during recesses to stretch his long legs. He simply keeps silent.

* * * *

THE TRIAL has been under way for three weeks, two of which were taken up with selection of a jury.

Of 19 state witnesses called —from a list of names presented to the court which totals more than 220 — the strongest testimony has come from a Negro handyman, Roscoe Brown. He said that on the afternoon before Mossler was slain, June 30, 1964, he washed with soap and water a counter top in the Mossler apartment where a palm print was found the next morning. The state says the print matches Powers' print.

When the trial resumes at 9:30 a.m. Monday, the prosecution will push ahead with its case, putting on the witness stand an expert to identify the palm print found at the murder scene and fingerprints found in the car.

WAR ON POVERTY HITS LAND MINE

Delano Strike a Rerun of 1930 Labor Troubles

Editor's Note: This is another report on the poverty program by a writer who is on a nationwide tour to find out how the hundreds of millions of dollars of federal poverty money are being spent.

By HAYNES JOHNSON

Cesar told the ranchers
We will not be your slaves
We will not pick your lousy grapes
Until we get a raise . . .

Oh, workers can you stand it
Please tell me how you can
Will you be an esquiro!
Or will you be a man?

—El Malcriado, "Voice of the Farm Worker."

DELANO, Calif. — Each dawn the workers and the strikers meet in the vineyards lying in the valley at the foot of the Sierra Nevadas.

"Huelga! Huelga! (strike! strike!)," the men and women shout from their picket line at those they regard as strike-breakers or "scabs." "Deberia tener verguenza? (Have you no shame?)."

The strikers are a mixed lot: Mexican-Americans, Filipinos, Negroes, white ministers and college students. For five months they have been on the front line of one of the bitterest agricultural labor fights since the 1930s.

* * * *

ON THE SURFACE their strike appears a throwback to the 30s. Their slogans and the scene itself evoke old memories.

This is the San Joaquin Valley, the setting for "The Grapes of Wrath," and once again migrant farm workers are pitted against the land owners. Still standing in these fields are the wooden towers from which armed guards repulsed the workers 30 years ago.

The strikers play on the old images. They read from Jack London, embellish their propaganda with such phrases as "the winter of our discontent" and "men of conscience, stand fast," and pledge to continue their fight to "defend the rights of the workers."

But the Delano grape strike represents a new form of protest and activity between the poor and established institutions.

Already the strike has set minister against minister, priest against priest, involved the organized labor movement and the militant civil rights groups, attracted leaders of the new, radical left, led to a national boycott and touched off political controversies at local, state and federal levels.

Also, it has involved the federal government's war on poverty.

* * * *

LAST OCT. 5, nearly a month after the strike began, Washington announced with customary fanfare a $267,887 poverty war grant to the most publicized faction of the strikers.

The timing appears to have been an incredible blunder by the Office of Economic Opportunity in Washington. It embarrassed the strikers, outraged the landowners and ignited an ever-widening circle of opposition from within the city and state.

Educators, businessmen, city and county officials, and politicians joined in denouncing the grant.

At the request of the recipients themselves, the government held up the funds, pending settlement of the strike. The strike leader, who is also the man chosen to head the anti-poverty program when the strike ends, says he asked the government not to make the grant during the labor dispute but nothing came of the request.

* * * *

THE CONTROVERSY has not died, however. Whenever the dispute ends, the federal money will be available to those now on strike. And the growers fear the money eventually will be used to organize men and public opinion against them.

Thus what began as a rather routine grant to migrant workers, historically among those most in need in American life, suddenly turned into a new fight involving methods and goals of the war on poverty.

The grape strike began last Sept. 8 as a basic dispute between the growers and the AFL-CIO's Agricultural Workers Organizing Committee, composed almost entirely of some 800 Filipinos. The union was seeking a $1.40 minimum hourly wage and recognition as bargaining agent for the workers. Agricultural workers never have had a contract with their employers.

Before the strike vote, the union attempted to discuss the issues with growers. Telegrams and registered letters were sent and phone calls were made. The growers concede they did not reply. They have not entered into negotiations, and they take the position today that there is no real strike, that only "outsiders" are manning the picket lines.

* * * *

THE WORKERS also sought broadening of the Labor Relations Act to include agricultural workers.

Eight days after the Filipino workers began picketing they were joined by the National Farm Workers Association, which claims a membership of 1,100 Mexican-American families in the valley. It has since brought into the battle outside groups —civil rights workers, Berkeley students and ministers.

It was the farm workers association that received the poverty war grant.

As announced by Washington, the grant seemed innocuous. The money would be used for Mexican-American migrant workers in a three county area. They would "learn citizenship and money management in a self-help education project" financed by federal funds.

The grant provided that 31 members of the migrant population would be employed in the program and that seasonal workers would "conduct classes in their homes on citizenship rights and responsibilities, function and services of public agencies, and ways to upgrade educational levels."

* * * *

THE ANNOUNCEMENT was a bombshell in Delano, not only because it came during the strike but also because city organizations and officials were caught by surprise. Although the money was approved as a community action program, it came under provisions of the Economic Opportunity Act relating to migrant workers. It did not require the approval of any local or state agency.

"Most people were not aware that you could bypass local community action committees," said a businessman. "While we had heard rumors about the application, they were treated as just that—rumors. And then of course the bomb was dropped, at which time a lot of us got a very quick education in the way the program works."

The Delano City Council met and passed a resolution saying the Farm Workers Association was "not the best medium for the distribution of these funds." A similar resolution was passed by the Delano Chamber of Commerce.

* * * *

SEN. THOMAS KUCHEL, R.-Calif, wrote to Sargent Shriver, director of the War on Poverty, that the "grant has aroused much animosity and drawn many expressions of doubt." Similar expressions were made by California's other Senator, Republican George Murphy, and the local congressman, Rep. Harlan Hagen.

The city then began forming a committee to develop its own community action program. City Manager Lou Shephard set forth the city position:

"The purpose of the grant (to the farm workers) was never debated," he said in an interview. "The question in the mind of the council was not opposition to the grant, but to the NFWA as the proper administering agency. We felt that there were existing organizations able to handle such programs.

"The OEO philosophy seems to be to create another level of government, another power structure. This is very disturbing to us. They're creating it directly from the federal level. They're not referring to the local people. They're putting two groups in conflict.

"Now our attitude is that if people are not satisfied with the job we're doing, there is a basic process by which they can change it. Also, the creation of this opposing power must necessarily result in much duplicated effort, wasted time and manpower—a lot of wheels spinning."

* * * *

BUT THE REAL concern, or fear, lies in the objectives of the farm workers when the grant becomes available to them. As Maynard Hall, the Chamber of Commerce manager, said:

"The question is: just what will they advocate in their program? Will they teach organizing for unions?"

A grower was more blunt.

"They are going to have 31 persons going around being paid to talk up citizenship," said Martin Zaninovich, "and one of the rights of citizenship is to join a union and I have no doubt whatever that the money will be used for that purpose."

Fred E. Dyer, the school superintendent, heard of the grant through the newspapers. He was concerned, he said, because the grant referred to "education programs and teachers, unemployed indigenous farm workers—and for this you read unemployed grape pickers."

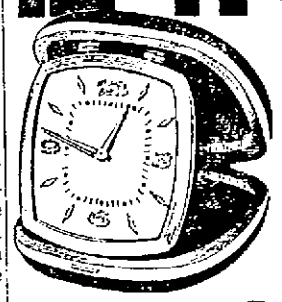

* * * *

"NOW I AM NOT trying to deprecate grape pickers or the unemployed" Dyer said, "but there was a serious question in my mind whether this was the place to search for teachers.

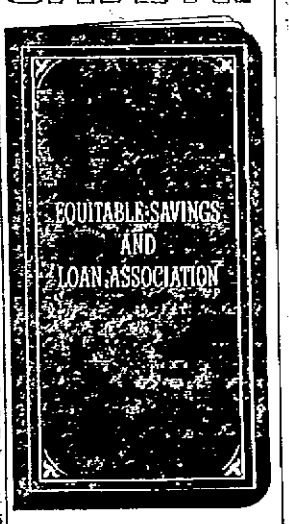

"Here's the way my concern developed. I think teaching is a complex science, requiring care in selection and training of the people involved. I was concerned about who were going to be selected as teachers and how. And, second, it appeared as if Washington had decided it was going to set up a separate educational program for three counties, federally financed and with no guidelines for any local supervision. It would all be supervised directly from Washington. It seemed to me there was something profound going on, with widespread implications for education in the United States."

Ex-Governor John Davis Lodge Will Speak at Lincoln Day Dinner

John Davis Lodge, former Connecticut governor, congressman and ambassador to Spain, will speak at a Lincoln Day Dinner Friday in the Lafayette Hotel under auspices of the 32nd Congressional District Republican Central Committee.

A U.S. Navy captain who took part in Sicilian operations and landings at Salerno and southern France, Lodge is a brother of Henry Cabot Lodge, former U.N. ambassador and now ambassador to South Viet Nam.

As governor he brought his state from an $11 million deficit to a $17 million surplus. During this time he was chairman of the New England Committee for the Peaceful Uses of Atomic Energy, the first of its kind.

Dinner chairman William Price said Assemblyman C. George Deukmejian, R-39th District, will introduce Lodge. Price said former Connecticut residents may reserve seats at special tables. Dinner tickets may be obtained at Republican Headquarters, 3386 Orange Ave., weekdays between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

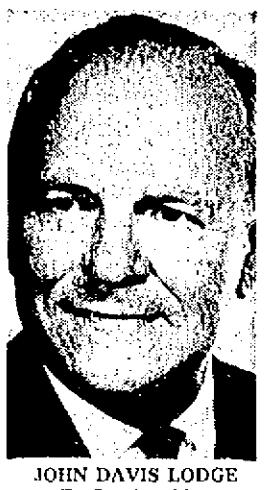

A no-host cocktail hour at 7 p.m. will precede the dinner.

BALL FOR KENNICK

Democratic Assemblyman Joseph M. Kennick announced Saturday the appointment of attorney Joseph A. Ball as chairman of the Kennick campaign for State Senate in the new 33rd District (Long Beach, Lakewood, Bellflower, Paramount, Compton and Carson-Dominguez area).

Ball, senior member of the law firm of Ball, Hunt and Hart, noted this is his third time as director of a Kennick campaign. He said Kennick's "vast and distinguished service in the Assembly during the last eight years will make him an extremely effective and influential representative" in the new Senate district.

Kennick, as chairman of the Public Utilities and Corporations Committee, Ball said, "was instrumental in providing the leadership which resolved the Long Beach tidelands oil controversy on a fair and equitable basis. I urge every voter in the 33rd District who has benefited by the dedication and understanding that Joe has shown their problems to give him their vote of confidence.

JOHN DAVIS LODGE
To Speak Friday

CHRISTOPHER TALK

Republican gubernatorial candidate George Christopher will speak at 2 p.m. Saturday in the Northwood Clubhouse lounge, Leisure World, Seal Beach.

Christopher, mayor of San Francisco 1956 through 1963, is being sponsored at the Leisure World appearance by "friends of the candidate." The meeting is public.

32 GOP WOMEN

Mrs. Cecil Kenyon, past third vice president of the National Federation of Republican Women and past president of the California Federation, will speak on "Come, Let Us Evaluate Together" Wednesday noon at a meeting of 32nd Congressional District Republican Women in Bixby Park Clubhouse, 130 Cherry Ave.

At 10:30 a.m. the legislative study group will present a review of the book "Strike from Space," co-authored by Phyllis Schlafly and Chester Ward, R. Adm. USN Ret. The business meeting is at 11:15 a.m. A social hour, with refreshments, is scheduled for 1 p.m. The meeting is public and free.

UROC MEET HERE

United Republicans of California (UROC) will hold its board of governors meeting Feb. 18, 19 and 20 in the Lafayette Hotel, Fred Nagel, state chairman, announced. He said about 300 are expected to attend.

Rep. Howard (Bo) Callaway, R-Ga., one of the first Republicans elected to Congress from Georgia since Civil War reconstruction days, will speak at the Saturday evening dinner session.

Roger Freeman, senior staff member of the Hoover Institution of War, Revolution and Peace, Stanford University, will be Saturday luncheon speaker. Assemblyman Charles Conrad, R-Sherman Oaks, will conduct a Saturday afternoon workshop on the impact of legislative redistricting.

LEETHAM SUCCESSOR

Election of a successor to Chairman Julius A. (Jud) Leetham, who recently announced his candidacy for California attorney general, will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Hall of Administration, Los Angeles, at a general meeting of the Republican Central Committee of Los Angeles County.

VOTER REFISTRATION

Persons not registered for Long Beach's May 10 city primary or the June 7 state primary and Nov. 8 general elections may do so during special registration hours sponsored the first Monday of each month in branch libraries by the Long Beach League of Women Voters.

Hours Monday are 7 to 9 p.m. in all branches except Mark Twain. Registration at Twain will be held 6 to 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Decision Slated on Propositions

Long Beach voters will get an inkling this week whether they will ballot on propositions as well as candidates at the May 10 municipal primary.

The City Council's Charter Amendment Committee is scheduled to meet at 2 p.m. Tuesday to decide what propositions, if any, are to be placed on the ballot.

Only three live issues are before the committee, which consists of all nine councilmen. The three are:

—A proposed increase in the salary of councilmen from $200 to $600 monthly.

—A proposition to authorize a special tax of 2 cents per $100 assessed valuation to complete the construction of Veterans Memorial Stadium.

—An amendment requiring new city employes to work a year, rather than six months, before graduating from probationary to permanent status.

A councilmanic pay raise looks likely for a place on the ballot, in view of the strong support for it last week from a newly-formed ad hoc citizen's committee. Another endorsement came soon afterward from the 2,700-member City Employees Association, with other organizations scheduled to act soon.

* * * *

ONE QUESTION among councilmen, however, is whether a tripling of their present pay isn't going too far in one step. Only three years ago an amendment to set the new salary at $400 lost narrowly, 24,279 against 23,311 in favor.

The special tax for stadium completion has the backing of numerous civic organizations, mainly in response to behind-the-scenes activity of the Stretch-That-Stadium group of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The third of the three proposals, lengthening the probationary period of employes, has not become a public issue. It does have the backing of the city manager's office, several department heads and, more recently, the council's own Civil Service Committee. Some employe groups are expected to oppose it.

Neither the Charter Amendment Committee nor the council has scheduled a hearing on any of the measures, the premise being that the public will have the opportunity to express itself at the polls.

Garden Club Meets Wednesday

Ron Session, city park gardener, will speak on "Caring for Trees in Your Garden" at the meeting of the Long Beach Garden Club at 1 p.m., Wednesday, in the Glendale Federal Savings Building, 5535 Stearns St.

Ex-Governor John Davis Lodge Will Speak at Lincoln Day Dinner

John Davis Lodge, former Connecticut governor, congressman and ambassador to Spain, will speak at a Lincoln Day Dinner Friday in the Lafayette Hotel under auspices of the 32nd Congressional District Republican Central Committee.

A U.S. Navy captain who took part in Sicilian operations and landings at Salerno and southern France, Lodge is a brother of Henry Cabot Lodge, former U.N. ambassador and now ambassador to South Viet Nam.

As governor he brought his state from an $11 million deficit to a $17 million surplus. During this time he was chairman of the New England Committee for the Peaceful Uses of Atomic Energy, the first of its kind.

Dinner chairman William Price said Assemblyman C. George Deukmejian, R-39th District, will introduce Lodge. Price said former Connecticut residents may reserve seats at special tables. Dinner tickets may be obtained at Republican Headquarters, 3386 Orange Ave., weekdays between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

A no-host cocktail hour at 7 p.m. will precede the dinner.

JOHN DAVIS LODGE
To Speak Friday

CHRISTOPHER TALK

Republican gubernatorial candidate George Christopher will speak at 2 p.m. Saturday in the Northwood Clubhouse lounge, Leisure World, Seal Beach.

Christopher, mayor of San Francisco 1956 through 1963, is being sponsored at the Leisure World appearance by "friends of the candidate." The meeting is public.

32 GOP WOMEN

Mrs. Cecil Kenyon, past third vice president of the National Federation of Republican Women and past president of the California Federation, will speak on "Come, Let Us Evaluate Together" Wednesday noon at a meeting of 32nd Congressional District Republican Women in Bixby Park Clubhouse, 130 Cherry Ave.

At 10:30 a.m. the legislative study group will present a review of the book "Strike from Space," co-authored by Phyllis Schlafly and Chester Ward, R. Adm. USN Ret. The business meeting is at 11:15 a.m. A social hour, with refreshments, is scheduled for 1 p.m. The meeting is public and free.

UROC MEET HERE

United Republicans of California (UROC) will hold its board of governors meeting Feb. 18, 19 and 20 in the Lafayette Hotel, Fred Nagel, state chairman, announced. He said about 300 are expected to attend.

Rep. Howard (Bo) Callaway, R-Ga., one of the first Republicans elected to Congress from Georgia since Civil War reconstruction days, will speak at the Saturday evening dinner session.

Roger Freeman, senior staff member of the Hoover Institution of War, Revolution and Peace, Stanford University, will be Saturday luncheon speaker. Assemblyman Charles Conrad, R-Sherman Oaks, will conduct a Saturday afternoon workshop on the impact of legislative redistricting.

LEETHAM SUCCESSOR

Election of a successor to Chairman Julius A. (Jud) Leetham, who recently announced his candidacy for California attorney general, will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Hall of Administration, Los Angeles, at a general meeting of the Republican Central Committee of Los Angeles County.

VOTER REFISTRATION

Persons not registered for Long Beach's May 10 city primary or the June 7 state primary and Nov. 8 general elections may do so during special registration hours sponsored the first Monday of each month in branch libraries by the Long Beach League of Women Voters.

Hours Monday are 7 to 9 p.m. in all branches except Mark Twain. Registration at Twain will be held 6 to 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Decision Slated on Propositions

Long Beach voters will get an inkling this week whether they will ballot on propositions as well as candidates at the May 10 municipal primary.

The City Council's Charter Amendment Committee is scheduled to meet at 2 p.m. Tuesday to decide what propositions, if any, are to be placed on the ballot.

Only three live issues are before the committee, which consists of all nine councilmen. The three are:

—A proposed increase in the salary of councilmen from $200 to $600 monthly.

—A proposition to authorize a special tax of 2 cents per $100 assessed valuation to complete the construction of Veterans Memorial Stadium.

—An amendment requiring new city employes to work a year, rather than six months, before graduating from probationary to permanent status.

A councilmanic pay raise looks likely for a place on the ballot, in view of the strong support for it last week from a newly-formed ad hoc citizen's committee. Another endorsement came soon afterward from the 2,700-member City Employees Association, with other organizations scheduled to act soon.

* * * *

ONE QUESTION among councilmen, however, is whether a tripling of their present pay isn't going too far in one step. Only three years ago an amendment to set the new salary at $400 lost narrowly, 24,279 against 23,311 in favor.

The special tax for stadium completion has the backing of numerous civic organizations, mainly in response to behind-the-scenes activity of the Stretch-That-Stadium group of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The third of the three proposals, lengthening the probationary period of employes, has not become a public issue. It does have the backing of the city manager's office, several department heads and, more recently, the council's own Civil Service Committee. Some employe groups are expected to oppose it.

Neither the Charter Amendment Committee nor the council has scheduled a hearing on any of the measures, the premise being that the public will have the opportunity to express itself at the polls.

Garden Club Meets Wednesday

Ron Session, city park gardener, will speak on "Caring for Trees in Your Garden" at the meeting of the Long Beach Garden Club at 1 p.m., Wednesday, in the Glendale Federal Savings Building, 5535 Stearns St.

Viet-War Aviators Tell of Air Battles

By LEE CRAIG
Aerospace Editor

Three Air Force fighter pilots, veterans of Viet Nam action, were guest speakers Saturday night as the Air Force Association's Los Angeles chapter held its installation dinner dance in Fort MacArthur's officers' club.

A special distinction was awarded one of the pilots, Capt. David Elliott, who brought back a live souvenir from Viet Nam . . . a year-old orphan, now Kim Yen Su Elliott.

• • • •

"I HAD instructions from my wife," Elliott said. "This is what she wanted and I managed to whack through the red tape to deliver."

Elliott found the girl in a Chinese orphanage and, through the help of high-ranking Vietnamese officials, obtained clearance to adopt her.

Appearing with him were Capts. Albert L. Logan, 30, and Richard Pearson, 33, both of whom had encounters with Russian-built MIG 17 fighters on missions into North Viet Nam.

Logan was with a flight of F105 Thunderchief fighters which lost two planes to the MIGs last April 4.

"They hit us as we were coming in on a bombing run," Logan said. "The weather was bad and we had no chance to see them. Normally, in an even fight, we'd have taken them."

• • • •

PEARSON'S flight was jumped similarly, although they were not on a bombing run at the time. He saw tracers flaming over his canopy, then chased tails with the enemy fighters for about five minutes before they broke off and fled.

All three officers now are assigned to Nellis Air Force Base, Nev.

Guest of honor at the affair was Paul Burke, star of the television series "12 O'Clock High." Special Air Force Association awards were presented to Mrs. Joan Gorfin, Air Force information officer and M.Sgt. James R. Doherty, television technical adviser, for their Air Force service.

3 Navasota Men Lost as Copter Falls

The names of three missing sailors from the Long Beach-based fleet oiler USS Navasota were being withheld by the Navy late Saturday pending notification of next of kin.

The three were lost earlier in the day when a helicopter crashed in the South China Sea as they were returning from repair work on two destroyers that collided.

A Navy spokesman said the three were missing after the crash of a SH3A helicopter.

They had been helping to repair two other ships from Long Beach, the USS Brinkley Bass and the USS Waddell, a guided missile destroyer.

• • • • •

THE BASS had a damaged bow and the Waddell a damaged starboard side. Both were proceeding to port under their own power.

Rescued in the copter crash were eight men from the Navasota and the four-man crew of the helicopter, which was operating from the 7th Fleet attack carrier Ranger.

A second helicopter, also from the Ranger, was forced down at sea by mechanical problems but all its passengers and crew were rescued. Among the passengers were five from the first crash.

$8 Million Bus Grant to Dallas

WASHINGTON (AP) — An $8 million grant to the Dallas, Tex., Transit System to help finance purchase of 310 new buses and make shop and other improvements at an estimated total cost of $12 million was announced by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Military Rite for Airman W. Anderson

A military funeral service for Airman 1/C Wayne D. Anderson, 30, of 6656 E. Rosecrans Ave., Paramount, will be Monday at 11 a.m. in Hillside Church, Rose Hills, Whittier.

Anderson was killed Jan. 28 in an auto accident while serving with the Air Force in Germany.

Surviving are a daughter, Beverly; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Anderson, of the home address, and a brother, Keith, of La Mirada.

Gardena Man Is Linked With Bank Burglary

An unemployed Gardena man Saturday was in Los Angeles County Jail facing a federal charge of bank burglary.

Austin Herren, 32, was held in lieu of $7,500 bond following his arrest by FBI agents and subsequent arraignment before a U.S. Commissioner.

Herren was arrested Friday on suspicion of participating in the burglary the weekend of Dec. 17-18 in which $60,000 in travelers checks and government bonds were taken from the Century Bank of West Los Angeles. He was taken into custody at a trailer park at 135th and Halldale Streets in Gardena.

Seven weeks ago another man, Stanley G. Andrews, was arrested in connection with the same burglary.

U.S. Scientists to Visit Russ

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A team of nine U.S. scientists who specialize in low energy physics will tour Russian nuclear installations under the auspices of U.S.-Soviet exchange program.

The Atomic Energy Commission said the trip was part of a program begun last year when a group of Soviet scientists visited the United States to inspect facilities devoted to peaceful uses of atomic energy.

Scout Fund Drive Opens on Mar. 4

Long Beach Area Boy Scout Council opens its annual campaign for operating funds on March 4.

More than 12,000 boys and 4,000 adults now participate in council activities, Council President Jerry S. Jacobs said.

He said the council now has 350 Cub packs, Scout troops and Explorer units sponsored by 185 institutions.

"Scouting continues to capture the imagination of Americans, both boys and adult," Jacobs said.

Across the motoring years you've owned or driven many cars. You've loved 'em, babied, cussed 'em—alternately or at the same time.

So which of the many do you remember now with fondest nostalgia? Which stands sharpest in memory today?

If answering that is difficult, nay, painful, consider the plight of Mr. and Mrs. Briggs Cunningham, who next weekend will open publicly their new automotive museum in Costa Mesa.

Between them, the Cunninghams of Lido Isle hold title to dozens, possibly hundreds, of cars. Cars with romantic names from our immediate past as Duesenberg, Hispano-Suizo, Mercer, Pierce Arrow, Stutz Bearcat . . . names which achieved lasting fame in a time when not every man knew how to drive and motoring was high adventure on primitive roads.

When asked at a recent press preview of the museum at Baker Street and Redhill Road which displayed autos were their favorite, Mrs. Cunningham grimaced and replied:

"Who can say which of their children she likes best . . ."

WITH REPEATED urging she finally pointed along a row of cars gleaming under the fluorescents of the highly functional museum building at a sky-blue roadster—whose sign identified it as a "1914 Rolls-Royce Touring Colonial Model—Kellner body."

"That's the one," Laura Cunningham said positively. "That's my 'Blue Lady.'"

"I took her to the Tahne road meet in 1950," she continued, "and sweated over her for 18 hours to get her ready. The judges wouldn't believe she could run, insisted I drive her 100 miles in a pretest."

And when it was all over, "Blue Lady" came in first in her pre-World War I class.

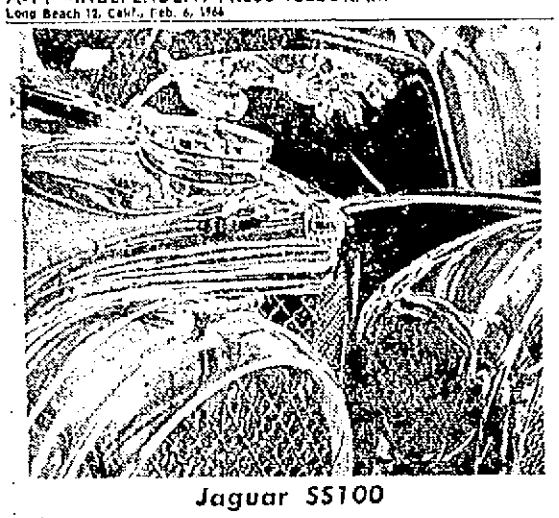

Cunningham drove his own cars—"his own" meaning he helped design and build them—six times in the 24-hour-long Le Mans road classic in the early 1950s. Other interests include sailing—he skippered the Columbia to victory in the 1958 America's Cup race—and flying.

Sportsman Cunningham's lot was no easier than his wife's in pinpointing an all-time, all-time favorite.

"There was this one," he pointed, "and that, and . . ."

Finally he settled upon the custom-built Cunningham CR-1, a 1950 Cadillac chassis with a special aerodynamic body.

"I raced her in the 1950 Le Mans," he chuckled reminiscently. "The Frenchmen there called her "Le Monstre"—which to an observer, seems rather unfair even though the blue-and-cream open racer vaguely resembles a pregnant whale.

HER FAVORITE CAR among dozens of classic models, says Laura Cunningham is 1914 Rolls-Royce touring colonial model with Kellner body.

It was halfway through the race, with Cunningham at the wheel, when the first and second gears "just broke off." He "finished the final laps with only third and fourth gears still usable."

That was only one phase of Cunningham's troubles in that eventful year when he helped bring back American automobiles to the European-dominated race classic in southern France.

"On the second lap," he continued, "I saw three Ferraris coming up from behind—one on either side, the third on my tail.

"They're going to chew me up,' I remember thinking. Then I thought: 'Oh, hell, I can get around them on the straightaway!'

"It took me a half day to dig my way out of the sand-bank I hit trying to outrun them!" he grinned.

"Since then, I've always kept a small shovel in all my cars — but I haven't needed one since!"

L.B. Service Tonight for 4 Hero Chaplains

Memorial services will be held in Long Beach tonight for the four American chaplains who gave up their lifejackets—and their lives—when the troop transport Dorchester was torpedoed and sunk off Greenland on Feb. 3, 1943.

The 7:30 p.m. program in the American Legion Hall, 5938 Parkerest St., is sponsored by Lakewood Post 496, with Post Chaplain Emory Alderson presiding. Participants include Rev. Edward Bradley, of St. Cornelius Catholic Church; Rabbi Philip Fried, of Temple Beth Zion, Lakewood, and Rev. Hugh David Burcham, Covenant Presbyterian Church, with Ruth Slocum at the piano.

The World War II chaplain heroes were Rev. George L. Fox, Methodist minister of Gilman, Vt.; Rev. John P. Washington, Catholic priest of Arlington, N.J.; Rabbi Alexander D. Goode, of York, Pa., and Rev. Clark V. Polling, minister of The Reformed Church of Schenectady, N.Y.

After handing over their life jackets to troops on the boat deck of their sinking ship, the chaplains locked arms and knelt together in prayer as the Dorchester went down. Identities of the four servicemen who received the jackets were never established, and to this day it is not known whether they were among the 230—of 600 aboard—who survived the wartime tragedy.

Russian Space Scientists Startle World Again

Combined Wire Services

Once again, Russian scientists startled the world. This time it was by landing an unmanned spacecraft on the moon to gather information for future space travel.

"Luna 9 has accomplished a soft landing on the moon," the Russians announced Thursday, and suddenly a whole new era was opened. For the first time, man would be able to receive information directly from another body in space. As usual, the Russians gave little news about their feat, but they did announce the frequency on which Luna 9 was transmitting.

Friday, the British observatory at Jodrell Bank, England, announced it was receiving spectacular television pictures from Luna 9, and quickly made them public. Sir Bernard Lovell, director of the observatory, said the pictures showed craters, rocks and even individual pebbles, and seemed to come from a camera six to 10 feet from the moon's surface. President Johnson and scientists around the world wired congratulations to Moscow, which was busy hailing its own achievement without telling much about it.

THAT THE landing itself had been achieved was a great feat. The Russians had tried four times for a soft landing since Jan. 4, 1959, when Luna 1 missed the moon entirely. Some of the intervening Lunas had hit the moon but at such speed as to smash themselves. Luna 9, the fifth attempt, apparently set down on hard ground with no damage to its delicate instrument package.

For the United States, scientific joy was tinged with national chagrin. The United States will not even try its first soft-landing moon shot before May, and anticipates several failures before matching the Russians' success.

The big thing about the landing was that it proved the surface of the moon was hard enough to support a manned space ship of the future.

THE DECISION came Monday, and with a surprise twist. President Johnson announced the bombing of North Viet Nam had been resumed, after a hiatus of 37 days. He also announced the United States was taking the case for Viet Nam negotiations to the United Nations, a step his administration had long opposed.

Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg placed the issue before the Security Council Tuesday, and for two days the council argued whether to accept it. Finally it did, by a vote of 9 to 2, with 4 abstentions.

Having agreed to debate the United States' resolution seeking negotiations for peace in Viet Nam, the council then recessed to allow time for back-stage talks. The hope seemed to be that Hanoi might be forced to the peace table in a new series of Geneva talks, without the U.S. resolution ever coming to a vote.

LEGAL DRAFT CARD BURNING

Six young men burned their draft cards in Minneapolis, Minn., last week, including John Hankinson, former University of Minnesota quarterback. The Coast Guard aided and abetted the enlistees as they burned their Selective Service cards, which they no longer need as members of the armed forces. Coast Guard Petty Officer W. E. Marchman holds cards for (left to right) George Marx, Michael Murphy, Dennis Elstran, Andrew Harris, Jim Murray and Hankinson.

IN THE Capital there was bipartisan support for the renewal of bombing and the U.N. peace thrust. But Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, who opposes Johnson's Viet Nam policy, pressed ahead with a searching investigation.

The President supported Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Gen. Earl G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joints Chiefs of Staff, in their refusal to testify publicly before Fulbright's committee or any other committee lest they be put in the position of inadvertently helping the enemy.

Vatican City said that despite unfavorable developments, Pope Paul VI would continue pressure on Hanoi and Peking to accept arbitration by neutral members of the U.N. This won Johnson's complete endorsement.

* * * *

On the ground, Operation Masher was pushed with vigor. In this maneuver, American, South Viet Nam and South Korean toops were driving through a Viet Cong force on the coast near Bong Son, 300 miles northeast of Saigon. The bag was good — more than a thousand of the enemy killed, a full regiment of North Vietnamese regulars crushed.

* * * *

IN YET another dramatic move, President Johnson announced he would fly to Hawaii this weekend to meet with South Vietnamese officials and "review our complete program" in Viet Nam.

Indicating that the trip had more than military implications, Johnson said he would take with him Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman and Secretary of Welfare John W. Garner, in addition to Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

Coming from Saigon will be South Viet Nam Premier Nguyen Kao Ky, Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu, Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of American forces in South Viet Nam.

THE BOEING 727 jet airliner of All-Nippon Airways approached Tokyo International Airport for landing at 7 p.m. Friday. Aboard were 126 passengers and a crew of seven, most of the passengers returning from a snow festival in northern Japan.

Suddenly the plane disappeared from the airport radar, and villagers reported seeing a pillar of fire some eight miles out in Tokyo Bay. Hours later rescuers reported picking up bodies and parts of the wreckage of the plane. Those aboard, all Japanese, perished in the world's worst air disaster involving a single plane.

It was the fourth crash of a Boeing 727 in the past six months. The other three, all in the United States, took 140 lives.

IN A 12-minute secret hearing at Gooding, Idaho, on Tuesday, Patricia Kennedy Lawford divorced actor Peter Lawford after 11 years of marriage. She charged mental cruelty and was granted custody of the couple's four children.

The divorce was the first in the Kennedy family which included President John F. Kennedy and two senators, Robert F. and Edward M. Mrs. Lawford, a Roman Catholic, remains in good standing in her church unles she remarries.

WINTER'S WORST blizzard struck the East last weekend, causing over 200 deaths and snarling air, rail and highway traffic for several days.

In Florida, vegetable and citrus crops were severely damaged as temperatures dropped into the 20s. Cities as far apart as Washington and Syracuse, N.Y. were snowed in, and in Arlington, Va., at least 20 babies were born at home or in ambulances.

The Pennsylvania Turnpike and the New York Thruway were closed at the height of the storm, and hundreds of motorists were stranded in drifts or at rest areas. Train service from New York to the South stopped at Baltimore for nearly 12 hours because trains could not get through to Washington. Drifts as high as 15 feet closed roads in Virginia, Delaware and Maryland.

By Tuesday the East had begun to dig out, and warmer weather later in the week brought gradual opening of the arteries of travel.

SOVIET Premier Kosygin told the 17-nation Geneva Disarmament Conference that Russia was ready to commit itself in a non-proliferation pact not to be the first to use nuclear weapons against non-nuclear countries if the other nuclear powers do the same. Disarmament officials said this would make agreement on a non-proliferation treaty much more difficult.

* * * *

The President submitted urgent messages to Congress, topped by a request for $3.4 billion in foreign aid in fiscal 1967, most of it related to Viet Nam and to give more help to countries which help themselves. Not included was $1.5 billion for the "Food for Peace" program.

He also asked for $524 million for an international health and education program "to rid mankind of the slavery of ignorance and the scourge of disease." And shortly, he said, he will propose a highway safety act to curb "death and destruction and senseless carnage on our highways."

* * * *

BUDGET DIRECTOR Charles L. Schultze warned Congress that new tax hikes may be necessary to curb war-spawned inflation but he ruled out price-wage controls "for the foreseeable future." At the same time the administration hinted it might seek a bill to enforce wage-price anti-inflation guideposts if labor and industry start ignoring them to the point of serious inflation.

* * * *

IN CONGRESS, the House cited Imperial Wizard Robert Shelton and six other Ku Klux Klan leaders for contempt for refusing to produce Klan records for the House Committee on Un-American Activities. If indicted, they would be tried in Washington instead of in their home states in the South.

Russian Space Scientists Startle World Again

Combined Wire Services

Once again, Russian scientists startled the world. This time it was by landing an unmanned spacecraft on the moon to gather information for future space travel.

"Luna 9 has accomplished a soft landing on the moon," the Russians announced Thursday, and suddenly a whole new era was opened. For the first time, man would be able to receive information directly from another body in space. As usual, the Russians gave little news about their feat, but they did announce the frequency on which Luna 9 was transmitting.

Friday, the British observatory at Jodrell Bank, England, announced it was receiving spectacular television pictures from Luna 9, and quickly made them public. Sir Bernard Lovell, director of the observatory, said the pictures showed craters, rocks and even individual pebbles, and seemed to come from a camera six to 10 feet from the moon's surface. President Johnson and scientists around the world wired congratulations to Moscow, which was busy hailing its own achievement without telling much about it.

THAT THE landing itself had been achieved was a great feat. The Russians had tried four times for a soft landing since Jan. 4, 1959, when Luna 1 missed the moon entirely. Some of the intervening Lunas had hit the moon but at such speed as to smash themselves. Luna 9, the fifth attempt, apparently set down on hard ground with no damage to its delicate instrument package.

For the United States, scientific joy was tinged with national chagrin. The United States will not even try its first soft-landing moon shot before May, and anticipates several failures before matching the Russians' success.

The big thing about the landing was that it proved the surface of the moon was hard enough to support a manned space ship of the future.

THE DECISION came Monday, and with a surprise twist. President Johnson announced the bombing of North Viet Nam had been resumed, after a hiatus of 37 days. He also announced the United States was taking the case for Viet Nam negotiations to the United Nations, a step his administration had long opposed.

Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg placed the issue before the Security Council Tuesday, and for two days the council argued whether to accept it. Finally it did, by a vote of 9 to 2, with 4 abstentions.

Having agreed to debate the United States' resolution seeking negotiations for peace in Viet Nam, the council then recessed to allow time for back-stage talks. The hope seemed to be that Hanoi might be forced to the peace table in a new series of Geneva talks, without the U.S. resolution ever coming to a vote.

LEGAL DRAFT CARD BURNING

Six young men burned their draft cards in Minneapolis, Minn., last week, including John Hankinson, former University of Minnesota quarterback. The Coast Guard aided and abetted the enlistees as they burned their Selective Service cards, which they no longer need as members of the armed forces. Coast Guard Petty Officer W. E. Marchman holds cards for (left to right) George Marx, Michael Murphy, Dennis Elstran, Andrew Harris, Jim Murray and Hankinson.

IN THE Capital there was bipartisan support for the renewal of bombing and the U.N. peace thrust. But Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, who opposes Johnson's Viet Nam policy, pressed ahead with a searching investigation.

The President supported Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Gen. Earl G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joints Chiefs of Staff, in their refusal to testify publicly before Fulbright's committee or any other committee lest they be put in the position of inadvertently helping the enemy.

Vatican City said that despite unfavorable developments, Pope Paul VI would continue pressure on Hanoi and Peking to accept arbitration by neutral members of the U.N. This won Johnson's complete endorsement.

On the ground, Operation Masher was pushed with vigor. In this maneuver, American, South Viet Nam and South Korean toops were driving through a Viet Cong force on the coast near Bong Son, 300 miles northeast of Saigon. The bag was good—more than a thousand of the enemy killed, a full regiment of North Vietnamese regulars crushed.

* * * *

IN YET another dramatic move, President Johnson announced he would fly to Hawaii this weekend to meet with South Vietnamese officials and "review our complete program" in Viet Nam.

Indicating that the trip had more than military implications, Johnson said he would take with him Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman and Secretary of Welfare John W. Garner, in addition to Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

Coming from Saigon will be South Viet Nam Premier Nguyen Kao Ky, Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu, Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of American forces in South Viet Nam.

THE BOEING 727 jet airliner of All-Nippon Airways approached Tokyo International Airport for landing at 7 p.m. Friday. Aboard were 126 passengers and a crew of seven, most of the passengers returning from a snow festival in northern Japan.

Suddenly the plane disappeared from the airport radar, and villagers reported seeing a pillar of fire some eight miles out in Tokyo Bay. Hours later rescuers reported picking up bodies and parts of the wreckage of the plane. Those aboard, all Japanese, perished in the world's worst air disaster involving a single plane.

It was the fourth crash of a Boeing 727 in the past six months. The other three, all in the United States, took 140 lives.

IN A 12-minute secret hearing at Gooding, Idaho, on Tuesday, Patricia Kennedy Lawford divorced actor Peter Lawford after 11 years of marriage. She charged mental cruelty and was granted custody of the couple's four children.

The divorce was the first in the Kennedy family which included President John F. Kennedy and two senators, Robert F. and Edward M. Mrs. Lawford, a Roman Catholic, remains in good standing in her church unles she remarries.

WINTER'S WORST blizzard struck the East last weekend, causing over 200 deaths and snarling air, rail and highway traffic for several days.

In Florida, vegetable and citrus crops were severely damaged as temperatures dropped into the 20s. Cities as far apart as Washington and Syracuse, N.Y. were snowed in, and in Arlington, Va., at least 20 babies were born at home or in ambulances.

The Pennsylvania Turnpike and the New York Thruway were closed at the height of the storm, and hundreds of motorists were stranded in drifts or at rest areas. Train service from New York to the South stopped at Baltimore for nearly 12 hours because trains could not get through to Washington. Drifts as high as 15 feet closed roads in Virginia, Delaware and Maryland.

By Tuesday the East had begun to dig out, and warmer weather later in the week brought gradual opening of the arteries of travel.

SOVIET Premier Kosygin told the 17-nation Geneva Disarmament Conference that Russia was ready to commit itself in a non-proliferation pact not to be the first to use nuclear weapons against non-nuclear countries if the other nuclear powers do the same. Disarmament officials said this would make agreement on a non-proliferation treaty much more difficult.

The President submitted urgent messages to Congress, topped by a request for $3.4 billion in foreign aid in fiscal 1967, most of it related to Viet Nam and to give more help to countries which help themselves. Not included was $1.5 billion for the "Food for Peace" program.

He also asked for $524 million for an international health and education program "to rid mankind of the slavery of ignorance and the scourge of disease." And shortly, he said, he will propose a highway safety act to curb "death and destruction and senseless carnage on our highways."

* * * *

BUDGET DIRECTOR Charles L. Schultze warned Congress that new tax hikes may be necessary to curb war-spawned inflation but he ruled out price-wage controls "for the foreseeable future." At the same time the administration hinted it might seek a bill to enforce wage-price anti-inflation guideposts if labor and industry start ignoring them to the point of serious inflation.

* * * *

GOVERNOR'S CONFERENCE ON YOUTH

3000 Delegates Meet Here Thursday

By ROBERT WILCOX
Education Editor

More than 3,000 delegates will explore the problems of the young at the Governor's Conference on Youth Thursday and Friday in Long Beach.

The sessions, covering topics from law enforcement to community service, will be held at the Lafayette Hotel, the Long Beach Arena and Municipal Auditorium.

An address by Gov. Edmund G. Brown at 1:30 p.m. Friday at the auditorium will climax the two-day affair.

More than three-quarters of the participants will be youth who were selected by high schools, junior colleges, universities and colleges, private and parochial schools and service clubs.

The other principal speaker will be Dr. William Rust, president of California Western University, San Diego. Rust's address in Municipal Auditorium will open the conference at 10 a.m. Thursday.

Seven two-hour panel sessions will start at 1 p.m. Thursday at the three locations.

The forums, chairmen, and locations are:

Also, participation in community service, Jerry Poe, American National Red Cross, Lafayette Hotel; the family, Dr. Harry Smallenberg, Los Angeles County Schools, Lafayette Hotel; jobs, Del Hanan, area youth coordinator for the California State Employment Service, Lafayette Hotel; youth and the law, Mrs. Maurice Millard, chairman of the Federation of Coordinating Councils, Municipal Auditorium.

THE LONG BEACH conference complements a similar Northern California parley held in Sacramento last November.

Cosponsors are the California Delinquency Prevention Commission and the Governor's Advisory Committee on Children and Youth.

Mrs. A. Kenneth Spencer of San Gabriel and Patricia Skiles of Los Angeles are co-chairmen.

The chairmen said that similar conferences are held each few years to discuss youth problems and advance youth welfare. This year's theme is "Communication With Youth—a Search for Understanding."

Recommendations for action in the various areas of youth activity will come out of 2½-hour discussion sessions which start at 9 a.m. Friday and are keyed to the Thursday forums.

The chairmen indicated that the conference will stress "development of responsible citizenship, intergroup understanding and personal integrity in a multicultural society."

SAN PEDRO — James Fenimore Cooper High School handed out its first high school diploma last week, even though the school first opened here nearly five years ago.

It isn't that other students at the school couldn't have qualified — it's that they haven't stayed around long enough.

A short stay is in the nature of a mark of success at Cooper, where the object is return the student to a "regular" high school as soon as practical.

For Cooper is what has been referred to as an "adjustment" school, a school where students who aren't able to make a go of it under the ground rules of the usual high school learn to do so.

* * * *

PRINCIPAL Ernest Pieri believes every student of his school is an emotionally upset youngster, although they take vastly different ways of showing it.

The adjustment school tries to do what the regular high school hasn't been able to do principally by being able to devote more time to each individual student.

At Cooper, six teachers and a counselor (in addition to the principal) are able to give their attention to a student body that averages only about 66 pupils.

Although the cost of education per student is three or four times that in a regular high school, so is the time each student receives from the teacher or counselor.

Classes at Cooper have a strong emphasis on remedial reading and other review work, because a scholastic problem quite often is the basis for an unruly student, according to June Oaks, Cooper's counselor.

* * * *

BUT THERE seldom is an easy answer to why a student has to be referred to Cooper. It isn't a matter of poverty or wealth alone, for the school has had the daughter of a bank president as well as kids from the other side of the tracks. It isn't environment alone, for Cooper has had only one member of a family of 11 youngsters, who also numbered several outstanding students.

"One thing I have found that these youngsters do have in common," said Miss Oaks, "Although many of them will brag their heads off, they all have a low sense of ego —a low evaluation of their own worth."

* * * *

PIERI IS PROUD of the fact that the school has been able to return many students to regular school better equipped to meet life's problems.

Evidence that training at Cooper has paid off, said Pieri, is the fact that of 39 students returned to regular high school during the spring semester last year, 33 of them were still in school at the end of the term.

Cooper is able to handle about 135 students during the average school year.

Considering that Cooper serves an area with 12 junior and senior high schools having an enrollment of upwards of 30,000 students, this could mean a low percentage of today's high school students have serious emotional problems.

BEACH COMBING

MALCOLM EPLEY

FOR A TINGLING example of what has happened to land values in this booming area, consider a five-acre plot in the Dominguez area that changed hands the other day.

This land was sold, at $25 an acre, in the 1880's by one of the family land corporations operating out there on old Rancho San Pedro. The same outfit decided recently it ought to own that bit of acreage again and made a purchase.

The price: $42,500 an acre.

And here's betting you couldn't buy it from them today for $60,000 an acre.

Utt sent one of those customary telegrams of regret to the meeting of the Orange Coast Assn. at Balboa Bay Club Thursday eve.

"I regret," said Utt's message, "that attention to my cuties in Washington makes it impossible to attend your meeting."

Several who saw it asked me how it happened the beauteous miss wasn't kissing me. That's what I want to know.

READER Lem Levinson, commenting on an article in this paper about driver's tests, asks about the requirement for a quick look back, as well as a look into a rear view mirror and signaling, when changing lanes. "This is fine for ordinary driving around town, but on the freeways isn't it kind of hazardous to turn your head to the rear?" asks Levinson.

I'm no authority on driving practices, but now that he has asked me I'll say that failing to look at such a time is more hazardous than a quick glance to the rear. Many a time I've looked in a rear view mirror before changing lanes and failed to spot a car because it was small or because it happened to be in a blind spot.

It's a matter of the degree of hazard, Lem. Just driving on the freeway is somewhat hazardous. Smart drivers adopt the practices that are the least hazardous.

WHEN an exhibitor at the Long Beach Coin Show at the Aud. complained there hadn't been enough publicity about the show, a wag cracked: "Whatcha mean? Didn't you see all those March of Dimes signs over the streets?"

There are dimes and almost every other coin imaginable at the big show, which will conclude today. Most of them are under glass in cases but some loose coins can be handled by visitors.

A fellow on the p.a. system announced that exhibitors should be wary of thieves. I hope his timing had nothing to do with the fact I had just entered the place.

Wandering around there, I encountered Mottell Peek, the stock broker, who called me over to look at a dollar worth $3600. It's an 1895 "proof" cartwheel. Strangely, there are many coins of older mintage and looking much more unusual that are priced at a few cents or a few dollars.

This coin thing is fantastic.

REMEMBER WHEN ONE of the west coast's biggest lumber yards stretched for three blocks along Alamitos Ave. in mid-Long Beach, from Broadway east? And nearby, behind what is now the Apple Valley Steak House on Broadway, there was a barn for the horses that pulled wagons for a laundry in that locality. — Jos. Hoffman.

Dope, Explosives in Newport Raid

By STEVE GIBSON

Newport Beach police Saturday arrested three men who officers say had 200 marijuana seeds and 137 dynamite blasting caps in their possession.

Plainclothes Officer Robert Briscoe said the contraband was found at the home of Charles R. Cozad, 27, a Fullerton State College student, at 121 Edgewater Ave.

Cozad and two companions —John Evans, 25, same address, a food company manager, and Willard B. Wilson, 31, of 219 62nd St., a Newport Beach construction worker—were booked on charges of possession of marijuana.

Briscoe said the district attorney will be asked to file complaints charging illegal possession of dynamite materials in a residential area against the three.

Wilson also faces a charge of assaulting a police officer. Briscoe's partner, reserve officer Christ Karamanos, said Wilson kicked him.

Briscoe reported he and Karamanos were sent to the bayfront residence after Cozad telephoned police and requested officers to search the premises "for dope somebody smuggled into his house."

Briscoe said about 200 marijuana seeds were found in a tin near Wilson, who was sleeping on a couch.

The trio claimed the blasting caps had been stolen from a mine in the San Bernardino Mountains.

In addition to the marijuana seeds and blasting caps, officers found 400 firecrackers, 58 cherry bombs, a .32-caliber pistol and several bottles of an unknown kind of pill. The pills will be analyzed.

Cozad and Evans were released on $1,100 bail each pending arraignment Feb. 14 in Newport Beach Municipal Court. Wilson remained in custody.

Bank-Bandit Suspects Go Free, Clear

Three men, arrested by Fullerton police Thursday on suspicion of attempted bank robbery, have been released with no charges filed against them, police said Saturday.

Exonerated were John Thomas Partin, 33, of 11582 Chester Ave., Garden Grove; Daniel King Ridgely, 18, of 13416 Charlemagne St., Bellflower, and Roy James Hanna, 18, of 9814 Foster Road, Bellflower.

They were taken into custody at the United California Bank branch at 315 N. Harbor Blvd.

Drivers, Look Out; Fog Might Get You

There's fog in your future, and the future might be stepped up to right now.

The clammy stuff dropped down on coastal sections of the Southland early Saturday and, says the weatherman, will make things murky hereabouts and thereabouts through the remainder of the weekend.

Long Beach and Los Angeles International Airports suspended operations at times during the morning, and conditions were to be worse overnight and early today.

Capt. Fred J. Stevenson, head of the Long Beach Police Department's Traffic Division, points out that fog is more than an inconvenience—"It's a major highway danger."

Motorists and pedestrians alike should be on guard against fog-caused hazards, he said, adding that "persons in doubt shouldn't go out" during periods of restricted visibility.

The traffic official's suggested precautions include:

"Drive slowly, adapting your speed to weather and visibility conditions in addition to other vehicles.

"Keep a safe distance from vehicles ahead and remember that road surfaces often are wet and slippery from fog, as from rain.

"Don't race into a patch of fog—you might not come out of it alive.

"Also, keep headlights on low beam, windshield wipers in good working order, inside of windshield free of vapor, avoid unfamiliar roads and, when necessary, follow white guidelines—but watch out for oncoming vehicles doing the same."

GOVERNOR'S CONFERENCE ON YOUTH

3000 Delegates Meet Here Thursday

By ROBERT WILCOX
Education Editor

More than 3,000 delegates will explore the problems of the young at the Governor's Conference on Youth Thursday and Friday in Long Beach.

The sessions, covering topics from law enforcement to community service, will be held at the Lafayette Hotel, the Long Beach Arena and Municipal Auditorium.

An address by Gov. Edmund G. Brown at 1:30 p.m. Friday at the auditorium will climax the two-day affair.

More than three-quarters of the participants will be youth who were selected by high schools, junior colleges, universities and colleges, private and parochial schools and service clubs.

The other principal speaker will be Dr. William Rust, president of California Western University, San Diego. Rust's address in Municipal Auditorium will open the conference at 10 a.m. Thursday.

Seven two-hour panel sessions will start at 1 p.m. Thursday at the three locations.

The forums, chairmen, and locations are:

Also, participation in community service, Jerry Poe, American National Red Cross, Lafayette Hotel; the family, Dr. Harry Smallenberg, Los Angeles County Schools, Lafayette Hotel; jobs, Del Haman, area youth coordinator for the California State Employment Service, Lafayette Hotel; youth and the law, Mrs. Maurice Millard, chairman of the Federation of Coordinating Councils, Municipal Auditorium.

THE LONG BEACH conference complements a similar Northern California parley held in Sacramento last November.

Cosponsors are the California Delinquency Prevention Commission and the Governor's Advisory Committee on Children and Youth.

Mrs. A. Kenneth Spencer of San Gabriel and Patricia Skiles of Los Angeles are co-chairmen.

The chairmen said that similar conferences are held each few years to discuss youth problems and advance youth welfare. This year's theme is "Communication With Youth—a Search for Understanding."

Recommendations for action in the various areas of youth activity will come out of 2½-hour discussion sessions which start at 9 a.m. Friday and are keyed to the Thursday forums.

The chairmen indicated that the conference will stress "development of responsible citizenship, intergroup understanding and personal integrity in a multicultural society."

SAN PEDRO — James Fenimore Cooper High School handed out its first high school diploma last week, even though the school first opened here nearly five years ago.

It isn't that other students at the school couldn't have qualified — it's that they haven't stayed around long enough.

A short stay is in the nature of a mark of success at Cooper, where the object is return the student to a "regular" high school as soon as practical.

For Cooper is what has been referred to as an "adjustment" school, a school where students who aren't able to make a go of it under the ground rules of the usual high school learn to do so.

* * * *

PRINCIPAL Ernest Pieri believes every student of his school is an emotionally upset youngster, although they take vastly different ways of showing it.

The adjustment school tries to do what the regular high school hasn't been able to do principally by being able to devote more time to each individual student.

At Cooper, six teachers and a counselor (in addition to the principal) are able to give their attention to a student body that averages only about 66 pupils.

Although the cost of education per student is three or four times that in a regular high school, so is the time each student receives from the teacher or counselor.

Classes at Cooper have a strong emphasis on remedial reading and other review work, because a scholastic problem quite often is the basis for an unruly student, according to June Oaks, Cooper's counselor.

* * * *

BUT THERE seldom is an easy answer to why a student has to be referred to Cooper. It isn't a matter of poverty or wealth alone, for the school has had the daughter of a bank president as well as kids from the other side of the tracks. It isn't environment alone, for Cooper has had only one member of a family of 11 youngsters, who also numbered several outstanding students.

"One thing I have found that these youngsters do have in common," said Miss Oaks. "Although many of them will brag their heads off, they all have a low sense of ego —a low evaluation of their own worth."

* * * *

PIERI IS PROUD of the fact that the school has been able to return many students to regular school better equipped to meet life's problems.

Evidence that training at Cooper has paid off, said Pieri, is the fact that of 39 students returned to regular high school during the spring semester last year, 33 of them were still in school at the end of the term.

Cooper is able to handle about 135 students during the average school year.

Considering that Cooper serves an area with 12 junior and senior high schools having an enrollment of upwards of 30,000 students, this could mean a low percentage of today's high school students have serious emotional problems.

BEACH COMBING

MALCOLM EPLEY

FOR A TINGLING example of what has happened to land values in this booming area, consider a five-acre plot in the Dominguez area that changed hands the other day.

This land was sold, at $25 an acre, in the 1880's by one of the family land corporations operating out there on old Rancho San Pedro. The same outfit decided recently it ought to own that bit of acreage again and made a purchase.

The price: $42,500 an acre.

And here's betting you couldn't buy it from them today for $60,000 an acre.

Utt sent one of those customary telegrams of regret to the meeting of the Orange Coast Assn. at Balboa Bay Club Thursday eve.

"I regret," said Utt's message, "that attention to my cuties in Washington makes it impossible to attend your meeting."

Several who saw it asked me how it happened the beauteous miss wasn't kissing me. That's what I want to know.

READER Lem Levinson, commenting on an article in this paper about driver's tests, asks about the requirement for a quick look back, as well as a look into a rear view mirror and signaling, when changing lanes. "This is fine for ordinary driving around town, but on the freeways isn't it kind of hazardous to turn your head to the rear?" asks Levinson.

I'm no authority on driving practices, but now that he has asked me I'll say that failing to look at such a time is more hazardous than a quick glance to the rear. Many a time I've looked in a rear view mirror before changing lanes and failed to spot a car because it was small or because it happened to be in a blind spot.

It's a matter of the degree of hazard, Lem. Just driving on the freeway is somewhat hazardous. Smart drivers adopt the practices that are the least hazardous.

WHEN an exhibitor at the Long Beach Coin Show at the Aud. complained there hadn't been enough publicity about the show, a wag cracked: "Whatcha mean? Didn't you see all those March of Dimes signs over the streets?"

There are dimes and almost every other coin imaginable at the big show, which will conclude today. Most of them are under glass in cases but some loose coins can be handled by visitors.

A fellow on the p.a. system announced that exhibitors should be wary of thieves. I hope his timing had nothing to do with the fact I had just entered the place.

Wandering around there, I encountered Mottell Peek, the stock broker, who called me over to look at a dollar worth $3600. It's an 1895 "proof" cartwheel. Strangely, there are many coins of older mintage and looking much more unusual that are priced at a few cents or a few dollars.

This coin thing is fantastic.

REMEMBER WHEN ONE of the west coast's biggest lumber yards stretched for three blocks along Alamitos Ave. in mid-Long Beach, from Broadway east? And nearby, behind what is now the Apple Valley Steak House on Broadway, there was a barn for the horses that pulled wagons for a laundry in that locality. — Jos. Hoffman.

Dope, Explosives in Newport Raid

By STEVE GIBSON

Newport Beach police Saturday arrested three men who officers say had 200 marijuana seeds and 137 dynamite blasting caps in their possession.

Plainclothes Officer Robert Briscoe said the contraband was found at the home of Charles R. Cozad, 27, a Fullerton State College student, at 121 Edgewater Ave.

Cozad and two companions —John Evans, 25, same address, a food company manager, and Willard B. Wilson, 31, of 219 62nd St., a Newport Beach construction worker—were booked on charges of possession of marijuana.

Briscoe said the district attorney will be asked to file complaints charging illegal possession of dynamite materials in a residential area against the three.

Wilson also faces a charge of assaulting a police officer. Briscoe's partner, reserve officer Christ Karamanos, said Wilson kicked him.

Briscoe reported he and Karamanos were sent to the bayfront residence after Cozad telephoned police and requested officers to search the premises "for dope somebody smuggled into his house."

Briscoe said about 200 marijuana seeds were found in a tin near Wilson, who was sleeping on a couch.

Mexican Exports: Slow Death

"HEROIN, in the 8 to 12% purity range, has fallen below $200 per ounce in Southern California," Atty. Gen. Thomas C. Lynch recently told a U.S. Senate subcommittee.

Heroin, a highly refined derivative of the opium poppy, is quickly addictive and dangerous. Many crimes are attributed to the desperate need of users for the drug.

The heroin flows freely across the 150-mile border of California and Mexico. Marijuana and other dangerous drugs also come from south of the border. "The price of illicit dangerous drugs is often less than that charged by pharmacies," Lynch said. "So plentiful are pills that a peddler's problem is reducing his inventory."

Lynch sees two ways of curbing the flow of drugs into Southern California. One is beefed-up federal enforcement along the border. Today there are only two agents of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics in San Diego. The rest of the enforcement attempts are carried out by city, county and state officers.

The other is more complete cooperation with Mexico. Fugitives from California courts ply the drug trade in Tijuana without fear of extradition.

"We who live in friendship along a common border and who share cultural as well as blood heritage refuse to believe that this problem cannot be alleviated through negotiation," Lynch said.

THE ATTORNEY general might have emphasized a third approach to the problem. That is education. Addiction to heroin or marijuana is never accidental. The habits are begun for "kicks."

Young people should be made more aware of the shattered health, jails or hospitals, degradation and slavery which so often result from playing such dangerous games. Easy is the descent to hell.

Russia Wins Space 'First'

RUSSIANS and Americans don't always get along well on this earth, but in space adventures they share each other's triumphs.

From Sputnik until now the Russians have had more than their share of firsts. American scientists don't mind too much. They glory in the fine precision work that goes into our journeys away from earth.

The competition is keen, but respect seems mutual. Each triumph belongs more to mankind than to any nation.

Each achievement opens the way to new triumphs. The world knows that a space vehicle can make a soft landing on the moon. So the world also knows that men can land on the moon.

Men wise enough to explore outer space should be wise enough to figure how to live together in mutual respect on this earth. But the spirit of man is not yet ready for that adventure.

Some Answers Needed on Trends in Religion

RALPH McGILL

THREE RECENT religious news items have inspired discussion. The wire services carried a report by the Episcopal bishop of Alabama, the Rt. Rev. C. E. J. Carpenter. Bishop Carpenter sadly noted that strangers, or outsiders who were Episcopalian clergymen and laymen, had hampered the growth of the church in his diocese.

A Methodist young people's training personnel director noted that while the nation's schools are seriously overcrowded, church Sunday schools are doing well to hold their own. Many, indeed, are not doing that. The experts are trying to find an answer.

In Columbus, Ohio, television viewers may see the first of a series of television shorts. These seek to create renewed interest in religion. An example of the shorts is one that shows the hands of women embroidering on a quilt the theme: "Keep in Circulation the Rumor that God is Alive."

Bishop Carpenter did not identify those strangers, but the wire service reporter said the reference was to the Episcopalian clergymen and laymen who participated in civil rights activities at Selma and in the march to Montgomery. These persons, the bishop said, had seriously interrupted the "normal growth" of the church in Alabama.

The complaint by Alabama's Episcopal bishop that communicants of his faith had reduced the growth of his church by coming into Alabama is attracting perhaps the most discussion.

The "strangers" or "outsiders" who came in did so at a price. One was murdered. Others were beaten and abused. The bishop's complaint that a Christian who also is a communicant or clergyman of the church is an "outsider" is one of the most startling comments of modern times. It implies, at least, the idea that state borders, or even city limits, are barriers to traveling Christians unless they conform to local customs or mores which negate the Christian faith.

A counter comment from Episcopal clergymen is that Christ Himself was warned not to come to Jerusalem because religious authorities there viewed Him as a troublemaker and one likely to upset the normal, even tenor of life. He did go, and He encountered corrupted courts, injustice, mobs and death.

Bishop Carpenter, say those who criticize his rebuke to the Episcopalians who came from other states, reveals, perhaps unwittingly, what many Christians today feel is a failure of too many churches—a wish to exist privately, somehow protected against the great issues and problems of the world and of man who must cope with them.

THEY POINT OUT that the Ecumenical Councils at Rome were held because the Roman Catholic church had come to believe that it had withdrawn too much from the world and met to consider ways to become relevant. America's young people, for example, will hardly be sympathetic with Bishop Carpenter's statement.

That the nation's schools are overrun and that the patter of little feet has become a thunder is everywhere true. Cities are being taxed to build new schools. The population of babies will tax education to find teachers and classrooms for the years ahead. That Sunday school attendance is not keeping pace with the population growth stimulated directors of religious education to find out why.

The TV ads may be helpful—but doubt remains. There are those who believe that "the church" or "religion" may be "sold" as are goods, cosmetics, and appliances. Others insist that commitment to a particular faith may not be "sold," but is, instead, a deeply personal experience that may come to one only through such experience.

Meanwhile, "religion" offers up a diversity of news.

Still Trying for a Soft Landing

From The Washington Star

Ray C. Bliss had a dream one day.

There was a Republican in the White House. The Senate and House of Representatives were controlled by Republicans. Most of the governors' chairs were filled with Republicans. The state legislatures were firmly in the hands of the GOP. So were the courthouses and the city halls.

There were a few Democrats here and there, of course, just to keep the two-party system alive.

There weren't any GOP liberals and conservatives — they were just all good Republicans.

In his dream Bliss could mesmerize an audience with the mellifluous tones of an Everett Dirksen. He went home early every day. There were no reporters who kept asking him about issues when he wanted to talk about organization.

And the country was full of nuts and bolts.

Then he woke up and discovered it was still 1966 and he was still in charge of putting the Republican

PAUL HOPE

Party together after Barry Goldwater had led it to disaster at the polls in 1964.

There he was — still the man in the middle in Republican politics. And come conservative criticism or liberal lashing, the middle was where he intended to stay.

For 10 months now, National GOP Chairman Bliss has been treading gingerly between the right and the left. It hasn't been easy.

Some liberals think he's too conservative. Some conservatives think he is too liberal. Some think he ought to speak out on the issues. Some don't seem to think at all, they just criticize.

BLISS FIGURES he has no alternative but to steer down the middle. He sees himself as a party healer, one who could hardly put the splintered GOP back together by alienating its various factions.

Besides, he firmly believes that party organization, money, hard work and good candidates are the main ingredients for victory. He calls himself a "nuts and bolts" man.

He likes to remain in the background. He doesn't like to make speeches and, in fact, it would be hard to find a duller speaker.

Part of the reason Bliss draws criticism is because he lacks color and dash. But despite the criticism there is considerable evidence that Bliss is steadily guiding the party away from Goldwaterism and into new channels.

Bliss lives, eats and sleeps Republican politics. He is a slave driver at national headquarters. But he drives himself no less. He rarely goes home before midnight and neither do his top aides because they know they had better be there when he wants something.

He has reorganized the slipshod operation he inherited at party headquarters. Though some of his workers may complain about long hours not many of them leave, he has a drawer full of applications for jobs, and there is a more efficient air about the place.

THOUGH HE DOESN'T speak out on issues himself, he presides over the new Republican Coordinating Committee which does. The committee has issued several policy statements designed to improve the party's image. Bliss' aides do the staff work for the Coordinating Committee.

Bliss has attracted a respected figure, Gen. Lucius D. Clay, to head the party's fund-raising effort.

He seems to have stilled, or at least muffled, some of the strident voices that were tearing the party apart during the 1964 campaign and thereafter.

Though he didn't get much credit for it, Bliss had a hand in inducing some of the successful Republican candidates in last fall's city elections to enter the races.

Perhaps the most significant thing he has done is to begin a drive for Republican support in the big cities. The eastern and northern cities that Goldwater wrote off in 1964 are of paramount importance to Bliss. He recognizes that in order for the Republican Party to win national elections it has to get more votes in the city Democratic strongholds.

Bliss is planning this year to set up new divisions at national headquarters to work with Negroes, nationality groups and labor—groups that have received little attention from the GOP.

The year 1966 will be a crucial one for Bliss as well as the Republican Party. Critics have been snapping at his heels ever since he took the chairmanship last April. If there is no Republican comeback this year, the self-effacing, nuts and bolts man may not get another chance.

L.B. Faces 'Tertiocracy' Elections

By I. P-T Political Editor

LONG BEACH has been a municipal "tertiocracy" for as long as anybody can remember. That's a coined phrase to denote our status as one-third of a democracy, stemming from our long practice of letting a third of the city's registered voters select our City Council membership.

This is Council election year, and it's bound to be as it always has been —less than 25% voting in the May 10 primary, less than 40% in the June 7 final.

Declarations of candidacy for the city's nine councilmanic districts must be filed between March 21 and April 5. Persons not now registered must do so by March 17 to be eligible to vote in the city's May 10 primary.

IN THE PRIMARY, district voters vote only for candidates filed in their district. The two top vote getters in each district move to the June 7 final. In the final, every Long Beach voter may vote his choice for all nine seats. Council terms are for three years.

Although the percentage of voter turnout is likely to be the same, the number of voters will probably be higher because more are registered. The pattern of primary registration in recent years has been: 1957—156,216; 1960—150,190; 1963—144,487. City registration last month was up to 164,929 and may go over 170,000 by the March 17 deadline.

With the prospect of some vacant Council seats, the races may kindle more interest. Although most incumbent councilmen are expected to seek re-election, at least two are vacant. W. S. (Bill) Grant, 3rd District, has announced his retirement and Vice Mayor James A. Hayes, 4th District, has announced his candidacy for State Assembly in the 39th District.

ONLY TWO candidates have laid their plans on the line. Belmont Shore businessman Paul Deats is a candidate for the 3rd District seat and optometrist Dr. Tom Clark seeks the 4th District chair.

In addition to nine councilmen, Long Beach voters will name the city attorney, city auditor and city prosecutor. Respective incumbents Leonard Putnam, Murray T. (Ted) Courson and James T. Starr are expected to seek re-election. All races are nonpartisan.

Charter amendments and other ballot propositions are still in the making. This year's ballot may also include 150-word statements on the background and qualifications of various candidates.

First District Councilman Ray Kealer is a senior member with service dating to 1947. Bert Bond, 2nd District; Mayor Edwin Wade, 5th; Emmet Sullivan, 6th, and William Graham, 8th, all date their service from 1960. Bob Crow, 7th, is second in seniority from a special 1959 election. And R. E. (Pat) Corbett, 9th, was elected in 1963.

Despite the precedent of decades of inattention to its civics, Long Beach citizens are being urged again to start thinking now about their voting privilege and obligation. Those not registered may do so at City Hall any business day. City Hall also will provide addresses of registrars near the voter's home. And the League of Women Voters provides registrars at branch libraries on the first Monday of each month—that's tomorrow—7 to 9 p.m. All except Mark Twain, and that's Tuesday, 6 to 8 p.m.

League Wants New Library

EDITOR:

The Survey supplement in the Jan. 30 issue of the Independent, Press-Telegram projects an exciting future for Long Beach.

But it also reminds us that one basic community need, not for the future but for right now, has not been met. Any plans for future cultural and educational services in this city must begin with an adequate library system.

The main library, which is the nerve center of our library sytem, is an antiquated building which is too small and cannot be enlarged; is inefficient and cannot be made functional; is totally inadequate for a city of this size.

The League of Women Voters of Long Beach has for several years advocated replacement of the existing downtown library by a large, efficient, modern building which would comfortably handle our present and future needs.

We continue to urge that a new main library be first on the list of building needs for the city.

I read with interest the article describing the paint work donated by members of Painters Union 13 on the YMCA building Jan. 29.

Painters Local Union 256 has been in existence in Long Beach since 1906. During these years it has donated time and money to the various civic and charitable organizations.

The members of Painters Local Union 256 who donated their time and effort for this worthwhile cause Jan. 29 are at loss to know why a local union from Cincinnati, Ohio, was given credit for their efforts.

Mexican Exports: Slow Death

"HEROIN, in the 8 to 12% purity range, has fallen below $200 per ounce in Southern California," Atty. Gen. Thomas C. Lynch recently told a U.S. Senate subcommittee.

Heroin, a highly refined derivative of the opium poppy, is quickly addictive and dangerous. Many crimes are attributed to the desperate need of users for the drug.

The heroin flows freely across the 150-mile border of California and Mexico. Marijuana and other dangerous drugs also come from south of the border. "The price of illicit dangerous drugs is often less than that charged by pharmacies," Lynch said. "So plentiful are pills that a peddler's problem is reducing his inventory."

Lynch sees two ways of curbing the flow of drugs into Southern California. One is beefed-up federal enforcement along the border. Today there are only two agents of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics in San Diego. The rest of the enforcement attempts are carried out by city, county and state officers.

The other is more complete cooperation with Mexico. Fugitives from California courts ply the drug trade in Tijuana without fear of extradition.

"We who live in friendship along a common border and who share cultural as well as blood heritage refuse to believe that this problem cannot be alleviated through negotiation," Lynch said.

THE ATTORNEY general might have emphasized a third approach to the problem. That is education. Addiction to heroin or marijuana is never accidental. The habits are begun for "kicks."

Young people should be made more aware of the shattered health, jails or hospitals, degradation and slavery which so often result from playing such dangerous games. Easy is the descent to hell.

Russia Wins Space 'First'

RUSSIANS and Americans don't always get along well on this earth, but in space adventures they share each other's triumphs.

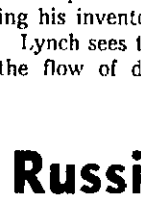

From Sputnik until now the Russians have had more than their share of firsts. American scientists don't mind too much. They glory in the fine precision work that goes into our journeys away from earth.

The competition is keen, but respect seems mutual. Each triumph belongs more to mankind than to any nation.

Each achievement opens the way to new triumphs. The world knows that a space vehicle can make a soft landing on the moon. So the world also knows that men can land on the moon.

Men wise enough to explore outer space should be wise enough to figure how to live together in mutual respect on this earth. But the spirit of man is not yet ready for that adventure.

RALPH McGILL

THREE RECENT religious news items have inspired discussion. The wire services carried a report by the Episcopal bishop of Alabama, the Rt. Rev. C. E. J. Carpenter. Bishop Carpenter sadly noted that strangers, or outsiders who were Episcopalian clergymen and laymen, had hampered the growth of the church in his diocese.

A Methodist young people's training personnel director noted that while the nation's schools are seriously overcrowded, church Sunday schools are doing well to hold their own. Many, indeed, are not doing that. The experts are trying to find an answer.

In Columbus, Ohio, television viewers may see the first of a series of television shorts. These seek to create renewed interest in religion. An example of the shorts is one that shows the hands of women embroidering on a quilt the theme: "Keep in Circulation the Rumor that God is Alive."

Bishop Carpenter did not identify those strangers, but the wire service reporter said the reference was to the Episcopalian clergymen and laymen who participated in civil rights activities at Selma and in the march to Montgomery. These persons, the bishop said, had seriously interrupted the "normal growth" of the church in Alabama.

The complaint by Alabama's Episcopal bishop that communicants of his faith had reduced the growth of his church by coming into Alabama is attracting perhaps the most discussion.

The "strangers" or "outsiders" who came in did so at a price. One was murdered. Others were beaten and abused. The bishop's complaint that a Christian who also is a communicant or clergyman of the church is an "outsider" is one of the most startling comments of modern times. It implies, at least, the idea that state borders, or even city limits, are barriers to traveling Christians unless they conform to local customs or mores which negate the Christian faith.

A counter comment from Episcopal clergymen is that Christ Himself was warned not to come to Jerusalem because religious authorities there viewed Him as a troublemaker and one likely to upset the normal, even tenor of life. He did go, and He encountered corrupted courts, injustice, mobs and death.

Bishop Carpenter, say those who criticize his rebuke to the Episcopalians who came from other states, reveals, perhaps unwittingly, what many Christians today feel is a failure of too many churches—a wish to exist privately, somehow protected against the great issues and problems of the world and of man who must cope with them.

THEY POINT OUT that the Ecumenical Councils at Rome were held because the Roman Catholic church had come to believe that it had withdrawn too much from the world and met to consider ways to become relevant. America's young people, for example, will hardly be sympathetic with Bishop Carpenter's statement.

That the nation's schools are overrun and that the patter of little feet has become a thunder is everywhere true. Cities are being taxed to build new schools. The population of babies will tax education to find teachers and classrooms for the years ahead. That Sunday school attendance is not keeping pace with the population growth stimulated directors of religious education to find out why.

The TV ads may be helpful—but doubt remains. There are those who believe that "the church" or "religion" may be "sold" as are goods, cosmetics, and appliances. Others insist that commitment to a particular faith may not be "sold," but is, instead, a deeply personal experience that may come to one only through such experience.

Meanwhile, "religion" offers up a diversity of news.

Still Trying for a Soft Landing

From The Washington Star

Ray C. Bliss had a dream one day. There was a Republican in the White House. The Senate and House of Representatives were controlled by Republicans. Most of the governors' chairs were filled with Republicans. The state legislatures were firmly in the hands of the GOP. So were the courthouses and the city halls.

There were a few Democrats here and there, of course, just to keep the two-party system alive.

There weren't any GOP liberals and conservatives — they were just all good Republicans.

In his dream Bliss could mesmerize an audience with the mellifluous tones of an Everett Dirksen. He went home early every day. There were no reporters who kept asking him about issues when he wanted to talk about organization.

And the country was full of nuts and bolts.

Then he woke up and discovered it was still 1966 and he was still in charge of putting the Republican

PAUL HOPE

Party together after Barry Goldwater had led it to disaster at the polls in 1964.

There he was — still the man in the middle in Republican politics. And come conservative criticism or liberal lashing, the middle was where he intended to stay.

Some liberals think he's too conservative. Some conservatives think he is too liberal. Some think he ought to speak out on the issues. Some don't seem to think at all, they just criticize.

BLISS FIGURES he has no alternative but to steer down the middle. He sees himself as a party healer, one who could hardly put the splintered GOP back together by alienating its various factions.

Besides, he firmly believes that party organization, money, hard work and good candidates are the main ingredients for victory. He calls himself a "nuts and bolts" man.

He likes to remain in the background. He doesn't like to make speeches and, in fact, it would be hard to find a duller speaker.

Part of the reason Bliss draws criticism is because he lacks color and dash. But despite the criticism there is considerable evidence that Bliss is steadily guiding the party away from Goldwaterism and into new channels.

Bliss lives, eats and sleeps Republican politics. He is a slave driver at national headquarters. But he drives himself no less. He rarely goes home before midnight and neither do his top aides because they know they had better be there when he wants something.

He has reorganized the slipshod operation he inherited at party headquarters. Though some of his workers may complain about long hours not many of them leave, he has a drawer full of applications for jobs, and there is a more efficient air about the place.

THOUGH HE DOESN'T speak out on issues himself, he presides over the new Republican Coordinating Committee which does. The committee has issued several policy statements designed to improve the party's image. Bliss' aides do the staff work for the Coordinating Committee.

He seems to have stilled, or at least muffled, some of the strident voices that were tearing the party apart during the 1964 campaign and thereafter.

Though he didn't get much credit for it, Bliss had a hand in inducing some of the successful Republican candidates in last fall's city elections to enter the races.

Perhaps the most significant thing he has done is to begin a drive for Republican support in the big cities. The eastern and northern cities that Goldwater wrote off in 1964 are of paramount importance to Bliss. He recognizes that in order for the Republican Party to win national elections it has to get more votes in the city Democratic strongholds.

Bliss is planning this year to set up new divisions at national headquarters to work with Negroes, nationality groups and labor—groups that have received little attention from the GOP.

The year 1966 will be a crucial one for Bliss as well as the Republican Party. Critics have been snapping at his heels ever since he took the chairmanship last April. If there is no Republican comeback this year, the self-effacing, nuts and bolts man may not get another chance.

L.B. Faces 'Tertiocracy' Elections

I. P-T Political Editor

LONG BEACH has been a municipal "tertiocracy" for as long as anybody can remember. That's a coined phrase to denote our status as one-third of a democracy, stemming from our long practice of letting a third of the city's registered voters select our City Council membership.

This is Council election year and it's bound to be as it always has been —less than 25% voting in the May 10 primary, less than 40% in the June 7 final.

Declarations of candidacy for the city's nine councilmanic districts must be filed between March 21 and April 5. Persons not now registered must do so by March 17 to be eligible to vote in the city's May 10 primary.

IN THE PRIMARY, district voters vote only for candidates filed in their district. The two top vote getters in each district move to the June 7 final. In the final, every Long Beach voter may vote his choice for all nine seats. Council terms are for three years.

Although the percentage of voter turnout is likely to be the same, the number of voters will probably be higher because more are registered. The pattern of primary registration in recent years has been: 1957—156,216; 1960—150,190; 1963—144,487. City registration last month was up to 164,929 and may go over 170,000 by the March 17 deadline.

With the prospect of some vacant Council seats, the races may kindle more interest. Although most incumbent councilmen are expected to seek re-election, at least two are vacant. W. S. (Bill) Grant, 3rd District, has announced his retirement and Vice Mayor James A. Hayes, 4th District, has announced his candidacy for State Assembly in the 39th District.

ONLY TWO candidates have laid their plans on the line. Belmont Shore businessman Paul Deats is a candidate for the 3rd District seat and optometrist Dr. Tom Clark seeks the 4th District chair.

In addition to nine councilmen, Long Beach voters will name the city attorney, city auditor and city prosecutor. Respective incumbents Leonard Putnam, Murray T. (Ted) Courson and James T. Starr are expected to seek re-election. All races are nonpartisan.

Charter amendments and other ballot propositions are still in the making. This year's ballot may also include 150-word statements on the background and qualifications of various candidates.

First District Councilman Ray Kealer is a senior member with service dating to 1947. Bert Bond, 2nd District; Mayor Edwin Wade, 5th; Emmet Sullivan, 6th, and William Graham, 8th, all date their service from 1960. Bob Crow, 7th, is second in seniority from a special 1959 election. And R. E. (Pat) Corbett, 9th, was elected in 1963.

Despite the precedent of decades of inattention to its civics, Long Beach citizens are being urged again to start thinking now about their voting privilege and obligation. Those not registered may do so at City Hall any business day. City Hall also will provide addresses of registrars near the voter's home. And the League of Women Voters provides registrars at branch libraries on the first Monday of each month—that's tomorrow—7 to 9 p.m. All except Mark Twain, and that's Tuesday, 6 to 8 p.m.

League Wants New Library

EDITOR:

The Survey supplement in the Jan. 30 issue of the Independent, Press-Telegram projects an exciting future for Long Beach.

But it also reminds us that one basic community need, not for the future but for right now, has not been met. Any plans for future cultural and educational services in this city must begin with an adequate library system.

The main library, which is the nerve center of our library sytem, is an antiquated building which is too small and cannot be enlarged; is inefficient and cannot be made functional; is totally inadequate for a city of this size.

The League of Women Voters of Long Beach has for several years advocated replacement of the existing downtown library by a large, efficient, modern building which would comfortably handle our present and future needs.

We continue to urge that a new main library be first on the list of building needs for the city.

EDITOR:

I read with interest the article describing the paint work donated by members of Painters Union 13 on the YMCA building Jan. 29.

Painters Local Union 256 has been in existence in Long Beach since 1906. During these years it has donated time and money to the various civic and charitable organizations.

The members of Painters Local Union 256 who donated their time and effort for this worthwhile cause Jan. 29 are at loss to know why a local union from Cincinnati, Ohio, was given credit for their efforts.

(Editor's note: The story told about 13 members of Local 13 working on the YMCA building. It should have been 13 members of Local 256; a group which has put in many hours work over the years on similar worthy local causes. It looks like the type gremlins have been active again.)

Oldsters Have Most to Fear From Inflation

OLDER PEOPLE living on fixed incomes have more reason to fear inflation than any other segment of our population. Many of those now receiving Social Security are entirely dependent on it. Some have other income from stocks, bank savings and savings and loan investments. With the widespread concern by business leaders and government over the increasing cost of living, some of these older people are asking—should they buy stocks with their few hundred or few thousands of dollars to protect themselves from inflation and its lowering the purchasing power of their incomes?

IN MY OPINION the older person with small amounts of investment funds should not take risks with this money by stock market speculation unless they feel themselves qualified to make the choice of the stock they buy. In almost any day, half the stocks listed on the exchanges increase and half decrease or have no change. Over the past few years many of the best known stocks have been far below the prices paid for them during that period. Some have had fantastic increases, some have fallen by half of what they cost the investor.

By contrast, these funds if placed in insured bank savings or savings and loans have earned interest equal to about 20% to 25%. If the interest is left to compound it increases the total funds by about twice the rate cost of living has increased. If they pay income taxes this would be somewhat decreased. But few of them have incomes high enough for this to be an important factor. But their funds are guaranteed by the federal insurance system.

IT IS TRUE stocks would in most cases pay dividends. But the average rate on present market prices is considerably less than these savings accounts. In many stocks the reduced value has wiped out all dividends as well as much of the principal invested. If inflation spirals it is almost certain the government will place excess profit taxes on corporation earnings and controls on prices. This could quickly wipe out the hoped-for hedges of common stocks against inflation.

In my opinion the only people who should speculate in stocks are those who have enough capital to risk in such uncertain investments. Some 20 million people now own common stocks. It has been a long period of "bull market" when many fortunes have been made. But we tend to ignore the very large losses that have been incurred at the same time. On Jan. 1, 14 of the 30 Dow Jones average stocks were down 1 to 51% from their 1959-61 prices.

IF ONE KNEW what stocks were going to rise in value it would be simple. But no one knows that. Some experienced individuals have been extremely successful. But it is doubtful many of them would accept the responsibility for advising older persons to risk their savings unless they had a surplus that justified such risks. It may be a young person can afford to take the risk. And it is a risk. He has years ahead to make up losses that may accrue. But the older person who has retired—or who soon will do so—has no such chance. Greatest safety is in preserving such capital as they have by income from insured investments.

It may be trite to say "a bird in hand is worth two in the bush." But hard cash guaranteed in a savings account is the bird in hand. It will grow slowly but soundly and not change with the ups and downs of the stock markets. And it will be much less of a worry. As for an inflation hedge there is a great question that common stocks will be as great a hedge as it has been in the past because of the controls that would be enacted.

Bolivia Reflects U.S. Influence

DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — One of the few Latin American military men to step down from the presidency, Gen. Rene Barrientos of Bolivia, has been in Washington the past week.

Trained at Maxwell Air Force Base in Alabama, Gen. Barrientos seized power in Bolivia a year and a half ago when ex-President Paz Estenssoro made the mistake of changing the constitution to run for a second time and was unable to maintain law and order.

Gen. Barrientos has continued most of the economic and social reforms of his predecessor, who, during his first term in office, did a very important job of stabilizing the Bolivian social revolution. Barrientos has established a partnership arrangement between foreign and Bolivian capital under which the Gulf Oil Co. has developed profitable oil wells and will soon be producing 50,000 barrels per day.

In this connection, Bolivia has developed gas wells and is now piping gas 1,200 miles to the Brazilian state of Sao Paulo.

Recently Winthrop Rockefeller, brother of Gov. Nelson Rockefeller and now a candidate for governor of Arkansas, was invited to Bolivia to confer regarding Bolivia's promising cattle industry.

The Bolivian ambassador in Washington, Julio Sanjines-Goytia, talked to Conrad Hilton the other day to promote the idea of a "Hilton La Paz" hotel in Bolivia's capital, the highest city in the world.

Gen. Barrientos stepped down from the presidency last October in order to run for president on July 1. He was not required to do so, but wanted to promote a free election.

TWO MEN, both former labor mediators kept pushing the President to take the Viet Nam war to the United Nations.

One was Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., who came to Washington as a member of the National War Labor Board and who has helped mediate some of the most important strikes in the nation. Two years ago Morse, a lone voice in Washington, began demanding that the Viet Nam war be taken to the U.N.

The other was Arthur Goldberg, who as Secretary of Labor also mediated some tough labor disputes and who, before he stepped down from the Supreme Court to become ambassador to the United Nations, got a commitment from his friend, Lyndon Johnson, that the U.N. would not be bypassed on important issues.

Almost immediately after Goldberg took over the U.N. ambassadorship, Johnson followed through with his commitment by asking the U.N. Security Council to consider the Viet Nam dispute.

The Security Council first took the position that it didn't want to get in the middle of a hot debate between the two most powerful nations in the world — the USA and the USSR — especially with Red China not being a member of the U.N.

This was what the State Department had been telling the White House for some time, namely that Secretary General U Thant wanted to duck the Vietnamese war.

However, both Morse and Goldberg kept plugging — trips to the White House, one publicly the other privately.

Morse and Lyndon Johnson, once colleagues in the Senate, have sometimes been opposed, sometimes in each other's corner. But always they have been vigorous.

Last week Morse waved the charter of the United Nations before a national TV audience and cried, "Let this administration take the war to the United Nations where it belongs."

Afterward he received 450 telegrams approving his stand, four against.

From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — In the relatively short interval of time and space between home and office the other morning, there were three different people, acquaintances, two well-informed and one better than that as an editorial ornament of one of the world's greatest newspapers, who demanded an opinion right then and there "about Viet Nam."

The opinion they got was that after much thought and the absorbing of as much information as possible, what is being done right now seems to be the right thing, and in fact the only thing to do, and that it will have results in our favor.

Naturally, there was then a demand that such an outlandish judgment, overtly supporting the government of the United States, which is a very unfashionable position these days, be defended.

The first part of the defense was a plea in extenuation, an explanation that the position was taken not because it agreed with that of the government but because it seemed the sound and proper position and that if the government chose to agree with it that was an accident for which an ordinary citizen could not be held responsible under the First Amendment of the Constitution — the right of consent of the governed.

The second part was a moderate, restrained declaration that those who did not see it the same way had failed to grasp one reality, which is the incredible firepower at the disposal of the forces fighting the Communists, and that this factor had made obsolete the familiar patterns of thought about guerrilla warfare and the terms of trade between a limited population of North Americans and a limitless population of Asians engaged in an enterprise of reciprocal extermination.

The weight of this factor has been measured, the defense went on, in two ways. One by talks with experts at the Pentagon, the other by visual evidence transmitted direct from the battlefield by television. The Pentagon information has been subjected to cross-reference with trusted friends at the Department of State.

The Pentagon data support two important points—first, that the adversary simply cannot stand up to this kind of firepower, and second, that it is tremendously effective in holding down casualties on our side.

This answer leaves all the politics of the situation outside of account, because for the moment, that is where they seem unquestionably to be.

One might wish that the North Vietnamese would negotiate, but they don't do so. One might wish for the United Nations to make peace, but at the moment, at least, it cannot. One might wish a Geneva conference to tackle the matter, but at the moment, that is not in the cards.

One not only might but does wish that the whole business had never started, but it did, and not by our act, and that is why the answer seems to be to go on doing what is being done and do it as effectively as possible.

But few of them have incomes high enough for this to be an important factor. But their funds are guaranteed by the federal insurance system.

IT IS TRUE stocks would in most cases pay dividends. But the average rate on present market prices is considerably less than these savings accounts. In many stocks the reduced value has wiped out all dividends as well as much of the principal invested. If inflation spirals it is almost certain the government will place excess profit taxes on corporation earnings and controls on prices. This could quickly wipe out the hoped-for hedges of common stocks against inflation.

In my opinion the only people who should speculate in stocks are those who have enough capital to risk in such uncertain investments. Some 20 million people now own common stocks. It has been a long period of "bull market" when many fortunes have been made. But we tend to ignore the very large losses that have been incurred at the same time. On Jan. 1, 14 of the 30 Dow Jones average stocks were down 1 to 51% from their 1959-61 prices.

IF ONE KNEW what stocks were going to rise in value it would be simple. But no one knows that. Some experienced individuals have been extremely successful. But it is doubtful many of them would accept the responsibility for advising older persons to risk their savings unless they had a surplus that justified such risks. It may be a young person can afford to take the risk. And it is a risk. He has years ahead to make up losses that may accrue. But the older person who has retired—or who soon will do so—has no such chance. Greatest safety is in preserving such capital as they have by income from insured investments.

It may be trite to say "a bird in hand is worth two in the bush." But hard cash guaranteed in a savings account is the bird in hand. It will grow slowly but soundly and not change with the ups and downs of the stock markets. And it will be much less of a worry. As for an inflation hedge there is a great question that common stocks will be as great a hedge as it has been in the past because of the controls that would be enacted.

Bolivia Reflects U. S. Influence

DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — One of the few Latin American military men to step down from the presidency, Gen. Rene Barrientos of Bolivia, has been in Washington the past week.

Trained at Maxwell Air Force Base in Alabama, Gen. Barrientos seized power in Bolivia a year and a half ago when ex-President Paz Estenssoro made the mistake of changing the constitution to run for a second time and was unable to maintain law and order.

Gen. Barrientos has continued most of the economic and social reforms of his predecessor, who, during his first term in office, did a very important job of stabilizing the Bolivian social revolution. Barrientos has established a partnership arrangement between foreign and Bolivian capital under which the Gulf Oil Co. has developed profitable oil wells and will soon be producing 50,000 barrels per day.

In this connection, Bolivia has developed gas wells and is now piping gas 1,200 miles to the Brazilian state of Sao Paolo.

Recently Winthrop Rockefeller, brother of Gov. Nelson Rockefeller and now a candidate for governor of Arkansas, was invited to Bolivia to confer regarding Bolivia's promising cattle industry.

The Bolivian ambassador in Washington, Julio Sanjines-Goytia, talked to Conrad Hilton the other day to promote the idea of a "Hilton La Paz" hotel in Bolivia's capital, the highest city in the world.

Gen. Barrientos stepped down from the presidency last October in order to run for president on July 1. He was not required to do so, but wanted to promote a free election.

TWO MEN, both former labor mediators kept pushing the President to take the Viet Nam war to the United Nations.

One was Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., who came to Washington as a member of the National War Labor Board and who has helped mediate some of the most important strikes in the nation. Two years ago Morse, a lone voice in Washington, began demanding that the Viet Nam war be taken to the U.N.

The other was Arthur Goldberg, who as Secretary of Labor also mediated some tough labor disputes and who, before he stepped down from the Supreme Court to become ambassador to the United Nations, got a commitment from his friend, Lyndon Johnson, that the U.N. would not be bypassed on important issues.

Almost immediately after Goldberg took over the U.N. ambassadorship, Johnson followed through with his commitment by asking the U.N. Security Council to consider the Viet Nam dispute.

The Security Council first took the position that it didn't want to get in the middle of a hot debate between the two most powerful nations in the world — the USA and the USSR — especially with Red China not being a member of the U.N.

This was what the State Department had been telling the White House for some time, namely that Secretary General U Thant wanted to duck the Vietnamese war.

However, both Morse and Goldberg kept plugging — trips to the White House, one publicly the other privately.

Morse and Lyndon Johnson, once colleagues in the Senate, have sometimes been opposed, sometimes in each other's corner. But always they have been vigorous.

Last week Morse waved the charter of the United Nations before a national TV audience and cried, "Let this administration take the war to the United Nations where it belongs."

Afterward he received 450 telegrams approving his stand, four against.

From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — In the relatively short interval of time and space between home and office the other morning, there were three different people, acquaintances, two well-informed and one better than that as an editorial ornament of one of the world's greatest newspapers, who demanded an opinion right then and there "about Viet Nam."

The opinion they got was that after much thought and the absorbing of as much information as possible, what is being done right now seems to be the right thing, and in fact the only thing to do, and that it will have results in our favor.

Naturally, there was then a demand that such an outlandish judgment, overtly supporting the government of the United States, which is a very unfashionable position these days, be defended.

The first part of the defense was a plea in extenuation, an explanation that the position was taken not because it agreed with that of the government but because it seemed the sound and proper position and that if the government chose to agree with it that was an accident for which an ordinary citizen could not be held responsible under the First Amendment of the Constitution — the right of consent of the governed.

The second part was a moderate, restrained declaration that those who did not see it the same way had failed to grasp one reality, which is the incredible firepower at the disposal of the forces fighting the Communists, and that this factor had made obsolete the familiar patterns of thought about guerrilla warfare and the terms of trade between a limited population of North Americans and a limitless population of Asians engaged in an enterprise of reciprocal extermination.

The weight of this factor has been measured, the defense went on, in two ways. One by talks with experts at the Pentagon, the other by visual evidence transmitted direct from the battlefield by television. The Pentagon information has been subjected to cross-reference with trusted friends at the Department of State.

The Pentagon data support two important points—first, that the adversary simply cannot stand up to this kind of firepower, and second, that it is tremendously effective in holding down casualties on our side.

This answer leaves all the politics of the situation outside of account, because for the moment, that is where they seem unquestionably to be.

One might wish that the North Vietnamese would negotiate, but they don't do so. One might wish for the United Nations to make peace, but at the moment, at least, it cannot. One might wish a Geneva conference to tackle the matter, but at the moment, that is not in the cards.

One not only might but does wish that the whole business had never started, but it did, and not by our act, and that is why the answer seems to be to go on doing what is being done and do it as effectively as possible.

THEY'LL BOARD KEARSARGE EACH MONTH

Coeds Goodwill Ambassadors to Carrier

By DON KIRKLAND

Until last week the 2,000 guys aboard the USS Kearsarge had at least one thing in common: they all thought Capt. Luther Laubach's idea was "crazy."

But last Saturday, flanked by 200 somewhat awed coeds, the boys happily admitted they'd changed their minds.

The girls were the forward guard for a bevy of young college lasses, representing three cities, who will board the big aircraft carrier each month as goodwill ambassadors.

It's all part of Capt. Laubach's idea to bolster community relations. So far, only Santa Monica has participated. But officials in Torrance and Lynwood, the cities to be hosted aboard the Kearsarge in upcoming months, already have begun to map plans for their own community night programs.

* * * *

NATURALLY, the guys aboard the Kearsarge thought the coeds were "great." The girls, from Marymount College and Santa Monica City College, apparently, were as taken by the affair as were the sailors. They danced, chatted, toured the carrier's impressive flight deck, munched sandwiches, and then went back for more of each, until midnight.

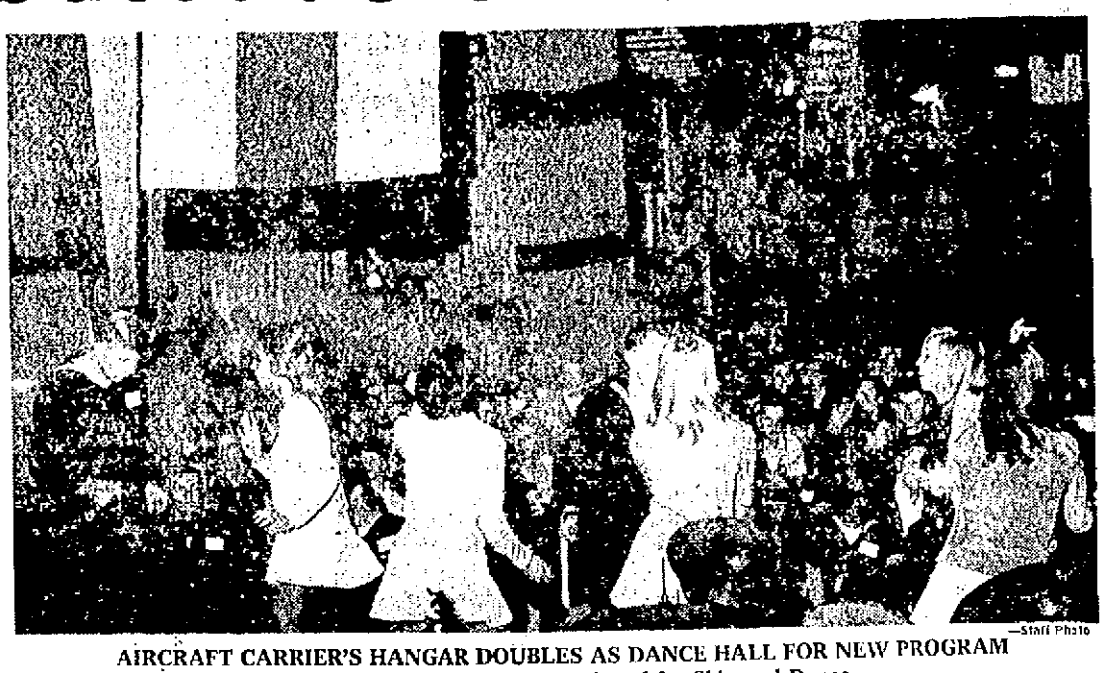

Obviously satisfied at the success of his brainchild, Capt. Laubach said there would be more programs just like this one.

Both Torrance and Lynwood will be invited to bring their own dance bands, girls and entertainment. To liven things up even more, the Kearsarge will provide its own dance combo, food, refreshments, "a dance floor big enough for everybody" (the big below-deck hangar), and the promise of an inside look at the Navy's finest.

Though the monthly get-togethers will be necessarily short lived (the Kearsarge is scheduled for extended sea duty, probably off Viet Nam, in June), the sailors who man her have plenty to look forward to when they return. The girls announced they plan to exchange the Kearsarge's gesture by inviting the sailors to a series of local social events.

AIRCRAFT CARRIER'S HANGAR DOUBLES AS DANCE HALL FOR NEW PROGRAM
More Than 200 Coeds Swarmed Aboard for Shipyard Dance

Anaheim School Bond Vote Due

Residents in the Anaheim School District will vote Tuesday on $17 million in school bonds and $3 million in state school loan aids.

The $20 million of additional funds are needed, according to school officials, to complete the third phase of the district's building program and to provide facilities for an additional 10,000 new students which are expected by 1972.

If the funds are approved, the money will go to provide six new high schools, nine junior high schools and additions to seven other schools plus the addition of 19 other school sites.

Each of the measures must pass and each requires two-thirds majority approval by the voters.

N. Orange Co. YM Meet Set

The 46th annual dinner meeting of the North Orange County YMCA will be held at Knott's Berry Farm in Buena Park Monday night to install new officers and launch a membership enrollment.

Dr. Ernest Becker, dean of students at Fullerton State College, will be chairman of the meeting. He said the speaker will be Dr. Charles Bemis, past president of the Westchester branch of the Y in Los Angeles.

In addition to the installation, the Y will honor outstanding leadership in the Y program during the past year.

The membership campaign is to be directed by Robert Whyte of La Habra.

New Class in Medical Self-Help

A class will be organized Monday for instruction in medical self-help, the Long Beach Emergency Preparedness Department has announced.

The first session is scheduled for 10 a.m. in the civil defense training center at 5373 E. Second St. Instruction will continue at two-hour sessions over an eight-week period.

Long Beach civil defense officials pioneered the self-help course, in which more than 3,500 persons have been trained here. The program is now nationwide in scope under direction of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Zoo Bound Rhinoceros for L.A. Zoo

By DICK EMERY

Even a rhinoceros can have nice manners, the letters of Ahmed Ali, custodian of one, revealed last week.

Ali's rhino is en route to the Port of Los Angeles from India, on the freighter Java Mail. Ali's comments were made in letters to the Los Angeles Zoo Association.

Ali says the rhino is "a most friendly, young fellow" who just loves to have his ears scratched.

"He is the darling of the ship," the custodian, a Moslem Indian, wrote to the association.

* * * *

THE JAVA MAIL is due to tie up at Berth 93-B, at the Consolidated Marine Co. terminal in Los Angeles Harbor at nightfall today. The rhino's arrival will take place in a cargo handling area closed to unauthorized spectators.

Dr. Wesley Young director of the zoo, and representative of the Zoo Association, will welcome the rhinoceros to the United States.

Contents of Ahmed Ali's letters were revealed as arrangements were being completed for the ship's arrival.

* * * *

IN ONE LETTER, the custodian told of an unexpected delay of three weeks in the port of Saigon, en route from Calcutta.

The rhino got weary of shipboard feed and needed fresh greenery.

"With the help of a U.S. Navy man and a couple of GIs, I managed to get some greens into his system, and I think the fresh vitamins did him much good," Ali wrote.

"He is a most friendly young fellow and anyone can stroke him and scratch his short ears, which he loves.

"Once in the open, I think he will be gentle as a cow."

Lectures Set on Water

Water experts from throughout the state will explore "Southwest Regional Water Resources" at a three-month lecture series at the UC Irvine campus beginning Feb. 22.

Long-range water needs, efficient water management, diminishing supplies and increasing costs will be considered in the 15 lectures scheduled.

Robert J. Pafford Jr., regional director of the bureau of reclamation for the United States Department of the Interior, will open the series.

Omarr Reads the Stars

By SYDNEY OMARR

FORECAST FOR TODAY

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): Question of obtaining what is earned may arise. Have facts, figures available. Be specific. Not wise to mix business with pleasure. State case clearly. Then you gain respect.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Take time to be analytical. Applies especially when dealing with member of opposite sex. Patience, logic required. Tendency is to fly off handle. Overcome it!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Be articulate, explain views clearly. Stick to basic issues. When one in authority demands action, don't be spineless ex. Adhere to style, principles . . . heed spiritual counsel.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Necessary now to settle down! Coordinate thoughts, opinions. Don't run off on wild goose chase . . . avoid unnecessary journey. Get sufficient rest. Stop scattering forces.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): What you feel is secretly may be transitory. Rely upon facts, not speculation. Fine for dealing with people of solid reputation. Best to say NO to get-rich-quick schemes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Much action indicated where agreements, public acceptance enter picture. Study Leo message. Don't wear yourself too thin. Realize timing is essential. Then you succeed.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Basic duties may require much time. Plan ahead. Realize delaying tasks may prove costly. Be a self-starter. Take the initiative. New contact now proves fruitful later.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be sure your views are consistent with the facts. Otherwise, close relationships are strained. Trust inner voice. Hunch about product, person apt to be valid.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 1): Controversy at home base is but temporary. Advice of spiritual counselor helps. Gain cooperation of special group, organization. Don't take persons, situations for granted.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Long-range plans may require revision. No time to let pride stand in way of progress. Friend who advocates extreme methods may be off-base. You can advance toward goal if sensible.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Study Leo, Virgo messages. Realize down-to-earth view is essential today. Be alert for hints, clues. Finances of mate or partner could require your personal attention. Be there!

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): You learn facts concerning basic problems, issues. Events now call for direct action. If you delay, you create frustration. Inner turmoil is merely signal to get going.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You are basically a diplomat, loyal to country and family. Would make excellent advisor to political leaders.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Labor agreements—and conflicts—grab headlines.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): Ideas, movement, change featured now. Avoid disputes with relatives. Be charming when surprise visit occurs. Key is patience, mature attitude. Don't rush!

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Not wise to attempt expansion too quickly. Avoid extravagance. Study Aries message. Patch up domestic differences. Strive for harmony. Older friend may require special aid.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Analyze motives. Don't fall prey to wishful thinking. Element of luck rides with you—but don't press it too hard. Fine for long-range planning . . . improving home comforts.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Pressure of added responsibility is evident. Combine past experience with current project. Don't try too many things at one time. Concentrate—perfect abilities.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Finish what you start. Be thorough. Opportunity exists to expand sphere of influence. Friends can aid cause. Show gratitude, turn on charm. Exhibit natural sense of showmanship.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be aware of career possibilities. Study contracts, special agreements. You can take initiative . . . be independent in thought, action, highlight original approach.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Indirect approach now gains best results. Don't attempt to force decisions, issues. Share knowledge. Satisfy curiosity. Ask, observe—and learn.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be flexible. Those you depend upon may be too busy to help. Turn to new directions. Then experience widens—to your benefit. Key is willingness to expand.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Exciting experiences, friends highlight day. Agreements affecting family security also figure prominently. To make most of this period . . . be thorough, cautious, observant.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Friend who offers advice concerning travel, special study due to enter picture. Be perceptive. Read between the lines. You may be more aware than so-called experts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be creative. Find new ways of self-expression. Get off beaten path. Means being pioneering. Show others that you have mind of your own. Then you earn respect.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Caution signs up. Means take time now to review facts, figures. Don't permit impulse to rule logic. Many observe. You are in position to impress higher-ups. Do so!

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You tend to be introspective, serious in purpose, able to achieve major goals. People either respect you . . . or express puzzlement.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Many close friends, associates could express opposite views.

Railroad Jumbo Tank in Service

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Pennsylvania Railroad said it has placed in service a jumbo tank car of 38,000 gallon capacity to demonstrate low-cost transportation of bulk liquids over long distances.

The new unit is the first of two capable of hauling 150 tons of chemicals or other liquids at fast freight train speeds. A standard size tanker carried about 50 tons.

Woodward in Oscar Show

Joanne Woodward, 1957 Academy Award winner, has been named to the cast of the 38th Annual Awards Show of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

Miss Woodward won the Award for the best performance by an actress in 1957 for "The Three Faces of Eve."

Bob Hope will MC the "Oscarcast" which will be aired in color April 18 over the combined radio and television facilities of the American Broadcasting Company.

ON STAGE

Here Comes Mr. Palance

By GEORGE ERES

Jack Palance who has turned in some memorable performances on the screen ("Shane," "Panic in the Streets," "The Big Knife") and television ("Requiem for a Heavyweight") returns to the stage Tuesday night for a two-week run of "Heaven Can Wait" at the Melodyland Theater, Anaheim.

Palance is less noted for comedy than for heavy dramatic roles, including some pretty mean characters—a not unenviable type of casting in the sense that in our time people who kick old ladies down stairs can become stars overnight.

(Which doesn't mean that they like kicking old ladies, or that they are incapable of helping them across the street.

PALANCE likes the "Heaven Can Wait" role of the boxer which Robert Montgomery played on the screen as "Here Comes Mr. Jordan." He's dickering with Columbia Pictures to do a screen remake and Columbia boss Mike Frankovich is scheduled to be at the opening, which may decide the question.

A lot of other stars are scheduled to be at the opening, including Palance's co-stars of the film, "The Professionals"—Burt Lancaster, Claudia Cardinale, Robert Ryan, Lee Marvin, Ralph Bellamy and Woody Strode — according to the publicity. These appearances naturally are not guaranteed, but Palance is in the Hollywood professional stratum which would bring them out if anybody can. Palance is a fine, sensitive actor and warrants searchlights in front of the theater.

The cast for "Heaven" includes Jesse White, Murray Matheson, Virginia Baker, Milton Parsons, Pearl Shear and ex-boxer Archie Moore, for whom Melodyland's central staging may bring back memories of other arenas.

BESIDE being his return to the stage, the Melodyland appearance marks Palance's first full-blown try at directing. He has directed some segments of his one-season TV series, "The Greatest Show on Earth."

Somebody asked him what made him try directing.

"Directors," Palance said.

IN 'LUV'

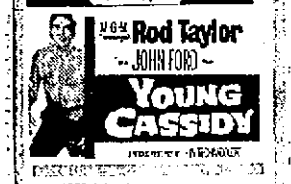

Dorothy Loudon is one angle of the love triangle in "Luv" opening Tuesday at the Huntington Hartford Theater, Hollywood. Also featured are Tom Bosley and Herbert Edelman.

DAN BAURAC and Merrell Ann Hadden are among those present in Community Playhouse, Long Beach's held-over production of "The Man Who Came to Dinner." Baurac also directs the show which plays Thursday, Friday and Saturday through Feb. 26.

Here Comes Mr. Palance

ON STAGE

By GEORGE ERES

Jack Palance who has turned in some memorable performances on the screen ("Shane," "Panic in the Streets," "The Big Knife") and television ("Requiem for a Heavyweight") returns to the stage Tuesday night for a two-week run of "Heaven Can Wait" at the Melodyland Theater, Anaheim.

Palance is less noted for comedy than for heavy dramatic roles, including some pretty mean characters—a not unenviable type of casting in the sense that in our time people who kick old ladies down stairs can become stars overnight.

(Which doesn't mean that they like kicking old ladies, or that they are incapable of helping them across the street.

PALANCE likes the "Heaven Can Wait" role of the boxer which Robert Montgomery played on the screen as "Here Comes Mr. Jordan." He's dickering with Columbia Pictures to do a screen remake and Columbia boss Mike Frankovich is scheduled to be at the opening, which may decide the question.

A lot of other stars are scheduled to be at the opening, including Palance's co-stars of the film, "The Professionals"—Burt Lancaster, Claudia Cardinale, Robert Ryan, Lee Marvin, Ralph Bellamy and Woody Strode — according to the publicity. These appearances naturally are not guaranteed, but Palance is in the Hollywood professional stratum which would bring them out if anybody can. Palance is a fine, sensitive actor and warrants searchlights in front of the theater.

The cast for "Heaven" includes Jesse White, Murray Matheson, Virginia Baker, Milton Parsons, Pearl Shear and ex-boxer Archie Moore, for whom Melodyland's central staging may bring back memories of other arenas.

BESIDE being his return to the stage, the Melodyland appearance marks Palance's first full-blown try at directing. He has directed some segments of his one-season TV series, "The Greatest Show on Earth."

Somebody asked him what made him try directing.

"Directors," Palance said,

IN 'LUV'

DAN BAURAC and Merrell Ann Hadden are among those present in Community Playhouse, Long Beach's held-over production of "The Man Who Came to Dinner." Baurac also directs the show which plays Thursday, Friday and Saturday through Feb. 26.

Polly Bergen Takes Cigarettes—Seriously

NEW YORK — Four years ago while Polly Bergen was rehearsing for a Dinah Shore TV show, she got acute laryngitis—and a Hollywood doctor told her with great severity, "You've either got to quit smoking or quit singing. . . ."

The doctor was puffing a cigarette at the time.

"I looked at him for a beat of about 20," recalls Polly, "and I said, 'O.K., I give up singing.'

"I knew I couldn't quit smoking," Polly says. "The tension when I didn't smoke was worse than the harm the smoking did my voice. I would be ready to climb walls. . . ."

* * * *

FOR THREE years Polly went on smoking her 3 packs a day never singing, "never even humming in the bathtub."

"I wouldn't even sing at parties . . . I knew you have to practice, to keep the muscles working . . . I got a trauma that I'd lost my voice.

"There was one party where everybody sang, and when they asked me, and I said 'no,' I realized they thought, 'Who does she think she is? The snob!'

"I went home and I paced, I tossed and turned, I decided I'd let this go too far."

Next morning she told her husband, Freddie Fields, the agent, she was going to sing again. She got a voice teacher, Christina Carroll, and studied for 6 weeks to open at the Las Vegas Riviera—while still smoking, of course.

* * * *

"ALL I WANTED to do was make the point that I could still sing—and smoke, too.

"Oh, I had some throat trouble . . . and two days before I was to open, I decided maybe I should quit smoking.

"I remembered Cary Grant had told me he quit by being hypnotized.

"He sent me to his hypnotist who hypnotized me. He said, 'You have to want to quit smoking.' Driving to see the hypnotist, I'd been unable to decide whether to have one last smoke, because I knew that when I left him, I'd never smoke again.

"Well, when I left him, and was half way down the hall, I was smoking again, because if I didn't get a cigarette, I was going to kill myself."

POLLY OPENED in Las Vegas — still smoking — and though her voice was sometimes not her best, she got so she didn't worry about it any more. She realized, "I could be in bad voice and the act worked and the audience enjoyed it and so did I."

And so Polly came here to the Persian Room at the Plaza and broke records . . . but, says she, "I don't think I need this any more."

"Most actors work because they have to fulfill themselves. I've got my husband and children and that's what I want.

"I don't want to live that way any more. You spend all day for your career, your husband and kids must come second. Well, that's nothing to grow old with and nothing to keep you warm on a cold night. I hear so much about women having marriages and careers, but I tell you—THEY CAN'T."

* * * *

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: "Every day my wife shows her incompatibility" . . . "Yeah, isn't it a shame the way women dress these days?"—Scandal Sheet.

* * * *

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Virginia Graham of "Girl Talk" described a certain miss: "Oh, she's very creative. Why, she makes mistakes nobody else would even think of."

* * * *

EARL'S PEARLS: A fellow admitted he's getting just a bit worried—his girl friend isn't back yet from her office Christmas party.

THE STARS

What They're Doing . . .

By M. E. GEORGE

Camilla Sparv and Aldo Ray join James Coburn in "Eli Kotch," whose cast also includes Jack E. Leonard and Nina Wayne. Miss Sparv, signed by Columbia last year, makes her screen debut in "The Trouble with Angels," starring Rosalind Russell and Hayley Mills.

Tippi Hedren has been selected for a starring role in the Charles Chaplin-directed "A Countess from Hong Kong" .

Peter Sellers, David Niven and Ursula Andress have started work in England on Ian Fleming's "Casino Royale" . . . Faye Dunnaway who scored in N. Y. play, "Hogan's Goat," will play feminine lead opposite Anthony Quinn in "The Innocent" . . . Maximilian Schell has been added to the starring cast of "The Deadly Affair," John le Carre suspense yarn which also has James Mason, Simone Signoret and Harry Andrews.

Duke Hobbie, who scored in "Alvarez Kelly" and "Cat Ballou," flew to France where he looked up the girl he kept company with while in the Army in France, Elaine Colette Petit. He married her and they're back in Hollywood now.

Olga Schoberova, Czech beauty, makes her American film debut in "Lemonade Joe" a parody on Western movies set for spring release . . .

QUINN SIMONE OLGA SCHELL TIPPI BABICH

Lee Marvin's next will be "The Dirty Dozen," story of 12 men, convicted of murder by court martial, who are in line for pardon if they complete mission behind enemy lines prior to D-Day . . .

Frank R. Babich of L. A. is more a scientific-type star that film luminary, but comes under this heading because, being broke, he's doing extra work in "Beau Geste." Babich, research psychologist, experimented at UCLA and his findings were published in "Science" magazine and "Proceedings of the National Academy of Science." He's applied for grants to continue scientific career, but until they come through he'll continue extra work. "It's better than working in a grocery store —which is about the only other thing I can do. It also pays better—$27.31 per day."

EARL WILSON

Polly Bergen Takes Cigarettes—Seriously

NEW YORK — Four years ago while Polly Bergen was rehearsing for a Dinah Shore TV show, she got acute laryngitis—and a Hollywood doctor told her with great severity, "You've either got to quit smoking or quit singing. . . ."

The doctor was puffing a cigarette at the time.

"I looked at him for a beat of about 20," recalls Polly, "and I said, 'O.K., I give up singing.'

"I knew I couldn't quit smoking," Polly says. "The tension when I didn't smoke was worse than the harm the smoking did my voice. I would be ready to climb walls. . . ."

* * * *

FOR THREE years Polly went on smoking her 3 packs a day never singing, "never even humming in the bathtub."

"I wouldn't even sing at parties . . . I knew you have to practice, to keep the muscles working . . . I got a trauma that I'd lost my voice.

"There was one party where everybody sang, and when they asked me, and I said 'no,' I realized they thought, 'Who does she think she is? The snob!'

"I went home and I paced, I tossed and turned. I decided I'd let this go too far."

Next morning she told her husband, Freddie Fields, the agent, she was going to sing again. She got a voice teacher, Christina Carroll, and studied for 6 weeks to open at the Las Vegas Riviera—while still smoking, of course.

* * * *

"ALL I WANTED to do was make the point that I could still sing and smoke, too.

"Oh, I had some throat trouble . . . and two days before I was to open, I decided maybe I should quit smoking.

"I remembered Cary Grant had told me he quit by being hypnotized.

"He sent me to his hypnotist who hypnotized me. He said, 'You have to want to quit smoking.' Driving to see the hypnotist, I'd been unable to decide whether to have one last smoke, because I knew that when I left him, I'd never smoke again.

"Well, when I left him, and was half way down the hall, I was smoking again, because if I didn't get a cigarette, I was going to kill myself."

POLLY OPENED in Las Vegas — still smoking — and though her voice was sometimes not her best, she got so she didn't worry about it any more. She realized, "I could be in bad voice and the act worked and the audience enjoyed it and so did I."

And so Polly came here to the Persian Room at the Plaza and broke records . . . but, says she, "I don't think I need this any more."

"Most actors work because they have to fulfill themselves. I've got my husband and children and that's what I want.

"I don't want to live that way any more. You spend all day for your career, your husband and kids must come second. Well, that's nothing to grow old with and nothing to keep you warm on a cold night. I hear so much about women having marriages and careers, but I tell you—THEY CAN'T."

Miss Bergen lit her sixth cigarette of the interview.

* * * *

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: "Every day my wife shows her incompatibility" . . . "Yeah, isn't it a shame the way women dress these days?"—Scandal Sheet.

* * * *

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Virginia Graham of "Girl Talk" described a certain miss: "Oh, she's very creative. Why, she makes mistakes nobody else would even think of."

* * * *

EARL'S PEARLS: A fellow admitted he's getting just a bit worried — his girl friend isn't back yet from her office Christmas party.

Wash. State Knocks Off UCLA Quint

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — Washington State edged UCLA 84-83 in an AAWU basketball game Saturday night on the cool and calm foul shooting of Dennis Kloke.

The senior forward went to the free throw line with the Cougars one point behind and five seconds to play. He calmly sank both shots for the one-point WSU victory margin.

The decision knocked the defending champs out of a share of the conference lead and left them with a 3-2 record, one full game behind Oregon State.

Kenny Washington, up off the UCLA bench despite a knee injury, led a Bruin comeback in the late going. UCLA was on top at the half 43-36.

After Kloke's free throws, the Bruins threw the ball in from the backline and called time. The pass went to Washington when play resumed but he was double-teamed. He threw to a teammate, got a return pass 20 feet from the basket and shot, but it fell short.

It was the first Cougar victory over UCLA since 1959.

FIRST VETO IN 81 YEARS

Billie Jean Must Share No. 1 Rating

JERRY CROMWELL
Ranked No. 14

Compiled from Wire Reports

For the first time in 81 years the U.S. Lawn Tennis Assn. has overruled its ranking committee and rejected its recommendation of Billie Jean Moffitt King as No. 1 woman player in the country.

At the annual convention of the USLTA in Palm Beach, Fla., the delegates and proxies voted 59,810 to 40,966 that Nancy Richey of Dallas, Tex., share the top women's ranking with the Long Beach star.

Dennis Ralston, the national clay courts champion from Bakersfield, was ranked No. 1 in the men's division for the second straight year.

Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va., advanced from third to second.

Jerry Cromwell of Long Beach was ranked 14th in men's singles and Kathy Harter of Seal Beach, was listed seventh in women's singles.

Miss Richey, sister of the third-ranked Cliff Richey, was ranked second last year. Since then she has compiled a 5-1 record in Wightman singles, a 2-1 record in Wightman doubles, plus a federation record of 9-2 in singles and 9-9 in doubles.

Mrs. King, No. 1 last year, had a record of 3-1 in Wightman singles, 1-1 in doubles and 3-1 in federation singles.

In the men's ranking after Richey, who was 11th last year, came Chuck McKinley of Port Washington, N.Y., who was second last year. Charles Pasarell of Puerto Rico was next.

Miss Richey and Carole Caldwell Graebner of Beachwood, O., the wife of ranking player Clark Graebner, were ranked the No. 1 doubles team. Graebner and Marty Reissen of Evanston, Ill., got the No. 1 men's doubles ranking.

McKinley and Ralston are second ranked in men's doubles.

Kneece Clings to 2-Shot Lead

—AP Wirephotos

AGONY'S THERE, BUT LITTLE ECSTASY

Palmer Makes Run with 67, Ties for Second

By DAVE LEWIS
I.-P-T Staff Writer

PALM SPRINGS—"I would pick a 90-hole tournament to lead after 72 holes," Harold (Catfish) Kneece crecked after he fired a par at Bermuda Dunes Saturday to cling to a two-stroke advantage in the marathon Bob Hope Desert Classic.

Kneece, close on several occasions but who has yet to nail down a tour victory, twice has blown big leads on the final round of regulation 72-hole events just when he seemed to be on the verge of becoming a winner.

He led by four at Pensacola two years ago and lost by one to Arnold Palmer, and paced the Memphis Open a few weeks later through three rounds only to fade to third place on the last day.

* * * *

SINCE THEN, he has been the first-round leader several times, but after jumping into the lead after 36 holes here, he has held on doggedly. He assumed a four-stroke lead after two rounds with a pair of 68s, held on to a two-stroke advantage with a third-round 69, and maintained that margin Saturday with his 72 for a 277 total.

Palmer, who beat the "Catfish" at Pensacola, came out of the pack to make the big run at him Saturday. In fact, Arnie pulled even with him on the 13th hole only to drop back by two on the concluding five holes.

Palmer, who shot a five-under-par 67 at La Quinta, is tied for second at 279 with Al Besselink, who continued to rebound from a costly 75 on Thursday with a 68, also at La Quinta.

"Big Bessie," who almost slept through his tee-off time before barely making it with seconds to spare, reeled off five straight birdies—his second such streak of the tournament—in posting a 31 on the front nine.

Jack McGowan, the first-round leader with a 66 who fell back with rounds of 74 and 73 the next two days, came charging back into the thick of the fight with a 67 at Indian Wells for a 280.

He is tied with Crosby winner Don Massengale, who had a 69 at La Quinta.

* * * *

McGOWAN had a fine round marked by some hard luck on two holes which kept him from finishing the day closer to Kneece.

He bogied the seventh hole when both his first and second shots were behind trees, and on the 15th he took another bogey when the ball went past the green into a bunker.

McGowan had three birdies on the front side as he sank a 12-foot putt on the 4th hole, knocked his tee-shot just two feet from the cup on the par-three sixth, and then rammed home a brilliant 30-foot putt on the 9th holde.

Ten and 12-foot putts on 11 and 12 were good for two more birds, and two great chip shots produced two more. One, on the 14th, landed only three feet from the hole. He almost holed another from just off the green for an eagle on No. 18 before it finally rolled a foot past the cup.

* * * *

DEFENDING champion Billy Casper staggered to a two-over 74 at La Quinta to slip from second place to a tie for sixth at 281 with Mike Souchak and Dudley Wysong. Souchak came back with a 69 at Indian Wells after his fine 67 Friday at La Quinta, while Wysong had a 69.

Palmer started the day seven strokes behind Kneece, but closed to within two after eight holes and finally caught up with the Catfish on the 13th hole. But he dropped a stroke back on the 14th when he bogied the par-four hole by three-putting from the edge of the green.

The Catfish finally regained his two-stroke margin with a birdie on the long par-five 18th at Bermuda Dunes when he ran in a 20-foot putt.

"I felt real good about that time," the Catfish said.

Kneece declared, "I putted

Trojans Triumph Over Washington

SEATTLE (AP) — Big John Block, scoring 22 points before he fouled out, paced Southern California to a 67-57 AAWU basketball victory over Washington Saturday.

USC broke the game open when Block tallied nine consecutive points to open the second half and baskets by Harvey Dillon and Rod Alleman kept the Trojans in the lead with some accurate shooting.

BLOCK'S splurge erased a 29-27 Husky halftime lead and the Trojan ace tallied 16 of his 22 points in the second half while playing with four fouls against him.

Gordy Harris tallied 15 points for Washington and Dave Carr had 14.

Washington managed to convert only two free throws in the second half.

USC made 40% of its shots and Washington hit 31%.

The Huskies gave away the ball on errors 28 times to Southern California's 16.

Washington outrebounded the Trojans 51-36.

L.B. Boxer Wins Gloves Welter Title

By DAVE TAYLOR

Long Beach area fighters broke even in their crusade to capture Southern California Golden Glove championships before 6,100 at Olympic Auditorium Saturday.

Classy Bill Walker of Long Beach was impressive in winning the welterweight open division title, decisioning Jim Nelson of Los Angeles. In the novice division, bantamweight Michael Warfield scored a third round knockout over James Beason of El Monte, but Long Beach lightweight James Burrell was KO'd in the second by Arturo Rodriquez of Los Angeles, and Gene Reynoso of Huntington Beach was decisioned by L.A.'s Butch Contreras.

The Southern California heavyweight championship was won by 1964 tilliist Clay Hodges of Lawndale who scored a decision over Wayne Kindred of Pasadena. Hodges lost his 1964 crown last year against now professional Jerry Quarry who went on to win the national championship.

FEARS HIRED AS FALCONS' LINE COACH

ATLANTA (UPI)—Coach Norb Hecker of the Atlanta Falcons announced Saturday he has hired Tom Fears of the Green Bay Packers as an offensive line coach.

Fears and Hecker were assistants to Green Bay coach Vince Lombardi until Hecker took the Falcon job last week.

Fears began his coaching career in 1959 with Green Bay, the same time Hecker started there, and moved to Los Angeles in 1960. He returned to Green Bay in 1962 where he has been since. Fears, 41, was a star end for the Rams for nine years.

Cal Poly Upends Long Beach Staters

By BRUCE YOUNG

Pomona has long been noted for its county fairs, but if the current trend continues, it soon will be famed for its basketball team's lengthy win streaks on the home court.

The Cal Poly Pomona basketball squad reeled off its 21st consecutive victory Saturday night before a highly-partisant crowd of 2,434, dunking a scrappy Long Beach State team, 91-81.

The loss dropped the 49er season record to 6-13. The Broncos are 14-4.

The underdog LBSC squad came out fired up and battled the much taller Broncos on better than even terms for the first half, thanks to some sharp shooting by senior Chuck Hagen.

Long Beach made a mad rush in the last five minutes of the opening half to take a 45-43 lead into the locker room. Hagen inspired the 49ers, who were down by as much as nine points at one stage, to outscore coach Bob Stull's quintet 13-4 in the five minute stand.

* * * *

BUT STULL had some strong words for his team at halftime and the Broncos proceeded to run the 49ers out of the gym and the ball game in the first five minutes.

Cal Poly reeled off 13 consecutive points to come from a two point deficit to a 56-45 lead. Long Beach went cold from the field while the Broncos started to click on their long jumpers.

The winners proved to be rude hosts as they opened their advantage to 16 points halfway through the second half.

Dick Perry's club wouldn't quit and battled back to within four points, 95-81, with 37 seconds remaining, but Nick Barkett rammed in six consecutive points to put the game out of reach.

* * * *

THE GAME turned into a melee at the final stages as the referees let the game get out of control. Two players were evicted for fights as there were five technical fouls called. There were 52 personal fouls called.

Hagen was never better, hitting 20-foot jumpers and countering with spinning drives. Chuck, who came into the game with a 15-point average, ended with 29, including a fine 21 point first-half output.

SINATRA TO TRY FOR TEE TOURNAMENT

PALM SPRINGS—Singer Frank Sinatra said Saturday that he hopes to stage a $75,000 or $100,000 golf tournament here next fall.

He is to meet with PGA officials tonight.

The Sinatra Open tournament was held at the Canyon Country Club in the fall of 1963 with a purse of $75,000. Frank Beard, a rookie pro at the time, won the event, his first victory.

Sinatra was involved in a near-drowning accident while making a film in Hawaii the next year and in the confusion, the tournament was cancelled.

Late Bird Besselink Worms Into Second

PALM SPRINGS — After almost sleeping through his tee-off time, Al Besselink, veteran 41-year-old pro from Grossinger's hotel in New York, fired a four-under-par 68 at La Quinta Country Club Saturday to move into a tie for second place in the Bob Hope Desert Classic.

The big belter, who admitted "I was up a little late" the night before, revealed he was still asleep when his caddy called him at 8:25 a.m. to find out what was detaining him.

"Thought I had a 9:40 tee time, but the caddy said it was 8:40. I only had 14 minutes to get there," he revealed.

"I dressed in record time," he related, "then had to take another minute and a half to leave some tickets at the front desk for some girls before I got started for the course. It's a good thing I was staying close by and it also was a good thing that everybody was going one way — toward the course—because I drove up the wrong side."

He got there just as they were calling his foursome to the tee, "but the only warmup I got was hitting three new golf balls with a 9-iron out into the desert.

"Big Bessie," who stands 6-4 and weighs 220, didn't have breakfast until they made the turn and was forced to wait several minutes to tee off on the first hole. "Then I had some ham and eggs . . . and it sure tasted good," he said.

He reveals "I was still sleepy when I drove off the 10th hole, but I woke up real quick when I missed a two-foot putt for a six on the par-five 13th."

Earlier, he had birdied the 11th with a four-footer, but took a bogey on 15.

Then came a streak of five birds with what he described as a "recoil putting style." Playing the front side last, he dropped a 50-footer for a 3 on No. 2, followed with an 8-footer on the third and a 25-footer on No. 4. He sank a 10-footer for another bird after coming out of a trap on No. 6.

Trojans Triumph Over Washington

USC broke the game open when Block tallied nine consecutive points to open the second half and baskets by Harvey Dillon and Rod Alleman kept the Trojans in the lead with some accurate shooting.

BLOCK'S splurge erased a 29-27 Husky halftime lead and the Trojan ace tallied 16 of his 22 points in the second half while playing with four fouls against him.

Gordy Harris tallied 15 points for Washington and Dave Carr had 14.

Washington managed to convert only two free throws in the second half.

USC made 40% of its shots and Washington hit 31%.

The Huskies gave away the ball on errors 28 times to Southern California's 16.

Washington outrebounded the Trojans 51-36.

L.B. Boxer Wins Gloves Welter Title

By DAVE TAYLOR

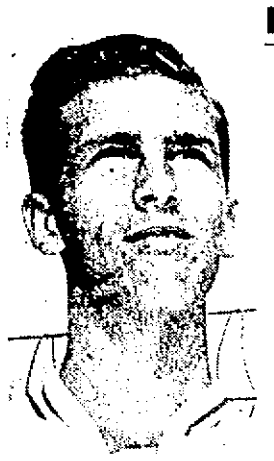

Long Beach area fighters broke even in their crusade to capture Southern California Golden Glove championships before 6,100 at Olympic Auditorium Saturday.

Classy Bill Walker of Long Beach was impressive in winning the welterweight open division title, decisioning Jim Nelson of Los Angeles. In the novice division, bantamweight Michael Warfield scored a third round knockout over James Beason of El Monte, but Long Beach lightweight James Burrell was KO'd in the second by Arturo Rodriquez of Los Angeles, and Gene Reynoso of Huntington Beach was decisioned by L.A.'s Butch Contreras.

The Southern California heavyweight championship was won by 1964 titlist Clay Hodges of Lawndale who scored a decision over Wayne Kindred of Pasadena. Hodges lost his 1964 crown last year against now professional Jerry Quarry who went on to win the national championship.

Billie Jean Must Share No. 1 Rating

Ranked No. 14

Compiled from Wire Reports

For the first time in 81 years the U.S. Lawn Tennis Assn. has overruled its ranking committee and rejected its recommendation of Billie Jean Moffitt King as No. 1 woman player in the country.

At the annual convention of the USLTA in Palm Beach, Fla., the delegates and proxies voted 59,810 to 40,966 that Nancy Richey of Dallas, Tex., share the top women's ranking with the Long Beach star.

Jerry Cromwell of Long Beach was ranked 14th in men's singles and Kathy Harter of Seal Beach, was listed seventh in women's singles.

Miss Richey, sister of the third-ranked Cliff Richey, was ranked second last year. Since then she has compiled a 5-1 record in Wightman singles, a 2-1 record in Wightman doubles, plus a federation record of 9-2 in singles and 9-9 in doubles.

Mrs. King, No. 1 last year, had a record of 3-1 in Wightman singles, 1-1 in doubles and 3-1 in federation singles.

In the men's ranking after Richey, who was 11th last year, came Chuck McKinley of Port Washington, N.Y., who was second last year. Charles Pasarell of Puerto Rico was next.

Miss Richey and Carole Caldwell Graebner of Beachwood, O., the wife of ranking player Clark Graebner, were ranked the No. 1 doubles team. Graebner and Marty Reissen of Evanston, Ill., got the No. 1 men's doubles ranking.

McKinley and Ralston are second ranked in men's doubles.

PALM SPRINGS—"I would slept through his tee-off time pick a 90-hole tournament to before barely making it with lead after 72 holes," Harold seconds to spare, reeled off (Catfish) Kneece crecked after five straight birdies—his seche fired a par at Bermuda ond such streak of the tour-Dunes Saturday to cling to a nament—in posting a 31 on two-stroke advantage in the the front nine. marathon Bob Hope Desert Classic.

Jack McGowan, the first-round leader with a 66 who fell back with rounds of 74 and 73 the next two days, came charging back into the thick of the fight with a 67 at Indian Wells for a 280.

Kneece, close on several occasions but who has yet to nail down a tour victory, twice has blown big leads on the final round of regulation 72-hole events just when he seemed to be on the verge of becoming a winner.

He is tied with Crosby winner Don Massengale, who had a 69 at La Quinta.

* * * *

He led by four at Pensacola two years ago and lost by one to Arnold Palmer, and paced the Memphis Open a few weeks later through three rounds only to fade to third place on the last day.

McGOWAN had a fine round marked by some hard luck on two holes which kept him from finishing the day closer to Kneece.

He hopted the seventh hole when both his first and second shots were behind trees, and on the 15th he took another bogey when the ball went past the green into a bunker.

* * * *

SINCE THEN, he has been the first-round leader several times, but after jumping into the lead after 36 holes here, he has held on doggedly. He assumed a four-stroke lead after two rounds with a pair of 68s, held on to a two-stroke advantage with a third-round 69, and maintained that margin Saturday with his 72 for a 277 total.

McGowan had three birdies on the front side as he sank a 12-foot putt on the 4th hole, knocked his tee-shot just two feet from the cup on the par-three sixth, and then rammed home a brilliant 30-foot putt on the 9th holde.

Ten and 12-foot putts on 11 and 12 were good for two more birds, and two great chip shots produced two more. One, on the 14th, landed only three feet from the hole. He almost holed another from just off the green for an eagle on No. 18 before it finally rolled a foot past the cup.

Palmer, who shot a five-under-par 67 at La Quinta, is tied for second at 279 with Al Besselink, who continued to rebound from a costly 75 on Thursday with a 68, also at La Quinta.

"Big Bessie," who almost quit and battled back to within four points, 95-81, with 37 seconds remaining, but Nick Barkett rammed in six consecutive points to put the game out of reach.

DEFENDING champion Billy Casper staggered to a two-over 74 at La Quinta to slip from second place to a tie for sixth at 281 with Mike Souchak and Dudley Wysong. Souchak came back with a 69 at Indian Wells after his fine 67 Friday at La Quinta, while Wysong had a 69.

Palmer started the day seven strokes behind Kneece, but closed to within two after eight holes and finally caught up with the Catfish on the 13th hole. But he dropped a stroke back on the 14th when he bogied the par-four hole by three-putting from the edge of the green.

The Catfish finally regained his two-stroke margin with a birdie on the long par-five 18th at Bermuda Dunes when he ran in a 20-foot putt.

"I felt real good about that time," the Catfish said.

Kneece declared, "I putted

SINATRA TO TRY FOR TEE TOURNAMENT

PALM SPRINGS—Singer Frank Sinatra said Saturday that he hopes to stage a $75,000 or $100,000 golf tournament here next fall.

He is to meet with PGA officials tonight.

The Sinatra Open tournament was held at the Canyon Country Club in the fall of 1963 with a purse of $75,000. Frank Beard, a rookie pro at the time, won the event, his first victory.

Sinatra was involved in a near-drowning accident while making a film in Hawaii the next year and in the confusion, the tournament was cancelled.

FEARS HIRED AS FALCONS' LINE COACH

ATLANTA (UPI)—Coach Norb Hecker of the Atlanta Falcons announced Saturday he has hired Tom Fears of the Green Bay Packers as an offensive line coach.

Fears and Hecker were assistants to Green Bay coach Vince Lombardi until Hecker took the Falcon job last week.

Fears began his coaching career in 1959 with Green Bay, the same time Hecker started there, and moved to Los Angeles in 1960. He returned to Green Bay in 1962 where he has been since. Fears, 41, was a star end for the Rams for nine years.

Cal Poly Upends Long Beach Staters

By BRUCE YOUNG

Pomona has long been noted for its county fairs, but if the current trend continues, it soon will be famed for its basketball team's lengthy win streaks on the home court.

The Cal Poly Pomona basketball squad reeled off its 21st consecutive victory Saturday night before a highly partisant crowd of 2,434, dunking a scrappy Long Beach State team, 91-81.

The loss dropped the 49er season record to 6-13. The Broncos are 14-4.

The underdog LBSC squad came out fired up and battled the much taller Broncos on better than even terms for the first half, thanks to some sharp shooting by senior Chuck Hagen.

Long Beach made a mad rush in the last five minutes of the opening half to take a 45-43 lead into the locker room. Hagen inspired the 49ers, who were down by as much as nine points at one stage, to outscore coach Bob Stull's quintet 13-4 in the five minute stand.

* * * *

BUT STULL had some strong words for his team at halftime and the Broncos proceeded to run the 49ers out of the gym and the ball game in the first five minutes.

Cal Poly reeled off 13 consecutive points to come from a two point deficit to a 56-45 lead. Long Beach went cold from the field while the Broncos started to chek on their long jumpers.

The winners proved to be rude hosts as they opened their advantage to 16 points halfway through the second half.

THE GAME turned into a melee at the final stages as the referees let the game get out of control. Two players were evicted for fights as there were five technical fouls called. There were 52 personal fouls called.

Hagen was never better, hitting 20-foot jumpers and countering with spinning drives. Chuck, who came into the game with a 15-point average, ended with 29, including a fine 21 point first-half output.

Late Bird Besselink Worms Into Second

TARDY FOR TEE . . . COFFEE, TOO

PALM SPRINGS — After almost sleeping through his tee-off time, Al Besselink, veteran 41-year-old pro from Grossinger's hotel in New York, fired a four-under-par 68 at La Quinta Country Club Saturday to move into a tie for second place in the Bob Hope Desert Classic.

The big belter, who admitted "I was up a little late" the night before, revealed he was still asleep when his caddy called him at 8:26 a.m. to find out what was detaining him.

"Thought I had a 9:40 tee time, but the caddy said it was 8:40. I only had 14 minutes to get there," he revealed.

"I dressed in record time," he related, "then had to take another minute and a half to leave some tickets at the front desk for some girls before I got started for the course. It's a good thing I was staying close by and it also was a good thing that everybody was going one way — toward the course—because I drove up the wrong side."

He got there just as they were calling his foursome to the tee, "but the only warmup I got was hitting three new golf balls with a 9-iron out into the desert.

"Big Bessie," who stands 6-4 and weighs 220, didn't have breakfast until they made the turn and was forced to wait several minutes to tee off on the first hole. "Then I had some ham and eggs . . . and it sure tasted good," he said.

He reveals "I was still sleepy when I drove off the 10th hole, but I woke up real quick when I missed a two-foot putt for a six on the par-five 13th."

Earlier, he had birdied the 11th with a four-footer, but took a bogey on 15.

Then came a streak of five birds with what he described as a "recnl putting style." Playing the front side last, he dropped a 50-footer for a 3 on No. 2, followed with an 8-footer on the third and a 25-footer on No. 4. He sank a 10-footer for another bird after coming out of a trap on No. 6.

Austin an Unknown With 'Reputation'

When the Pittsburgh Steelers named former Rams assistant Bill Austin to their head coaching post, the announcement aroused as little excitement in that city as much bewilderment there as the announcement 10 years ago that the Steelers had picked, as their bonus choice in the draft, Gary Glick.

The Steelers, in the words of club president Art Rooney, "are dying." So were the Chicago Cubs, according to owner William Wrigley, who went right out and hired the fiery Leo Durocher to hypo the Cubbies' fortunes.

But instead of obtaining a "name" head coach with a flair for publicity and a knack for selling tickets (as did the Cubs), the Steelers went for an unknown in Austin. Don't misunderstand. Austin is a good man and would have been retained in the Ram organization by new coach George Allen.

Yet, why did the Steelers select Austin? According to Pittsburgh writer Roy McHugh, this is Rooney's answer:

"The main thing we wanted was a coach who would give us a winner. If we could have gotten a name coach, a top college coach who could give us a winner—good. It would be to our advantage to have a guy who could sell us 30,000 season tickets because we're dying; we're having trouble selling 10,000.

"But this thing wasn't a popularity contest. We gave it as much research as anybody possibly could. You know, it's not a simple matter to hire a big name."

THOUGH AUSTIN is an unknown to the general public, he has a flourishing reputation among the coaches and press of the National Football League.

Vince Lombardi, his boss at Green Bay for five years, gave him what Rooney describes as the "highest recommendation I ever listened to."

At least two questions suggest themselves:

1. If Lombardi was so crazy about Austin why did he let him go, on the level of an assistant, to the Rams?

2. If Austin makes such a big impression on everybody who knows him, why did the Rams give Harland Svare's job to George Allen?

ON THE SURFACE, the first question seems easy to answer. Austin wanted to be a head coach and knew he could never get out of Lombardi's shadow in Green Bay. Also, he and Lombardi were too much alike.

New York Giants' owner, Wellington Mara, who remembers a lot about Austin from his playing days, speaks of Bill as "aggressive and abrasive." In aggressiveness and abrasiveness, Lombardi takes a back seat to no one. Austin talked up to Lombardi and the natives report you could hear their conversations in Fond du Lac.)

Rooney claims no idea why the Rams wanted Allen instead of Austin. However, the obvious reason is that Ram fans would associate Austin with Svare, who had not been a success—but who still might land the St. Louis job.

Yet, we understand that Austin was supposed to be next in line after Allen if George Halas had forced Allen to turn down the Ram job.

An ironic twist: The Rams were seeking ex-Steeler coach Buddy Parker as one of Allen's assistants. Parker was interested, but only if he didn't land a head coaching post.

THE BIG NAME college coaches usually are situated where they have an edge of some kind in recruiting. The prospect of starting all over with a second-division pro team makes them stop and count their blessings. Thus, the situation with USC's John McKay (and the Rams.)

The trend may be in the opposite direction . . . if Lou Saban's recent switch from the Buffalo Bills to the University of Maryland is any criterion. (And the NFL has a rule against piracy which places big-name pro coaches out-of-bounds.)

That leaves an assortment of out-of-work head coaches and young, eager assistants. The Steelers are taking their chances with a young, eager assistant.

"Did you know Don Shula when Shula went to Baltimore?

"Did you know Vince Lombardi when Lombardi went to Green Bay?

"Did you know Allie Sherman when the Giants moved him up?

ALL BILL AUSTIN has to do is march through Cleveland, New York, St. Louis, Philadelphia, Dallas and Washington.

If he makes it in one piece, everybody will know who he is.

Top Fuel Machines Vie at Lions Today

By BRUCE YOUNG

The cream of the nation's fuel dragster crop squares off today for the top prize in the $27,000 third United Drag Racers Assn. Winternationals at Lions Drug Strip.

The 32 quickest fuelers, of the more than 100 who entered Saturday's qualifications, will run in the final eliminations. Gates open at 9 a.m. with eliminations beginning at 11.

Garlits will have one more chance this morning before the top 32 machines begin eliminations.

★ ★ ★ ★

DON PRUDHOMME will be tough to reckon with as he tries to pick up where he left off last year in his "Hawaiian" dragster. The year of 1965 was Prudhomme's biggest as he won the Grand Slam of drag racing, the NHRA Winternationals and Nationals.

Tom McEwen is rated a better than even choice in today's action. McEwen, of Long Beach, pilots his powerful Chrysler rail and he holds the Lions strip and world record of 214.76 mph.

NOTRE DAME LOSES AGAIN

Kentucky Gets 17th; 32 for Cazzie in Win

Combined from Wire Reports

Georgia's attempt to stop the Kentucky Wildcats' undefeated skein with slow-down tactics was short-lived Saturday night as Adolf Rupp's boys chalked up victory No. 17 by a 74-50 score.

Georgia played all but the final eight minutes of the game in a freeze, often waiting as long as three minutes before taking a shot. The Bulldogs tried only 11 shots in the first half.

But Kentucky, the nation's second-ranked team, hit 61% of its floor shots as Pat Riley connected for 25 points and the teams ended up at a furious pace to run up the totals.

First-ranked Duke did not play Saturday.

Michigan and Michigan State remained tied at the top of the Big 10 standings as the defending champions' Cazzie Russell tallied 32 points to lead the Wolverines to a 93-76 triumph over Indiana and the Spartans beat Wisconsin, 78-65.

Russell hit six field goals in the first four minutes to get Michigan off to a wide early lead.

★ ★ ★ ★

ILLINOIS stayed in title contention by sinking Ohio State 78-77 on two free throws by Bob Johansen in the final 14 seconds. Minnesota kept its title hopes alive with a 66-61 verdict over Purdue.

Georgia Tech ran Notre Dame's winless streak to 13 with a 75-61 victory.

Fourth-ranked Providence needed a pair of last-minute foul shots by Dave Benedict to squeeze out a 50-48 victory over St. Francis of Pennsylvania. It was the Friars' 14th victory against one loss.

★ ★ ★ ★

EIGHTH-RANKED St. Joseph's scrambled Temple 105-74 and seventh-ranked Kansas shrugged off Missouri 77-54 but the No. 5-ranked Loyola of Chicago Ramblers didn't have such an easy time.

Loyola ran its win streak to 14 by beating Marquette 85-84. Corky Bell provided the Ramblers with the victory as he plunked in a rebound at the final whistle after several teammates had missed short shots in the last-seconds scramble.

Lanky, hot-shooting Sonny Dove pushed St. John's of New York to an 85-69 decision over Niagara.

Alabama used free throw accuracy to upend Tulane 77-67 in a Southeastern Conference contest.

Arkansas dumped Baylor 78-59 in a Southwestern Conference clash.

Oregon State Nips Tribe, Tops Loop

PALO ALTO (UPI) — Rick Whelan flipped in the winning basket at the buzzer tonight to give Oregon State a 56-54 victory over Stanford in the Beavers' battle for the AAWU basketball championship.

Combined with the UCLA Bruins' 84-83 loss to Washington State, the victory pushed the Oregon State team into undisputed leadership of the conference race with a 5-1 record.

The winning shot came after Bob Bedell of Stanford lost the ball with 30 seconds to play when it bounced off his foot as he was dribbling toward the Beaver basket. The Beavers recovered and Whelan put the ball in after Loy Petersen's 25-foot shot fell short.

It was a tough night for Bedell, who earlier had knocked an Oregon State shot into his own basket for two Beaver points.

The game was close all the way as Stanford used a zone defense for the first time this season to battle Oregon State's ball control tactics.

Dirk's Tip Nets Wilson OT Victory

By KEVIN DIXON

G. A. Dirk tipped in a missed shot as the clock ran out in overtime Saturday night to give Wilson a 73-71 Moore League victory over Lakewood at Long Beach City College.

Wilson, ranked 15th in CIF, had to outscore Lakewood, 15-7, in the final quarter to qualify for the overtime.

Lakewood's prolific guard, Jimmy Harris opened the extra session with a basket at 1:30, giving the Lancers a 71-69 lead. Rick Hubbell tied matters seconds later with two free throws.

His 20-foot jump shot rolled around the rim and came off but the alert Dirk was there for the tip.

Hubbell took game honors with 28 points, followed by Harris and Bruin Steve Sagehorn with 19.

Wilson finished the first round of league action in third place with a 3-2 record. Lakewood is last at 0-5.

JOHNSON BAGS HAT TRICK

Blades Pepper Leafs for Biggest Win of Year

By RICH ROBERTS

Norm Johnson's hat trick led the Blades to their biggest win of the season Saturday night, 7-2, over the league-leading Victoria Maple Leafs before 7,107 at the L.A. Sports Arena.

The Blades may be on the other end of the Western Hockey League but they didn't look the least bit like it.

Inspired by their veteran center's brilliant play, they had the Leafs on the run all the way. Besides his three goals, Johnson also had two assists.

It's not that the Blades were getting any more shots than usual, but they were getting much better shots by playing an aggressive position and passing game. The puck usually found somebody where he was supposed to be.

★ ★ ★ ★

ALSO, Johnson gave them a lot more garbage opportunity with his furious digging in the attacking zone. If anything, they blew several setups for being over anxious, waited for Millar to make his move, then backhanded the puck underneath.

After O'Ree's goal in the middle period, the Leafs broke the shutout at 3:13 of the last period when Larry Keenan's shot caromed off the skate of Blade defenseman Ray LaRose.

But only 2½ minutes later, Johnson's second goal took the starch out of the comeback an dhis third plus the one by Baird left 'em laughing.

The Blades' most lopsided win previously this season was by four goals at Vancouver, 8-4, just last Tuesday night. Portland moved into a tie with Victoria for first spot by disposing of Seattle, 5-3.

Johnson's feat was the Blades' third hat trick of the season, O'Ree had one in the opening game and Leo LaBine scored four in one night Dec. 12 at Portland, but this was the first at home this season.

BLUE LINES: The Blades take a four-game trip next week, playing at Vancouver Tuesday, Seattle Friday, Victoria Saturday and Portland Sunday. Next home game is Wednesday, Feb. 16, against Victoria. Coach and general manager Lynn Patrick leaves with other Blade executives today for the National Hockey League expansion meeting in New York. He'll join co-owners Dan Maclin and Don Rees and executive director Jack Gever, then return early for Tuesday's game in Vancouver. The Blades are scheduled to state their case before the NHL governors at 11 a.m. Tuesday. Ed Ehrenworth, Long Beach Chinese were on hand for Victoria to replace Allan Marcella and Fred Creul, who went to Tulsa in the Toronto system designed to get Tulsa into the Central League playoffs. . . . In a wild finish to the second period, the Blades missed a big chance when Miller, the Victoria goalie, came out almost to the blue line to sweep a free puck, then lost it and couldn't get back to his net. . . . The fewest goals Norris had surrendered in any other game was three twice. . . . Winger Brian Smith, playing only in spots, has discarded his flashy white helmet, which he had no special reason for wearing.

Alcindor Takes Back Seat, but Brubabes Win

Host Fullerton Junior College set a scoring record of sorts and Hornet star Walt Simon led all scorers but UCLA's unbeaten freshmen basketball team romped to another victory Saturday night, 102-74.

Simon, who led the nation's jaycee scorers last year, prodded the Hornets to the highest point total of the season against the Brubabes.

Simon, State JC player of the year in 1965, poured in 31 points to 26 for Lew Alcindor and 25 Lynn Shackelford. Alcindor was out-rebounded by Fullerton's Tom Swift, 14-10, but the 7-1 wonder blocked six shots.

Pennell and Chase Soar Over 16-6¼

SEATTLE (UPI) — Pole vaulter Jeff Chase, who was named the outstanding performer, and shotput great Parry O'Brien recorded the finest indoor marks of their careers Saturday night to highlight the Seattle Invitational indoor track meet.

Chase, competing for the Santa Clara Youth Village, cleared 16-6¼ for a meet record.

O'Brien, who came out of retirement to make the indoor tour this year, got a put of 63-9 for his second win in a row.

Jim Grelle sprinted away from UCLA's Bob Day in the final 220 yards to win the mile in 4:02.8.

Winners:
40 high hurdles—Paul Kerry, Southern California 5.3.
45-Lennox Miller, Southern California Frosh, 6.1.
Mile—Jim Grelle, Portland, 4:02.8.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Muscular John Pennel soared 16 feet 6¼ inches in the pole vault—the third best indoor effort of all time—and St. John's Tommy Farrell was upset by Olan Cassell at 600 yards Saturday night in the Inquirer Games.

Farrell, this country's best at 800 meters in the Tokyo Olympics and previously unbeaten this season, relied too much on his finishing kick and finished a foot back of Olympian Cassell, Mississequa, N.Y., in the 600.

The time was 1:12.8.

The mile was a distinct disappointment. John Davies, the lanky New Zealander who won in New York in 4:04.2 the night before, took it in a plodding 4:15.1, the slowest winning mile in an indoor meet in this country this year.

Winners:
Mile—John Davies, New Zealand, 4:15.1.
Two-mile—George Young, unattached, Casagrande, Ariz., 8:50.0, (meet record; old record 8:52.6, by Pat Traynor, Delaware Valley A.A. 1961).

Austin an Unknown With 'Reputation'

When the Pittsburgh Steelers named former Ram assistant Bill Austin to their head coaching post, the announcement aroused as little excitement in that city as much bewilderment there as the announcement 10 years ago that the Steelers had picked, as their bonus choice in the draft, Gary Glick.

The Steelers, in the words of club president Art Rooney, "are dying." So were the Chicago Cubs, according to owner William Wrigley, who went right out and hired the fiery Leo Durocher to hypo the Cubbies' fortunes.

But instead of obtaining a "name" head coach with a flair for publicity and a knack for selling tickets (as did the Cubs), the Steelers went for an unknown in Austin. Don't misunderstand. Austin is a good man and would have been retained in the Ram organization by new coach George Allen.

Yet, why did the Steelers select Austin? According to Pittsburgh writer Roy McHugh, this is Rooney's answer:

"The main thing we wanted was a coach who would give us a winner. If we could have gotten a name coach, a top college coach who could give us a winner—good. It would be to our advantage to have a guy who could sell us 30,000 season tickets because we're dying; we're having trouble selling 10,000.

"But this thing wasn't a popularity contest. We gave it as much research as anybody possibly could. You know, it's not a simple matter to hire a big name."

THOUGH AUSTIN is an unknown to the general public, he has a flourishing reputation among the coaches and press of the National Football League.

Vince Lombardi, his boss at Green Bay for five years, gave him what Rooney describes as the "highest recommendation I ever listened to."

At least two questions suggest themselves:

1. If Lombardi was so crazy about Austin why did he let him go, on the level of an assistant, to the Rams?

2. If Austin makes such a big impression on everybody who knows him, why did the Rams give Harland Svare's job to George Allen?

ON THE SURFACE, the first question seems easy to answer. Austin wanted to be a head coach and knew he could never get out of Lombardi's shadow in Green Bay. Also, he and Lombardi were too much alike.

New York Giants' owner, Wellington Mara, who remembers a lot about Austin from his playing days, speaks of Bill as "aggressive and abrasive." In aggressiveness and abrasiveness, Lombardi takes a back seat to no one. Austin talked up to Lombardi and the natives report you could hear their conversations in Fond du Lac.)

Rooney claims no idea why the Rams wanted Allen instead of Austin. However, the obvious reason is that Ram fans would associate Austin with Svare, who had not been a success—but who still might land the St. Louis job.

Yet, we understand that Austin was supposed to be next in line after Allen if George Halas had forced Allen to turn down the Ram job.

An ironic twist: The Rams were seeking ex-Steeler coach Buddy Parker as one of Allen's assistants. Parker was interested, but only if he didn't land a head coaching post.

THE BIG NAME college coaches usually are situated where they have an edge of some kind in recruiting. The prospect of starting all over with a second-division pro team makes them stop and count their blessings. Thus, the situation with USC's John McKay (and the Rams.)

The trend may be in the opposite direction . . . if Lou Saban's recent switch from the Buffalo Bills to the University of Maryland is any criterion. (And the NFL has a rule against piracy which places big-name pro coaches out-of-bounds.)

That leaves an assortment of out-of-work head coaches and young, eager assistants. The Steelers are taking their chances with a young, eager assistant.

"Did you know Don Shula when Shula went to Baltimore?

"Did you know Vince Lombardi when Lombardi went to Green Bay?

"Did you know Allie Sherman when the Giants moved him up?

ALL BILL AUSTIN has to do is march through Cleveland, New York, St. Louis, Philadelphia, Dallas and Washington.

If he makes it in one piece, everybody will know who he is.

NOTRE DAME LOSES AGAIN

Kentucky Gets 17th; 32 for Cazzie in Win

Combined from Wire Reports

Georgia's attempt to stop the Kentucky Wildcats' undefeated skein with slow-down tactics was short-lived Saturday night as Adolf Rupp's boys chalked up victory No. 17 by a 74-50 score.

Georgia played all but the final eight minutes of the game in a freeze, often waiting as long as three minutes before taking a shot. The Bulldogs tried only 11 shots in the first half.

But Kentucky, the nation's second-ranked team, hit 61% of its floor shots as Pat Riley connected for 25 points and the teams ended up at a furious pace to run up the totals.

First-ranked Duke did not play Saturday.

Michigan and Michigan State remained tied at the top of the Big 10 standings as the defending champions' Cazzie Russell tallied 32 points to lead the Wolverines to a 93-76 triumph over Indiana and the Spartans beat Wisconsin, 78-65.

Russell hit six field goals in the first four minutes to get Michigan off to a wide early lead.

* * * *

ILLINOIS stayed in title contention by sinking Ohio State 78-77 on two free throws by Bob Johansen in the final 14 seconds. Minnesota kept its title hopes alive with a 66-61 verdict over Purdue.

Georgia Tech ran Notre Dame's winless streak to 13 with a 75-61 victory.

Fourth-ranked Providence needed a pair of last-minute foul shots by Dave Benedict to squeeze out a 50-48 victory over St. Francis of Pennsylvania. It was the Friars' 14th victory against one loss.

* * * *

EIGHTH-RANKED St. Joseph's scrambled Temple 105-74 and seventh-ranked Kansas shrugged off Missouri 77-54 but the No. 5-ranked Loyola of Chicago Ramblers didn't have such an easy time.

Loyola ran its win streak to 14 by beating Marquette 85-84. Corky Bell provided the Ramblers with the victory as he plunked in a rebound at the final whistle after several teammates had missed short shots in the last-seconds scramble.

Lanky, hot-shooting Sonny Dove pushed St. John's of New York to an 85-69 decision over Niagara.

Alabama used free throw accuracy to upend Tulane 77-67 in a Southeastern Conference contest.

Arkansas dumped Baylor 78-59 in a Southwestern Conference clash.

Oregon State Nips Tribe, Tops Loop

PALO ALTO (UPI) — Rick Whelan flipped in the winning basket at the buzzer tonight to give Oregon State a 56-54 victory over Stanford in the Beavers' battle for the AAWU basketball championship.

Combined with the UCLA Bruins' 84-83 loss to Washington State, the victory pushed the Oregon State team into undisputed leadership of the conference race with a 5-1 record.

The winning shot came after Bob Bedell of Stanford lost the ball with 30 seconds to play when it bounced off his foot as he was dribbling toward the Beaver basket. The Beavers recovered and Whelan put the ball in after Loy Petersen's 25-foot shot fell short.

It was a tough night for Bedell, who earlier had knocked an Oregon State shot into his own basket for two Beaver points.

The game was close all the way as Stanford used a zone defense for the first time this season to battle Oregon State's ball control tactics.

Dirk's Tip Nets Wilson OT Victory

By KEVIN DIXON

G. A. Dirk tipped in a missed shot as the clock ran out in overtime Saturday night to give Wilson a 73-71 Moore League victory over Lakewood at Long Beach City College.

Wilson, ranked 15th in CIF, had to outscore Lakewood, 15-7, in the final quarter to qualify for the overtime.

Lakewood's prolific guard, Jimmy Harris opened the extra session with a basket at 1:30, giving the Lancers a 71-69 lead. Rick Hubbell tied matters seconds later with two free throws.

* * * *

His 20-foot jump shot rolled around the rim and came off but the alert Dirk was there for the tip.

Hubbell took game honors with 28 points, followed by Harris and Bruin Steve Sagehorn with 19.

Wilson finished the first round of league action in third place with a 3-2 record. Lakewood is last at 0-5.

JOHNSON BAGS HAT TRICK

Blades Pepper Leafs for Biggest Win of Year

By RICH ROBERTS

Norm Johnson's hat trick led the Blades to their biggest win of the season Saturday night, 7-2, over the league-leading Victoria Maple Leafs before 7,107 at the L.A. Sports Arena.

The Blades may be on the other end of the Western Hockey League but they didn't look the least bit like it.

Inspired by their veteran center's brilliant play, they had the Leafs on the run all the way. Besides his three goals, Johnson also had two assists.

It's not that the Blades were getting any more shots than usual, but they were getting much better shots by playing an aggressive position and passing game. The puck usually found somebody where he was supposed to be.

* * * *

ALSO, Johnson gave them a lot more garbage opportunity with his furious digging in the attacking zone. If anything, they blew several setups for being over anxious, which has to be regarded as a change for the better.

Johnson put the Blades in front after only 1:56 of play on a whirling pin-ball shot off Leo LaBine's rebound.

Defenseman Jake Hendrickson, who had four assists, engineered the Blades' next two goals, also in the first period. While Victoria was shorthanded, he fed a lead pass to Boone cutting toward the goal. Al Millar came out to meet Buddy, who simply lofted it high off the cross bar.

* * * *

VICTORIA had killed 22 consecutive penalties until that power-play goal.

Late in the period, Orban was hanging on the crease when Hendrickson found him from the boards. The rookie blocked six shots.

It was not until the middle period, the Leafs broke the shutout at 3:13 of the last period when Larry Keenan's shot caromed off the skate of Blade defenseman Ray LaRose.

But only 2½ minutes later, Johnson's second goal took the starch out of the comeback an dhis third plus the one by Baird left 'em laughing.

The Blades' most lopsided win previously this season was by four goals at Vancouver, 8-4, just last Tuesday night. Portland moved into a tie with Victoria for first spot by disposing of Seattle, 5-3.

Johnson's feat was the Blades' third hat trick of the season. O'Ree had one in the opening game and Leo LaBine scored four in one night Dec. 12 at Portland, but this was the first at home this season.

BLUE LINES: The Blades take a four-game trip next week, playing at Vancouver Tuesday, Seattle Friday, Victoria Saturday and Portland Sunday. Next home game is Wednesday, Feb. 16, against Victoria. Coach and general manager Lynn Patrick leaves with other Blade executives today for the National Hockey League expansion meeting in New York. Also in town are Dan Maree and Dan Reeves, area director Jack Gever, then returns early for Tuesday's game in Vancouver. The Blades are scheduled to state their case before the NHL governors at 11 a.m. Tuesday. . . . Ed Ehrenworth and Jack Chipchase were on hand for Victoria to replace Milan Marcetta and Fred Creighton, who went to Tulsa in the Toronto farm swap deal. . . . Tulsa got into the Central League playoffs . . . in a wild finish to the second period, the Blades missed a big chance when Miller, the Victoria goalie, came out almost to the blue line to sweep a free puck, then lost it and couldn't get back to his post. . . . The fewest goals Norris had surrendered in any other game was three twice . . . Winger Brian Smith, playing only in spots, has discarded his Easby white helmet which he had no special reason for wearing.

FIRST PERIOD—1, Los Angeles, Johnson (Bedard, Boone) 1:56. 2, Los Angeles, Boone (Hendrickson, Johnson) 15:39. 3, Los Angeles, Orban (Hopmeyer, Hendrickson) 19:18. Penalties—Bollard (LA) 8:24; Ehrenworth (Vic) 9:14; Victoria bench, 11:53; Stewart (Vic) 14:50; LaRose (LA) 19:30.

SECOND PERIOD—4, Los Angeles, O'Ree (Johnson, Baird) 9:44. Penalties—Schultz (Vic) 0:33; Barlow (Vic) 7:56; Chipchase (Vic) 12:30.

THIRD PERIOD—5, Victoria, Keenan (Stewart, Schultz) 3:13. 6, Los Angeles, Johnson (LaBine, Hendrickson) 5:42. Los Angeles, Johnson (Hopmeyer, Hendrickson) 11:30. 8, Los Angeles, Baird (O'Ree, Bonin) 12:03. 9, Victoria, Erickson (Stewart, Ehrenworth) 19:00. Penalties—LaRose (LA) 13:14.

Alcindor Takes Back Seat, but Brubabes Win

Host Fullerton Junior College set a scoring record of sorts and Hornet star Walt Simon led all scorers but UCLA's unbeaten freshmen basketball team romped to another victory Saturday night, 102-74.

Simon, who led the nation's jaycee scorers last year, prodded the Hornets to the highest point total of the season against the Brubabes.

Simon, State JC player of the year in 1965, poured in 31 points to 26 for Lew Alcindor and 25 Lynn Shackelford. Alcindor was out-rebounded by Fullerton's Tom Swift, 14-10, but the 7-1 wonder blocked six shots.

Top Fuel Machines Vie at Lions Today

By BRUCE YOUNG

The cream of the nation's fuel dragster crop squares off today for the top prize in the $27,000 third United Drag Racers Assn. Winternationals at Lions Drag Strip.

The 32 quickest fuelers, of the more than 100 who entered Saturday's qualifications, will run in the final eliminations. Gates open at 9 a.m. with eliminations beginning at 11.

Garlits will have one more chance this morning before the top 32 machines begin eliminations.

DON PRUDHOMME will be tough to reckon with as he tries to pick up where he left off last year in his "Hawaiian" dragster. The year of 1965 was Prudhomme's biggest as he won the Grand Slam of drag racing, the NHRA Winternationals and Nationals.

Tom McEwen is rated a better than even choice in today's action. McEwen, of Long Beach, pilots his powerful Chrysler rail and he holds the Lions strip and world record of 214.76 mph.

Pennell and Chase Soar Over 16-6¼

SEATTLE (UPI) — Pole vaulter Jeff Chase, who was named the outstanding performer, and shotput great Parry O'Brien recorded the finest indoor marks of their careers Saturday night to highlight the Seattle Invitational indoor track meet.

Chase, competing for the Santa Clara Youth Village, cleared 16-6¼ for a meet record.

O'Brien, who came out of retirement to make the indoor tour this year, got a put of 63-9 for his second win in a row.

Jim Grelle sprinted away from UCLA's Bob Day in the final 100 yards to win the mile in 4:02.8.

Winners:
60 high hurdles—Paul Kerry, Southern California, 7.3.
440—Lennox Miller, Southern California Frosh, 47.
Mile—Jim Grelle, Portland, 4:02.8.
600—Kim Knowles, San Jose State, 1:12.8.
Pole vault—Jeff Chase, Santa Clara Youth Village, 16-6¼.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Muscular John Pennel soared 16 feet 6¼ inches in the pole vault—the third best indoor effort of all time—and St. John's Tommy Farrell was upset by Olan Cassell at 600 yards Saturday night in the Inquirer Games.

Farrell, this country's best at 800 meters in the Tokyo Olympics and previously unbeaten this season, relied too much on his finishing kick and finished a foot back of Olympian Cassell. Massapequa, N.Y., in the 600.

The time was 1:12.8.

The mile was a distinct disappointment. John Davies, the lanky New Zealander who won in New York in 4:04.2 the night before, took it in a plodding 4:15.1, the slowest winning mile in an indoor meet in this country this year.

Winners:
Mile—John Davies, New Zealand, 4:15.1.
Two-mile—George Young, unattached, Casacrendo, Italy, 8:52.6. Time recorded as 8:37.6 by Pat Traynor, Oda Valley A.A. (ret).
720—Frank Tomeo, Quantico Marines, 1:55.5.
1,000—Robin Ling's, unattached, Columbia, 2:11.4.
600—Olan Cassell, unattached, Hollev, N.J., 1:12.8.
440—Charley Mays, Grand Street Boys, 47.2 seconds.
50—Sam Perry, Fordham.
High jump—Richard Ross, Baton Rouge, La., 6-10.

Don't Believe What You Read in Papers

Look, Charlie, if you think anybody's gonna believe the papers from the last couple of weeks, you gotta be crazy. Or I am.

I know these newspaper guys . . . nothin to do 'cept sit around and read the Form and answer the phone about what round did Louis knock out Dempsey and will you please tell that to this other guy and when the phone doesn't ring they make up these fantastic stories.

Now take this Milwaukee thing. How they gonna play in two places at once? Yes, I heard Wrigley's idea—split the squad. Maybe he was kiddin' but it's the only out that's made any sense so far.

And where's this Judge—whatsizname—Roller get off, tellin' 'em they might hafta stay in Milwaukee this year. What's he got—season passes? I bet he ain't seen a ball game since Satch Paige was a rookie.

So finally who do they call in to give 'em the low-down on the whole deal—O'Malley! They got a new commissioner. Yeah, I heard what HE had to say:

"(Ahem) I can't comment until I've studied all of the facts. It looks like a league matter to me. This is a recording. I can't comment . . ."

So they call in O'Malley. Who they think runs baseball, anyway?

I SEE WHERE THE OLD pro football players are finally wisin' up. Yeah, after all these years with the other league goin' it finally dawns on these guys that all they gotta do to get a better deal is, like, ask for it.

I can't believe it finally got through to 'em, or maybe somebody read 'em the fine print in their contract, that all they gotta do to be a free agent is not sign for a year and then you can sign with anybody.

Now good ol' Jimmy Hoffa's trying to get 'em all in his union. Football players, baseball players, hockey, basketball—maybe even wrestlers and roller derby.

How about that. Time-and-a-half for extra innings . . . three weeks' vacation right in the middle of the World Series. Do ya think they'd play if the ground crew went on strike?

Yeah, it's kinda got all the owners shook up, even if they don't say so. The way it's goin' they're gonna have two kinds of guys playing for 'em next season—scabs and rookies.

NO, I DON'T KNOW what this Stiles kid got for signing with the Chargers. I heard the Rams didn't want him because he's too small.

Sure, even if he don't make it it's great publicity for the Chargers—you know, Rose Bowl hero and all that. The kid'll be great copy even if he never gets in a game . . . just full o' surprises, like this deal at Mississippi and changing his name at Long Beach.

Maybe it's the best thing that coulda happened to him. Who knows . . . another season at UCLA and he falls on his face and nobody wants him. I hope he makes it big. Nice kid.

SPEAKIN' OF THE CHARGERS, how about this big Ernie Ladd. The league passes a special rule just to make him shave off his goatee. Whatta they think—he hides his plays in there?

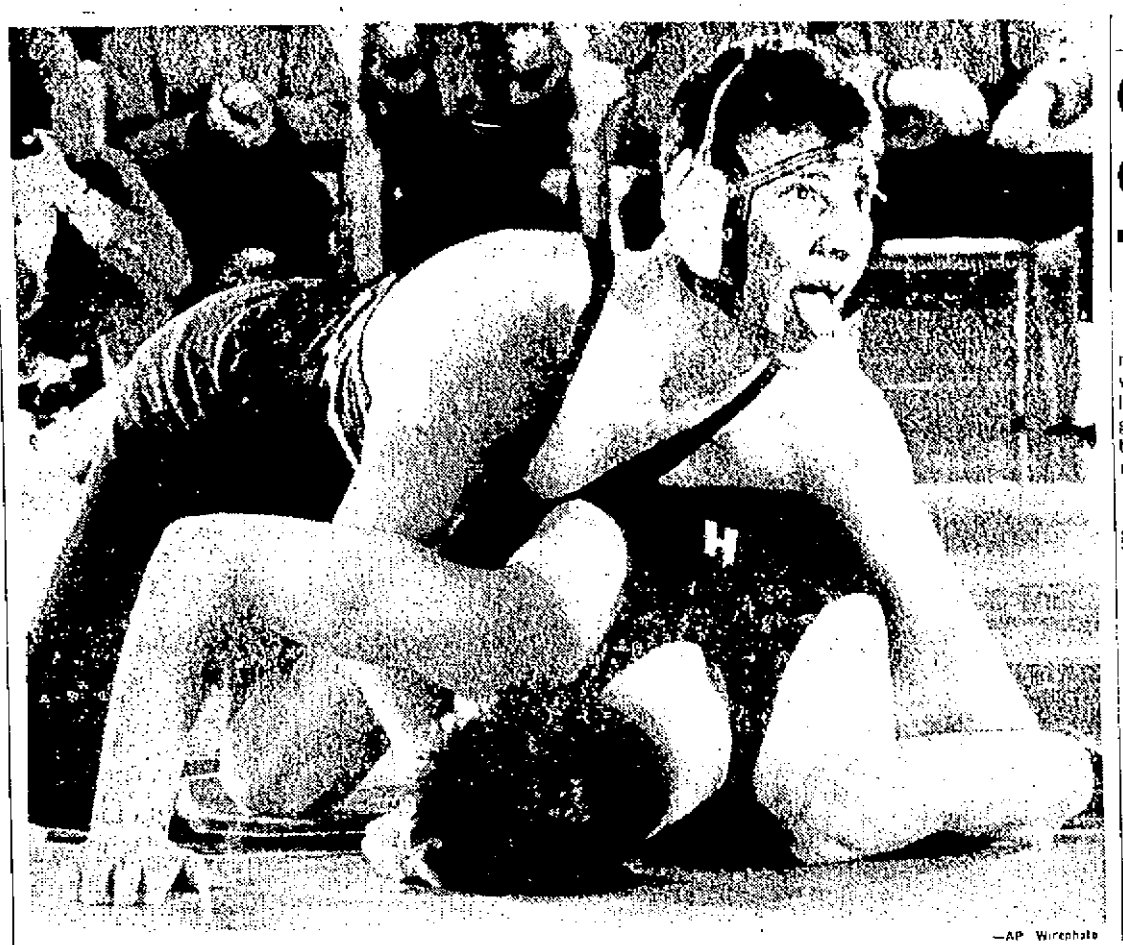

Man, it's not a free country anymore. But I don't know how they can make him do it. I mean, this guy's 6-9 and a couple o' yards wide—I'M not gonna tell him to shave it off!

That reminds me, this guy Barber, the pro golfer, has a 109 down at Palm Springs because he marks his scorecard wrong. How's a pro gonna shoot 109? Yeah, he missed a putt for a 108.

Y' hear about the fight at the Olympic the other night? Yeah, the ref stopped it because he thought Big Train and this other guy weren't trying to hit each other.

Naw, he hasn't seen many heavyweight fights, lately.

Well, I'll see ya 'round, Charlie. Yeah, right—Milwaukee opening day.

HE GOT A TONGUE LASHING

The bushed fellow on top in this high school wrestling match in Minneapolis is named Busch, first name Dave, and the fellow on the bottom took advantage of bushed Busch moments after this respite to wiggle loose and win the match. Dan Jansen gave bushed Busch a tongue lashing, you might say.

Catfish Retains Confidence for Today's Windup

real good, but I didn't iron it very good. The greens were hard and it was difficult to get the ball close to the hole because I just couldn't get my irons zeroed in."

★ ★ ★ ★

HE HAD a bit of a struggle getting his par round after bogeying the par-three fourth hole when he was 20 yards short of the green with his second shot, chipped up nicely to within three feet, but missed the putt.

He had to come up with a pair of fine shots to save pars on the next few holes—No. 7 where he made a brilliant pitch to within two feet of the cup, and on the 10th with a superb 15-foot putt after hitting out of a trap.

The Catfish's birdie on the 18th was his only one.

Palmer ripped par by four strokes on the front nine at La Quinta, collecting three in a row starting at No. 4.

He dropped an 8-foot birdie putt on the 4th, came out of a trap to sink a 10-footer on No. 5, and sank a six-footer on the par-five 6th. Arnie, followed by the largest gallery of the tournament so far, also birdied the 8th when he hit a 9-iron to within four feet of the flag and made the putt.

★ ★ ★ ★

ANOTHER fine chip to within three feet set up another birdie on the 11th, while still another birdie on No. 13—his sixth of the round—enabled him to pull into a momentary tie with Kneece for the lead. He two-putted the 13th from 30 feet after reaching the green of the par-five hole in two.

Then came the bogey on the 14th that set him back, and Arnie also had to scramble for a par on the 16th before he finally sank a tricky four-foot putt that "went in the side of the cup" and rolled around a couple of times before deciding to stay in.

Even though the great Palmer is breathing on his neck and with his reputation for fading on the late rounds, Kneece retained an air of confidence when asked about the final round.

★ ★ ★ ★

"I DON'T think I have anything to worry about if I just keep playing as well as I have so far," he said.

The low 76 professionals play the final round today at Indian Wells.

The cutoff came at 294 and among the more prominent professionals who failed to make today's field were the 1964 winner of the Desert Classic, Tommy Jacobs, and Dow Finsterwald, Bob McCallister, Lionel Hebert, Red Baxter and Billy Martindale.

They all get an early start to the next stop on the tour—Phoenix.

Amateurs Help Towns Win $2,700

Towns missed the cut for today's final round of the pro tourney by three strokes as he finished with a 72-hole total of 297. But his amateur partners for the four rounds helped him 63 strokes.

Bill Ezinicki, former hockey star with the New York Rangers, collected $1,800 in finishing second, but like Towns, also missed the cut. He had a 295. He was helped 59 strokes by his amateur partners.

The team of Jim Saphier, Bob Hope's television agent, Robert Bender of LaJolla, and B. E. Bensinger won the amateur division, finishing 59 under par.

Poor Crowds, Record May Hinder Blades' NHL Bid

By RICH ROBERTS

When the Southland's big league hockey aspirants put their best feet forward Monday, National Hockey League governors are apt to be trampled in the rush.

Among the five known hopefuls and possibly three more unidentified late entries, those given the best chance of buying the $2 million premium package are the Blades, TV producer Tony Owen and Laker owner Jack Kent Cooke.

It is not likely that the governors (the six NHL club owners) will reach a quick decision, nor is it a foregone conclusion that the Blades will be awarded the franchise.

Ken McKenzie, publisher of Hockey News with headquarters in Montreal, pointed out on a visit last week that it wouldn't necessarily carry weight with the NHL that the Blades had been operating a minor league franchise in Los Angeles for five years.

On the other hand, how they have been operating could hurt their cause.

"When I started this trip through the Western League I thought it was in the bag for the Blades," McKenzie said. "But now I don't think they've done a good job in the years they have been here. They're in last place with the biggest city in the league and their attendance hasn't been built up. To me, this points up poor management."

McKenzie's publication is to hockey what the Sporting News is to baseball, and hockey people don't always agree with his outspoken opinions. But his viewpoint is at least objective.

* * * *

HE DISCOUNTS the Metromedia organization as a serious applicant because "the NHL doesn't want to tie itself down to one television outlet. They're still hoping for a national TV package and, frankly, they can't sell it and they're getting pretty worried."

He also writes off Ralph Wilson, owner of the American Football League champion Buffalo Bills because "the NHL stresses local ownership and doesn't like its owners to have other sports interests."

That latter point also cripples the causes of Cooke and the Blades, of whom the Rams' Dan Reeves is a majority co-owner.

"A lot of the people in the East think that Tony Owen will get it," McKenzie says, "simply because he is local and has no other conflicting interests."

* * * *

Therefore, McKenzie rates the applicants' chances with Owen first, the Blades second and Cooke third.

However, the charge of "poor management" really can't be directed at the Blades' present leadership.

The Blades' pitch will be made not by Reeves but by Dan Martin, who was brought into the Blade organization only this season, placed in charge with a 30% piece of the majority co-ownership with Reeves and told to, "Sic 'em."

Martin is a former Under-Secretary of Commerce under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson and the son of a former governor of Washington. He has a strong national image which could carry weight with the NHL, and he also has the money to back it up.

Also, he never has held any other sports interest.

The Blades' executive director, Jack Geyer, said just this week, "I wasn't too optimistic earlier, but now I think our chances are better than ever."

* * * *

McKENZIE says he is "certain that San Francisco is all settled—that franchise will be given out at this meeting. And I'm also certain that they'll play in the new Oakland arena next season even if they're still in the Western League."

And he agreed with the view of many that it would be impractical for the Blades to operate at all next season if they don't get the franchise . . . playing out a lame duck season, then gallantly stepping aside for somebody else's big league operation.

Martin just tipping his hand, but it's likely that his pitch to the NHL will include the implied threat of a lawsuit if the Blades don't get the franchise.

As one Blade executive put it, "They will have put us out of business."

HAWKS FOES TODAY

Win-'em-All Trip Begins for Lakers

BY DOUG IVES
L. P-T Staff Writer

ST. LOUIS—If the Lakers are to be seriously challenged for the Western Division title, it will have to begin here today in hostile Kiel Auditorium, home of the St. Louis Hawks.

It seems unlikely that the Lakers could squander a six-game lead with only 22 to play, but they always flit away some games on the road, where their season record is only 12-18.

This journey is their longest yet, five games in eight days, and includes stopovers Monday in Philadelphia and next Sunday in Boston — cities where they rarely win. They also play in Baltimore on Wednesday and New York on Saturday.

A 1-4 record could put the Lakers in trouble, but even a sub-par 2-3 wouldn't hurt them too much. Anything better, of course, and the title race is over.

* * * *

BOASTING a five-game winning streak and getting double-figure scoring from seven players in that span, the Lakers have every reason to believe they'll do much better than 2-3.

And coach Fred Schaus, who normally would settle for a 3-2 edge on the road, has already said, "with our momentum, we could win them all."

After this trek, 11 of the Lakers remaining 17 games are in the L.A. Sports Arena, and their longest road jaunt is only two days. It's the best finishing schedule of any NBA team.

* * * *

THE HAWKS, meanwhile, are in a dogfight with Baltimore and San Francisco for two of the three playoff berths. St. Louis hasn't missed the playoffs since the 1961-62 season.

Lakers, in recent years, have had trouble winning here, but this campaign they've won three of four in owner Ben Kerner's hothox, and for the entire season, the Lakers are 6-1 against the Hawks, their biggest edge over any NBA club.

* * * *

SHORT SHOTS: In the last five games, Jerry West has scored 30 points or more in each game except thirds; Jerry West (28.6), Walt Hazzard (21.2), Elgin Baylor (16.6), Rich Rector (15.4), Leroy Ellis (14.5), Rudy LaRusso (11.6) and Jim King (11.4). Baylor, West and Hazzard have all hit over 55% from the floor in that span, and Ellis has pulled down 73 rebounds (14.5) to lead the club. . . . A seldom-employed statistic: assists, also is up. The Lakers averaged 30 for the five games as against a season average of 23. . . . Monday's game will be televised on KTTV (11), and next Sunday's contest from Boston will be on national TV. . . . On Monday, the Lakers play the second game of a doubleheader with Boston and Detroit in the opener. . . . After this trip, the Lakers come home for five games, against New York (Feb. 15), Philadelphia (17th), Boston (19th and 21st) and Cincinnati (23rd).

Celts Fall Again to Bullets

By Associated Press

The Baltimore Bullets buried the Boston Celtics under a 36-16 third-quarter scoring spree and whipped the perennial National Basketball Assn. champions Saturday night, 113-94.

Rookie Dave Stallworth scored 18 of his 22 points in the fourth quarter, leading the New York Knickerbockers to a 120-113 victory over the Philadelphia 76ers.

It was the second straight runaway victory for the Bullets over the Celtics at Baltimore after losing six in a row to Boston early in the season.

Four Baltimore players scored more than 20 points with Gus Johnson, starting at center, leading the way; Johnson scored 26 points, grabbed 29 rebounds and was credited with a pair of assists.

Kerr Best Bet for Bulls; Russell Celtics' Surprise?

By DOUG IVES

The rumor mill:

—Best bet for the coaching post with the new Chicago Bulls is Johnny Kerr, the 12-year veteran center of the Baltimore Bullets. Likeable John always has been considered coaching timber, and he's an Illinois native to boot.

—Red Auerbach has said "you'll be surprised" who'll be the next Boston coach, which brings speculation that Bill Russell will be the man. How about K.C. Jones?

—If and when the USC job opens, Alex Hannum of the Warriors and ex-Celtics' star Bill Sharman are among those who would dearly love to boss the Trojans.

* * * *

DRAFT NOTICES:

—The new Chicago entry has already paid for two players—from each team (included in the franchise price) but there is no way the Bulls can have more than one Philadelphia 76er. Philly has only a nine-man squad, and one of the two who will be put up is Al Bianchi, who retires this year.

—Since the Bulls have paid for 18 players, any that don't make the team still belongs to them and will be put on waivers. Thus, many teams will be buying back men they own now.

* * * *

SHORT SHOTS:

—Following a Cincinnati-New York game recently, Art Heyman of the Royals phoned his wife in New York . . . "Hello, Karen, it's me, Art." After a hesitation, Mrs. Heyman said, "that's impossible you're playing on TV right now . . . to which Art informed her she was watching the game carried back to N.Y. on delayed tape.

—Rick Barry doesn't mind practicing basketball on his off days, since his partner is his wife Pam. "We go to a church gym and shoot baskets; he spots me about 10 points and we play to 21," says Mrs. Barry, who is the daughter of Rick's college coach at Miami.

—Only four Detroit Pistons are holdovers from last season, and still the club is deep in the Western Division basement. The remaining four are player-coach Dave DeBusschere, Eddie Miles, Don Kojis and Ray Scott.

—Charley Eckman, former NBA ref and coach, and now the Baltimore color man on radio, claims the most games officiated in one year—148!

* * * *

THE IRON MEN:

—Of the 99 players on NBA rosters, only 23 have played in every game. Of the 76 who haven't, approximately 59 have been held out due to injuries, either major or minor.

—Leroy Ellis is called 'Slim' and is kidded about his rather frail body (considering he's 6-10, that is) but the ex-St. John's star is the only Laker not to miss a game in two years.

Sure, even if he don't make it it's great publicity for the Chargers—you know, Rose Bowl hero and all that. The kid'll be great copy even if he never gets in a game . . . just full o' surprises, like this deal at Mississippi and changing his name at Long Beach.

Maybe it's the best thing that coulda happened to him. Who knows . . . another season at UCLA and he falls on his face and nobody wants him. I hope he makes it big. Nice kid.

SPEAKIN' OF THE CHARGERS, how about this big Ernie Ladd. The league passes a special rule just to make him shave off his goatee. Whatta they think—he hides his plays in there?

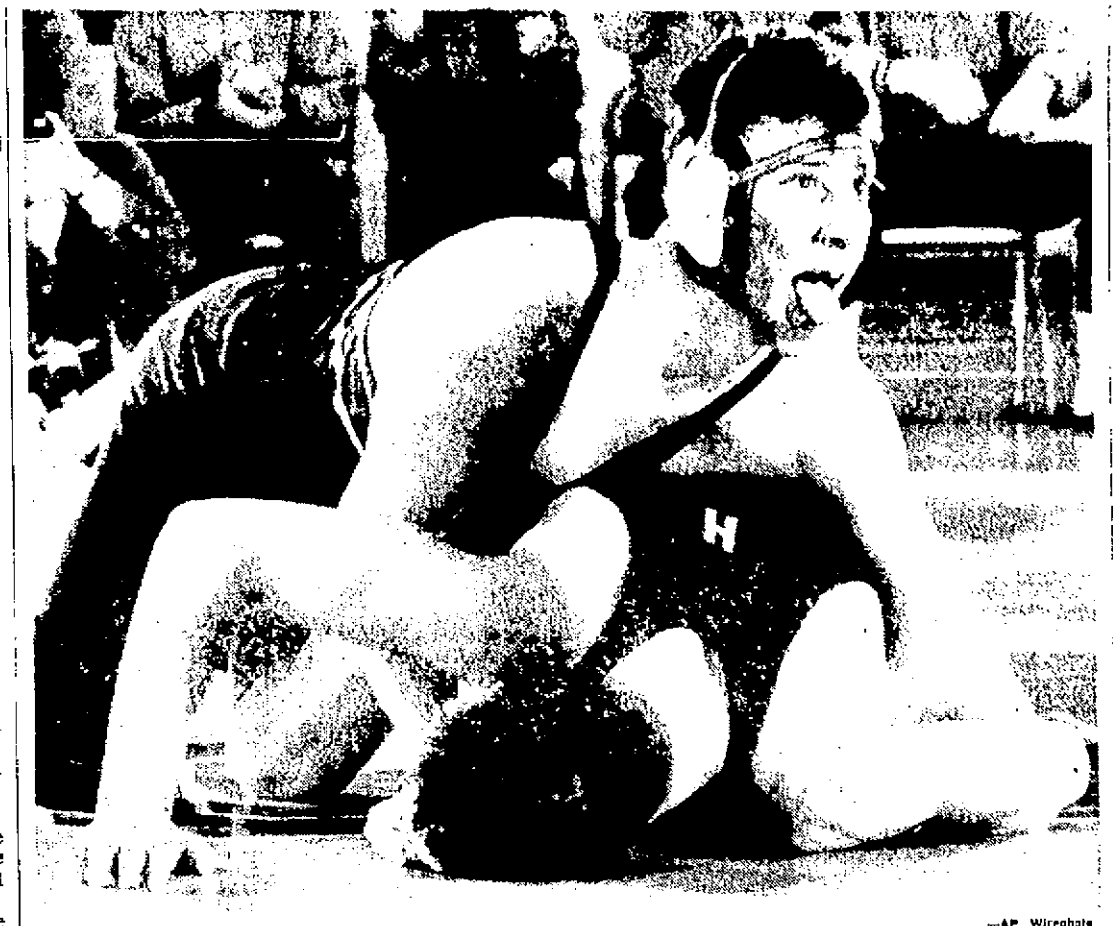

Man, it's not a free country anymore. But I don't know how they can make him do it. I mean, this guy's 6-9 and a couple o' yards wide—I'M not gonna tell him to shave it off!

That reminds me, this guy Barber, the pro golfer, has a 109 down at Palm Springs because he marks his scorecard wrong. How's a pro gonna shoot 109? Yeah, he missed a putt for a 108.

Y' hear about the fight at the Olympic the other night? Yeah, the ref stopped it because he thought Big Train and this other guy weren't trying to hit each other.

Naw, he hasn't seen many heavyweight fights, lately.

Well, I'll see ya 'round, Charlie. Yeah, right—Milwaukee opening day.

HE GOT A TONGUE LASHING

The bushed fellow on top in this high school wrestling match in Minneapolis is named Busch, first name Dave, and the fellow on the bottom took advantage of bushed Busch moments after this respite to wiggle loose and win the match. Dan Jansen gave bushed Busch a tongue lashing, you might say.

Poor Crowds, Record May Hinder Blades' NHL Bid

By RICH ROBERTS

When the Southland's big league hockey aspirants put their best feet forward Monday, National Hockey League governors are apt to be trampled in the rush.

Among the five known hopefuls and possibly three more unidentified late entries, those given the best chance of buying the $2 million premium package are the Blades, TV producer Tony Owen and Laker owner Jack Kent Cooke.

It is not likely that the governors (the six NHL club owners) will reach a quick decision, for it is a foregone conclusion that the Blades will be awarded the franchise.

Ken McKenzie, publisher of Hockey News with headquarters in Montreal, pointed out on a visit last week that it wouldn't necessarily carry weight with the NHL that the Blades had been operating a minor league franchise in Los Angeles for five years.

On the other hand, how they have been operating could hurt their cause.

"When I started this trip through the Western League I thought it was in the bag for the Blades," McKenzie said. "But now I don't think they've done a good job in the years they have been here. They're in last place with the biggest city in the league and their attendance hasn't been built up. To me, this points up poor management."

McKenzie's publication is to hockey what the Sporting News is to baseball, and hockey people don't always agree with his outspoken opinions. But his viewpoint is at least objective.

HE DISCOUNTS the Metromedia organization as a serious applicant because "the NHL doesn't want to tie itself down to one television outlet. They're still hoping for a national TV package and, frankly, they can't sell it and they're getting pretty worried."

He also writes off Ralph Wilson, owner of the American Football League champion Buffalo Bills because "the NHL stresses local ownership and doesn't like its owners to have other sports interests."

That latter point also cripples the causes of Cooke and the Blades, of whom the Rams' Dan Reeves is a majority co-owner.

"A lot of the people in the East think that Tony Owen will get it," McKenzie says, "simply because he is local and has no other conflicting interests."

OWEN'S only "conflicting interest" would be Donna Reed, his wife, which wouldn't hurt anybody's cause.

Therefore, McKenzie rates the applicants' chances with Owen first, the Blades second and Cooke third.

The Blades' pitch will be made not by Reeves but by Dan Martin, who was brought into the Blade organization only this season, placed in charge with a 30% piece of the majority co-ownership with Reeves and told to, "Sic 'em."

Martin is a former Under-Secretary of Commerce under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson and the son of a former governor of Washington. He has a strong national image which could carry weight with the NHL, and he also has the money to back it up.

Also, he never has held any other sports interest.

The Blades' executive director, Jack Geyer, said just this week, "I wasn't too optimistic earlier, but now I think our chances are better than ever."

McKENZIE says he is "certain that San Francisco is all settled—that franchise will be given out at this meeting. And I'm also certain that they'll play in the new Oakland arena next season even if they're still in the Western League."

And he agreed with the view of many that it would be impractical for the Blades to operate at all next season if they don't get the franchise . . . playing out a lame duck season, then gallantly stepping aside for somebody else's big league operation.

I can't fault Topping's hand, but it's likely that his pitch to the NHL will include the implied threat of a lawsuit if the Blades don't get the franchise.

As one Blade executive put it, "They will have put us out of business."

HAWKS FOES TODAY

Win-'em-All Trip Begins for Lakers

BY DOUG IVES
I. P-T Staff Writer

ST. LOUIS—If the Lakers are to be seriously challenged for the Western Division title, it will have to begin here today in hostile Kiel Auditorium, home of the St. Louis Hawks.

It seems unlikely that the Lakers could squander a six-game lead with only 22 to play, but they always flitter away some games on the road, where their season record is only 12-18.

This journey is their longest yet, five games in eight days, and includes stopovers Monday in Philadelphia and next Sunday in Boston — cities where they rarely win. They also play in Baltimore on Wednesday and New York on Saturday.

A 1-4 record could put the Lakers in trouble, but even a sub-par 2-3 wouldn't hurt them too much. Anything better, of course, and the title race is over.

BOASTING a five-game winning streak and getting double-figure scoring from seven players in that span, the Lakers have every reason to believe they'll do much better than 2-3.

And coach Fred Schaus, who normally would settle for a 3-2 edge on the road, has already said, "with our momentum, we could win them all."

After this trek, 11 of the Lakers remaining 17 games are in the L.A. Sports Arena, and their longest road jaunt is only two days. It's the best finishing schedule of any NBA team.

THE HAWKS, meanwhile, are in a dogfight with Baltimore and San Francisco for two of the three playoff berths. St. Louis hasn't missed the playoffs since the 1961-62 season.

Lakers, in recent years, have had trouble winning here, but this campaign they've won three of four in owner Ben Kerner's hotbox, and for the entire season, the Lakers are 6-1 against the Hawks, their biggest edge over any NBA club.

SHORT SHOTS: In the last five games the seven Lakers with double-figure average most recently Jerry West (28.6), Walt Hazzard (21.7), Elgin Baylor (19.8), Bob Boozer (16.4), Leroy Ellis (14.2), Rudy LaRusso (11.6) and Jim Krebs (10.8). . . . Ellis has pulled down 73 rebounds in the last five games. . . . The Lakers averaged 20 for the five games as against a season average of 59. . . . Monday's game will be televised on KTTV (11), and next Sunday's contest from Boston will be on national TV. . . . On Monday, the Lakers play the second game of a doubleheader, with Boston and Detroit in the opener. . . . After this trip, the Lakers come home for five games, against New York (Feb. 15), Philadelphia (19th), Boston (19th and 21st) and Cincinnati (23rd).

Hightower Recalled

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI)—The Baltimore Bullets Saturday recalled Wayne Hightower to help fill the gap left by guard Don Ohl, who sustained a broken cheekbone a week ago in a game against the Lakers in Los Angeles.

Hightower, a forward, played with the Bullets earlier in the season, averaging 8.2 points per game in 21 contests.

Celts Fall Again to Bullets

By Associated Press

The Baltimore Bullets buried the Boston Celtics under a 36-16 third-quarter scoring spree and whipped the perennial National Basketball Assn. champions Saturday night, 113-94.

Rookie Dave Stallworth scored 18 of his 22 points in the fourth quarter, leading the New York Knickerbockers to a 120-113 victory over the Philadelphia 76ers.

It was the second straight runaway victory for the Bullets over the Celtics at Baltimore after losing six in a row to Boston early in the season.

Four Baltimore players scored more than 20 points with Gus Johnson, starting at center, leading the way. Johnson scored 26 points, grabbed 29 rebounds and was credited with a pair of assists.

Kerr Best Bet for Bulls; Russell Celtics' Surprise?

By DOUG IVES

The rumor mill:

—Best bet for the coaching post with the new Chicago Bulls is Johnny Kerr, the 12-year veteran center of the Baltimore Bullets. Likeable John always has been considered coaching timber, and he's an Illinois native to boot.

—Red Auerbach has said "you'll be surprised" who'll be the next Boston coach, which brings speculation that Bill Russell will be the man. How about K.C. Jones?

—If and when the USC job opens, Alex Hannum of the Warriors and ex-Celtics' star Bill Sharman are among those who would dearly love to boss the Trojans.

★ ★ ★ ★

DRAFT NOTICES:

—The new Chicago entry has already paid for two players from each team (included in the franchise price) but there is no way the Bulls can have more than one Philadelphia 76er. Philly has only a nine-man squad, and one of the two who will be put up is Al Bianchi, who retires this year.

—Since the Bulls have paid for 18 players, any that don't make the team still belongs to them and will be put on waivers. Thus, many teams will be buying back men they own now.

★ ★ ★ ★

SHORT SHOTS:

—Following a Cincinnati-New York game recently, Art Heyman of the Royals phoned his wife in New York . . . "Hello, Karen, it's me, Art." After a hesitation, Mrs. Heyman said, "that's impossible you're playing on TV right now . . . to which Art informed her she was watching the game carried back to N.Y. on delayed tape.

—Rick Barry doesn't mind practicing basketball on his off days, since his partner is his wife Pam. "We go to a church gym and shoot baskets; he spots me about 10 points and we play to 21," says Mrs. Barry, who is the daughter of Rick's college coach at Miami.

—Only four Detroit Pistons are holdovers from last season, and still the club is deep in the Western Division basement. The remaining four are player-coach Dave DeBusschere, Eddie Miles, Don Kojis and Ray Scott.

—Charley Eckman, former NBA ref and coach, and now the Baltimore color man on radio, claims the most games officiated in one year—148!

★ ★ ★ ★

THE IRON MEN:

—Of the 99 players on NBA rosters, only 23 have played in every game. Of the 76 who haven't, approximately 59 have been held out due to injuries, either major or minor.

—Leroy Ellis is called 'Slim' and is kidded about his rather frail body (considering he's 6-10, that is) but the ex-St. John's star is the only Laker not to miss a game in two years.

real good, but I didn't iron it very good. The greens were hard and it was difficult to get the ball close to the hole because I just couldn't get my irons zeroed in."

HE HAD a bit of a struggle getting his par round after bogeying the par-three fourth hole when he was 20 yards short of the green with his second shot, chipped up nicely to within three feet, but missed the putt.

He had to come up with a pair of fine shots to save pars on the next few holes—No. 7 where he made a brilliant pitch to within two feet of the cup, and on the 10th with a superb 15-foot putt after hitting out of a trap.

The Catfish's birdie on the 18th was his only one.

He dropped an 8-foot birdie putt on the 4th, came out of a trap to sink a 10-footer on No. 5, and sank a six-footer on the par-five 6th. Arnie, followed by the largest gallery of the tournament so far, also birdied the 8th when he hit a 9-iron to within four feet of the flag and made the putt.

★ ★ ★ ★

ANOTHER fine chip to within three feet set up another birdie on the 11th, while still another birdie on No. 13—his sixth of the round—enabled him to pull into a momentary tie with Kneece for the lead. He two-putted the 13th from 30 feet after reaching the green of the par-five hole in two.

Then came the bogey on the 14th that set him back, and Arnie also had to scramble for a par on the 16th before he finally sank a tricky four-foot putt that "went in the side of the cup" and rolled around a couple of times before deciding to stay in.

Even though the great Palmer is breathing on his neck and with his reputation for fading on the late rounds, Kneece retained an air of confidence when asked about the final round.

"I DON'T think I have anything to worry about if I just keep playing as well as I have so far," he said.

The low 76 professionals play the final round today at Indian Wells.

The cutoff came at 294 and among the more prominent professionals who failed to make today's field were the 1964 winner of the Desert Classic, Tommy Jacobs, and Dow Finsterwald, Bob McCallister, Lionel Hebert, Red Baxter and Billy Martindale.

They all get an early start to the next stop on the tour—Phoenix.

Player Zooms to 74, Trails by 2 Strokes

DURBAN, South Africa (AP) — Gary Player, going four strokes over par on the first five holes, zoomed to a two-over-par 74 in the second round of the Natal Golf Open Saturday and dropped out of the lead at the halfway mark.

Player, current U.S. Open champion, had a 68 in the first round. Cobie LeGrange of South Africa, repeated his 70 of the first round for a 36-hole total of 140. Player and George Will, British Ryder Cup player, are tied for second at 142.

Amateurs Help Towns Win $2,700

PALM SPRINGS — Ken Towns, a 37-year-old pro from San Jose, won first money of $2,700 in the professional best-ball division of the pro-amateur section Saturday in the Bob Hope Desert Classic.

Towns missed the cut for today's final round of the pro tourney by three strokes as he finished with a 72-hole total of 297. But his amateur partners for the four rounds helped him 63 strokes.

Bill Ezinicki, former hockey star with the New York Rangers, collected $1,800 in finishing second, but like Towns, also missed the cut. He had a 295. He was helped 59 strokes by his amateur partners.

The team of Jim Saphier, Bob Hope's television agent, Robert Bender of LaJolla, and B. E. Bensinger won the amateur division, finishing 59 under par.

Pro-Am Payoff

Mystery Man's Last Purse---$8.33

PALM SPRINGS—A well-known figure here in the desert the past few years has been a fellow by the name of John Montague, once quite a celebrity in the world of golf.

In fact, the late Grantland Rice, the leading sports writer of his time, called Montague "the greatest golfer on earth." That was in the 1930s.

First reports of his golfing ability to reach the outside world came drifting out of the locker rooms at the exclusive Lakeside Country Club in Los Angeles.

You kept hearing about this super golfer who could make fantastic shots while shooting par golf with no other implements than a rake, a shovel and a hoe.

Whenever the members wanted to show him off to visitors from other clubs, they always had him play with these tools.

Then came the story that John wagered he could hit a crow sitting on some telephone wires some 100 yards away with his tee shot. Some pretty important people testified to the fact that he won the bet.

Using his regular golf clubs, of course, he could shoot much better than par . . . and that's how he made a fancy living for awhile, it is recalled.

THE FEATS OF THIS "mystery man" became legend in Southern California golf circles and it wasn't long until his fame spread to other parts of the country.

Nobody, however, knew who he was. He had come from out of nowhere with only a couple of dollars in his pocket. But he quickly captivated the Hollywood set.

As a guest at Lakeside, Montague enjoyed the privileges of a member and his admirers included many of the top movie stars, including Bing Crosby.

What wasn't mentioned publicly was the fact that Montague was making his living beating the stars in matches that carried quite large wagers on occasions.

Montague, you see, could very well be called the first real big hustler in the game of golf.

TODAY, THE PUBLIC IS AWARE of hustlers in golf, pool, arm wrestling and other activities on which money is wagered and where a man can hide his true ability until big money is at stake.

Some golf hustlers today make more than most professionals. At least a half-dozen are said to be in the $100,000 class, and they operate openly these days. Florida is their favorite spot, but there's a lot of activity here for them, too.

Anyway, the stories about Montague finally reached Rich in New York and he came to see for himself.

The Lakeside group arranged a match featuring Montague, and Grantland came away convinced that he was the greatest golfer he had ever seen.

Montague's fame spread fast then and newspapermen and photographers began trying to find out just who this superman was.

Montague himself was no help to newspapermen. In fact, they found him quite publicity-shy. He would tell them nothing of the past and he gave the photographers a rough time. When one would succeed in snapping a picture of him, he would break the camera.

But for a man who wanted to retain anonymity, Montague was waging a losing battle.

THE CLOAK OF MYSTERY surrounding him was to newspapermen what a red flag is to a bull.

Anyway, an enterprising photog finally snapped Montague's picture . . . and it was sent all over the country.

New York state law authorities immediately recognized him as Laverne Moore, wanted in Essex County on an old charge of complicity in a road house robbery.

Returned for trial, Montague, with his movie friends standing behind him, won a speedy acquittal. To the satisfaction of the jury, he established he had no part in the crime which had sent him into hiding on private golf courses for seven years.

The big question now that he was free was if he really was the greatest golfer on earth.

He couldn't go back to Lakeside. The members decided it might be wise if he played golf elsewhere from then on even though they had stood by him until he was freed.

Thus, he took a crack at the pro tournament circuit . . . and subsequent performances left considerable doubt of his being the greatest.

IN THE 1939 U.S. OPEN, for instance, he dropped out after shooting an 81 on the first round. And in other tournaments he entered that year, he consistently finished out of the money.

Early in 1940, he managed to finish in a three-way tie for ninth place in Bakersfield Open.

Whereas ninth place is good for around $2,500 in the average tournament these days; Montague collected only $8.33.

And never again was he able to win that much money in tournament golf.

The real mystery of the man is how his game deteriorated after he was acquited. Some say the trial took the spark out of him.

Lakeside members who remember him still insist he was a great one—at least the Montague they knew.

WINNINGEST MANAGER IN BASEBALL

Will Durocher End Cubs' Woes?

By AL LARSON

The Chicago Cubs, who haven't indulged in a bit of high living in 19 years, are fired with new hope in 1966. And with good reason. Leo Durocher's back in business.

One of baseball's most controversial managers will attempt to lead the Cubs out of the second division, a feat last accomplished by Charlie Grimm back in 1946 when the Wrigleys finished third.

No club in the National League has struggled so long for so little. The last time the Cubs hoisted a pennant in Wrigley Field was in 1945. And every season since 1946 they've floundered in the second division.

Why then does Durocher think he stands any better chance than his predecessors Bob Kennedy, Grimm, Lou Boudreau, Bob Scheffing, Stan Hack, Phil Cavaretta and Frank Frisch?

For openers, look at his record. The Cubs' new ringmaster has won more games than any active manager in the major leagues.

—Staff Photo

THE LIP'S BACK

Leo Durocher, who will attempt to pilot the Chicago Cubs out of the dark, second-division waters in which they've been wallowing for 19 years, is shown with umpire Jocko Conlan during famous "kicking incident" at Coliseum in 1961. Durocher was coach for Dodgers at time.

* * * *

THE 60-YEAR-OLD Durocher in 8½ seasons with the Dodgers and 7½ years with the New York Giants won 1386 games and lost 1,088. Only other active members of the managerial 1000-win club are Walt Alston with 1,075 and Charlie Dressen with 1,009.

Durocher finished only once in the second division while handling the Dodgers from 1939 to 1948. His war-year club of 1944 fell back to seventh place.

Leo took over the Giants in mid-stream of '48 and for two seasons piloted fifth-place teams.

But at the expense of being fired by owner Horace Stoneham, Durocher unloaded such slow foots as Johnny Mize, Willard Marshall, Sid Gordon and Walker Cooper and took on such fellows as Eddie Stanky, Whitey Lockman, Monte Irvin, Al Dark and Bobby Thomson.

The home-run bats of Mize, Marshall and Cooper helped produce a record 221 homers in 1947, but Durocher was more interested in winning games. "Sure, they hit homers, but, at that time, they couldn't field and they couldn't run."

The Giants soon made their move and won pennants in 1951 and 1954. But Durocher was fired at the end of the '55 season when the Giants slipped to third.

Will Leo attempt to reshape the Cubs into a running club?

"Pitching, defense and speed . . . that's the kind of ball club I like. And that's what I'm going to be working toward with the Cubs," Durocher said during a recent good-will trip in the East.

Although Leo inherits basically a slugging team (Ernie Banks, Ron Santo and Billy Williams combined for 95 home runs and 315 runs batted in last season) he still feels his team can win if it bolsters its defense and cuts down on mental mistakes.

"I think there is too much talent on the Cubs to finish eighth again," referring to 1965.

* * * *

LONG BEACH fans will be the first to learn if Durocher still packs the know-how of getting the most out of his players.

Leo and his coaching staff of Freddie Fitzsimmons, Rube Walker, Whitey Lockman and Lou Klein is scheduled to arrive Feb. 26. First practice will be held at Blair Field on Monday the 28th.

With eight exhibition games scheduled at Blair Field, Long Beach will serve as the winter home of the Cubs until early April.

Durocher's managerial record:

1939	3rd	1948	5th	(half year)
1940	2nd	1949	5th

Major League All-Stars Play for Charity Today

Rigney and Mauch Vie in Anaheim

The nation's only pre-season all-star baseball game will be played this afternoon at La Palma Park in Anaheim.

It's the annual medical benefit game of the Southern California Baseball Assn., matching Bill Rigney's American League All-Stars with an equally talented National League squad, managed by Gene Mauch.

Game time is 1:30 and box offices at La Palma Park will open at 11 a.m. Tickets are priced at $1.50 for grandstand and $1 for bleachers (50 cents in bleachers for children under 12).

Proceeds go to the medical fund of the Southern California Baseball Assn.

In event of rain, the game will be played next Sunday.

* * * *

MAUCH will be shooting for his fifth victory in six medical game appearances with a pitching staff topped by Denny Lemaster of the Braves and Tom Sisk of the Pirates.

Rigney, a newcomer to the medical game, brings 10 of his own California Angels, four of them in the starting lineup. Angel starters are catcher Bob Rodgers, second baseman Bobby Knoop, shortstop Jim Fregosi and outfielder Ed Kirkpatrick.

For power, Rigney has Leon Wagner of the Indians, Ken McMullen and Dick Nen of the Senators, and Fregosi. His pitching staff may be the best in the history of this charity game and includes Angels George Brunet and Bob Lee, and Jim Merritt of the AL champion Twins.

McKinley Faces Froehling in Final

RICHMOND, Va (AP)—Power-hitting Frank Froehling whizzed past Charlie Pasarell 6-4, 6-4 and three-time national amateur Chuck McKinley brushed aside young Cliff Richey 6-2, 6-2 Saturday night to advance to the finals of the Richmond Invitational Tennis Tournament.

Froehling, the nation's 11th-ranked player, and McKinley, ranked No. 4, meet today for the championship.

Froehling needed only 52 minutes to whip Pasarell, fifth-ranked nationally. There was only one service break in each set—both times in the seventh game—but Pasarell never managed to handle Froehling's overpowering service.

It was Froehling, the nation's No. 11 ranked performer, who eliminated hometown hero Arthur Ashe 6-4, 3-6, 6-3 in a battle of booming serves in the first round, costing the tournament its chief attraction.

McKinley needed just 41 minutes to sideline Richey, the No. 3 ranked player in the country.

MANTLE OUT OF HOSPITAL

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) New York Yankees baseball star Mickey Mantle was released from a Rochester hospital Saturday.

Mantle, 34, underwent surgery Jan. 25 for removal of a bone chip in his right shoulder. The condition hampered the outfielder's throwing and batting last season.

Mayo Clinic physicians said Mantle, who moved into a Rochester hotel on leaving the hospital, will remain in the city for several weeks while he undergoes physical therapy.

Mather Selected Bears' Talent Scout

CHICAGO (AP) — Backfield coach Chuck Mather was named Saturday player talent scout for the Chicago Bears in the club's second staff revision last week.

Owner coach George Halas elevated Jim Dooley Tuesday from end coach to head defensive coach.

AAU Title Won by SCATS Team

The Southern California Acro Team (SCATS) of Lakewood Saturday won the Southern California Women's AAU gymnastics championship.

In competition at Westminster High, the SCATS totaled 270 compared to 49 for their nearest competitors, the Los Angeles Sokols.

The SCATS produced champions in all three divisions. They were Wendy Cluff (upper division), Cathy Rigby (13-15 years) and Lisa Nelson (10-12 years). Next competition for the SCATS will be the state championships Feb. 19 at Fresno.

FULL SPEED AHEAD, SAYS HOFFA

History of Sports Unions Dim

Compiled from Wire Reports

It would seem, from early reports of reaction by major league athletes, that the Teamsters' unionizing drive is not going to be an easy job, but the union insists it's going full-steam ahead.

A full-scale drive to organize football players probably will be the first phase of the union's operation, but it has its sights set on baseball, basketball and all other professional sports both on major and minor league levels.

The union will issue charters in every city where there is a pro football franchise, probably beginning in March, said a spokesman Saturday.

* * * *

BUT BEFORE trying to corral America's pro athletes into a branch of the Teamsters Union, James R. Hoffa may want to review the thwarted experiences of past organizers.

Tries to unionize major league baseball players go back as far as 1890 and got exactly nowhere. These were the days before they paid outfielders $100,000 a year and gave $400,000 bonuses to football quarterbacks.

The last to seriously try it and fail—was Robert Murphy, a Harvard-educated labor organizer out of Boston. He went to the courts and to the National Labor Relations Board and once in 1946—got the Pittsburgh Pirates to think about a sitdown strike.

The ball players got cold feet at the last minute.

Back in 1890, John Montgomery Ward, a star player with the New York Giants and later an attorney, led a campaign to form a Players' League, or Brotherhood of Baseball Players.

The move stemmed from the National League's passage of a $2,000 salary limit.

Ward got most of the good players of the day into his brotherhood—King Kelly, Tip O'Neill, Jim O'Rourke, Charley Comiskey, Tim Keefe and Roger Connor, to name a few.

They formed their own league, but it lasted only one season. After a series of law suits, the Players League and the National League got together.

Signs of Spring

(Saturday's baseball signings)

Yankees—Tom Tresh, who led in team runs (94), hits (168), doubles (29), home runs (26) and rbis (74).

Tigers—Relief pitcher Terry Fox, reserve infielder Jake Wood and rookie first baseman Dave Campbell. Also announced addition of Buster Chatham of Waco, Tex., to scouting staff.

Orioles—Veteran reliefer Don Larsen and four rookies. Larsen was 1-2 with a 2.67 earned run average last year. The rookies are pitchers John Miller, Jim Palmer, catcher Andy Etchebarren and first baseman Mike Fiore.

Athletics—Pitchers Roland Sheldon and Jack Acker. Sheldon was 10-8 last year after he was traded by the Yankees. Acker, who started the season in the Coast League, was 4-3, appearing only in relief.

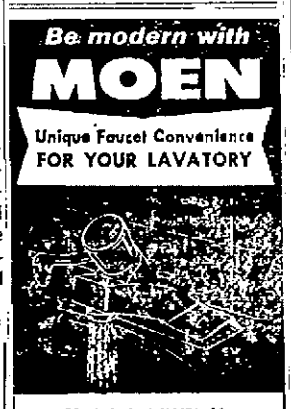

Cardinals—16-year-old lefthanded pitcher John Hearn of Nova Scotia. He will report to the Cardinals' rookie league farm team at Sarasota, Fla.

Giants—Catcher Jack Hiatt (.284) and outfielders Cap Peterson (.248) and Bobby Bonds. Hiatt and Peterson each collected five pinch hits last year.

Reds Assign Lowell to AA Farm Club

Catcher Bruce Lowell, property of the Cincinnati Reds, has been assigned to Knoxville, Tenn., a AA farm club of the Reds.

Mystery Man's Last Purse---$8.33

PALM SPRINGS—A well-known figure here in the desert the past few years has been a fellow by the name of John Montague, once quite a celebrity in the world of golf.

In fact, the late Grantland Rice, the leading sports writer of his time, called Montague "the greatest golfer on earth." That was in the 1930s.

First reports of his golfing ability to reach the outside world came drifting out of the locker rooms at the exclusive Lakeside Country Club in Los Angeles.

You kept hearing about this super golfer who could make fantastic shots while shooting par golf with no other implements than a rake, a shovel and a hoe.

Whenever the members wanted to show him off to visitors from other clubs, they always had him play with these tools.

Then came the story that John wagered he could hit a crow sitting on some telephone wires some 100 yards away with his tee shot. Some pretty important people testified to the fact that he won the bet.

Using his regular golf clubs, of course, he could shoot much better than par . . . and that's how he made a fancy living for awhile, it is recalled.

THE FEATS OF THIS "mystery man" became legend in Southern California golf circles and it wasn't long until his fame spread to other parts of the country.

Nobody, however, knew who he was. He had come from out of nowhere with only a couple of dollars in his pocket. But he quickly captivated the Hollywood set.

As a guest at Lakeside, Montague enjoyed the privileges of a member and his admirers included many of the top movie stars, including Bing Crosby.

What wasn't mentioned publicly was the fact that Montague was making his living beating the stars in matches that carried quite large wagers on occasions.

Montague, you see, could very well be called the first real big hustler in the game of golf.

TODAY, THE PUBLIC IS AWARE of hustlers in golf, pool, arm wrestling and other activities on which money is wagered and where a man can hide his true ability until big money is at stake.

Some golf hustlers today make more than most professionals. At least a half-dozen are said to be in the $100,000 class, and they operate openly these days. Florida is their favorite spot, but there's a lot of activity here for them, too.

Anyway, the stories about Montague finally reached Rich in New York and he came to see for himself.

The Lakeside group arranged a match featuring Montague, and Grantland came away convinced that he was the greatest golfer he had ever seen.

Montague's fame spread fast then and newspapermen and photographers began trying to find out just who this superman was.

Montague himself was no help to newspapermen. In fact, they found him quite publicity-shy. He would tell them nothing of the past and he gave the photographers a rough time. When one would succeed in snapping a picture of him, he would break the camera.

But for a man who wanted to retain anonymity, Montague was waging a losing battle.

THE CLOAK OF MYSTERY surrounding him was to newspapermen what a red flag is to a bull.

Anyway, an enterprising photog finally snapped Montague's picture . . . and it was sent all over the country.

New York state law authorities immediately recognized him as Laverne Moore, wanted in Essex County on an old charge of complicity in a road house robbery.

Returned for trial, Montague, with his movie friends standing behind him, won a speedy acquittal. To the satisfaction of the jury, he established he had no part in the crime which had sent him into hiding on private golf courses for seven years.

The big question now that he was free was if he really was the greatest golfer on earth.

He couldn't go back to Lakeside. The members decided it might be wise if he played golf elsewhere from then on even though they had stood by him until he was freed.

Thus, he took a crack at the pro tournament circuit . . . and subsequent performances left considerable doubt of his being the greatest.

IN THE 1939 U.S. OPEN, for instance, he dropped out after shooting an 81 on the first round. And in other tournaments he entered that year, he consistently finished out of the money.

Early in 1940, he managed to finish in a three-way tie for ninth place in Bakersfield Open.

Whereas ninth place is good for around $2,500 in the average tournament these days; Montague collected only $8.33.

And never again was he able to win that much money in tournament golf.

The real mystery of the man is how his game deteriorated after he was acquited. Some say the trial took the spark out of him.

Lakeside members who remember him still insist he was a great one—at least the Montague they knew.

WINNINGEST MANAGER IN BASEBALL

Will Durocher End Cubs' Woes?

By AL LARSON

The Chicago Cubs, who haven't indulged in a bit of high living in 19 years, are fired with new hope in 1966. And with good reason. Leo Durocher's back in business.

One of baseball's most controversial managers will attempt to lead the Cubs out of the second division, a feat last accomplished by Charlie Grimm back in 1946 when the Wrigleys finished third.

No club in the National League has struggled so long for so little. The last time the Cubs hoisted a pennant in Wrigley Field was in 1945. And every season since 1946 they've floundered in the second division.

Why then does Durocher think he stands any better chance than his predecessors Bob Kennedy, Grimm, Lou Boudreau, Bob Scheffing, Stan Hack, Phil Cavaretta and Frank Frisch?

For openers, look at his record. The Cubs' new ringmaster has won more games than any active manager in the major leagues.

* * * *

THE 60-YEAR-OLD Durocher in 8½ seasons with the Dodgers and 7½ years with the New York Giants won 1386 games and lost 1,088. Only other active members of the managerial 1000-win club are Walt Alston with 1,075 and Charlie Dressen with 1,009.

Durocher finished only once in the second division while handling the Dodgers from 1939 to 1948. His war-year club of 1944 fell back to seventh place.

Leo took over the Giants in mid-stream of '48 and for two seasons piloted fifth-place teams.

But at the expense of being fired by owner Horace Stoneham, Durocher unloaded such slow foots as Johnny Mize, Willard Marshall, Sid Gordon and Walker Cooper and took on such fellows as Eddie Stanky, Whitey Lockman, Monte Irvin, Al Dark and Bobby Thomson.

The home-run bats of Mize, Marshall and Cooper helped produce a record 221 homers in 1947, but Durocher was more interested in winning games. "Sure, they hit homers, but, at that time, they couldn't field and they couldn't run."

The Giants soon made their move and won pennants in 1951 and 1954. But Durocher was fired at the end of the '55 season when the Giants slipped to third.

Will Leo attempt to reshape the Cubs into a running club?

"Pitching, defense and speed . . . that's the kind of ball club I like. And that's what I'm going to be working toward with the Cubs," Durocher said during a recent good-will trip in the East.

Although Leo inherits basically a slugging team (Ernie Banks, Ron Santo and Billy Williams combined for 95 home runs and 315 runs batted in last season) he still feels his team can win if it bolsters its defense and cuts down on mental mistakes.

"I think there is too much talent on the Cubs to finish eighth again," referring to 1965.

* * * *

LONG BEACH fans will be the first to learn if Durocher still packs the know-how of getting the most out of his players.

Leo and his coaching staff of Freddie Fitzsimmons, Rube Walker, Whitey Lockman and Lou Klein is scheduled to arrive Feb. 26. First practice will be held at Blair Field on Monday the 28th.

With eight exhibition games scheduled at Blair Field, Long Beach will serve as the winter home of the Cubs until early April.

Durocher's managerial record:

DODGERS		GIANTS
Year	Finish	Year	Finish
1939	3rd	1948	5th (half year)
1940	2nd	1949	5th
1941	1st	1950	3rd
1942	2nd	1951	1st (won playoff)
1943	3rd	1952	2nd
1945	3rd	1953	1st
1946	2nd	1955	3rd
		(lost playoff)
1947	Suspended
1948	3rd (half year)

THE LIP'S BACK

Leo Durocher, who will attempt to pilot the Chicago Cubs out of the dark, second-division waters in which they've been wallowing for 19 years, is shown with umpire Jocko Conlan during famous "kicking incident" at Coliseum in 1961. Durocher was coach for Dodgers at time.

CUBS TICKETS ON SALE

Tickets for the Chicago Cubs' spring exhibition games will go on sale this weekend.

Box seats, reserved and bleacher tickets for all eight games will be on sale Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Blair Field box office.

Boxes are priced at $2.75, reserved seats $2 and bleachers $1.50. Grandstand seats will be reserved for all games.

Major League All-Stars Play for Charity Today

Rigney and Mauch Vie in Anaheim

The nation's only pre-season all-star baseball game will be played this afternoon at La Palma Park in Anaheim.

It's the annual medical benefit game of the Southern California Baseball Assn., matching Bill Rigney's American League All-Stars with an equally talented National League squad, managed by Gene Mauch.

Game time is 1:30 and box offices at La Palma Park will open at 11 a.m. Tickets are priced at $1.50 for grandstand and $1 for bleachers (50 cents in bleachers for children under 12).

Proceeds go to the medical fund of the Southern California Baseball Assn.

In event of rain, the game will be played next Sunday.

* * * *

MAUCH will be shooting for his fifth victory in six medical game appearances with a pitching staff topped by Denny Lemaster of the Braves and Tom Sisk of the Pirates.

Rigney, a newcomer to the medical game, brings 10 of his own California Angels, four of them in the starting lineup. Angel starters are catcher Bob Rodgers, second baseman Bobby Knoop, shortstop Jim Fregosi and outfielder Ed Kirkpatrick.

For power, Rigney has Leon Wagner of the Indians, Ken McMullen and Dick Nen of the Senators, and Fregosi. His pitching staff may be the best in the history of this charity game and includes Angels George Brunet and Bob Lee, and Jim Merritt of the AL champion Twins.

TAG TITLE BOUT TOPS L.B. CARD

Tag wrestling champions Gorilla Monsoon and El Mongol will risk their title belts in this week's headliner at Municipal Auditorium.

They'll battle Alberto Torres and Jack Lanza Tuesday night.

FULL SPEED AHEAD, SAYS HOFFA

History of Sports Unions Dim

Compiled from Wire Reports

It would seem, from early reports of reaction by major league athletes, that the Teamsters' unionizing drive is not going to be an easy job, but the union insists it's going full-steam ahead.

A full-scale drive to organize football players probably will be the first phase of the union's operation, but it has its sights set on baseball, basketball and all other professional sports both on major and minor league levels.

The union will issue charters in every city where there is a pro football franchise, probably beginning in March, said a spokesman Saturday.

* * * *

BUT BEFORE trying to corral America's pro athletes into a branch of the Teamsters Union, James R. Hoffa may want to review the thwarted experiences of past organizers.

Tries to unionize major league baseball players go back as far as 1890 and got exactly nowhere. These were the days before they paid outfielders $100,000 a year and gave $400,000 bonuses to football quarterbacks.

The last to seriously try it and fail—was Robert Murphy, a Harvard-educated labor organizer out of Boston. He went to the courts and to the National Labor Relations Board and once in 1946—got the Pittsburgh Pirates to think about a sitdown strike.

The ball players got cold feet at the last minute.

Back in 1890, John Montgomery Ward, a star player with the New York Giants and later an attorney, led a campaign to form a Players' League, or Brotherhood of Baseball Players.

The move stemmed from the National League's passage of a $2,000 salary limit.

Ward got most of the good players of the day into his brotherhood—King Kelly, Tip O'Neill, Jim O'Rourke, Charley Comiskey, Tim Keefe and Roger Connor, to name a few.

They formed their own league, but it lasted only one season. After a series of law suits, the Players League and the National League got together.

Signs of Spring

(Saturday's baseball signings)

Yankees—Tom Tresh, who led in team runs (94), hits (168), doubles (29), home runs (26) and rbis (74).

Tigers—Relief pitcher Terry Fox, reserve infielder Jake Wood and rookie first baseman Dave Campbell. Also announced addition of Buster Chatham of Waco, Texas, to scouting staff.

Mets—Infielder Chuck Hiller (.335). Infielder Lou Klimchock, who played at Buffalo, and catcher Johnny Stephenson (.255).

Orioles—Veteran reliefer Don Larsen and two rookies. Larsen was 1-2 with a 2.67 earned run average last year. The rookies are pitchers John Miller and Jim Palmer, catcher Andy Etchebarren and first baseman Mike Epstein.

Athletics—Pitchers Roland Sheldon and Jack Aker. Sheldon was 10-8 last year after he was traded by the Yankees. Aker, who started the season in the Coast League, was 4-3. Appearing only in relief.

Cardinals—19-year-old lefthanded pitcher John Hagen of Nova Scotia. He will report to the Cardinals' rookie league farm team at Sarasota, Fla.

Giants—Catcher Jack Hiatt (.264) and outfielders Cap Peterson (.248) and Bobby Bonds. Hiatt and Peterson each collected five pinch hits last year.

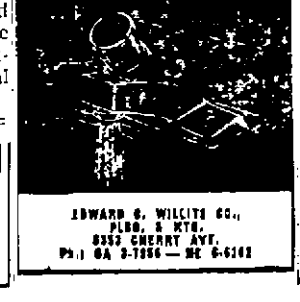

Reds Assign Lowell to AA Farm Club

Catcher Bruce Lowell, property of the Cincinnati Reds, has been assigned to Knoxville, Tenn., a AA farm club of the Reds.

Hull Scoreless

TORONTO (AP) — The Toronto Maple Leafs held Bobby Hull without a goal Saturday night as they defeated Chicago 5-2, toppling the Black Hawks from a first-place tie in the National Hockey League.

STRAIGHT DEAL, unhurried to the half mile pole, saved ground while racing well off the pace with BATTEUR, rallied between the early leaders in the upper stretch to wear down CURIOUS CLOVER and won in a drive. POLLEN, with early speed, raced in close attendance of the pace, rallied in midstretch and finished stoutly. BATTEUR lost some ground, offered her bid in the final furlong but was not good enough. CURIOUS CLOVER had good early speed, disposed of POCKETFUL OF RYE on the final turn to assume a substantial lead for the drive then weakened. POONA QUEEN found room along the inside around the stretch turn but lost most of her punch in the drive. DESERT LOVE raced wide in the late furlongs. JALOUSIE II had no speed. PETTICOAT saved ground to no avail. FAIRWAY FUN was done early. TERENTIA was away slowly. POCKETFUL OF RYE stopped.

SCRATCHED—Privileged, Miss Rincon.

TWO-YEAR SWEEP

Driscoll Hailed as Sailing King

By DAVE TAYLOR

Jerry Driscoll, San Diego Yacht Club's wizard of the winds, stretched his winning streak to a perfect nine-race clean sweep on the Long Beach YC olympic ocean racing course Saturday to claim his second Cal-40 Congressional Cup sailing championship.

Piloting Blue Marlin, in which he won the 1965 Congressional title here, Driscoll easily triumphed in his final set of three match races Saturday to put the finishing touch on a shutout of nine of the nation's top sailing skippers.

* * * *

DRISCOLL'S nine-race wax job was a repeat of his 1965 championship performance in which he also blanked out the field in the inaugural Congressional series. This gives him a perfect record of 18 consecutive wins in the two-year-old match racing classic.

The San Diego veteran got a good start on the day Saturday by scuttling his two top competitors in the series as he left Newport Harbor YC's Bill Ficker and Scott Allen one minute, 51 seconds in the lurch over his first seven-mile heat and drubbed Long Beach YC's Harry Moloscho by 1:43 the second time around.

* * * *

BOTH FICKER and Moloscho were within striking distance of victory going into Saturday's final round with five wins apiece against Driscoll's six-win string in the series.

But, the closest either could come to the big silver cup was a minute and a half worth of water behind Driscoll's stearn in the light two-to-10-knot winds in Long Beach Harbor.

Driscoll's final win of the day was against Dennis Jordan of St. Francis YC, San Francisco.

Claiming second place in the series with seven wins was Ficker and Allen of NHYC in Holiday Too. It was also a repeat for Holiday Too which placed second with seven wins in the 1965 inaugural Congressional Cup series, but that time owner Robert Allen was at the helm.

* * * *

FINISHING third in the standings of the three-day match racing series was Los Angeles YC's Barney Flam in Flambouyant. Moloscho, of the hosting Long Beach YC, had to settle for fifth place after losing Saturday to Driscoll and Cal Hadden, Jr. of Southern YC, New Orleans.

Hadden took fourth place.

Driscoll credited good starts and an excellent crew for his perfect showing in the series. Blue Marlin was crewed by fellow San Diegans Lowell North, Mac Smith, Gene Treple, Rodney Eales, Mike Morton and John Driscoll.

The second annual Congressional Cup Races, which started here Thursday, pitted skippers from 10 major U.S. yacht clubs in a total of 45 match races. Each skipper raced one match against every other skipper in the field. Final standings:

Skipper	Club	Boat	Wins
1. Jerry Driscoll	SDYC	Blue Marlin	9
2. Flicker-Allen	NHYC	Holiday Too	7
3. Barney Flam	LAYC	Flambouyant	6
4. Cal Hadden, Jr.	SYC (New Orleans)	Tilt of the Kilt	5
Results Past Fourth Place

Dennis Jordan	St. Francis YC (San Francisco)	Hanalei	3

Serena Tacks Up 20-Mile Lead in Race to Acapulco

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Serena, owned by Ken DeMeuse of San Francisco, held a 20-mile lead Saturday in the San Diego to Acapulco yacht race.

The 83-foot schooner was 375 miles from Acapulco. Second was Kialoa II at 395 miles and Ticonderoga was third at 398 miles.

Variable winds slowed the 25-boat fleet and leaders were expected to complete the 1,430 mile race sometime Monday night.

Leading on a handicap basis was Ondine at 455 miles from Acapulco. Rascal was second and Sundowner third.

Ondine led in Class A, Rascal in Class B and Sundowner in Class C.

Whip Ride by Shoe Pays Off

Straight Deal, a galloping filly from Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' stable, drove outside in the stretch to win Saturday's $61,600 Santa Margarita Handicap, emblematic of the Santa Anita fillies and mares championship.

Jockey Bill Shoemaker kept the filly well hidden but in contention from the gate to the far turn. Then he gave her the whip and she zoomed around the pack to the wire, a neck in front of the favored Pollen.

* * * *

BATTEUR, part of a triple entry, finished third while Curious Clover, defending champion in the Santa Margarita, faded to fourth in the final sixteenth.

Straight Deal raced the 1⅛ miles in the excellent time of 1:48 3/5, two-fifths of a second off the stakes record set in 1959 by Bug Brush.

Straight Deal, racing as an entry with Petticoat, returned $7, $3.40 and $2.60. Pollen paid $4 and $2.80, while the Batteur entry returned $2.80 to show.

* * * *

POCKETFUL of Rye and Curious Clover, racing as an entry, took the race away from their 10 rivals in the early stages. Pocketful of Rye shot out of the gate in front and her stablemate was right on her heels.

As they straightened out in the backstretch, it was still Pocketful of Rye in front with Curious Clover second, but Pollen had moved up to third and Straight Deal was fifth, taking aim at the leaders.

Moving to the final turn, Curious Clover went to the front and Pollen was second with Straight Deal third and moving fast. Curious Clover tried to hang on in an effort to score an unprecedented third Santa Margarita victory but ran out of gas.

* * * *

FROM THE 16th pole to the finish the race was all between Pollen and Straight Deal.

Straight Deal demonstrated she was coming up to a big race by finishing second to Poona Queen in the Santa Maria Handicap last month. Last summer she captured the Hollywood Oaks at Hollywood Park and the Ladies Handicap at Aqueduct.

ROMAN BROTHER RUNS FOURTH

Convex Scores Stunning Upset in Hialeah Stakes

Compiled from Wire Reports

Convex galloped through the long Hialeah stretch Saturday for a stunning upset victory in the $61,400 Seminole Handicap, turning back eight stakes stars including Roman Brother.

The chestnut-colored son of Vertex, ridden by veteran Ray Broussard, was four and one-quarter lengths in front at the end of the mile and one-eighth dress rehearsal for the $100,000-added Widener Handicap Feb. 19.

Late-running Selari, handled by jockey Larry Adams, was second a half length in front of Pia Star.

Roman Brother, horse of the year in the 1965 Triangle Publications poll, finished fourth in the field of nine, a length back of Pia Star. Maybe the high weight of 126 pounds and the weather—a windy day in the low 50s—proved too much for the little gelding who went off a 1-2 favorite of the crowd of 22,848.

Track officials, because of Roman Brother's heavy favoritism, ruled out show betting on the race. His backers lost $110,648 in the win pool and $30,069 bet on him in the place pool.

Convex returned a liberal $33.60 to win and $12.80 to place. Selari paid $7.80 to place.

Convex ran the 1⅛ mile in 1:50 over a fast track, three seconds off the track record.

Faultless Light, winner by a length, paid $15.80, $6.20 and $3.60. Steve Leo Jr. paid $4.40 and $2.80 after finishing a nose in front of Old Daddy, the $3 show horse.

Wide to Right paid $4.40, $3.60 and $3 in winning by three parts of a length over Jovial Jeff, a longshot at $9.80 and $6.20. Misty Lad paid $5 for third.

The New England racing season got off to a successful start at Lincoln Downs with a crowd of 17,517 on hand to watch Flying Hat win the $5,000 Inaugural Handicap.

Saturday's crowd bet $1,064,711 and it backed Flying Hat down to even money. The gelded son of Windy City II paid $4, $2.80 and $2.40. Cover Crop returned $3.20 and $2.80 and Bonded Suite paid $3.

Fords Dominate Daytona Enduro

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—The squat, bellowing cars of Ford, streaking smoothly through the freezing darkness, pulled gradually away from the pursuing Ferraris Saturday night in the 24-hour Daytona Continental.

As the race passed the one-quarter mark, with 18 hours left to run, four of the big Mark II Ford prototypes held a solid lead over the Ferraris.

Running 18 miles or more ahead of the shrieking Italian cars, were Ken Miles and Lloyd Ruby, holding the lead they grabbed on the second lap. Running with them was the Ford of Walt Hansgen-Mark Donohue, and backing them up were the Fords of Dan Gurney-Jerry Grant and Bruce McLaren-Chris Amon.

The chief Ferrari pursuit came from the prototypes of Jochen Rindt-Bob Bondurant and Lucien Bianchi-Gerard Van Opehm. But the Ferraris were having trouble. Three of their leading cars were out with broken gear boxes.

The Fords set a blistering pace of 108.2 mph, covering 604 miles in the first six hours. But they must hold the lead until 3 p.m. Sunday if an American car is to win the race—longest ever run in the nation.

STRAIGHT DEAL, unhurried to the half mile pole, saved ground while racing well off the pace with BATTEUR, rallied between the early leaders in the upper stretch to wear down CURIOUS CLOVER and won in a drive. POLLEN, with early speed, raced in close attendance of the pace, rallied in midstretch and finished stoutly. BATTEUR lost some ground, offered her bid in the final furlong but was not good enough. CURIOUS CLOVER had good early speed, disposed of POCKETFUL OF RYE on the final turn to assume a substantial lead for the drive then weakened. POONA QUEEN found room along the inside around the stretch turn but lost most of her punch in the drive. DESERT LOVE raced wide in the late furlongs. JALOUSIE II had no speed. TWO-YEAR SWEEP

By DAVE TAYLOR

Jerry Driscoll, San Diego Yacht Club's wizard of the winds, stretched his winning streak to a perfect nine-race clean sweep on the Long Beach YC olympic ocean racing course Saturday to claim his second Cal-40 Congressional Cup sailing championship.

Piloting Blue Marlin, in which he won the 1965 Congressional title here, Driscoll easily triumphed in his final set of three match races Saturday to put the finishing touch on a shutout of nine of the nation's top sailing skippers.

* * * *

DRISCOLL'S nine-race wax job was a repeat of his 1965 championship performance in which he also blanked out the field in the inaugural Congressional series. This gives him a perfect record of 18 consecutive wins in the two-year-old match racing classic.

The San Diego veteran got a good start on the day Saturday by scuttling his two top competitors in the series as he left Newport Harbor YC's Bill Ficker and Scott Allen one minute, 51 seconds in the lurch over his first seven-mile heat and drubbed Long Beach YC's Harry Moloscho by 1:43 the second time around.

* * * *

BOTH FICKER and Moloscho were within striking distance of victory going into Saturday's final round with five wins apiece against Driscoll's six-win string in the series.

But, the closest either could come to the big silver cup was a minute and a half worth of water behind Driscoll's stearn in the light two-to-10-knot winds in Long Beach Harbor.

Driscoll's final win of the day was against Dennis Jordan of St. Francis YC, San Francisco.

Claiming second place in the series with seven wins was Ficker and Allen of NHYC in Holiday Too. It was also a repeat for Holiday Too which placed second with seven wins in the 1965 inaugural Congressional Cup series, but that time owner Robert Allen was at the helm.

* * * *

FINISHING third in the standings of the three-day match racing series was Los Angeles YC's Barney Flam in Flambouyant. Moloscho, of the hosting Long Beach YC, had to settle for fifth place after losing Saturday to Driscoll and Cal Hadden, Jr. of Southern YC, New Orleans.

Hadden took fourth place.

The second annual Congressional Cup Races, which started here Thursday, pitted skippers from 10 major U.S. yacht clubs in a total of 45 match races. Each skipper raced one match against every other skipper in the field. Final standings:

Serena Tacks Up 20-Mile Lead in Race to Acapulco

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Serena, owned by Ken DeMeuse of San Francisco, held a 20-mile lead Saturday in the San Diego to Acapulco yacht race.

The 83-foot schooner was 375 miles from Acapulco. Second was Kialoa II at 395 miles and Ticonderoga was third at 398 miles.

Variable winds slowed the 25-boat fleet and leaders were expected to complete the 1,430 mile race sometime Monday night.

Leading on a handicap basis was Ondine at 455 miles from Acapulco. Rascal was second and Sundowner third.

Ondine led in Class A, Rascal in Class B and Sundowner in Class C.

Former Saint Athletes at Sports Night

Billy Mais, Dean O'Hare and John Peterson, all members of the St. Anthony backfield when the Saints won the 1948 CIF football championship, will be guests at the school's Sports Night, Feb. 12.

Frank Kelleher will be master of ceremonies at the function which will be held in the school gym.

The list of honored guests includes former Saint stars Jack Snow, Joey Amalfitano, Dave Adlesh, Walt Peterson, Bill Bond, Homer Williams, Ed Barberi, Walt Osgood and Paul Johnson.

Also scheduled on the evening program, which begins at 7:30, will be a wrestling demonstration by a team coached by Dale Deffner at Long Beach State College.

L.B. Gets Rugby Tie

Fullback Jim O'Hara scored six points Saturday, including a last-minute 40-yard penalty kick, to give the Long Beach Rugby Club a 9-9 tie with UCLA at Spaulding Field.

New Faces Due for Hot Creek

Hot Creek Ranch, through which flows the creek of the same name, has had a change in ownership. Bill and Gertrude Lawrence, who have catered to dry-fly purists for 15 years, have sold the ranch to Ray D. Bateman, president of the Bateman Mortgage Company of Los Angeles. Bateman is a resident of San Marino and one of the country's most dedicated fly fishermen.

A doctor advised Bill Lawrence last September that he should not try to go through another season at Hot Creek because of a heart condition and the 7,500-foot elevation. When Bill asked Bateman, an oldtime friend, if he were interested in buying, it took Bateman about 30 seconds to make up his mind and reach for his checkbook.

Bateman will not move to the ranch. He will maintain his business interests in Southern California. Lee Willardson and his wife, Rosetta, are leaving their home in San Diego to manage the ranch. They will take over well in advance of the April 30 trout opening. Hot Creek is 35 miles north of Bishop on U.S. Hwy. 395.

There are nine housekeeping cabins at the ranch and they are available by reservation only. Only dry-fly fishermen are wanted as guests inasmuch as that is the only type of fishing permitted at Hot Creek. Hot Creek never freezes despite its elevation and the trout growth is year-around, Bateman says they will be larger this summer.

THE OUTBOARD BOATING CLUB of Long Beach has a rather ambitious program for February with a breakfast, treasure hunt and U.S. Coast Guard inspection scheduled for next Sunday. Club members will gather at the Second Street Launching Ramp at 8 a.m. where breakfast will be served. USCG officials will inspect the boats at that time.

The inspection is not mandatory, but it offers the opportunity of having boats properly checked. All comers, whether or not members of the OBCLB, will be welcomed by the club.

The treasure hunt will start at 9 a.m. Boaters will be given maps to follow and the hunt will be explained to those who have not participated in such events in the past. Trophies will be awarded for first, second and third places and even a trophy is being reserved for a guest winner.

The club's annual outing to the Salton Sea Beach Marina, 26 miles south of Indio on U.S. Hwy. 99, is being arranged for Feb. 26 and 27, with a campout overnight.

There will be a campfire Saturday night, with group singing and story-telling. A cruise of a portion of the Sea is being arranged for Sunday.

Ken Champagne (695-8345) is event chairman and is taking reservations for members and non-members.

CATALINA ISLAND'S SEASON for wild goat and wild boar opened Saturday with a full house of hunters at the Catalina Hunting Lodge, which is situated at the Isthmus and which is being managed by Doug Bombard, a native of the island and one of its most famous residents. Doug is the game manager for the Santa Catalina Island Company.

Hunting for goats and wild hogs is restricted to those who make advance reservations. No person is permitted to hunt anywhere on the island without a permit and without a properly registered guide.

While there is an airport at the top of the island and guest fliers are welcome at any time, the fliers can not leap from planes and start hunting.

The price of a daily package is in a bracket that most hunters do not consider cheap, but it embraces transportation and guide service from dawn to dark, three excellent meals per day and good sleeping accommodations.

Hunting for goats is restricted to billies, not females and not kids. Bombard reported yesterday that he was booked almost solid through March 20, closing date for goats and hogs. However, there are a few weekday openings. Bombard may be reached at Avalon 303.

Catalina Seaplanes, Inc., has several flights daily from Long Beach to Catalina Harbor, on the south side of the Isthmus. This airline offers the fastest and best service to a landing within a few hundred yards of the lodge.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS—Three revised map-guides to boating facilities in California are now available without charge from the state's Division of Small Craft Harbors. The guides cover the southern, central and northern areas of California showing launching, mooring, berthing, dry storage, fuel, camping, travel trailer, picnicking and lodging facilities. To acquire copies, write to the Division of Small Craft Harbors, 1416 Ninth St., Sacramento, Calif. 95814.

The Long Beach Sportsman's Club will have its annual installation and dinner dance next Saturday night at its clubhouse, 3623 Santa Fe Ave., says Harry Du Bay, general chairman of the event. This is one of the top events of the year for the popular club.

Field and Stream magazine devotes much of its February issue to camping, leading off with a story by F. M. Paulson, boating editor, that relates in detail the wonderful boating and camping that is available to Californians and others at Shasta Lake.

Another article on California has to do with the redwoods and controversy. Richard Starnes, a Field and Stream writer, defends the redwoods and exposes the waste that is occurring constantly.

Warren Page, shooting editor of Field and Stream, has been elected president of the National Shooting Sports Foundation. Page becomes the fourth president of the association which was formed to promote shooting educational activities.

It's Time for That Strange Marathon, the Beach Run

Contest for Public: Pick the Winner

By BRUCE YOUNG

Running 4.4 miles doesn't seem like too difficult a task for the average track star, but when you add wet sand and high tides, the real fun begins.

And fun it will be Saturday when over 250 of the Southland's finest distance runners brave the elements for the Eighth Pacific Ocean Cross Country Championships—better known as the Beach Run.

* * * *

WHAT MAKES the "dash and splash" race even more intriguing is that everyone gets a chance to win. The runners get medals while the person who comes closest to predicting the winning time of the featured 4.4 mile race wins two gold-medal dinners at the Apple Valley Steak House.

So polish your crystal ball and mail all guesses to: Beach Run, Sports Dept., Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach.

Weather has been a contributing factor to the outcome of the race, and only last year's jaunt between Rainbow and Belmont Piers and return was blessed with mild winds and calm seas.

* * * *

THE 4.4-MILE run, which begins at noon, is not the only race on the program. There will be four other events — high school mile, junior college and college 4-man, 4-mile relay, the girls' and women's mile, and the open mile run.

PREVIOUS WINNERS

Present Trophy to Paramount Ice Skate Club

This is the second year in a row that the Paramount club has won the trophy, which goes to the club gaining the most placements in the U.S. Nationals.

Arctic Blades members who placed in the Nationals held last weekend in Berkeley were headed by Dawn Glab, national novice ladies champion.

The Arctic Blades team also won the Southwest Pacific and Pacific Coast championship for the second year in a row.

L.B. Falcons Meet Touch Grid Leaders

Two-Mile Feature of L.A. Games

By JOHN DIXON

There'll be 20 events on the calendar for the Los Angeles Indoor Games in the Sports Arena Saturday night, but there is no question as to the feature—it's the two-mile.

KEINO

The roster for the 22-lap event, best of the meet, became even better Saturday with the transfer of Bob Day from the mile.

Saturday's lineup:

—Ron Clarke, Australia, best time of 8:24.8;

—Kipchoge Keino, Kenya, 8:25.2;

—Bill Baillie, New Zealand, 8:31.9;

—Viktor Kudinsky, Russia, 8:31.0 steeplechase;

—Lajos Mecser, Hungary, 8:15.4;

—Bob Day, U.S., 8:33.0;

—Ron Larrieu, U.S., 8:40.0;

—Tracy Smith, U.S., 8:40.0.

Day's mark of 8:33.0, achieved eight days ago, is best of the indoor season and best ever by a collegian. Day is a 21-year-old UCLA senior and collegiate record holder at both the mile (3:56.4) and two-miles (8:35.4).

Clarke, a three-event man in the Tokyo Olympics, will be favored. How do you pick against a bloke who holds seven world records?

L.B. Hosts Top Billiards Stars

The first U.S. Invitational pocket billiards tournament of champions will be held at Morgan Hall, 835 Locust Ave., Friday through Feb. 28.

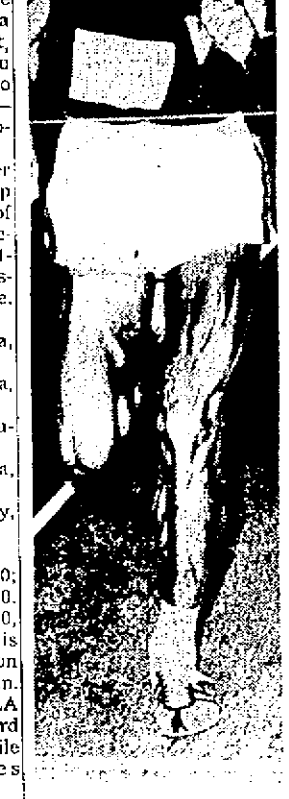

Competition will be at 2 p.m., 7:30 and at 10, with world champion Joe Balsis of Minnerville, Pa., competing in the eliminations.

Balsis will meet some of the nation's top pocket billiards players, including Luther Lassiter, Eddie Taylor and Cicero Murphy.

Soccer Contest Slated Today

The Long Beach Soccer Club will oppose the Sparta S.C. at Pan-American Park today at 2 p.m. in an exhibition game.

Next Pacific Soccer League competition for the Long Beach entry will be Feb. 13 with Riverside S.C. at Riverside as the Long Beach team begins its stretch drive for runnerup position in the standings.

SOCCER CUP FINALS AT VETERANS STADIUM

Finals of the U.S. Open Cup are scheduled this afternoon at Veterans Memorial Stadium between Orange County of the Continental Soccer League and the Maccabees of the Greater Los Angeles League.

Rain forced cancellation of the program last week.

Today's main event at 2:30, between Orange County and the Maccabees, will determine who will represent the Southern California area against the San Francisco Greek-American team next Sunday.

Other teams playing before the main event, will be Montebello and Beverly Hills at 10:30 and at 12:30 Los Angeles against the Hollywood Stars in Continental League play.

The Hollywood Stars will have a new face in their lineup, Ronald McManus. He will be playing at either a fullback or center-half position.

All-Star Cast Set for Baseball Dinner

Leaders from the world of baseball, government, business and entertainment will make the head table sparkle at the month annual Baseball Writers' Assn. awards dinner, Friday night at the Hollywood Palladium.

Reading like a page from "Who's Who", the list of celebrities, in addition to players and coaches from both the world champion Dodgers and the Anaheim-bound Angels, reads:

Jerry Lewis, master of ceremonies; baseball executives Walter O'Malley, Walter Alston, Buzzie Bavasi, Gene Autry, Bob Reynolds, Fred Haney, Leonard K. Firestone and Bill Rigney; managers Don Heffner of the Reds, and Gene Mauch of the Phillies; Mayor and Mrs. Sam Yorty of Los Angeles, and Mayor and Mrs. Fred T. Krein of Anaheim; Charles S. (Chub) Feeney, general manager of the Giants; and George Christopher, former mayor of San Francisco, recognized as a pioneer in the move to bring major league baseball to the West Coast.

Tickets for the star-studded show, sealed at $20 per plate, are obtainable at the Baseball Writers' Assn. offices, 1352 Biltmore Hotel, Los Angeles 90013, phone MAdison 6-7678.

WINTER SPORTS

Death Halts World Sled Competition

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (UPI)—The world four-man bobsledding championships were suspended Saturday night after Germany's No. 1 sled shot off the dangerous Ronce chute, killing 26-year-old driver Anton Pensberger.

Pensberger, a textile worker from Ohlftadt, died of a broken back after his sled careened off the ice chute and smashed into a tree at more than 60 miles per hour. The three other men on the sled were injured, but were not in serious condition.

Because of the death, competition was suspended midway through the second heat. Organizers said they did not know if activity would be resumed today. The Crystal Curve had developed a crack.

Since the second heat was not completed there was no official overall leader. But both Italian sleds, leading at the end of the first heat, had fairly fast times in the second run.

The U.S. No. 1 sled, driven by Fred Fortune of Lake Placid, N.Y., was third at the end of the first heat, but did not run in the second before it was suspended.

Pensberger started 16th of the 17 sleds in the first heat. About half-way down the mile-long course, the sled failed to make the Bandion Curve and rocketed into the surrounding trees.

California Skiers Star in Roch Cup Races

ASPEN, Colo. (AP)—Terje Overland of Denver University and Joan Hannah of Mammoth Mountain, Calif., moved into the lead for top honors in the 20th annual Roch Cup ski races Saturday with downhill victories.

Overland won the men's event with a time of 2:12.65. Canadian skiers Scott Henderson of Banff, Alta., and Rod Hebron of North Vancouver, B.C., finished second and third with 2:13.15 and 2:14.10.

Miss Hannah posted a time of 1:54.79 on the shorter women's course. Wendy Allen, Mammoth Mountain, was second with 1:55.43 and Andre Crepeau, Sherbrook, Que., was third with 1:59.99.

Frenchman Wins Aosta Slalom

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (AP)—Guy Perillat of France won the Duc of Aosta Cup special slalom ski race Saturday after accidents knocked out the favored Austrians. No Americans competed.

Perillat sped down the steep Pomagagnon and Tofana courses in the combined time of 1 minute, 9.63 seconds.

Raimond Manninen of Finland was second in 1:50.71 and Rune Lindstrom of Sweden third in 1:52.11. The Scandinavians normally don't do so well in Alpine skiing.

Hornung Claims 'Not Me' to Rumors He's Available

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—Paul Hornung of the Green Bay Packers said Saturday he has been assured that he will not be placed on the draft list for the Atlantic Falcons.

Each team in the National Football League will freeze a certain number of players and the fledgling Falcons will be able to select from those remaining. The number has not yet been determined.

There had been speculation that both Hornung and Jim Taylor would not be protected.

"I am definitely not going to Atlanta," Hornung said. The former Heisman Trophy winner and Notre Dame star would not say, however, who gave him this assurance.

"Just say a couple of people have told me this," he said.

* * * *

THE PACKERS drafted Donny Anderson of Texas Tech and Jim Grabowski of Illinois, two power runners along the lines of Hornung and Taylor. Then there are also Tom Moore and Elijah Pitts, giving the Packers six running backs.

If Hornung and Taylor stay, then it's almost sure that Moore and Pitts will go.

Anderson, upon signing with the Packers, said he had been told he would replace Hornung.

"I think somebody just got a little carried away with the publicity of that signing," Hornung said. "He's a good kid and is going to be a great back."

Hornung said he would do all he could to help Anderson, and Grabowski for that matter, in learning the intricacies of the pro game.

The annual event is sponsored by the Century Club and conducted by Long Beach State College. Meet director is LBSC track coach Jack Rose.

WHAT MAKES the "dash and splash" race even more intriguing is that everyone gets a chance to win. The runners get medals while the person who comes closest to predicting the winning time of the featured 4.4 mile race wins two gold-medal dinners at the Apple Valley Steak House.

So polish your crystal ball and mail all guesses to: Beach Run, Sports Dept., Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach.

Weather has been a contributing factor to the outcome of the race, and only last year's jaunt between Rainbow and Belmont Piers and return was blessed with mild winds and calm seas.

* * * *

THE 4.4-MILE run, which begins at noon, is not the only race on the program. There will be four other events — high school mile, junior college and college 4-man, 4-mile relay, the girls' and women's mile, and the open mile run.

PREVIOUS WINNERS

Present Trophy to Paramount Ice Skate Club

This is the second year in a row that the Paramount club has won the trophy, which goes to the club gaining the most placements in the U.S. Nationals.

Arctic Blades members who placed in the Nationals held last weekend in Berkeley were headed by Dawn Glab, national novice ladies champion.

The Arctic Blades team also won the Southwest Pacific and Pacific Coast championship for the second year in a row.

L.B. Falcons Meet Touch Grid Leaders

Undefeated M&M Charter tackles the fourth-place Long Beach Falcons in the featured game of the Harbor Area Adult Touch-Football League this morning at Daniels Field in San Pedro.

The Falcons won their first league game last Sunday by dropping Johnnie's Market 13-6.

Two-Mile Feature of L.A. Games

By JOHN DIXON

There'll be 20 events on the calendar for the Los Angeles Indoor Games in the Sports Arena Saturday night, but there is no question as to the feature—it's the two-mile.

KEINO

The roster for the 22-lap event, best of the meet, became even better Saturday with the transfer of Bob Day from the mile.

Saturday's lineup:

—Ron Clarke, Australia, best time of 8:24.8;

—Kipchoge Keino, Kenya, 8:25.2;

—Bill Baillie, New Zealand, 8:31.9;

—Viktor Kudinsky, Russia, 8:31.0 steeplechase;

—Lajos Mecser, Hungary, 8:35.4;

—Bob Day, U.S., 8:33.0;

—Ron Larrieu, U.S., 8:40.0;

—Tracy Smith, U.S., 8:40.0.

Day's mark of 8:33.0, achieved eight days ago, is best of the indoor season and best ever by a collegian. Day is a 21-year-old UCLA senior and collegiate record holder at both the mile (3:56.4) and two-miles (8:35.4).

Clarke, a three-event man in the Tokyo Olympics, will be favored. How do you pick against a bloke who holds seven world records?

L.B. Hosts Top Billiards Stars

The first U.S. Invitational pocket billiards tournament of champions will be held at Morgan Hall, 835 Locust Ave., Friday through Feb. 28.

Competition will be at 2 p.m., 7:30 and at 10, with world champion Joe Balsis of Minnerville, Pa., competing in the eliminations.

Balsis will meet some of the nation's top pocket billiards players, including Luther Lassiter, Eddie Taylor and Cicero Murphy.

Soccer Contest Slated Today

The Long Beach Soccer Club will oppose the Sparta S.C. at Pan-American Park today at 2 p.m. in an exhibition game.

Next Pacific Soccer League competition for the Long Beach entry will be Feb. 13 with Riverside S.C. at Riverside as the Long Beach team begins its stretch drive for runnerup position in the standings.

SOCCER CUP FINALS AT VETERANS STADIUM

Finals of the U.S. Open Cup are scheduled this afternoon at Veterans Memorial Stadium between Orange County of the Continental Soccer League and the Maccabees of the Greater Los Angeles League.

Rain forced cancellation of the program last week.

Today's main event at 2:30, between Orange County and the Maccabees, will determine who will represent the Southern California area against the San Francisco Greek-American team next Sunday.

Other teams playing before the main event, will be Montebello and Beverly Hills at 10:30 and at 12:30 Los Angeles against the Hollywood Stars in Continental League play.

The Hollywood Stars will have a new face in their lineup, Ronald McManus. He will be playing at either a fullback or center-half position.

All-Star Cast Set for Baseball Dinner

Leaders from the world of baseball, government, business and entertainment will make the head table sparkle at the month annual Baseball Writers' Assn. awards dinner, Friday night at the Hollywood Palladium.

Reading like a page from "Who's Who", the list of celebrities, in addition to players and coaches from both the world champion Dodgers and the Anaheim-bound Angels, reads:

Jerry Lewis, master of ceremonies; baseball executives Walter O'Malley, Walter Alston, Buzzie Bavasi, Gene Autry, Bob Reynolds, Fred Haney, Leonard K. Firestone and Bill Rigney; managers Don Heffner of the Reds, and Gene Mauch of the Phillies; Mayor and Mrs. Sam Yorty of Los Angeles, and Mayor and Mrs. Fred T. Krein of Anaheim; Charles S. (Chub) Feeney, general manager of the Giants; and George Christopher, former mayor of San Francisco, recognized as a pioneer in the move to bring major league baseball to the West Coast.

Tickets for the star-studded show, scaled at $20 per plate, are obtainable at the Baseball Writers' Assn. offices, 1352 Biltmore Hotel, Los Angeles 90013, phone MAdison 6-7678.

WINTER SPORTS

Death Halts World Sled Competition

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (UPI)—The world four-man bobsledding championships were suspended Saturday night after Germany's No. 1 sled shot off the dangerous Ronce chute, killing 26-year-old driver Anton Pensberger.

Pensberger, a textile worker from Ohlftadt, died of a broken back after his sled careened off the ice chute and smashed into a tree at more than 60 miles per hour. The three other men on the sled were injured, but were not in serious condition.

Because of the death, competition was suspended midway through the second heat. Organizers said they did not know if activity would be resumed today. The Crystal Curve had developed a crack.

Since the second heat was not completed there was no official overall leader. But both Italian sleds, leading at the end of the first heat, had fairly fast times in the second run.

The U.S. No. 1 sled, driven by Fred Fortune of Lake Placid, N.Y., was third at the end of the first heat, but did not run in the second before it was suspended.

Pensberger started 16th of the 17 sleds in the first heat. About half-way down the mile-long course, the sled failed to make the Bandion Curve and rocketed into the surrounding trees.

California Skiers Star in Roch Cup Races

ASPEN, Colo. (AP)—Terje Overland of Denver University and Joan Hannah of Mammoth Mountain, Calif., moved into the lead for top honors in the 20th annual Roch Cup ski races Saturday with downhill victories.

Overland won the men's event with a time of 2:12.65. Canadian skiers Scott Henderson of Banff, Alta., and Rod Hebron of North Vancouver, B.C., finished second and third with 2:13.15 and 2:14.10.

Miss Hannah posted a time of 1:54.79 on the shorter women's course. Wendy Allen, Mammoth Mountain, was second with 1:55.43 and Andre Crepeau, Sherbrook, Que., was third with 1:59.99.

Frenchman Wins Aosta Slalom

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (AP)—Guy Perillat of France won the Duc of Aosta Cup special slalom ski race Saturday after accidents knocked out the favored Austrians. No Americans competed.

Perillat sped down the steep Pomagagnon and Tofana courses in the combined time of 1 minute, 9.63 seconds.

Raimond Manninen of Finland was second in 1:50.71 and Rune Lindstrom of Sweden third in 1:52.11. The Scandinavians normally don't do so well in Alpine skiing.

Skating Crown Goes to Defending Champ

BRATISLAVA, Czechoslovakia (AP)—Austria's reigning ice queen, Regine Heitzer, triumphed over 22 competitors Saturday for the European women's figure skating championship.

The 22-year-old Viennese language student netted ordinal of 9.0 and 2.244.4 total points for both compulsory figures and free skating.

Hornung Claims 'Not Me' to Rumors He's Available

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—Paul Hornung of the Green Bay Packers said Saturday he has been assured that he will not be placed on the draft list for the Atlantic Falcons.

Each team in the National Football League will freeze a certain number of players and the fledgling Falcons will be able to select from those remaining. The number has not yet been determined.

There had been speculation that both Hornung and Jim Taylor would not be protected.

"I am definitely not going to Atlanta," Hornung said. The former Heisman Trophy winner and Notre Dame star would not say, however, who gave him this assurance.

"Just say a couple of people have told me this," he said.

THE PACKERS drafted Donny Anderson of Texas Tech and Jim Grabowski of Illinois, two power runners along the lines of Hornung and Taylor. Then there are also Tom Moore and Elijah Pitts, giving the Packers six running backs.

If Hornung and Taylor stay, then it's almost sure that Moore and Pitts will go.

Anderson, upon signing with the Packers, said he had been told he would replace Hornung.

"I think somebody just got a little carried away with the publicity of that signing," Hornung said. "He's a good kid and is going to be a great back."

Hornung said he would do all he could to help Anderson, and Grabowski for that matter, in learning the intricacies of the pro game.

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Modest Increase Made by Stock Market List

By C. J. PARNOW

NEW YORK (UPI)—A host of fundamental and technical factors ganged up on the Stock Market last week but the list still scored a modest gain. Trading was moderately active."

Prices were soft in the opening session and got worse on Tuesday. A rally Wednesday helped absorb some of the loss in the first two sessions but the list drifted lower again on Thursday. A half-hearted advance turned into a full-fledged rally on Friday and went a long way toward putting the list in the black on the week.

Rails, recently the market's strong point and most favorable technical indicator, were clobbered by profit-taking.

* * * *

THE VIET NAM situation continues to be uppermost in the minds of Wall Streeters and the failure of the administration's peace effort and the resumption of bombings in North Viet Nam were one of the key factors in the market's milling pattern.

A continuation of the war in Viet Nam or an escalation could mean the introduction of various economic controls and perhaps even a tax boost. This would place a strain on the economy and consequently on the market.

The analysts also fear the possibility of greater government controls might stem inflation — a fact of economic life which is becoming increasingly troublesome lately. Under the weight of these two problems, the list more or less ignored some very favorable corporate factors like sharply higher profits and increased dividend actions.

* * * *

THE FACT that Wall Streeters are concerned over these uncertainties is also seen in the action of the market. Traders have been hesitant to make very large commitments while at the same time lightening their portfolios. This lack of buying interest was as responsible for some of the week's losses as was selling.

Dow-Jones industrials tacked on 1.00 for the week at 986.35. Rails fell 3.76 to 259.70. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index dippped 0.05 to 93.26.

Volume shrank to 40,777,440 shares from 45,817,110 shares a week before and compared with 29,207,443 shares in the same week last year.

* * * *

OF THE 1,564 issues traded, 546 advanced and 880 declined. There were 153 new 1965-66 highs and 124 new lows.

Sperry Rand was the volume leader. It said ⅛ to 18⅞ on 1,007,800 shares. American Motors advanced ½ to 10⅜ on 725,900 shares in second place in the active list despite lower fourth quarter sales and profits and ommission of the quarterly dividend. Analysts said the earnings were higher than anticipated.

American Telephone jumped 1¼ to 61⅞ on 700,600 shares in third place. The Federal Communications Commission said this week it was concerned over the recent decline in the stock and emphasized that it was merely investigating the company's rate structure. In addition, showman Billy Rose, reportedly the largest individual holder of the stock, denied rumors he was selling it because of the decline.

* * * *

FORD WAS also among the active issues. It jumped 2¾ on news of a 60% gain in fourth quarter profits. General Motors soared 3⅝ in active trading after it published its fantastic earnings report Monday. Chrysler added 1 also in active dealings.

Steels were mixed. U.S. Steel advanced 1⅜ and Bethlehem tacked on ⅛. Republic Steel and Youngstown Sheet fell ⅛ each. Du Pont jumped 2¾ but Eastman Kodak shed 3¼.

Profit-taking cut into some electronic isssues but generally the selling merely dwarfed gains. Zenith was the biggest gainer in the list, soaring 7 points. Texas Instruments jumped 5⅝, Fairchild Camera 2 and Litton 1¼. IBM, Control Data and Motorola tacked on fractions. Honeywell tumbled 3½.

* * * *

AIRCRAFTS started higher but later tumbled. Douglas and Boeing were exceptions with gains of 1½ and 3½ respectively. General Dynamics and McDonnell shed 3 each, Bendix 3⅛ and Ling-Temco 3½.

Coppers were soft. Anaconda fell 4⅞ and Kennecott shed 4⅜. Reynolds Metals rose 1½, Kaiser Aluminum 2⅝ and Alcoa 2¼. Merck shed 1⅜ on news it had to withdraw a birth control pill from experimental use because of troubles developed in test animals being treated with the same drug. G. D. Searle rose 4⅞ but Schering and Smith-Kline & French fell 4⅛ each.

* * * *

NATIONAL Dairy Products advanced 4¾ after directors boosted the quarterly dividend and proposed a 2-for-1 stock split. ITE Circuit Breaker rose 4¼. Texas Gulf Sulphur dropped 2½. International Telephone gained 4¾.

Airlines found some support late in the week but were still lower. Eastern dropped 5¼, Trans World 2½, Continental 2 and National 1⅜. Northwest Airlines rose 2½ and KLM tacked on ⅞.

Sukarno's Aide Warns Peking, Broadcast Says

SINGAPORE (AP)—Indonesian First Deputy Premier Subandrio called on Red China Saturday to respect Indonesia's sovereignty and not interfere in its interaal affairs.

Radio Jakarta announced Subandrio made this statement after meeting with armed forces and Foreign Minstry officials in Jakarta.

The radio, in a broadcast monitored here, said the group discussed a recent student demonstration outside the Communist Embassy in Jakarta and Subandrio hoped to reply next week to a protest from Peking.

Modest Increase Made by Stock Market List

By C. J. PARNOW

NEW YORK (UPI)—A host of fundamental and technical factors ganged up on the Stock Market last week but the list still scored a modest gain. Trading was moderately active.

Prices were soft in the opening session and got worse on Tuesday. A rally Wednesday helped absorb some of the loss in the first two sessions but the list drifted lower again on Thursday. A half-hearted advance turned into a full-fledged rally on Friday and went a long way toward putting the list in the black on the week.

Rails, recently the market's strong point and most favorable technical indicator, were clobbered by profit-taking.

* * * *

THE VIET NAM situation continues to be uppermost in the minds of Wall Streeters and the failure of the administration's peace effort and the resumption of bombings in North Viet Nam were one of the key factors in the market's milling pattern.

A continuation of the war in Viet Nam or an escalation could mean the introduction of various economic controls and perhaps even a tax boost. This would place a strain on the economy and consequently on the market.

The analysts also fear the possibility of greater government controls might stem inflation — a fact of economic life which is becoming increasingly troublesome lately. Under the weight of these two problems, the list more or less ignored some very favorable corporate factors like sharply higher profits and increased dividend actions.

* * * *

THE FACT that Wall Streeters are concerned over these uncertainties is also seen in the action of the market. Traders have been hesitant to make very large commitments while at the same time lightening their portfolios. This lack of buying interest was as responsible for some of the week's losses as was selling.

Dow-Jones industrials tacked on 1.00 for the week at 986.35. Rails fell 3.76 to 259.70. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index dippped 0.05 to 93.26.

Volume shrank to 40,777,440 shares from 45,817,110 shares a week before and compared with 29,207,443 shares in the same week last year.

* * * *

OF THE 1,564 issues traded, 546 advanced and 880 declined. There were 153 new 1965-66 highs and 124 new lows.

Sperry Rand was the volume leader. It said ⅛ to 18⅞ on 1,007,800 shares. American Motors advanced ½ to 10⅜ on 725,900 shares in second place in the active list despite lower fourth quarter sales and profits and ommission of the quarterly dividend. Analysts said the earnings were higher than anticipated.

American Telephone jumped 1⅜ to 61⅞ on 700,600 shares in third place. The Federal Communications Commission said this week it was concerned over the recent decline in the stock and emphasized that it was merely investigating the company's rate structure. In addition, showman Billy Rose, reportedly the largest individual holder of the stock, denied rumors he was selling it because of the decline.

* * * *

FORD WAS also among the active issues. It jumped 2¾ on news of a 60% gain in fourth quarter profits. General Motors soared 3⅝ in active trading after it published its fantastic earnings report Monday. Chrysler added 1, also in active dealings.

Steels were mixed. U.S. Steel advanced 1⅜ and Bethlehem tacked on ¼. Republic Steel and Youngstown Sheet fell ⅛ each. Du Pont jumped 2¾ but Eastman Kodak shed 3¼.

Profit-taking cut into some electronic isssues but generally the selling merely dwarfed gains. Zenith was the biggest gainer in the list, soaring 7 points. Texas Instruments jumped 5⅜, Fairchild Camera 2 and Litton 1¼. IBM, Control Data and Motorola tacked on fractions. Honeywell tumbled 3½.

* * * *

AIRCRAFTS started higher but later tumbled. Douglas and Boeing were exceptions with gains of 1⅛ and 3½ respectively. General Dynamics and McDonnell shed 3 each. Bendix 3⅛ and Ling-Temco 3½.

Coppers were soft. Anaconda fell 4⅞ and Kennecott shed 4¾. Reynolds Metals rose 1½, Kaiser Aluminum 2⅝ and Alcoa 2¼. Merck shed 1⅜ on news it had to withdraw a birth control pill from experimental use because of troubles developed in test animals being treated with the same drug. G. D. Searle rose 4⅞ but Schering and Smith-Kline & French fell 4⅛ each.

* * * *

NATIONAL Dairy Products advanced 4¾ after directors boosted the quarterly dividend and proposed a 2-for-1 stock split. ITE Circuit Breaker rose 4¼. Texas Gulf Sulphur dropped 2½. International Telephone gained 4¾.

Airlines found some support late in the week but were still lower. Eastern dropped 5¼, Trans World 2½, Continental 2 and National 1⅝. Northwest Airlines rose 2½ and KLM tacked on ⅞.

Sukarno's Aide Warns Peking, Broadcast Says

SINGAPORE (UPI)—Indonesian First Deputy Premier Subandrio called on Red China Saturday to respect Indonesia's sovereignty and not interfere in its internal affairs.

Radio Jakarta announced Subandrio made this statement after meeting with armed forces and Foreign Minstry officials in Jakarta.

The radio, in a broadcast monitored here, said the group discussed a recent student demonstration outside the Communist Embassy in Jakarta and Subandrio hoped to reply next week to a protest from Peking.

The Best of Everything

If you're unhappy in your present job (low wage scale, no advancement, no security, etc., drive over to our Torrance plant today. Come into the employment office which is open until 5 P.M. daily, until noon Saturday, and talk it over. We are right next to the San Diego Freeway on Western Avenue. Our company is growing and we are doing a lot of hiring in all machining skills and we have a great deal to offer. If you are unskilled and have the ability and interest to learn a machinist trade, come in anyway. A few minutes of your time and about 1 gallon of gas may change your entire working career for the better.

ATTENTION PROPERTY OWNERS
Before you buy or sell that lot, investigate its potentials. If it is zoned for apartments or not, we will make a survey without obligation to you, to determine if it is advisable for you to build or to sell. We check your lot size, zoning, vacancy factor & rent schedules in your area; we advise as to what is best suited to the neighborhood, what we think belongs on your lot and what it costs to build. We show you how it can be financed, what your income & expenses will be and how much cash income is yours each month. If it makes $ cents $ to build, we can provide 100% financing for the entire project.

ATTENTION
PROPERTY OWNERS
Before you buy or sell that lot, investigate its potentials. If it is zoned for apartments or not, we will make a survey without obligation to you, to determine if it is advisable for you to build or to sell. We check your lot size, zoning, vacancy factor & rent schedules in your area; we advise as to what is best suited to the neighborhood, what we think belongs on your lot and what it costs to build. We show you how it can be financed, what your income & expenses will be and how much cash income is yours each month. If it makes $ cents $ to build, we can provide 100% financing for the entire project.

Ridings

We find that most Cadillacs purchased from us, and then traded back to us at a later date, have received such fine care that we are able to allow More Money for the Car. By the same token, when we sell it again as a used car, we feel that, because of this fine care, we can offer you More Car for Your Money.

'A DISTINGUISHED AMERICAN'

Bob Hope—Mr. Go, Go, Go

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—President John F. Kennedy called him "a distinguished American public figure."

When he was in a hospital, President Johnson penned him a note of cheer.

Who? Why Bob Hope, of course.

The onetime vaudeville song and dance man, with an incredible nonstop 40-year-plus torrent of gags, has tuly become what some admirers call him: An American institution.

There may be funnier comics, better actors. But when Rapid Robert goes into a monologue, the world is conditioned to respond. You laugh, though the gag may be flat, because it's Hope.

* * * *

BRITISH-BORN Leslie Townes Hope is a sort of Mr. America, a dispenser of native humor that seems to strike a responsive chord with everyone, typist to tycoon.

It has been said that Hope has gotten more laughs out of more people than any man in history. It's probably so because no man probably has played before more audiences.

Consider this record: Uncounted personal appearances dating back to vaudeville, and including thousands before GIs around the world; radio since 1938; movies since 1938; television since 1950.

And the pace. He's slowed the last few years, but still is the closest thing to a perpetual motion machine. Vacations and hobbies bore him: "Fish don't applaud." Golf, which he plays with intense dedication, is his only "relaxation." He thinks show business, or performs show biz, almost all his waking hours. He's always "on," no matter what he's up to.

* * * *

VETERAN Hope watchers —and Bob himself—give the same answers when asked to define the "other" Hope. They say there is none . . . the public Hope is the private Hope.

There may once have been one. He may once have been able to let down, shed the tension and the nervousness and preoccupation with the next quip, relax utterly, be playful or deeply serious. But over the years the man has become his image. He's a bit less brash, but the sardonic smile always is with him. There's still a gag for every occasion.

If this makes him a cardboard man—no depth, a fellow with but one side to present to the world—it bothers Bob not a bit. He's not given to introspection. He's happy highballing down the show business track.

A few month ago, for instance, he finished a television dress rehearsal. Instead of resting the two hours before air time, as other performers did, Hope hit two benefits — for a Catholic charity and a Jewish hospital.

Isn't that a bit busy for a chap who was nursing a blood clot in the eye not so long ago?

"No," said Hope. "Audiences are my best friends. You never tire talking with your best friends."

* * * *

WHEN HE isn't on stage, he's honing material for the next appearance.

Hope Enterprises spends half a million a year on seven writers. But he could be almost as funny without them. A pretty good gag originator himself, he's a connoisseur of the work of others . . . a joke editor supreme.

His writers are always on call. One says: "Bob never wears a watch. He called me once at 4 a.m. and said: 'I'm due to get an honorary degree in a couple of hours. How about some academic gags?'"

And some of Hope's academic addresses shake the halls of ivy.

He got his fifth honorary degree recently at Whittier College, Richard Nixon's alma mater. Said Hope, in cap and gown:

"This degree is an act of great courage—and a body blow to higher education. Doctor of humane letters—that sounds like a veterinarian.

"Some people here were so sure Nixon was going to be elected president, they started building the log cabin he was born in."

* * * *

HE'S CONSTANTLY on the go.

What does Mrs. Hope think about his frequent absences from home?

"My wife isn't sure what line of work I'm in. She thinks I'm an airline pilot.

"Our towels are marked 'Hers' and 'Welcome Stranger.'"

Mrs. Hope misses her husband, but comments:

"I knew when I married him 31 years ago I'd have to share him with the world. My husband needs audiences like babies need milk."

Hope's daughter, Linda, voices the family feeling about their traveling parent.

"It's not necessarily the amount of time spent with you that matters, but the quality. When he's with us, he is interested in us every minute. He's a wonderful father.

"Lots of parents can be home all the time and yet be estranged from their family. Our dad is not like that. Life with father is never dull."

Mrs. Hope is a prominent Catholic laywoman. She is immersed in church and charitable activities, but she and Bob used to golf together a lot.

"Until I beat him," she smiles. The Hope family is seldom together for Christmas unless they travel with Bob to some far-flung troop outpost. So they open their gifts on New Year's eve.

AT 62, he says he's taking things easier but you'll have to take his word for it, it's not visible. He vows he'll never retire.

And one thing he'll never give up—the annual Christmas junket for the GI's overseas.

"Where else can I find an audience that's subject to courtmartial if they walk out on me?"

President Johnson says it better: "Christmas overseas without Bob Hope is simply not Christmas."

Hope started playing for the troops before they were issued uniforms. The very day Secretary of War Henry Stimson drew the first World War II draft number out of a hat, Hope was in San Francisco entertaining the first numbers called.

By Pearl Harbor, he had played 562 service benefits. He's lost count since.

"I know I still have the same rank. Chicken first-class."

He's been under gunfire in every part of the world. And he has a standard gag for the occasion.

"I wonder which one of my pictures they saw?"

* * * *

HE WAS BORN Leslie Townes Hope in Eltham, England, moving to Cleveland as a child.

"I was known as Les Hope until the other kids changed to Hope Less. That's when I became Bob."

Hope had a fling at chicken plucking, auto repair and even a semester at Western Reserve University before he gave his all to showbusiness.

EVEN IN his early days of vaudeville, Hope's humor was irreverent—and courageous.

Back in the gangster era in Chicago, this was a routine he did there with his then-partner.

Hope: "My brother was a brave man because he slapped Al Capone in the face."

Partner: "I'd like to shake his hand."

Hope: "We ain't gonna dig him up for that."

In 1962 during the Kennedy Administration, Hope did a command performance at the London Palladium. Stage references or jokes about the Royal Family are banned in Britain, but Hope began:

"We don't have titles in the United States."

Up in the Royal Box, a faint smile was seen on Queen Elizabeth's face.

"No, sir" Hope continued. "In America we have just two classes — the people and Kennedys. And there are more Kennedys than people."

The queen threw back her head and laughed out loud.

Every president of recent vintage has been the butt of Hope gags — and they all loved it.

* * *

HOPE IS about the only comedian to whom nobody is sacred and that's why, even though their styles are totally different, he must be compared with the late Will Rogers.

Hope, of course, kids himself more than anybody.

He is serious about one thing though — that opening monologue on his radio and now his TV shows.

Bing Crosby is one of the few people who have ever riled Hope. Once when the two were on radio, Bing stood by Bob during the monologue.

"He'd tell a joke and then give me a dirty look which eloquently told me to get the hell off the stage," recalls Bing who stubbornly stood there the whole monologue.

Another time, Bing arranged to fill the first three rows with sailors off a Dutch ship.

"Hope came out smiling because servicemen are his meat. His material was great but he never got one laugh out of them. They couldn't understand one word of English."

Maybe that is why Crosby is the butt of so many jokes by Hope.

* * * *

RICH AS CROSBY is, the word around town is that Hope can buy and sell Bing. The Hope fortune has been estimated at $30 million upwards, mostly in real estate.

He bought San Fernando Valley real estate in the '30s when you couldn't give it away. Some samples: His Toluca Lake estate cost around $28,000 when he bought it in 1938. He's put some wings and some improvements in but you couldn't touch it for $500,000 today.

He bought a piece of land nearby for $18,000 and profitably operated it as a driving range until a few years ago. Then Music Corporation of America, Ltd., gave Hope a million cash for the land.

One of his associates says: "Bob has an uncanny knack for picking real estate at a ridiculously low price and then watch it zoom hundredfold in value."

HOPE MAKES a lot but he also gives away a lot. He recently gave $802,000 to Southern Methodist University. And that's something when you have a wife who roots for Notre Dame.

As Hope once commented: "An atheist is a guy who goes to the Notre Dame-Southern Methodist game and doesn't care who wins."

Although Mrs. Hope has a good record around town for conversions, she never has converted Bob to Catholicism.

But once when Hope was in Rome, he had a private audience with the late Pope Pius XII.

The Pope granted the audience because he had heard of Hope's good works, especially with lonely GI's. As Bob was about to leave the Pope's residence, the Holy Father personally autographed a picture to Bob.

Hope hangs it proudly in his bedroom.

"Dolores doesn't have one but I let her come in here and drool."

"THE ONLY AUDIENCE" subject to court-martial if they walk out on me," is Bob Hope's explanation for his annual Christmas trips to entertain GIs overseas. He's been doing it since the pre-World War II draft.

Radio, Light, Sound Waves Bombard Bugs

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government researchers are using high intensity radio waves, infrared and ultraviolet light waves and sound waves, to bombard bugs in search of new pest control methods, two scientists said.

Dr. S. O. Nelson of the Agricultural Research Service and Dr. J. L. Seubert of the Fish and Wildlife Service predicted "significant developments" from the projects.

They told an international scientific symposium the possibilities of using electromagnetic and sonic energy to control pests are receiving increasing attention because of concern about the effects of chemical pesticides on human and animal health.

"It is difficult to know what practical methods may be developed using these sources of energy, but a few successful methods have already been employed," they said in a joint paper for delivery at the symposium sponsored by the National Academy of Sciences.

Among experimental successes already achieved, they listed:

Use of high-intensity radio waves to treat insect-infested woodwork in houses.

"Blacklight" traps which attract insects with invisible ultraviolet light waves. In one test, such lights proved highly effective in coping with tobacco hornworm moths.

Control of insects in stored wheat and other grains by atomic radiation.

Ultrasonic sound waves focused on a beehive will cause the bees to remain "almost motionless" so that honeycombs can be removed without need for bee smokers.

Broadcasts of ultrasonic signals resembling the pulses emitted by bats frightened moths away from croplands and reduced corn-borer infestations by 50%.

Recording the "distress cries" of starlings and other "nuisance birds" and rebroadcasting them to chase the birds from roosts.

3-Seat Apollo Countdown Test Delayed a Day

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — America's first three-seat Apollo moonship and its new Saturn 1B rocket Saturday ran into minor shakedown problems that forced a day's delay in the last part of a key countdown rehearsal.

The rehearsal is designed to clear the way for an unmanned flight test Feb. 22.

A U.S. space agency spokesman said it was not known what effect, if any, the delay would have on the target date for the initial spaceflight in America's men-to-the-moon program.

'Weekend of Fear' Often One Big Blah

By SAMUEL A. BOYEA

The only thing to fear about Los Angeles' Joe Danford's $30,000 experimental film, "Weekend of Fear" at the Vagabond Theater, 2509 Wilshire, Los Angeles, is that anyone who sees it is in for a lost weekend of art.

Written, produced, directed and edited by the much-publicized 23-year-old Danford, "Weekend" tells the story of a young Los Angeles damsel in distress, Micki Malone, relentlessly pursued by a sinister, bushy-looking young man, Kenneth Washman. He flashes an enormously long switchblade as he "preps" for the coup-de-gore.

The technique is a silent film with stream-of consciousness imposed. In everyday language, you hear the thoughts of the actors. Well, since the principals in this movie think even more dully than they look and act, the result is often one big blah. The interior ministry of fear which grips human beings is never even half-explored. It would have been much better to leave the thinking to the large opening night audience.

With the acting several notches below little theater's standards and Danforth's camera shots of Los Angeles —the film's locale — just a few notches above local experimental film work, I found the film debut of the USC graduate a rather stunning case of hard core plornography.

Tony Alburn (Tom), Ruth Trent (Mrs. Harris), Dianne Danford (Connie) James Vaneck (Jack), Kurt Donsback (Man In Car), Jill Banner (Carol) were the supporting players.

Oh, the Man (Washman) never got his girl victim (Micki as Judy). It turned out that Mrs. Harris (Ruth) schemed up the whole thing because she was a lonely widow with a yen for Tom, Micki's girl. The whole thing ends at the police station — and I think I saw Batman and Robin camping at the desk.

KATIE'S LOT with Jenny Hecht, the late Ben's daughter and BOSSA NOVA BEACH were, however, fine selected short subjects preceding the main-drag.

Gen. Ferenbaugh Is Grand Carabao

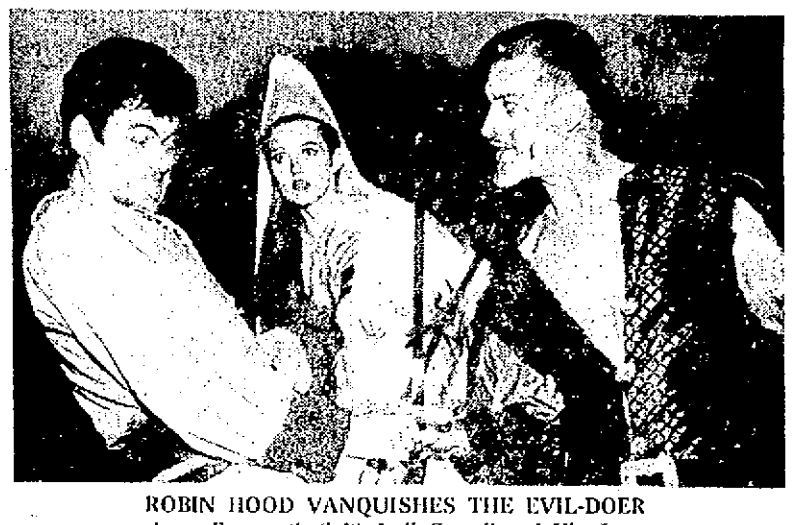

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retired Army Lt. Gen. Claude Ferenbaugh was inducted Saturday night as Grand Paramount Carabao at the annual dinner or "wallow" of the Military Order of the Carabao. He succeeds retired Adm. Arleigh Burke.

The order, founded around the turn of the century, is limited to members of the armed services who have had duty in the Philippines or the adjacent waters.

P.O. to Hold Exams for Jobs

A nationwide competitive examination for temporary summer employment in some of the nation's larger post offices has been announced by Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien and Civil Service Commission chairman John W. Macy in Washington, D.C.

Further information concerning qualifications and the test itself may be obtained by contacting the local post office.

Robin Hood to Play at City College Sat.

Robin Hood and his Merry Men come to the stage of Long Beach City College auditorium for two performances Saturday at 10 a.m. and noon.

The original adaptation of the classic legend will be presented by Lee Thomas and Burnett Ferguson as a Junior Programs of Long Beach production, especially for children 5 to 12 years of age, although adults may attend.

Jerry Foxworth plays the title role of Robin Hood and Kip June is the Sheriff of Nottingham. Dieter Wagner will be Prince John; Maid Marion will be Judi Carroll; Mary Margaret Lewis will be her handmaiden. Others in the cast are Tom Gasparotti, Randy Kramer, Harvey Cohn, Doug Prelps, Kent Davis, Tim Forsyth, Floyd Holt and Kenn Miller.

Tickets will be on sale at the box office before each performance. For further information, call Mrs. William Klingensmith, 371 Linares Ave.

Miss. Bans Gaming; It Flourishes in Biloxi

By JOHN F. HUSSEY

BILOXI, Miss. (UPI) — Gambling is a booming business in Biloxi, but the Chamber of Commerce isn't crowing about it.

Gambling in any form is against the law in Mississippi. And so is the sale of alcoholic beverages. Nevertheless, Mississippi's "Gold Coast," one of the nation's most popular tourist and convention centers, is a place where a man can buy a drink and roll the dice.

In addition to luxurious hotel and motel accommodations, the Gold Coast area between Biloxi and Gulfport probably offers the most wide-open gambling east of Las Vegas.

Nightclubs have gambling facilities ranging from slot machines and a blackjack table to elaborate layouts rivaling casinos in Las Vegas and Reno in comfort, if not size.

* * * *

BILOXI AND THE coastal section of tourist-hungry Harrison County have had some form of gambling for years. It reached a high point in the early 1950's and led to an investigation by then Sen. Lyndon Johnson's armed services preparedness subcommittee.

At the time, federal authorities counted more than 1,500 gambling devices and 11 horse race wires.

Most of the gambling places are just west of the Biloxi city limits but within an area recently annexed to the city. The annexation has not yet become final. This borders on territory recently taken in by neighboring Gulfport, where gambling is strictly banned.

The senate subcommittee investigation led to a crackdown on gambling 14 years ago but things soon were back to normal. The late Gov. Hugh White ordered Mississippi National Guardsmen into the area in 1955.

Ax-swinging Guardsmen again were sent here during the first few years of the administration of Gov. Ross Barnett. There has been no similar action by current Gov. Paul Johnson.

* * * *

AS EVIDENCE of recent expansion, several nightclubs have added or modernized their "gaming rooms." One recently completed casino overlooks the gulf and has three big rooms. One contains roulette tables, craps tables, blackjack and poker. Professional dealers and croupiers run the games. There is nothing amateurish about the operations.

The better places have their names engraved on chips which range from one dollar up.

The atmosphere is pleasant. Several of the places had people standing around to give helpful hints on how to play the games.

"It's basically this," smiled one, handing me some chips and the dice. "The less you bet, the more you lose when you win."

Police Chief Louis Roselli admits that Biloxi and the surrounding vacation haven always have been "a little apart from Mississippi" in the enforcement of liquor and gambling laws.

* * * *

THE STATE COLLECTS a "black market" tax on liquor and so does the city. But so far, there is no official tax on gambling.

Clinton C. Blackwell, editor of the Gulfport Daily Herald just west of here, says illegal liquor sales and gambling grown steadily since 1960. Gambling to lure tourists has spread even more within the past six months. Numerous places are off-limits to the officers and airmen of Keesler Air Force Base.

With the closing of gambling casinos in Hot Springs, Ark., by Gov. Orval Faubus, West Biloxi now becomes probably the biggest center of public gambling east of Nevada. It's new status generates two points of view.

"We're against it," said Biloxi chamber director Anthony Ragusin.

"We like things the way they are," countered a blackjack dealer at one club who moved here from New York and has made it his permanent home.

* * * *

THE TOURISTS WHO flock year around to the Mississippi Gulf coast brought nearly $80 million last year. Biloxi is second only to New Orleans as the biggest convention center from Miami to Galveston, Tex.

Some area businessmen would like to see legalized gambling and liquor. They feel horse racing in particular would do much to stabilize Biloxi as a winter resort. This was proposed to the Mississippi legislature, which summarly turned it down.

Others say gambling harms business and would like it eliminated. But there appears no movement in that direction.

'A DISTINGUISHED AMERICAN'

Bob Hope—Mr. Go, Go, Go

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—President John F. Kennedy called him "a distinguished American public figure."

When he was in a hospital, President Johnson penned him a note of cheer.

Who? Why Bob Hope, of course.

The onetime vaudeville song and dance man, with an incredible nonstop 40-year-plus torrent of gags, has tuly become what some admirers call him: An American institution.

There may be funnier comics, better actors. But when Rapid Robert goes into a monologue, the world is conditioned to respond. You laugh, though the gag may be flat, because it's Hope.

* * * *

BRITISH-BORN Leslie Townes Hope is a sort of Mr. America, a dispenser of native humor that seems to strike a responsive chord with everyone, typist to tycoon.

It has been said that Hope has gotten more laughs out of more people than any man in history. It's probably so because no man probably has played before more audiences.

Consider this record: Uncounted personal appearances dating back to vaudeville, and including thousands before GIs around the world; radio since 1938; movies since 1938; television since 1950.

And the pace. He's slowed the last few years, but still is the closest thing to a perpetual motion machine. Vacations and hobbies bore him: "Fish don't applaud." Golf, which he plays with intense dedication, is his only "relaxation." He thinks show business, or performs show biz, almost all his waking hours. He's always "on," no matter what he's up to.

* * * *

VETERAN Hope watchers —and Bob himself— give the same answers when asked to define the "other" Hope. They say there is none . . . the public Hope is the private Hope.

There may once have been one. He may once have been able to let down, shed the tension and the nervousness and preoccupation with the next quip, relax utterly, be playful or deeply serious. But over the years the man has become his image. He's a bit less brash, but the sardonic smile always is with him. There's still a gag for every occasion.

If this makes him a cardboard man—no depth, a fellow with but one side to present to the world—it bothers Bob not a bit. He's not given to introspection. He's happy highballing down the show business track.

A few month ago, for instance, he finished a television dress rehearsal. Instead of resting the two hours before air time, as other performers did, Hope hit two benefits — for a Catholic charity and a Jewish hospital.

Isn't that a bit busy for a chap who was nursing a blood clot in the eye not so long ago?

"No," said Hope. "Audiences are my best friends. You never tire talking with your best friends."

* * * *

WHEN HE isn't on stage, he's honing material for the next appearance.

Hope Enterprises spends half a million a year on seven writers. But he could be almost as funny without them. A pretty good gag originator himself, he's a connoisseur of the work of others . . . a joke editor supreme.

His writers are always on call. One says: "Bob never wears a watch. He called me once at 4 a.m. and said: 'I'm due to get an honorary degree in a couple of hours. How about some academic gags?'"

And some of Hope's academic addresses shake the halls of ivy.

He got his fifth honorary degree recently at Whittier College. Richard Nixon's alma mater. Said Hope, in cap and gown:

"This degree is an act of great courage—and a body blow to higher education. Doctor of humane letters—that sounds like a veterinarian.

"Some people here were so sure Nixon was going to be elected president, they started building the log cabin he was born in."

* * * *

HE'S CONSTANTLY on the go.

What does Mrs. Hope think about his frequent absences from home?

"My wife isn't sure what line of work I'm in. She thinks I'm an airline pilot.

"Our towels are marked 'Hers' and 'Welcome Stranger.'"

Mrs. Hope misses her husband, but comments:

"I knew when I married him 31 years ago I'd have to share him with the world. My husband needs audiences like babies need milk."

Hope's daughter, Linda, voices the family feeling about their traveling parent.

"It's not necessarily the amount of time spent with you that matters, but the quality. When he's with us, he is interested in us every minute. He's a wonderful father.

"Lots of parents can be home all the time and yet be estranged from their family. Our dad is not like that. Life with father is never dull."

Mrs. Hope is a prominent Catholic laywoman. She is immersed in church and charitable activities, but she and Bob used to golf together a lot.

"Until I beat him," she smiles. The Hope family is seldom together for Christmas unless they travel with Bob to some far-flung troop outpost. So they open their gifts on New Year's eve.

* * * *

AT 62, he says he's taking things easier but you'll have to take his word for it, it's not visible. He vows he'll never retire.

And one thing he'll never give up—the annual Christmas junket for the GI's overseas.

"Where else can I find an audience that's subject to courtmartial if they walk out on me?"

President Johnson says it better: "Christmas overseas without Bob Hope is simply not Christmas."

Hope started playing for the troops before they were issued uniforms. The very day Secretary of War Henry Stimson drew the first World War II draft number out of a hat, Hope was in San Francisco entertaining the first numbers called.

By Pearl Harbor, he had played 562 service benefits. He's lost count since.

"I know I still have the same rank. Chicken first-class."

He's been under gunfire in every part of the world. And he has a standard gag for the occasion.

* * * *

HE WAS BORN Leslie Townes Hope in Eltham, England, moving to Cleveland as a child.

"I was known as Les Hope until the other kids changed to Hope Less. That's when I became Bob."

Hope had a fling at chicken plucking, auto repair and even a semester at Western Reserve University before he gave his all to showbusiness.

EVEN IN his early days of vaudeville, Hope's humor was irreverent—and courageous.

Back in the gangster era in Chicago, this was a routine he did there with his then-partner.

Hope: "My brother was a brave man because he slapped Al Capone in the face."

Partner: "I'd like to shake his hand."

Hope: "We ain't gonna dig him up for that."

In 1962 during the Kennedy Administration, Hope did a command performance at the London Palladium. Stage references or jokes about the Royal Family are banned in Britain, but Hope began:

"We don't have titles in the United States."

Up in the Royal Box, a faint smile was seen on Queen Elizabeth's face.

"No, sir" Hope continued. "In America we have just two classes — the people and Kennedys. And there are more Kennedys than people."

The queen threw back her head and laughed out loud.

Every president of recent vintage has been the butt of Hope gags — and they all loved it.

* * *

HOPE IS about the only comedian to whom nobody is sacred and that's why, even though their styles are totally different, he must be compared with the late Will Rogers.

Hope, of course, kids himself more than anybody.

He is serious about one thing though — that opening monologue on his radio and now his TV shows.

Bing Crosby is one of the few people who have ever riled Hope. Once when the two were on radio, Bing stood by Bob during the monologue.

"He'd tell a joke and then give me a dirty look which eloquently told me to get the hell off the stage," recalls Bing who stubbornly stood there the whole monologue.

Another time, Bing arranged to fill the first three rows with sailors off a Dutch ship.

"Hope came out smiling because servicemen are his meat. His material was great but he never got one laugh out of them. They couldn't understand one word of English."

Maybe that is why Crosby is the butt of so many jokes by Hope.

* * * *

RICH AS CROSBY is, the word around town is that Hope can buy and sell Bing. The Hope fortune has been estimated at $30 million upwards, mostly in real estate.

He bought San Fernando Valley real estate in the '30s when you couldn't give it away. Some samples: His Toluca Lake estate cost around $28,000 when he bought it in 1938. He's put some wings and some improvements in but you couldn't touch it for $500,000 today.

He bought a piece of land nearby for $18,000 and profitably operated it as a driving range until a few years ago. Then Music Corporation of America, Ltd., gave Hope a million cash for the land.

One of his associates says: "Bob has an uncanny knack for picking real estate at a ridiculously low price and then watch it zoom hundredfold in value."

HOPE MAKES a lot but he also gives away a lot. He recently gave $802,000 to Southern Methodist University. And that's something when you have a wife who roots for Notre Dame.

As Hope once commented: "An atheist is a guy who goes to the Notre Dame-Southern Methodist game and doesn't care who wins."

Although Mrs. Hope has a good record around town for conversions, she never has converted Bob to Catholicism.

But once when Hope was in Rome, he had a private audience with the late Pope Pius XII.

The Pope granted the audience because he had heard of Hope's good works, especially with lonely GI's. As Bob was about to leave the Pope's residence, the Holy Father personally autographed a picture to Bob.

Hope hangs it proudly in his bedroom.

"Dolores doesn't have one but I let her come in here and drool."

Disneyland Capital Investment Grows

By ROBERT BECKMAN
Southland Progress Editor

During its first 10 years, Disneyland's capital investment grew from $17 million on opening day to more than $53 million.

In the next five months, the figure will jump another $20 million with the completion of four new gigantic attractions.

"What we will do by this summertime," Walt Disney said after announcing the new attractions last week, "is to raise our investment more than the whole of Disneyland cost when we opened a decade ago."

On opening day in 1955, Disney reminded, the attractions totaled 22. As of today, the number is 48.

Through the years the annual attendance figure also has risen steadily. A total of 6,356,000 persons poured through the park gates last year, raising the total for the decade to 52 million.

With it came added prosperity to Anaheim, to Orange County and to all of Southern California.

"Until now," Disney elaborated, "we have been talking about Disneyland Past. Now we are talking about Disneyland Future."

Hinting his statisticians have accurately settled on the number of visitors that can be expected this year—and for many years to come—Disney referred to residents in the Southland becoming repeat visitors to the Magic Kingdom.

"As Southern California grows," he declared, "so will Disneyland continue to grow."

Disney and his aides promised "bigger and better things" in Tomorrowland with a "multimillion-dollar" redevelopment slated to commence immediately after this summer's throngs have departed.

Tomorrowland, for nine months, will be closed, Disney said.

Expected to thrill first-timers to the park and to delight returnees, Disney declared, are these new attractions this year:

1. "It's a Small World," an enlargement of Disney's New York Fair pleaser featuring doll-sized, fully animated youngsters from many lands, singing the theme song in native tongues amid appropriate settings. The enlarged version calls for 500 "audio-animatronic" figures representing 100 nations.

2. "New Orleans Square," in which a large French Quarter area with winding streets and promenades, balconied buildings, courtyards and shops will depict the hot-blooded but cultured atmosphere of the old city.

3. "Pirates of the Caribbean," a boat ride—longest in the park—past life-like scenes in which fully animated pirates in quick succession attack, ransack and pillage a Caribbean port town.

4. "World Primeval," a continuation of the train ride through the Grand Canyon diorama that, within an additional 420 feet, will give visitors a vivid look into prehistoric times with moving gigantic animals, reptiles and insects roaming out of the dawn of history.

It is this "audio-animatronics," Disney reasoned, that will draw more and more people to the Kingdom.

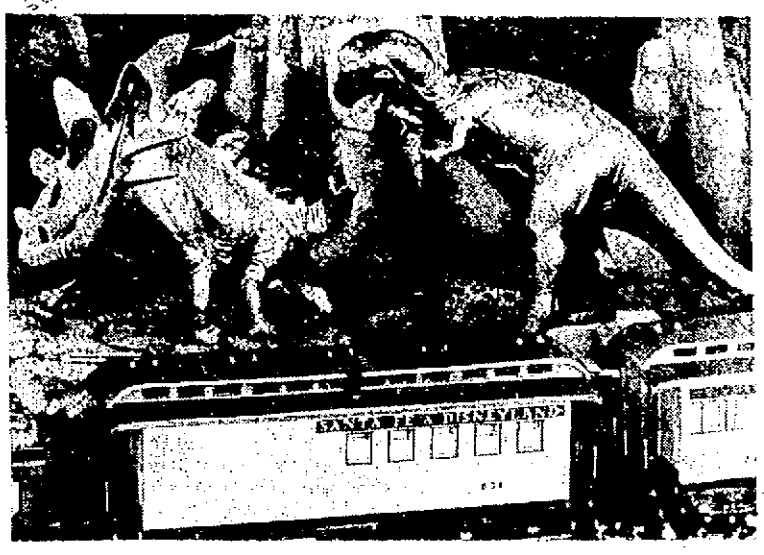

The system, first introduced in the park's Enchanted Tiki Room, and giving voice and motion to hundreds of singing birds, proved most popular at the New York Fair, he said.

It was "audio-animatronics" that gave motion and voice to Disneyland's major new attraction in 1955—"Great Moments With Mr. Lincoln" in the inspiring Lincoln Theater.

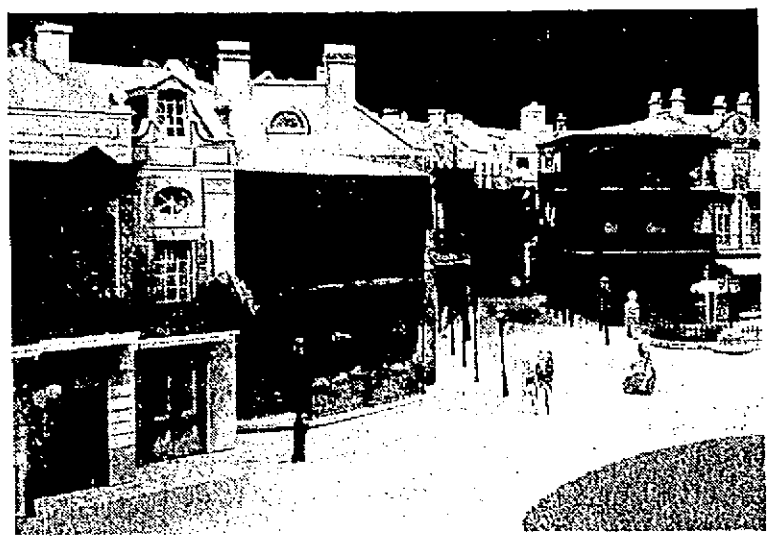

Audio-animatronics? A taped sound and information track delivering electronic impulse to hundreds of lips, eyes, limbs and audio units.

Robots?

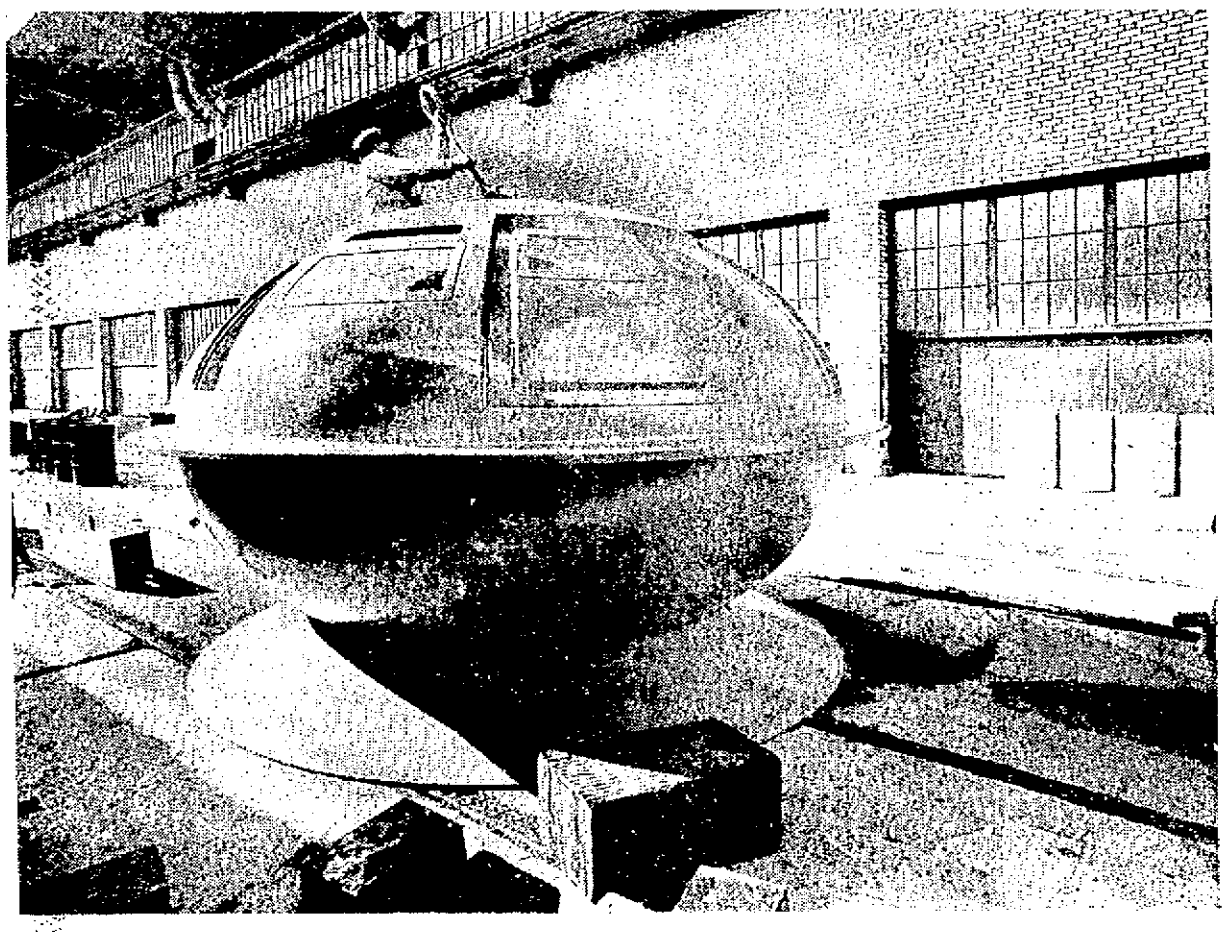

"No," said Disney, "but the most life-like people you'll ever see without a soul."

IN 'WORLD PRIMEVAL' . . . Prehistoric Giants in Death Struggle

Survival Capsule Could Be Successor to Lifeboat

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Marine Reporter

A space age lifeboat that promises to take much of the terror out of disasters at sea may soon provide Long Beach with an important new industry.

An operational model of the revolutionary craft—called a Survival Capsule and shaped like a movie-version of a Flying Saucer is being readied for public demonstrations at the site of the former Ford plant on Terminal Island.

The vessel is heralded by its developers as the successor to the lifeboat and the greatest advance in survival-at-sea devices.

THE SURVIVAL Capsule is the brainchild of a 30-year old inventor, Charles Otterman. It was while designing a prototype two-man submarine that the tremendous potentialities of the Survival Capsule occurred to Otterman.

It was a chance meeting in an attorney's office that brought Otterman together with Milton Brucker, 53-year old aeronautical engineer and pioneer in plastics and polyester materials.

Brucker, former head of the Zenith Plastics Co. of Gardena, immediately realized the advantages of Otterman's capsule.

Brucker saw it offered the maximum protection against the greatest cause of loss of life at sea—exposure.

Its compound contour shape, its use, its market price dictated to Brucker the capsule had to be made of lightweight, tough, salt-water resistant plastic.

FEATURES of the capsule, according to Brucker:

The 2,600-pound craft, with an inside diameter of 12 feet, is roomy enough for up to 40 passengers, is completely enclosed and watertight. It won't sink, even when filled with water.

A snorkle system provides fresh air and exhausts stale air and bilge pumps can handle any water seepage before the hatches are closed. The craft can be dropped into the water from a single davit without damage or injury to passengers wearing safety belts.

The craft has a steel loop atop its orange-colored dome for hoisting from the water either by ship or helicopter, does not have to head into swells and nondrift will aid searching units. It is easily detectable by radar.

A SMALL DIESEL engine is provided for quick escape from the vacuum tide of a sinking vessel. Engine and steering mechanism are located in the center of the doughnut-shaped craft, ringed on the inside with a continuous seating ledge.

The craft, stocked with fresh water, food and medical supplies, also has a toilet with drop curtain for privacy.

Brucker estimates that when in full production from 300 to 400 people will be employed at the plant.

A prototype is being readied for the first public viewing of the unique vessel during the Offshore Exploration Conference to be staged in Long Beach February 22-24.

Market research indicates the capsule could be marketed at an average price of $15,000.

"THE SURVIVAL Capsule is an excellent example of the immense potential for a maritime city of the developing field of oceanology, or ocean-oriented industries," said cityharbor ocean-ographic consultant Louis F. Jobst Jr.

"If the 18,033 merchant ships and the 3,436 tankers in use on the open seas today were to be equipped with only four capsules per vessel it would require 85,876 of them," claims Brucker.

"Sales to this market alone would amount to nearly $1.3 billion," calculates the former plastic firm president.

New ship construction would call for an additional 1,700 of the survival vessels each year and would result in another $23 million in sales according to Brucker.

STILL ANOTHER market would be vessels in the 100 to 1,000-ton class, plus those plying lakes and inland waterways which would produce additional annual sales of $22 million for approximately 1,500 of the craft.

"The unsinkable, non-capsizable spheres have international appeal: to ship passengers because of the feeling of safety and security; to crewmen, many of whom cannot swim, because it eliminates the fear of abandoning ship in raging seas and depending upon an open life boat as a haven, and to ship owners and operators because of the relatively low original cost, negligible maintenance cost and little, if any, replacement cost," Brucker says.

Disneyland Capital Investment Grows

By ROBERT BECKMAN
Southland Progress Editor

During its first 10 years, Disneyland's capital investment grew from $17 million on opening day to more than $53 million.

In the next five months, the figure will jump another $20 million with the completion of four new gigantic attractions.

"What we will do by this summertime," Walt Disney said after announcing the new attractions last week, "is to raise our investment more than the whole of Disneyland cost when we opened a decade ago."

On opening day in 1955, Disney reminded, the attractions totaled 22. As of today, the number is 48.

Through the years the annual attendance figure also has risen steadily. A total of 6,356,000 persons poured through the park gates last year, raising the total for the decade to 52 million.

With it came added prosperity to Anaheim, to Orange County and to all of Southern California.

"Until now," Disney elaborated, "we have been talking about Disneyland Past. Now we are talking about Disneyland Future."

Hinting his statisticians have accurately settled on the number of visitors that can be expected this year—and for many years to come—Disney referred to residents in the Southland becoming repeat visitors to the Magic Kingdom.

"As Southern California grows," he declared, "so will Disneyland continue to grow."

Disney and his aides promised "bigger and better things" in Tomorrowland with a "multimillion-dollar" redevelopment slated to commence immediately after this summer's throngs have departed.

Tomorrowland, for nine months, will be closed, Disney said.

Expected to thrill first-timers to the park and to delight returnees, Disney declared, are these new attractions this year:

1. "It's a Small World," an enlargement of Disney's New York Fair pleaser featuring doll-sized, fully animated youngsters from many lands, singing the theme song in native tongues amid appropriate settings. The enlarged version calls for 500 "audio-animatronic" figures representing 100 nations.

2. "New Orleans Square," in which a large French Quarter area with winding streets and promenades, balconied buildings, courtyards and shops will depict the hot-blooded but cultured atmosphere of the old city.

3. "Pirates of the Caribbean," a boat ride—longest in the park—past life-like scenes in which fully animated pirates in quick succession attack, ransack and pillage a Caribbean port town.

4. "World Primeval," a continuation of the train ride through the Grand Canyon diorama that, within an additional 420 feet, will give visitors a vivid look into prehistoric times with moving gigantic animals, reptiles and insects roaming out of the dawn of history.

It is this "audio-animatronics," Disney reasoned, that will draw more and more people to the Kingdom.

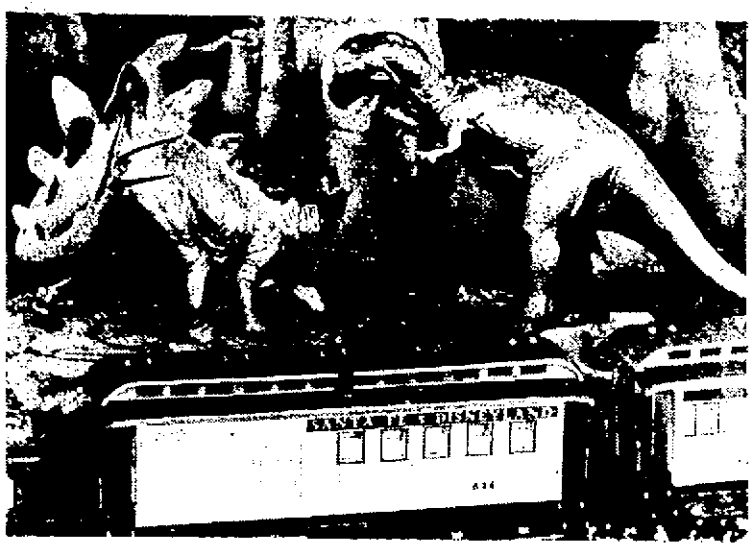

The system, first introduced in the park's Enchanted Tiki Room, and giving voice and motion to hundreds of singing birds, proved most popular at the New York Fair, he said.

It was "audio-animatronics" that gave motion and voice to Disneyland's major new attraction in 1955—"Great Moments With Mr. Lincoln" in the inspiring Lincoln Theater.

Audio-animatronics? A taped sound and information track delivering electronic impulse to hundreds of lips, eyes, limbs and audio units.

Robots?

"No," said Disney, "but the most life-like people you'll ever see without a soul."

Salesmen to Replace Clerks—If Store to Succeed

By KEN CHILCOTE
Business Editor

There can be no "clerks" in today's successful retail business if a firm is to make progress!

Time was when a sales person could approach a customer with "May I help you," and it was considered good salesmanship. But that approach has become like a worn-out record after a customer hears it from store to store.

"It's terrific, it's a swell buy, it's our best seller," and such wordage comes from a clerk who doesn't fit in with today's selling.

American industry has made great strides in recent years in the production of various lines of improved foods, clothing and household wares but at the retail level there has been a stumbling block.

For that reason, retail organizations are establishing higher standards for the sales staff.

* * * *

THE CLERK OF yesterday must be a merchandising specialist tomorrow to keep pace.

Retailers and industry must be partners with the responsibility of keeping the wheels of progress running in this age of scientific and technological changes.

Sophistication of today's consumer goods calls for greater knowledgeability and individual effort from retail personnel.

To be a successful sales specialist a person must create desire for what he sells. He must know, thoroughly, the product he is selling and sell its advantages to the customer.

The approach to a customer is very important. A cheery "good morning" from a salesman will open the door in a friendly manner, instead of the sing-song "May I help you?" Why is the customer there? He came to buy and naturally you can help him.

* * * *

POLITENESS AND ability to convey a genuine interest in serving the customer, plus avoidance of any question that easily calls for a negative answer are musts in today's selling.

Across the nation many large retail establishments are conducting schools for their sales personnel.

Locally, the Downtown Long Beach Associates for several years has conducted special seminars for sales personnel which have brought favorable results. However, too few retail firms have participated for real citywide sales improvement.

This city, like most others, could use more merchandise specialists and fewer clerks.

HERE AND THERE . . . The macaroni industry faces great competitive challenges in the next decade and must create new markets, the National Macaroni Manufacturers members were told by market consultants in their convention in Hollywood, Fla. They are making plans for better promotion to draw the housewife to their products instead of other quick-meal offers on market shelves.

Makers of battery-powered radios got a great boost with the New York blackout. Now they are stressing how every home needs such equipment

. . . Food preservation is about to take a third giant step with nuclear radiation. First it was the tin can, then frozen foods.

APPARENTLY cigarette smokers would rather fight than switch! Progressive Grocer magazine reports after a "Consumer Dynamics in the Super Mart" survey.

Cigaret smokers are the least likely to switch brands if their market is out of their favorite brand of smokes. Four out of five times they will go elsewhere to buy their choice cigarettes.

Yet half of those interviewed said they would switch brands if the store were out of their favorite in such items as margarine, cereal, catsup, peanut butter, tissues, shortening, canned milk or waxed paper.

A QUICK GLANCE over the construction industry outlook in the area for this week shows continued strong activity:

STANTON — Architect Hugh Gibbs of Long Beach has completed plans for a $140,000 restaurant to be built for Coachella Valley Land & Cattle Co. at Beach Boulevard and Chapman Street.

PARAMOUNT — Drawings are being prepared for a $120,000 county fire station to be built at 7521 Compton Boulevard.

COSTA MESA—Plans will be available for contractors about March 15 on a fire station and maintenance yard building, estimated cost, $275,000, to be built on Placentia Street.

TORRANCE — Working plans will be ready within a few days for a $240,000 addition to the Hi-Shear Corp., plant 2600 W. 247th Street.

SANTA ANA — Working plans are nearly complete on the proposed $3,250,000 senior high school and swim pool at Segerstrom Avenue and Flower Street.

EL SEGUNDO — Mayfair Markets will occupy a $300,000 structure to be built at 220 Grand Ave., by Bolo Corp.

ORANGE — Howard Lawson will build a $260,000 theater in the Town & Country Shopping Center.

GARDENA—Harvey Dental Specialties will build a $50,000 addition to the plant at 13615 Alma Ave.

TUSTIN—Southern Baptist Church will build a $200,000 project at 13841 Redhill Ave., including a pre-school building, classrooms and social hall.

TORRANCE—Scott Robinson Pontiac agency, 20340 Hawthorne Blvd., will build a $30,000 addition.

DOMINGUEZ — The county will take bids Feb. 15 on a new fire station to be erected at 2060 E. 223rd St.

SANTA ANA — Poly Optic will build a $65,000 office structure and research plant in the Redhill Industrial Tract.

BELLFLOWER — The city has called for bids on an estimated $75,000 project to install bleacher seats in Simms Park, 16614 Clark Ave.

SEAL BEACH — The Navy has called for bids for Feb. 24 on a $1 million addition to the Saturn S-II facilities here.

WESTMINSTER — Arthur V. Adams of Los Angeles will erect a building at Garden Grove Boulevard and Springdale Street for a Twin Castle Restaurant. He plans three other adjacent structures.

EL SEGUNDO — Construction is well underway on a 47,000 square foot building on Hawaii Street in the El Segundo Industrial Park. Construction is due for completion by March 1 on a 17,000-square-foot building for Laura Scudder's at 525 N. Douglas St.

LA MIRADA—A. J. Gerrard & Co., Los Angeles, will move this month into a new facility to house the manufacturing of a trapping at 2906 Leonis Blvd.

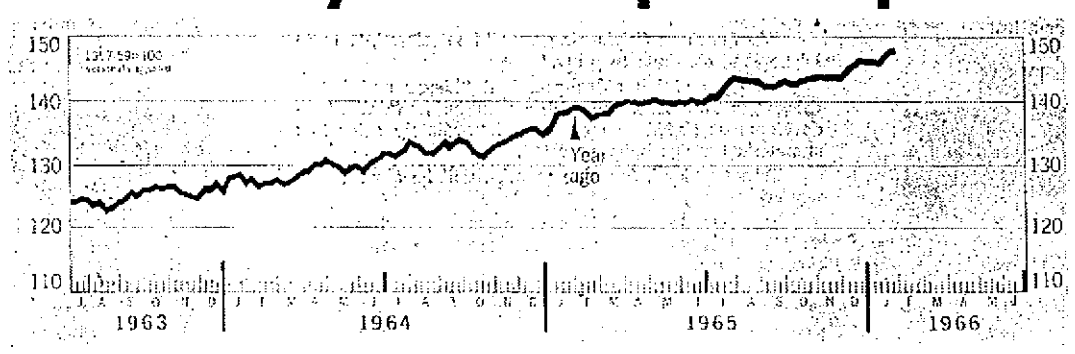

BREA—Collier Carbon and Chemical Corp., Los Angeles, is expanding its facilities here at 15471 E. Imperial Hwy., to manufacture some additional products including ammonia.

FULLERTON — Kimberly Clark Co., will expand its plant at 2001 E. Orangethorpe Ave., to increase production of Kleenex tissues and other paper products.

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Electricity Consumption Up 9%

	'57-59 Average	Year Ago	Month Ago	Week Ago	Latest Week
Business Week Index	100	139.4	146.9	148.6	148.5

Americans, it seems, have all the switches turned on. They are using electric power at record rates—to run the house (especially the heating plant these wintry days) and to turn out goods.

Power output is currently running at more than 22 billion kilowatt hours a week, nearly 9% more than a year ago at this time and a whopping 70% over the Index base period of 1957-59.

Power is a commodity that cannot really be stored economically, so it is produced for immediate use. Two-thirds of it is used in business activity—mostly in industry, but also in commercial establishments of one kind or another.

It reacts more quickly than any other Index component to week-to-week changes in over-all business activity.

For these reasons, electric power output is one of the broadest and best measures of a nation's economic progress, and is the ranking heavyweight (at 29 out of 100) among the dozen components in the Business Week Index.

So, every time a homeowner plugs in a new color TV set, and an industrialist puts a new machine to work, the Index feels it.

NEW CREDIT CHECKER

Split-Second Answer On Orange, Los Angeles Co. Buyers

The Los Angeles Retail Merchants Credit Association will employ an RCA 3301 computer system to provide retailers with split-second information on the credit rating of millions of consumers considering time purchases of everything from tires to color TV sets, the Radio Corporation of America has announced.

The 3301, along with an RCA mass memory storage system and video data display terminals, will keep tabs on the credit status of approximately five million residents of Los Angeles and Orange Counties.

Initially, the video data display terminals, which resemble home TV sets, will be located at the Association's headquarters, according to William Conel, general manager of the organization.

EVENTUALLY, they may be installed in larger retail establishments, banks, and other member offices for direct communication with the computer, he added.

"The computer system will make it possible for us to meet the expected tripling of our master file in the next few years," Conel said. "Our inquiry and filing volume now averages 20,000 a day. The computer can help handle three times that number each working day."

After completion of the systems design and programming work now in progress, Conel said, about 3% of the master file of names will be fed into the data processing system for a testing period. The remainder of the file then will be placed in the computer memory.

The computerized system offers such benefits as faster service, more accurate filing and searching, more up-to-date information, greater security control and reduced operating expense," Conel said.

"IN OUR CONCEPT of computerized credit reporting, we plan to give our members complete, verified information, whether favorable or unfavorable. We do not contemplate limiting reports to negative information and inquiries. This makes the task more difficult but we believe it can be accomplished."

Inquiries will flow into the computer center either by telephone or via teletypewriter circuits. An accompanying keyboard permits the operator to feed inquiries into the computer.

The master file will be indexed alphabetically by surname. To overcome the problem of identical names, the individual will be listed by present address, previous address, social security number, birth date (excluding the year in deference to the females included) and the spouse's name.

To Honor Salesman of Year

The award for "Long Beach Salesman of the Year" will be presented at the annual Distinguished Salesman Award Banquet at the Lafayette Hotel, Monday night, according to Jim Willingham, president of the Long Beach Sales & Marketing Executives Club.

Hosted by the Club the annual affair is the highlight of "National Salesman's Week." The DSA award is given public recognition for outstanding proficiency in salesmanship and the vital role that salesmen play in a dynamic economy.

Mayor Edwin W. Wade and James H. Crooker will present the trophy for the Long Beach Salesman of the Year award.

Age Cycle Extremes in Housing

Special to The L. P-T

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Two groups of single persons at opposite ends of the age cycle are continuing to make an unexpectedly large impact on the housing market, Harold K. Steele, president of the Long Beach District Board of Realtors, declared last week.

Steele, attending the inaugural meeting of the National Association of Real Estate Boards with 1,500 other realtor leaders, based his statement on reports presented at the gathering.

* * * *

THIS IMPACT is coming from elderly widows and widowers and the young unmarried, explained Steele.

"Recent studies have disclosed the suprising inclination of the elderly to live alone after the death of a spouse, rather than joining a family group," he said.

"Almost as unexpected is the recently discernible trend of young unmarried people moving from the family home to separate living quarters," Steele said.

RECOGNIZED FOR WORK

Mooney to Distribute Engines

Pacific Mooney, Inc., 3501 Lakewood Blvd., Long Beach, has completed arrangements to distribute piston engines manufactured by the Lycoming Division of AVCO Corp. throughout Southern California.

Aviation Power Supply, Inc., Inc., of Burbank, 70% owner of Pacific Mooney and holder of the Lycoming distributorship, will utilize the Long Beach Airport firm as headquarters for this operation.

* * * *

PACIFIC MOONEY, now occupying a new facility on 4.5 acres at Long Beach, is also Southern California distributor for Mooney aircraft.

Officers of the company include Joseph Benjamin, president; Fred A. Mayer, vice president; Norman G. Lauricella, treasurer, and Dorothy D. Branch, secretary.

Escrow Course Is Offered at Cerritos

Cerritos College at Norwalk is offering an Escrow Certificate Program, in cooperation with the Southeast Escrow and California Escrow Associations.

An escrow certificate will be awarded to students successfully completing 28 units of credits, 22 required and six elective.

Douglas Missile Division Earns Large Bonus

The Thor's 1965 launch achievement of 21 successes extended the famed booster's record to 51 successes in a row for the Air Force at the Western Test Range.

The bonus was earned under terms of a contract, valued at $17,150,000, with the Air Force Space Systems Division for calendar year 1965. A small portion of the bonus is attributable to cost underrunning.

Big Air Gain

WESTMINSTER — Arthur V. Adams of Los Angeles will erect a building at Garden Grove Boulevard and Springdale Street for a Twin Castle Restaurant. He plans three other adjacent structures.

EL SEGUNDO — Construction is well underway on a 47,000 square foot building on Hawaii Street in the El Segundo Industrial Park. Construction is due for completion by March 1 on a 17,000-square-foot building for Laura Scudder's at 525 N. Douglas St.

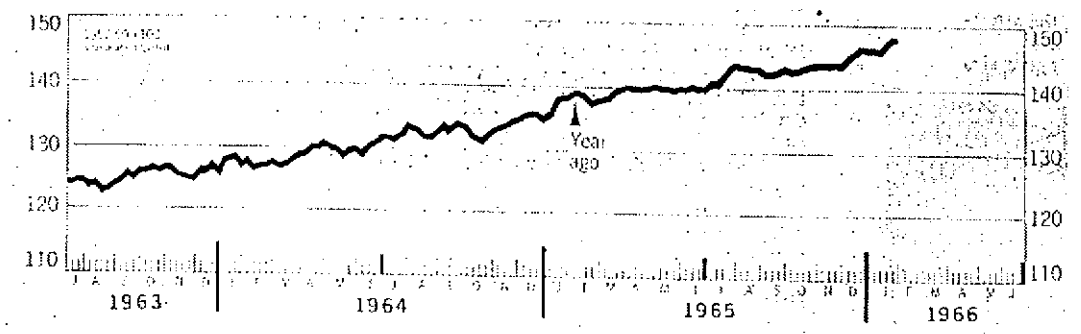

LA MIRADA—A. J. Gerrard & Co., Los Angeles, will move this month into a new facility to house the manufacturing of a trapping at 2906 Leonis Blvd.

BREA—Collier Carbon and Chemical Corp., Los Angeles, is expanding its facilities here at 15471 E. Imperial Hwy., to manufacture some additional products including ammonia.

FULLERTON — Kimberly Clark Co., will expand its plant at 2001 E. Orangethorpe Ave., to increase production of Kleenex tissues and other paper products.

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Electricity Consumption Up 9%

Business Week Index	'57-59 Average	Year Ago	Month Ago	Week Ago	Latest Week
	100	139.4	146.9	148.6	148.5

Americans, it seems, have all the switches turned on. They are using electric power at record rates—to run the house (especially the heating plant these wintry days) and to turn out goods.

Power output is currently running at more than 22 billion kilowatt hours a week, nearly 9% more than a year ago at this time and a whopping 70% over the Index base period of 1957-59.

Power is a commodity that cannot really be stored economically, so it is produced for immediate use. Two-thirds of it is used in business activity—mostly in industry, but also in commercial establishments of one kind or another.

It reacts more quickly than any other Index component to week-to-week changes in over-all business activity.

For these reasons, electric power output is one of the broadest and best measures of a nation's economic progress, and is the ranking heavyweight (at 29 out of 100) among the dozen components in the Business Week Index.

So, every time a homeowner plugs in a new color TV set, and an industrialist puts a new machine to work, the Index feels it.

NEW CREDIT CHECKER

Split-Second Answer On Orange, Los Angeles Co. Buyers

The Los Angeles Retail Merchants Credit Association will employ an RCA 3301 computer system to provide retailers with split-second information on the credit rating of millions of consumers considering time purchases of everything from tires to color TV sets, the Radio Corporation of America has announced.

The 3301, along with an RCA mass memory storage system and video data display terminals, will keep tabs on the credit status of approximately five million residents of Los Angeles and Orange Counties.

Initially, the video data display terminals, which resemble home TV sets, will be located at the Association's headquarters, according to William Conel, general manager of the organization.

EVENTUALLY, they may be installed in larger retail establishments, banks, and other member offices for direct communication with the computer, he added.

"The computer system will make it possible for us to meet the expected tripling of our master file in the next few years," Conel said. "Our inquiry and filing volume now averages 20,000 a day. The computer can help handle three times that number each working day."

After completion of the systems design and programming work now in progress, Conel said, about 3% of the master file of names will be fed into the data processing system for a testing period. The remainder of the file then will be placed in the computer memory.

"The computerized system offers such benefits as faster service, more accurate filing and searching, more up-to-date information, greater security control and reduced operating expense," Conel said.

"IN OUR CONCEPT of computerized credit reporting, we plan to give our members complete, verified information, whether favorable or unfavorable. We do not contemplate limiting reports to negative information and inquiries. This makes the task more difficult but we believe it can be accomplished."

Inquiries will flow into the computer center either by telephone or via teletypewriter circuits. An accompanying keyboard permits the operator to feed inquiries into the computer.

The master file will be indexed alphabetically by surname. To overcome the problem of identical names, the individual will be listed by present address, previous address, social security number, birth date (excluding the year in deference to the females included) and the spouse's name.

To Honor Salesman of Year

The award for "Long Beach Salesman of the Year" will be presented at the annual Distinguished Salesman Award Banquet at the Lafayette Hotel, Monday night, according to Jim Willingham, president of the Long Beach Sales & Marketing Executives Club.

Hosted by the Club the annual affair is the highlight of "National Salesman's Week." The DSA award is given public recognition for outstanding proficiency in salesmanship and the vital role that salesmen play in a dynamic economy.

Mayor Edwin W. Wade and James H. Crooker will present the trophy for the Long Beach Salesman of the Year award.

Age Cycle Extremes in Housing

Special to The I. P-T

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Two groups of single persons at opposite ends of the age cycle are continuing to make an unexpectedly large impact on the housing market, Harold K. Steele, president of the Long Beach District Board of Realtors, declared last week.

Steele, attending the inaugural meeting of the National Association of Real Estate Boards with 1,500 other realtor leaders, based his statement on reports presented at the gathering.

THIS IMPACT is coming from elderly widows and widowers and the young unmarried, explained Steele.

"Recent studies have disclosed the suprising inclination of the elderly to live alone after the death of a spouse, rather than joining a family group," he said.

"Almost as unexpected is the recently discernible trend of young unmarried people moving from the family home to separate living quarters," Steele said.

RECOGNIZED FOR WORK

Mooney to Distribute Engines

Pacific Mooney, Inc., 3501 Lakewood Blvd., Long Beach, has completed arrangements to distribute piston engines manufactured by the Lycoming Division of AVCO Corp. throughout Southern California.

Aviation Power Supply, Inc., Inc., of Burbank, 70% owner of Pacific Mooney and holder of the Lycoming distributorship, will utilize the Long Beach Airport firm as headquarters for this operation.

PACIFIC MOONEY, now occupying a new facility on 4.5 acres at Long Beach, is also Southern California distributor for Mooney aircraft.

Officers of the company include Joseph Benjamin, president; Fred A. Mayer, vice president; Norman G. Lauricella, treasurer, and Dorothy D. Branch, secretary.

Escrow Course Is Offered at Cerritos

Cerritos College at Norwalk is offering an Escrow Certificate Program, in cooperation with the Southeast Escrow and California Escrow Associations.

An escrow certificate will be awarded to students successfully completing 28 units of credits, 22 required and six elective.

Douglas Missile Division Earns Large Bonus

The Thor's 1965 launch achievement of 21 successes extended the famed booster's record to 51 successes in a row for the Air Force at the Western Test Range.

The bonus was earned under terms of a contract, valued at $17,150,000, with the Air Force Space Systems Division for calendar year 1965. A small portion of the bonus is attributable to cost underrunning.

Big Air Gain

United Air Lines' report for 1965 business shows it handled 3,427,101 passengers at International Airport, Los Angeles, a 47% gain over 1964.

STEPS TO PROFITS

Studying Annual Report Is Important

(This is the fifth in a series of 10 articles by an expert writer for Moody's Investors Service and distributed by NEA Special Services.)

By ROLAND GOODMAN

Every corporation of any size sends its stockholders an annual report, and most issue briefer quarterly reports. These contain the elementary facts about what the company does and how well it is doing it. Nowadays, with managements' stockholder-consciousness, reports also tend to chat about recent successes and disappointments, and tell something about plans for brightening the future. Often there are color pictures and lists of factories and products.

* * *

MOST IMPORTANT are two annual tables of figures, the earnings statement and the balance sheet. The first summarizes what went on during the year—revenues, operating expenses, other costs, taxes paid and profits remaining.

Watch for the depreciation charges, which represent cash set aside to compensate for wear and tear on factories and equipment. This money, plus what is left of net profit after payment of dividends, is what remains in the business each year.

Wall Street pays especial attention to the net profits, called earnings for short (and expressed in per-share terms because investors buy shares of stock and not a whole company). But total retained cash determines how many new factories and machines a company can buy without having to borrow money or sell more stock.

THE BALANCE SHEET shows the state of finances at the end of the business year. The excess of current assets over current liabilities is known as working capital, an important measure of a company's vitality. The balance sheet also lists the value of all assets, the long-term debt, the stock outstanding, and the amount of assets represented by the stock.

A nonprofessional can't expect to understand every nuance of an annual report, but it will give him much knowledge of the company behind the stock.

American Offers Sunday 'Flightseeing' Trip to Public

American Airlines will operate 30-minute "flightseeing" trips from Los Angeles International Airport every Sunday this month, airline officials announced.

The flights were held on a trial basis in December and, due to the unprecedented demand, were rescheduled. There will be four flights each Sunday (10 and 11 a.m., noon, and 1 p.m.).

Advance reservations for the "flightseeing" jaunts, which are specially scheduled for residents who have never flown in a jet or seen Southern California from the air, can be made by purchasing tickets at any of American's ticket offices. The fare is $5.95.

Realtors to Hear Keith Howdyshell

Keith Howdyshell, vice president of Belmont Savings and Loan Association, will speak to members of the Long Beach District Board of Realtors at their Tuesday morning breakfast meeting at the Crown Cafeteria.

Howdyshell, long active in theater circles for his acting ability and well known as a member of the Long Beach Community Players, will deliver an address, "A Day at Gettysburg."

Phil Hattery, program chairman, said the topic is a word portrait of the events surrounding Lincoln's Gettysburg address.

Breakfast guests of the board will be Bill Crawford, Norm Vick, Al Iten, Paul Deats, all of Belmont Savings.

Five Harvey Employes in Joint Honor

Five Harvey Aluminum employes have been honored for outstanding safety practices at the company's Torrance aluminum fabricating plant.

Jack Humphrey of 345 E. 231st St., Wilmington, and Robert W. Sneed of Los Angeles, were presented with memberships in the Wise Owl Club of America.

Making the awards on behalf of the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness was Russell L. Stimson, president of the California Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

A certificate of merit was given to Sam Tuzzolino of 15517 Arlington, Gardena; Warren Keech and Barney Galindo, both of Los Angeles, for supervising the extrusion tool and die department two years without a loss-time injury.

Carroll Renamed to State Board

Steve D. Carroll, of 2429 E. Broadway, has been reappointed as a member of the State Board of Dry Cleaners.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown announced the reappointment of Carroll who will represent retail plant owners on the board. He is past president of the National Institute of Dry Cleaning and the California Dry Cleaners Association.

Lazarus' Son Is Successor in Top Federated Post

Directors of Federated Department Stores, Inc., parent company of Bullock's, last week in New York granted the request of Fred Lazarus Jr., chairman, to be relieved of his duties and named Lazarus' son, Ralph, to succeed him as the chief executive officer.

The senior Lazarus, 81, had held the post since 1945.

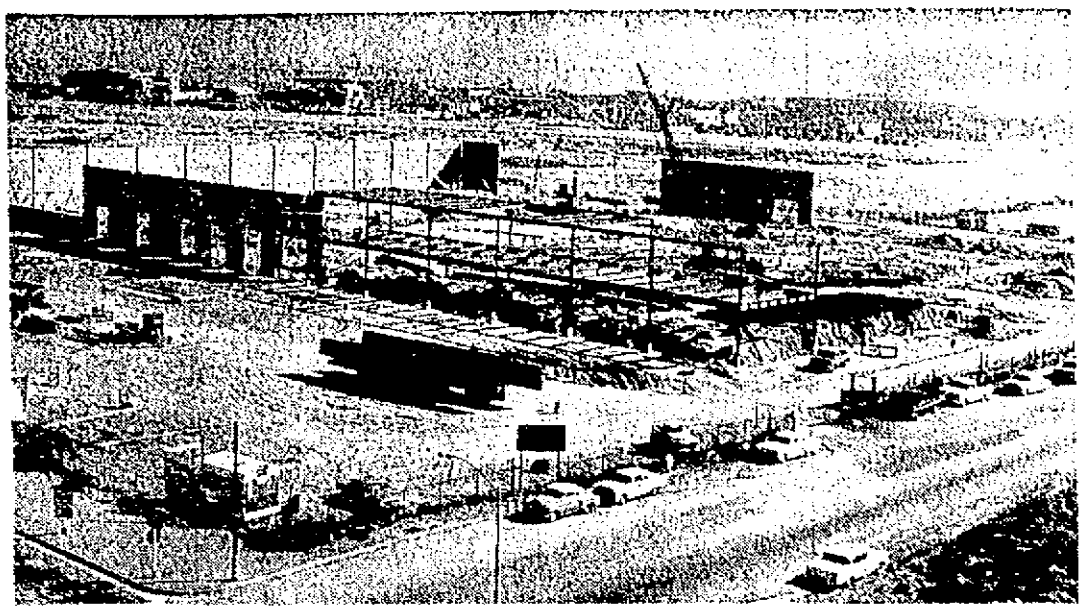

The announcement also revealed that $100 invested in Federated stock on Jan. 1, 1945, when Fred Lazarus Jr., took the reins, would have had a value of $2,067 on the first trading day in 1966.

Bill Bryson of Bryson's Upholstery is the new president of the Long Beach Custom Upholsterers and Decorators Association. He was installed last week at a dinner meeting in Whittier, attended by upholsterers from the Southland area.

Others installed were Jack McFarland, Pacific Upholsterers, vice president; Don Paddock, Coast Custom Interiors, secretary; Bob Cartright, Carty's Upholsterers, treasurer.

WALLS GOING UP

Site of new U. S. Customs House at Terminal Island took on real look of progress last week as workmen began lifting tilt-up walls into place. Facility, a 228,500-square-foot building on nine acres beneath Vincent Thomas Bridge, will be completed in April, 1967, at cost of $4 million.

Four Hughes Employes in Award List

Four Hughes Aircraft Company engineers, three from the South Bay area, have won the first U.S. Air Force award for contributions to the USAF's cost reduction program.

The awards, made at Washington, D.C., went to Alfred E. Hawley, of 2735 W. 190th St., Redondo Beach; Toshio Fujimoto, of 1542 W. 183rd St., Gardena; Robert L. Keener, of 24233 Ward St., Torrance, and Harold W. Earnest, of Los Angeles.

Their new cost-cutting development involves the technique of manufacturing etched circuit boards by using an electroplated tin-lead alloy for higher solderability, instead of gold-plated conductors.

DEPICTS TREND OF TIMES

Oil Station Becomes Service Station-- After Thirty Years

Shades of the past are revived in memories of the oldtimers as a service station goes up on the northwest corner of Fourth Street and Cherry Avenue in Long Beach.

It was on this same site that one of the first Long Beach neighborhood "oil stations" was erected in the hey-day of Model T's. Fred Swartz had purchased the site, built the station and let the cars roll in for fuel.

But progress of a growing city changes things, Swartz found out years later. Oil stations grew into service stations, modernized and plentiful anywhere you drove.

* * * *

LONG BEACH'S growth pattern was apartments rising inland from the beachfront. Influx of dwellers brought the need for more and better grocery stores.

Down came the Swartz station and up went one of the city's first neighborhood supermarkets. For years it thrived. It was one of Thriftimart's good markets many years.

Then came a change in shopping habits. Few shoppers walked to market and parking became a must. And markets needed more room as they became variety as well as food stores.

* * * *

SO TODAY the site is reverting. Construction is under way on a super service station for Shell Oil. The area was too large for just a station so Bob Boyle, owner of the nearby Manhattan Restaurant purchased part of the area for parking for his patrons which will solve a problem for the popular dining spot.

Harry Kay, broker of Belmont Realty Co., sold the site to Shell Oil and Boyle. When completed the total cost of the station and parking area will be in excess of $260,000.

And shades of the past were revived for Shell and Boyle. The area had been sold to Swartz in the days when "meets and bounds" were used for property description. They had to have the 234-by-135-foot site subdivided before they could build, to conform with modern regulations.

Although Swartz surrendered title to the land, he is keeping—framed—the handwritten certificate of title issued on the property in 1898 as a keepsake.

Ryerson-Hazlet Opens Downtown L.B. Office

The Ryerson-Hazlet organization, pioneer resale Realtors in the East Long Beach area, is expanding to the downtown area.

Elwood Reeves, formerly of Long Beach and recently a wholesale distributor in the television field, will direct the sales and investment counselling staff at the new location.

To be emphasized, Ryerson and Hazlet said, will be exchanges of commercial and residential properties.

The Los Altos office, located at 5457 Stearns St., will continue to serve Ryerson-Hazlet clients in residential and multiple-income properties.

Industrial Expansion Hits Peak

New industrial plants and expansions in the Long Beach area have exceeded one million square feet under roof for the second consecutive year, the Chamber of Commerce announced.

Roland Robbins, economic-industrial development committee chairman, said data obtained in a survey of 600 firms within an eight-mile radius of the Long Beach Airport shows:

1. Verification of 1.5 million square feet of industrial construction in 1965.

2. Cost of this construction represented a capital investment of $21 million.

* * * *

THE FIGURES, Robbins said, do not include offshore oil field facilities or public expenditures.

"Our studies," Robbins added, "indicate at least 15,000 additional industrial jobs were created in this area in 1965 . . . about 10,000 of this number were generated by the . . . jet airliner program at Douglas.

"Industry projections for 1966 point to further expansions that may exceed those in 1965."

Clement Hirsch Named Director of U.S. Natl. Bank

Clement L. Hirsch, president and founder of Kal Kan Foods Inc., has been elected to the board of directors of United States National Bank, C. Arnholt Smith, president and board chairman announced.

Hirsch, who began his business career in 1932 with the Famous Department Stores, lives at 30 Harbor Island, Newport Beach. His Kal Kan firm is the largest dollar volume packer of pet foods in the west.

Another of his firms is Hirsch's Rocking K Foods Inc., which packs and cans various meat products for the Army and for public consumption. He also has been active in the building industry.

Ollie Speraw Speaks

Members of the Compton-Lynwood Board of Realtors Women's Council will meet Thursday noon at the Board Annex to hear Ollie Speraw, Long Beach realtor, speak.

Her topic will be "Residential Construction and Design."

GM Sales Up

General Motors automotive dealers in the U.S. sold 411,887 vehicles in January, it was announced in Detroit. It was the second largest January sales in history. Commercial vehicle sales were 56,222 units, a new January record.

Long Beach Home-O-Rama to Have 'Home' Atmosphere

A truly "home" atmosphere will be created at the 1966 Long Beach Home-O-Rama, March 2-6, with exhibits of completely furnished rooms in a variety of pleasing motifs, according to Don Anderson, co-chairman.

The home show, an annual production of the Long Beach Builders Exchange, will be staged in the Long Beach Arena.

* * * *

RICHARD H. SIRIS, owner of Siris Furniture Co. of Long Beach and a member of the National Society of Interior Decorators, will oversee furnishing and decorating of the rooms, Anderson said.

A model living room will be in an Oriental motif and, by way of contrast, a family room will have contemporary furnishings and decorations, according to Siris.

The furnished rooms will include a Gold Medallion Kitchen created by the Southern California Edison Co., and a Balanced Power Kitchen by the Southern California Gas Co., and the Long Beach City Gas Department.

* * * *

OTHER FURNISHED rooms will include a luxurious master bedroom and a teen-agers' bedroom.

Another feature of the show will be a model high-rise apartment done in the Mediterranean motif.

DEPICTS TREND OF TIMES

Shades of the past are revived in memories of the oldtimers as a service station goes up on the northwest corner of Fourth Street and Cherry Avenue in Long Beach.

It was on this same site that one of the first Long Beach neighborhood "oil stations" was erected in the hey-day of Model T's. Fred Swartz had purchased the site, built the station and let the cars roll in for fuel.

But progress of a growing city changes things, Swartz found out years later. Oil stations grew into service stations, modernized and plentiful anywhere you drove.

* * * *

LONG BEACH'S growth pattern was apartments rising inland from the beachfront. Influx of dwellers brought the need for more and better grocery stores.

Down came the Swartz station and up went one of the city's first neighborhood supermarkets. For years it thrived. It was one of Thriftimart's gond markets many years.

Then came a change in shopping habits. Few shoppers walked to market and parking became a must. And markets needed more room as they became variety as well as food stores.

* * * *

SO TODAY the site is reverting. Construction is under way on a super service station for Shell Oil. The area was too large for just a station so Bob Boyle, owner of the nearby Manhattan Restaurant purchased part of the area for parking for his patrons which will solve a problem for the popular dining spot.

Harry Kay, broker of Belmont Realty Co., sold the site to Shell Oil and Boyle. When completed the total cost of the station and parking area will be in excess of $260,000.

And shades of the past were revived for Shell and Boyle. The area had been sold to Swartz in the days when "meets and bounds" were used for property description. They had to have the 234-by-135-foot site subdivided before they could build, to conform with modern regulations.

Although Swartz surrendered title to the land, he is keeping—framed—the handwritten certificate of title issued on the property in 1898 as a keepsake.

Long Beach Home-O-Rama to Have 'Home' Atmosphere

A truly "home" atmosphere will be created at the 1966 Long Beach Home-O-Rama, March 2-6, with exhibits of completely furnished rooms in a variety of pleasing motifs, according to Don Anderson, co-chairman.

The home show, an annual production of the Long Beach Builders Exchange, will be staged in the Long Beach Arena.

* * * *

RICHARD H. SIRIS, owner of Siris Furniture Co. of Long Beach and a member of the National Society of Interior Decorators, will oversee furnishing and decorating of the rooms, Anderson said.

A model living room will be in an Oriental motif and, by way of contrast, a family room will have contemporary furnishings and decorations, according to Siris.

The furnished rooms will include a Gold Medallion Kitchen created by the Southern California Edison Co., and a Balanced Power Kitchen by the Southern California Gas Co., and the Long Beach City Gas Department.

* * * *

OTHER FURNISHED rooms will include a luxurious master bedroom and a teen-agers' bedroom.

Another feature of the show will be a model high-rise apartment done in the Mediterranean motif.

Ryerson-Hazlet Opens Downtown L.B. Office

The Ryerson-Hazlet organization, pioneer resale Realtors in the East Long Beach area, is expanding to the downtown area.

Elwood Reeves, formerly of Long Beach and recently a wholesale distributor in the television field, will direct the sales and investment counselling staff at the new location.

To be emphasized, Ryerson and Hazlet said, will be exchanges of commercial and residential properties.

The Los Altos office, located at 5457 Stearns St., will continue to serve Ryerson-Hazlet clients in residential and multiple-income properties.

Industrial Expansion Hits Peak

New industrial plants and expansions in the Long Beach area have exceeded one million square feet under roof for the second consecutive year, the Chamber of Commerce announced.

Roland Robbins, economic-industrial development committee chairman, said data obtained in a survey of 600 firms within an eight-mile radius of the Long Beach Airport shows:

1. Verification of 1.5 million square feet of industrial construction in 1965.

2. Cost of this construction represented a capital investment of $21 million.

* * * *

THE FIGURES, Robbins said, do not include offshore oil field facilities or public expenditures.

"Our studies," Robbins added, "indicate at least 15,000 additional industrial jobs were created in this area in 1965 . . . about 10,000 of this number were generated by the . . . jet airliner program at Douglas.

"Industry projections for 1966 point to further expansions that may exceed those in 1965."

Clement Hirsch Named Director of U.S. Natl. Bank

Clement L. Hirsch, president and founder of Kal Kan Foods Inc., has been elected to the board of directors of United States National Bank, C. Arnholt Smith, president and board chairman announced.

Hirsch, who began his business career in 1932 with the Famous Department Stores, lives at 30 Harbor Island, Newport Beach. His Kal Kan firm is the largest dollar volume packer of pet foods in the west.

Another of his firms is Hirsch's Rocking K Foods Inc., which packs and cans various meat products for the Army and for public consumption. He also has been active in the building industry.

Ollie Speraw Speaks

Members of the Compton-Lynwood Board of Realtors Women's Council will meet Thursday noon at the Board Annex to hear Ollie Speraw, Long Beach realtor, speak.

Her topic will be "Residential Construction and Design."

GM Sales Up

General Motors automotive dealers in the U.S. sold 411,887 vehicles in January, it was announced in Detroit. It was the second largest January sales in history. Commercial vehicle sales were 56,222 units, a new January record.

BUILDING BOOM COMING TO HUNTINGTON CENTER

With a large Broadway store already in operation, 28 more stores, including a large Montgomery Ward facility, are in the process of being built in Huntington Center, at the intersection of the San Diego Freeway and Beach Boulevard. Among tenants will be Barker Bros., Food Fair Markets, Thrifty Drug, two banks and a savings and loan concern. When the $20 million center is completed by the Huntington Beach Co., and Gordon L. MacDonald, the developers, there will be 48 concerns utilizing the 850,000 feet of retail space. Ground also has been broken for an enclosed all-weather mall.

Real Estate Extension Class Slated

Changes in California real estate law will be emphasized in a daytime class to be held at the Long Beach District Board of Realtors' headquarters, 3747 Long Beach Blvd., beginning Monday.

The course is offered under the auspices of the UCLA Extension Division.

Dorothy Levin, attorney, will instruct the class, meeting each Monday from 9 a.m. to noon. Enrollment is limited and inquiries are to be made to either the Long Beach Realtors' office or to UCLA's Extension Division.

The course also is one of the required courses toward a Certificate in Real Estate.

Norcross Award to Editor Jack Horner

Jack Horner, editor of the California State Builders' Exchange News and member of the Construction Industry Legislative Council, is the 1966 recipient of the Tom E. Norcross Memorial Public Service Award.

Announcement and presentation of the award was made at the annual banquet and officer installation of the Builders Exchange of Long Beach at the Petroleum Club.

"For his outstanding contribution to the betterment of his community and the entire construction industry . . ." the citation read.

Retiring President Noel M. Guertin made the presentation.

HOUSE HUNTING MADE EASIER

Select Right Neighborhood and Then Hunt Home to Buy

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This is another in a series of articles, prepared by Glendale Federal Savings, offering money saving hints to those buying a home.)

House hunting can be tiring and confusing. But follow a few guidelines, and the task is easier. It can even be fun.

The serious house hunter first seeks the advise and guidance of a reliable Realtor. Working closely with your Realtor is the surest way to find the right house in the right neighborhood at the right price.

* * * *

CHOOSING the right neighborhood is just as important as finding the right house. Zoning laws should protect the neighborhood's residential character. Street and lot patterns should be arranged for appearance, convenience and safety.

Schools, parks and playgrounds, churches, stores and entertainment facilities should be within walking or easy riding distance.

Check the condition of streets, sewage and storm drainage systems, trash pickup, police and fire protection, and cost of utilities. Is the community tax level within your budget?

* * * *

WHEN YOU'VE found a friendly, convenient and economically suitable neighborhood, you're ready to find the one house which best fits your family's needs and desires. Ask yourself these questions:

Is the lot large enough to give privacy? House setting should provide a pleasant view likely to reman unchanged.

Is there enough total space for your family? Living room should accommodate your whole family without crowding, and there should be adequate room for seating your family at meals. Check number and size of bedrooms, and adequacy of bathroom facilities.

Do you think the design will prove attractive over a period of years? Styling extremes may rapidly go out of fashion.

* * * *

HOW ABOUT the kitchen? Well-planned kitchens are stepsavers. Is it equipped with appliances you want? Or can they be added at reasonable cost?

Does the house appear to be well built with standard quality materials and equipment?

Then, check adequacy and efficiency of the heating system, hot water system, and electrical wiring. If you're satisfied that this is the house for your family, the next question is: Can you afford it?

How much should you pay for a home? Generally, your budget for home expenses should not exceed 25 to 30% of your family's monthly income. This includes not only your monthly trust deed payment, but taxes, insurance and utility costs as well.

MONEY TIGHT? For extra cash, sell unneeded household items via Classified Ads. Dial HE 2-5959 now!

Each motorist will receive two blue and golden yellow plates made of rust-resistant steel intended to last for six years.

NEW FACILITY DEDICATED

Formal dedication ceremonies have been held for this new 12,000-square-foot office-shop facility of Southland Heating & Air Conditioning, Inc., 2800 Temple Ave., in the Long Beach Airport industrial area. Firm, outgrowth of Payne Furnace Co. in 1949, long has served Los Angeles, Orange counties, now is servicing prime contracts in Texas, Arizona, Nevada and Northern California, according to president Don Will and Vice President Bob Hall. Company has 60 employes.

Cities Can Fight Neighborhood Blight Before Even It Happens

Cities can fight neighborhood blight by enacting strong ordinances prohibiting junk automobiles in yards and streets, declares an official of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Not only would such action relieve the areas where the problem contributes to the general decline, but it would prevent similar occurrences in other neighborhoods, says William H. Dolben Jr., Boston, chairman of the Build America Better Committee, NAREB's advisory service for cities interested in urban renewal.

A strict housing code, even for cities which do not have an immediate problem of deteriorating neighborhoods, is necessary as a preventive measure, Dolben also said.

* * * *

"HOUSING inspection or enforcement of codes cannot be a matter of informally spotting substandard units and subsequent attention only on those units where obvious exterior defects present a problem," the BAB chairman explained.

"Serious housing code enforcement that is to protect the inventory and preserve property values must be on a systematic, neighborhood-wide, block-by-block, house-by-house basis," he added.

Dolben made the remarks in connection with a report on Martinez, Calif., prepared by the BAB Committee.

* * * *

A TEAM OF specially qualified committee members visited Martinez at the invitation of officials of the city and the Martinez Board of Realtors to review residential and commercial problems and recommend solutions. This was the 35th such visit since the program's founding in 1957.

The advisory team recommended the city produce a filmed story of Martinez assets to be shown to every school and public group in the city as a means of changing the apathetic or unfavorable attitude many residents appear to have toward their community.

* * * *

RECOMMENDATIONS by the team included also that all streets in need of repair be brought up to high standards, that the city immediately program regular and frequent street cleaning throughout the residential and business areas and that the park system be expanded to provide additional neighborhood playgrounds and recreation areas.

Realtors who served on the Martinez team in addition to Dolben, were J. Thomas Hoegen, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and F. Thornton Ibbetson, of Bellflower.

Westminster Realtors Induct New Members

New members will be inducted during Thursday's breakfast meeting of the Westminster Board of Realtors at the King's Table Restaurant, 6471 Westminster Ave., President Kathleen Anderson announced.

Also announced was January's sales report which showed 40 listings, as compared to 31 during the same month in 1965.

Norwalk-La Mirada Realtors to Gather

Charles A. Victory, president and chief executive officer of Bellflower National Bank, will speak to members of the Norwalk-La Mirada Board of Realtors at their Tuesday breakfast meeting at the Norwalk Masonic Hall, 12345 E. Rosecrans Ave.

Victory's topic: "The Present Economy and How It Affects Real Estate."

Santa Ana Firm Wins 1st Place

The Jennings-Halderman-Hood engineering firm of Santa Ana was one of three companies honored last week in San Francisco for outstanding combination of good planning and good development engineering.

The Santa Ana firm won first place in the special award category by the California Council of Civil Engineers & Land Surveyors for its engineering design of Country Club Village in Long Beach.

In this instance, the requirement was for 40 duplex units on a 4.8-acre triangular parcel and Jennings-Halderman-Hood succeeded in creating a planned unit with interior park and swimming pool.

Developer was Walter R. Gaynor of Costa Mesa.

HOUSE HUNTING MADE EASIER

Select Right Neighborhood and Then Hunt Home to Buy

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This is another in a series of articles prepared by Glendale Federal Savings, offering money saving hints to those buying a home.)

House hunting can be tiring and confusing. But follow a few guidelines, and the task is easier. It can even be fun.

The serious house hunter first seeks the advise and guidance of a reliable Realtor. Working closely with your Realtor is the surest way to find the right house in the right neighborhood at the right price.

* * * *

CHOOSING the right neighborhood is just as important as finding the right house. Zoning laws should protect the neighborhood's residential character. Street and lot patterns should be arranged for appearance, convenience and safety.

Schools, parks and playgrounds, churches, stores and entertainment facilities should be within walking or easy riding distance.

Check the condition of streets, sewage and storm drainage systems, trash pickup, police and fire protection, and cost of utilities. Is the community tax level within your budget?

* * * *

WHEN YOU'VE found a friendly, convenient and economically suitable neighborhood, you're ready to find the one house which best fits your family's needs and desires. Ask yourself these questions:

Is the lot large enough to give privacy? House setting should provide a pleasant view likely to reman unchanged.

Is there enough total space for your family? Living room should accommodate your whole family without crowding, and there should be adequate room for seating your family at meals. Check number and size of bedrooms, and adequacy of bathroom facilities.

Do you think the design will prove attractive over a period of years? Styling extremes may rapidly go out of fashion.

* * * *

HOW ABOUT the kitchen? Well-planned kitchens are stepsavers. Is it equipped with appliances you want? Or can they be added at reasonable cost?

Does the house appear to be well built with standard quality materials and equipment?

Then, check adequacy and efficiency of the heating system, hot water system, and electrical wiring. If you're satisfied that this is the house for your family, the next question is: Can you afford it?

How much should you pay for a home? Generally, your budget for home expenses should not exceed 25 to 30% of your family's monthly income. This includes not only your monthly trust deed payment, but taxes, insurance and utility costs as well.

Cities Can Fight Neighborhood Blight Before Even It Happens

Cities can fight neighborhood blight by enacting strong ordinances prohibiting junk automobiles in yards and streets, declares an official of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Not only would such action relieve the areas where the problem contributes to the general decline, but it would prevent similar occurrences in other neighborhoods, says William H. Dolben Jr., Boston, chairman of the Build America Better Committee, NAREB's advisory service for cities interested in urban renewal.

A strict housing code, even for cities which do not have an immediate problem of deteriorating neighborhoods, is necessary as a preventive measure, Dolben also said.

* * * *

"HOUSING inspection or enforcement of codes cannot be a matter of informally spotting substandard units and subsequent attention only on those units where obvious exterior defects present a problem," the BAB chairman explained.

"Serious housing code enforcement that is to protect the inventory and preserve property values must be on a systematic, neighborhood-wide, block-by-block, house-by-house basis," he added.

Dolben made the remarks in connection with a report on Martinez, Calif., prepared by the BAB Committee.

Land Investment-- Boon or Booby Trap?

(Editor's Note: The question of whether land or the stock market is the best for investors is provided in the following article. It is based on data from Property Research Corp. of Westwood Village, Los Angeles.)

Why are increasing numbers of investors shifting from investment such as stocks or income property, to land? According to many, such a shift to land makes good economic sense.

Why?

Well, first of all, land is relatively secured. It certainly is always there. It is emotionally satisfying. And its earning record is excellent.

* * * *

WHY, THEN, in view of such a favorable investment environment, are some investors disappointed in their land purchases? What turns an apparent boon into a booby trap? It's the "details" involved in the purchase terms.

With most investments, if you make the right economic decision, the details will tend to take care of themselves. With land, an investor with some knowledge of growth areas, would find it hard to make a truly bad decision. But the decision is only half the job. The other half concerns the "details" which can turn his investment into a booby trap — or greatly enhance its value.

The average investor should be able to avoid difficulties on one hand while multiplying his profit on the other.

* * * *

IN 1962, a doctor made what would normally have been an excellent land purchase. Now he is disappointed. The reason? When buying, he failed to anticipate the next purchaser's needs. He failed to play position — to arrange the financing to encourage a favorable resale. He will make money on his parcel, but less money.

This type of oversight is quite common.

An executive bought a land parcel, expecting to build three houses, one for himself and two for resale. However, he failed to scrutinize the title report with care. At building time, he discovered that a water easement cut across his land and restricted him to two houses regardless of how he juggled things.

* * * *

AN ENGINEER, likewise careless about studying the title report, bought a parcel for development only to find that his bank refused to make loan commitments on his parcel until he resolved a mineral rights problem — an item he had overlooked when he purchased it.

The item has grown astronomically, though.

The holder of the mineral right has demanded a sizable sum for a "quit claim." Understandably reluctant to submitting to a "hold-up," this amateur investor - developer has no choice but to continue paying taxes and interest while letting the land lie fallow.

Booby traps in land investments come in a variety of sizes, shapes and colors, but most of them can be avoided or eliminated in the original purchase. However, it is no place for an amateur unless he has competent guidance and advice.

Palos Verdes Medical Center in Expansion

A $450,000 expansion program for Palos Verdes Medical Center has been announced by Ephraim Baran, of Rochlin & Baran, AIA, and Associates, designers of the only full service medical housing in that area.

Palos Verdes Medical Center, 27927 Deep Valley Drive, Rolling Hills Estates, is set on a 150,000-square-foot site in Peninsula Shopping Center. It was built in 1961 with plans for expansion in five years.

The development firm of John R. Cain Company, serving as project coordinator supervising both construction and leasing, have conceived a limited partnership arrangement through which doctor-tenants will hold 49% ownership in the project.

At present, 29 physicians and dentists practice in the center.

* * * *

CONSTRUCTION will begin this winter on the new wing, which will extend west from the central lobby. This new construction will enlarge the present facility from 33,000 square feet to 39,000.

When completed, the $1,570,000 project will offer full medical services including 40 custom-designed medical suites for physicians and dentists, a professional pharmacy, pathological laboratory, X-ray and optical suite.

Designed to fit the Rolling Hills motif, Palos Verdes Medical Center is a two-story, white-painted brick structure utilizing high use of aluminum and open glass. Individually zoned air conditioning and heating, piped-in music and elevators are features of the present structure and will be utilized in the planned addition.

TO SPEAK

Ralph E. Lautmann, senior vice president of Union Bank, and Long Beach resident, will be member of panel discussing "Financial Picture for Home Builders in 1966" at Monday's meeting of Home Builders Assn. of Los Angeles, Orange and Ventura Counties at Rodger Young Auditorium, L. A.

Seller Must Disclose Any House Flaw

When you buy a home—often the biggest investment of your life—you may "fall in love with the house," forget your business judgment, and lose your time and money. Even if you can later correct legal mistakes in such a deal, it is better to prevent the worry and expense they can cause.

Harry Holmes found a nice new home near town. The salesman told the couple that the house was in the city limits, and had all "city utilities."

The Holmes bought the house only to find to their dismay that it did not connect with the city sewer. Instead, they had a sceptic tank with whimsical drainage. They had to put in a new line at considerable expense.

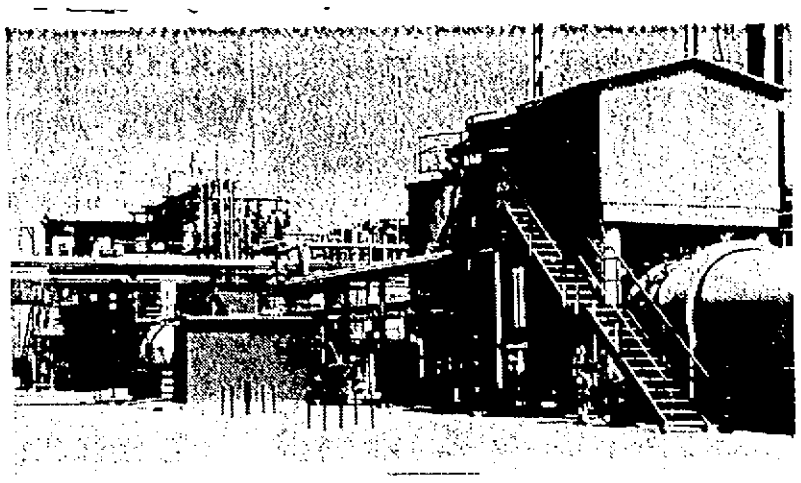

* * * *

HOLMES SUED the salesman and the builder. The court awarded them $1,500 for the line and for the difference between what the home would have been worth if it had connected to a sewer, instead of what it was worth connected to a sceptic tank.

A seller need not tell the home buyer everything, but if he claims to do so, the law expects him to tell the truth. Otherwise, he commits a fraud and is liable for the resulting damages.

Had the salesman just given his opinion, that he thought the sewer was tied in, but was not sure, it would not be fraud. Then it would be up to the buyers to check for themselves. Or, the seller might have just said that the house has all the city comforts, which is a kind of "puffing" that ought to put buyers on guard. At most, all the builder would then have to do was to connect the sewer.

TWO REASONS

Homeowners Favoring Remodeling

Nearly $14 billion will be spent on home remodeling and repair in 1966 and this reflects the fact many homeowners would rather upgrade their existing properties than uproot their families, the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau says.

Bathroom remodeling and the addition of bathrooms, powder rooms and mud rooms head the list of most-wanted renovations.

Kitchen remodeling comes next, with updated heating systems and the addition of a bedroom also high on the list.

THERE'S a supermarket of values waiting for you every day in the Classified Section. It's fun to shop this easy time and money-saving way. Turn back now.

Interestingly enough, the mobility of the American population also is a strong motivation for remodeling. Two out of every five families probably will move in 1966. They know that remodeling upgrades the resale value of their existing homes—so they upgrade to get a higher price.

Homeowners Favoring Remodeling

Nearly $14 billion will be spent on home remodeling and repair in 1966 and this reflects the fact many homeowners would rather upgrade their existing properties than uproot their families, the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau says.

Bathroom remodeling and the addition of bathrooms, powder rooms and mud rooms head the list of most-wanted renovations.

Kitchen remodeling comes next, with updated heating systems and the addition of a bedroom also high on the list.

Interestingly enough, the mobility of the American population also is a strong motivation for remodeling. Two out of every five families probably will move in 1966. They know that remodeling upgrades the resale value of their existing homes—so they upgrade to get a higher price.

BALANCED POWER HOMES

Second Mission Viejo Unit Is Opening Today

GARDEN KITCHEN . . . A Deane Brothers Exclusive Feature

With construction schedules advanced due to the rapid sales pace during the preview showing of the first unit, Deane Homes, Mission Viejo will formally present its newest homes today with the opening of the second unit, Fred Wellmerling, vice president in charge of marketing for Deane Brothers, builders-developers, announced.

The first unit of 79 homes, Wellmerling said, was sold out in 60 days. The second unit of Deane Homes, featuring the firm's Garden Kitchen, are being put on the market considerably ahead of schedule to meet the demand.

Buyers have a choice of five floor plans and 21 exterior designs in one, two-story and split-level residences.

* * * *

FOUR OF THE five plans feature Deane Brothers' exclusive Garden Kitchen. The five model homes include the award winning Chanticlaire and Emerald, the Tiffany, Jubilee and Briolette.

The bronze medallion homes have up to three baths, sunken living rooms with masonry fireplaces and separate family rooms. All have wall-to-wall carpeting, all-electric kitchens with built-in oven and range, dishwasher and disposer, full luminous ceilings and underground utilities. Homes are priced from $22,950 to $29,950.

* * * *

THE SECOND unit homes are on terraced view lots. Sites average 9,000 square feet and include a full grown olive tree in the front yard.

Deane Homes, Mission Viejo will occupy 200 acres in the new community of Mission Viejo, located on the historic 53,000-acre O'Neill Ranch. It is located 12 miles southeast of Santa Ana.

To reach Mission Viejo, drive on Santa Ana Freeway to La Paz Road turnoff then left under the freeway to Deane Homes.

PLENTY OF BUILT-INS . . . In Fernhill Home

Repossessed Homes on Special Terms

Repossessed one and two-story Cardinal Homes are among the 40 remaining three and four-bedroom dwellings in the popular Fountain Valley subdivision of more than 300 homes. New terms and excellent financing of these one and two-story homes are available, a spokesman reports.

Among features of the dwellings are built-in electric range and double oven, hood and fan as well as other built-in appliances earning the Medallion standards for electrical excellence.

Other features include fireplaces, block walls, pool-size lots, paneling, mantels, brick veneer exteriors and many more luxury appointments.

* * * *

FOUNTAIN Valley is conveniently close to the metropolitan advantages of both Orange and Los Angeles counties with freeways within short distances. Also close by are beaches, play and recreation areas, several excellent golf courses and major industrial areas of the Southland.

To reach the homes, located on the southwest corner of Cannery and Slater, drive out Santa Ana Freeway to Brookhurst, south to Warner, right to Cannery then left on Cannery to Slater and furnished homes. From Long Beach, drive out Seventh Street to Brookhurst and follow directions above.

Space Vehicles

HICKSVILLE, N.Y. (AP)—A new coating for refractory metals to protect space vehicles from oxidation during re-entry has been developed by Sylvania Electric Products, Inc.

Extra Space in Fernhill Home Wins Approval of Many Buyers

Homebuyers, interested in condominiums and planned developments, who have been disappointed by the small interior size of most offerings will find the "space barrier" broken at Fernhill. So says Gerald Lance of Pacific Shores Realty, sales agent for the Huntington Beach development.

The "no exterior maintenance" concept combined with luxurious facilities for the homeowner is attractive to numerous Southland homebuyers, according to Lance. "Fernhill has proved a pleasant surprise to families, offering up to 1,600 square feet of living area," he said.

Lance pointed out that numerous single-family homes were offered in Orange County today with considerably less living area than Fernhill. The two- and three-bedroom homes all have two baths. All home exteriors are professionally maintained for the homeowner.

* * * *

PROFESSIONAL people are particularly attracted to Fernhill, Lance reports, because of its location. Greens and fairways of Meadowlark Country Club adjoin Fernhill on one side. The Douglas Missiles and Space Systems plant is 1¾ miles north, and Graham Street, on which Fernhill has its entrance, leads directly to the Douglas parking lot.

Fernhill prices range from $22,400 to $25,500, which Lance described as "substantially below average for new Huntington Beach homes."

Models are open daily. Take San Diego Freeway to Bolsa Chica Road, and drive south on Bolsa Chica to Warner, then left to Fernhill.

Leslie Copelan is New Branch Exec

Leslie Copelan has been appointed manager of the Downey office of Morrison Escrow Company, 12069 Paramount Blvd.

She has been an escrow officer with the company since 1960 and has 13 years' experience in the field, according to Walter Tavis, also newly appointed to represent the company in public relations. His office will be at the Downey branch. The Huntington Park firm also had a branch in Pico Rivera.

Alpha Beta Employes Make Contributions

Long Beach health and welfare agencies will receive $1,220 this year from employes of Alpha Beta Acme Markets, Inc., La Habra-based chain of supermarkets, drug stores and coffee shops.

The money, pledged by firm employes who live in Long Beach, is the result of the employes' participation in the corporation chapter of AID-United Givers.

Sunkist Adding 12 More Packers

LINDSAY, Calif. (UPI)—Twelve additional packing houses will market their citrus production through Sunkist Growers Inc., increasing to 80% the California and Arizona citrus production which Sunkist markets.

Sunkist confirmed the firms "voluntarily decided to market through Sunkist, and have applied for membership at local packing houses."

New Downey Homes Are Opened

A new series of homes is being introduced with the opening of "Brookshire Square," corner of Brookshire Avenue and Everest Street, one block north of Imperial Highway in the city of Downey.

Max Medvin of Maximum Development Corp., builder-developer, remarked: "Our homes will attract growing families, as this group wants the extra spaciousness our floor plan provides, and the more usable square feet per dollar."

These two-story four-bedroom homes are 2,053 square feet of living area, fully carpeted, two baths, formal dining room, family room.

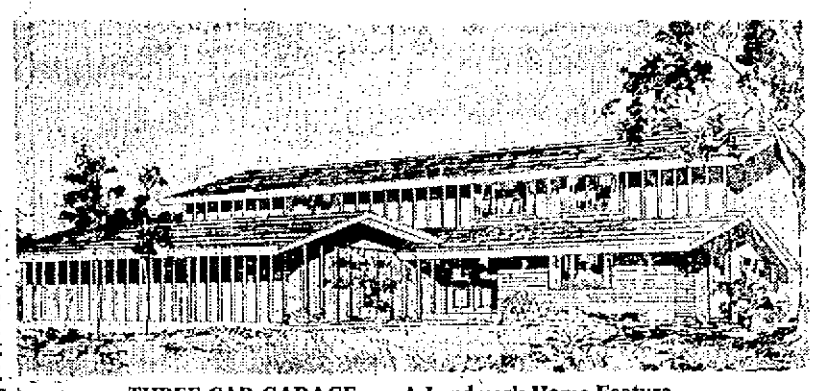

Brookshire Square Homes are priced at $36,000 and 10% down.

Visitors may reach the development by taking the Long Beach Freeway to the Imperial Highway exit, then east to the corner of Brookshire Avenue and Imperial Highway in Downey.

Landmark Homes, La Palma, Adds Models in Newest Unit

THREE-CAR GARAGE . . . A Landmark Home Feature

Bob Morrison, Landmark Homes sales manager reports the new unit is now open at the La Palma homesite. He added that new home designs were being offered and that public enthusiasm has already been favorable and one of the features really appreciated is the spacious 3-car garage.

Located at the intersection of Moody Street and La Palma Avenue, this newest Landmark Homes community will eventually comprise some 360 homes. In the first unit there are 144 homes.

* * * *

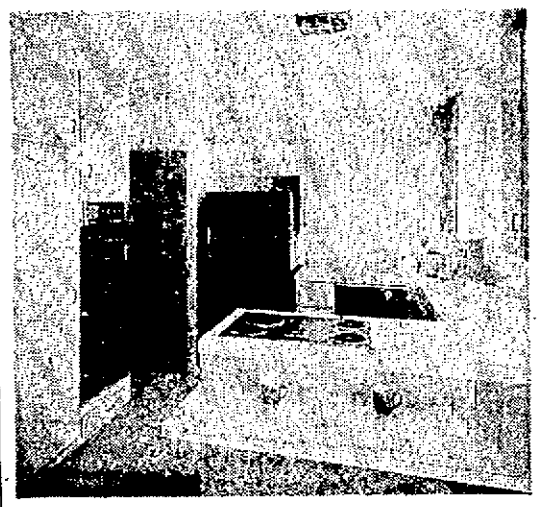

FEATURES include: underground utilities, carpeting, concrete drives, fencing, landscaping, sprinklers, optional air conditioning, walk-in closets and the usual long list of Landmark Homes exclusives.

A general plan for developing La Palma as the community of the "Ideal American City" has been approved by city councilmen.

La Palma is considered prime residential property, minutes from Long Beach and only 15 miles from Los Angeles. It is located between Disneyland and Knott's Berry Farm, in the heart of rapidly developing commercial area.

Prices begin at $28,500 with a 5%-down plan offered. All terms are flexible.

Urged to Buy Now at Lower Interest

CONVENIENT KITCHEN . . . For Premier Buyer

The current low prices and low-interest financing at Premier Homes in Huntington Beach will not be possible in future developments, according to Frank McFarland, sales agent.

The realtor said the recent national boost in interest rates soon would be reflected in more expensive home loans, as existing subdivisions were sold out and new ones financed at the new rates.

"The homebuyer who acts now, and buys at current prices and with yesterday's low interest rates can save substantially on his new home investment," he said.

* * * *

McFARLAND also stressed the advantage of buying a new home in a community obviously entering a period of sustained growth and development. Huntington Beach is such a community in his opinion. "Everything favors an appreciation of property values when population and industry move into a community as they are now doing in Huntington Beach," he said.

Premier Homes offer immediate occupancy on four-bedroom homes, with two baths, family room and play room.

Price is $26,500. Premier financing offers 25 and 30-year loans at 5¾ or 6%.

Fountain Plaza Is Drawing

Pacific Condominium's latest offering, Fountain Plaza, a luxurious community of homes, has become a fast-selling development.

"We feel one of the reasons for such rapid response is due to our trade-in plan we offer new homebuyers," stated Alfred Edelsohn, president. "This plan has made it easy for homeowners to purchase a beautiful home in the wonderful concept of condominium living. We purchase the old house and give them the cash based on FHA appraisal."

The two-story, three and four-bedroom homes are all appointed with outstanding features including one or two private patios.

The homeowner at Fountain Plaza may forget repair and repainting costs. A minumal monthly fee pays for exterior repair, landscaping and recreational facility upkeep.

Fountain Plaza financing is at 5¼% interest. Models are open daily at 18250 Brookhurst just north of Ellis Avenue in Fountain Valley.

Urged to Buy Now at Lower Interest

CONVENIENT KITCHEN . . . For Premier Buyer

The current low prices and low-interest financing at Premier Homes in Huntington Beach will not be possible in future developments, according to Frank McFarland, sales agent.

The realtor said the recent national boost in interest rates soon would be reflected in more expensive home loans, as existing subdivisions were sold out and new ones financed at the new rates.

"The homebuyer who acts now, and buys at current prices and with yesterday's low interest rates can save substantially on his new home investment," he said.

McFARLAND also stressed the advantage of buying a new home in a community obviously entering a period of sustained growth and development. Huntington Beach is such a community in his opinion. "Everything favors an appreciation of property values when population and industry move into a community as they are now doing in Huntington Beach," he said.

Premier Homes offer immediate occupancy on four-bedroom homes, with two baths, family room and play room.

Price is $26,500. Premier financing offers 25 and 30-year loans at 5¾ or 6%.

Fountain Plaza Is Drawing

Pacific Condominium's latest offering, Fountain Plaza, a luxurious community of homes, has become a fast-selling development.

"We feel one of the reasons for such rapid response is due to our trade-in plan we offer new homebuyers," stated Alfred Edelsohn, president. "This plan has made it easy for homeowners to purchase a beautiful home in the wonderful concept of condominium living. We purchase the old house and give them the cash based on FHA appraisal."

The two-story, three and four bedroom homes are all appointed with outstanding features including one or two private patios.

The homeowner at Fountain Plaza may forget repair and repainting costs. A minumal monthly fee pays for exterior repair, landscaping and recreational facility upkeep.

Fountain Plaza financing is at 5¼% interest. Models are open daily at 18250 Brookhurst just north of Ellis Avenue in Fountain Valley.

Don Wilson's Cypress Orangewood Tract Open

Don Wilson's newest development, Orangewood, in the Cypress area, is now open with furnished and unfurnished models ready to show.

Wilson, with many years of home building success, says that the Orangewood models can be offered in a price range that will attract young people buying their first home, and they will be able to enjoy all the Wilson-built quality features. Accomodating the growing family, homes here are designed for spaciousness, with split and tri-level models.

BALANCED - power kitchens incorporate a built-in gas range and oven, with a built-in dishwasher and disposer. Stained ash cabinets wrap the kitchen in charm, and an abundance of storage space. Snack bars and generous sized dining areas are additional family conveniences.

One of the most outstanding of the community features is Orangewood's own park, walled against traffic. The playground is complete. Barbecue braziers and benches are placed conveniently for family picnics.

Furnished and unfurnished models are now open with one and two-story homes fully priced from $24,950 and only $995 down. Don Wilson's Orangewood development may be reached by driving on the Garden Grove Freeway to Knotts Avenue, then north to Orangewood.

Much Study Given to Needs in Homes

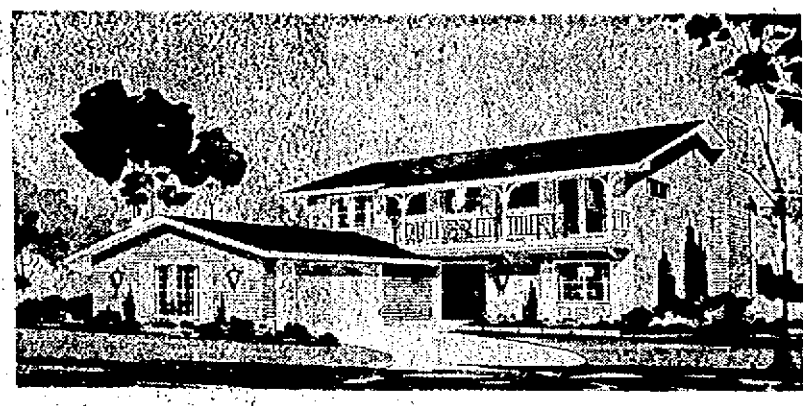

A luxury development such as El Dorado Park Estates cannot be conceived on the drawing boards until many months of research have been completed, according to Dorene Smith, project sales manager for S & S Construction Co., builders-developers.

"Years of observation have made it apparent," Mrs. Smith said, "that many buyers look only for new or unusual features and completely overlook the everyday items — such as water heater capacity."

LONG BEACH 12, CALIF., SUNDAY, FEB. 6, 1966, SECTION W

AARON COPLAND AT PEEKSKILL.

'It would be fun to come to L.B.'

Aaron Copland was 65 years old Nov. 14, 1965.

He's been "giving his birthday away" ever since.

The Pulitzer Prize winning composer, who towers over the American musical scene, has been conducting concerts of his works in this country and abroad, keeping a schedule that would fell a man of merely tremendous energy.

On Tuesday, Feb. 22, Long Beach concert-goers will have the privilege of hearing Copland conduct Long Beach State College Symphony Orchestra in his "Symphony No. 1."

The program of all-Copland compositions has been arranged by Henri Temianka, director of the college symphony and longtime confrere of Copland. Himself an indefatigable musician, Temianka currently is on tour with the Paginni Quartet which he founded.

From New York City, he phoned Copland at his home in Peekskill, N.Y. and sent back the taped conversation as requested by this newspaper.

This is an excerpt of the exchange.

Temianka: What the papers want to know are two things that they are especially interested in. The first thing is, why are you agreeing to come to the college at Long Beach?

Copland: It goes along with what I always do. I go to

"I think a black sugar plum tree looks good, don't you?"

Gregory Peterson's kindergarten-mates at Tincher Elementary School nodded agreement.

Teacher Beth Biddick watched with satisfaction. Her preliminary work with the youngsters on "The Nutcracker Suite" was bearing fruit.

"Before Junior Programs of Long Beach gave its puppet show of 'Nutcracker' Dec. 18 at City College, teachers played the Tchaikovsky music, the youngsters danced to it and painted the scenes it suggested. It's a way of stimulating imagination and creative activity—we expect dancers and paintings still to be emerging six months from now," explains Mrs. Dorothy Buerger, supervisor of art for Long Beach Unified School District.

More than 500 pieces of art done by students from kindergarten through the 12th grade go on view today at Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd. The show will hang through Feb. 27.

"EVERY CHILD potentially is an artist," believes Mrs. Buerger. "As an individual, he has his own ways of responding to things around him. Everyone has something to give if he can be stimulated to express his feelings.

"Our aim isn't to turn every child into a great artist, but to help each to see, express and observe relationships—to give children the exposure that enables them to recognize good art."

CHILDREN progress through several levels of art education in Long Beach schools.

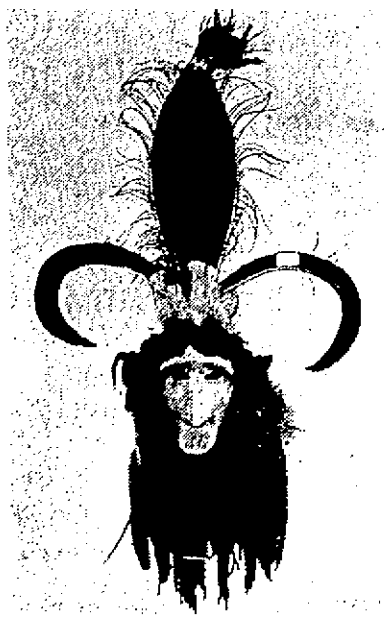

"From kindergarten through the second grade they are very abstract—they don't care whether their pictures are representational or not. By the third grade they are more observant, they begin to tighten up. They put heads on necks instead of plopping them right on shoulders, and hands are at the end of arms instead of springing from the body. They notice that branches grow out of trees

WILD WAVES SAY

'Vintage bachelors' toss a soiree

By Iola Masterson
I, P-T Society Editor

THE INVITATIONS were whimsically posh. They were from James Boyd and Marvin Cloyd, who billed themselves as "California's Eligible Vintage Bachelors." Both figure they sport enough snow on their peaks (or, if you prefer, gray in their hair), to qualify as vintage variety. Cast your eyes on the couple of dapper gents (pictured on this page with two elegant ladies) and see if you agree.

Anyway, the debonair fellows entertained at swank and merry cocktail buffet at Marvin's home, 25 La Linda Drive, and 70 guests were there to revel in their hospitality. This included a red carpet spread from door to side walk, Neopolitan combo to play background music, four young chauffeurs in red jackets to park cars.

Everything was by candlelight. The hosts asked Bill Beadle, fellow Civic Light Opera performer, to do the party decorations. Smart as well as talented, Bill figured the vintage boys would look better in the soft light of candle glow. So he unplugged every light in the house (except kitchen) and it was verboten throughout evening for any guests to try and sneak a bright light on.

A few in the jolly crowd — Gene and Rose Bishop, Dr. Walter and Marian Groshong, Bill and Win Nott, Mayor Ed and Mary Wade, Dr. Alex and Luba Kadvany (more on just-returned Luba elsewhere here).

Also Ed and Laura Killingsworth, Dr. Geza and Lia Kremples, Dr. Dave and Shirley Gean, Richard and Karen Roat. Fact that party began at 8 p.m. and last guests didn't depart until after 3 a.m. attests to its rip-roaring success.

FOUR-GENERATION FAMILY

NOW ABOUT Luba Kadvany, who is finally back on the local scene after a month's absence. After daughter, Gingi, broke her leg during a family skiing trip at Aspen in late December, it was essential for Luba to go back to Washington, D.C., with her plaster-of-paris-cast girl, an art major at George Washington U. She assisted Gingi get settled in a dorm on campus (she had been living with friends in Virginia) to ease the chore of getting to classes on crutches.

GLOWING with suntans acquired in Hawaii are Paul and Alice Nichol, who returned Thursday p.m. by jet after a month's vacation in the islands. Had a marvelous time on this vacation treat following Paul's retirement as head man of the local Procter and Gamble plant.

The two treated themselves to lots of leisurely golf everywhere they went on all the major islands. At the airport to give them the big aloha welcome home were daughters and sons-in-laws Audrey and "Lus" Hauth, Gloria and Ben Neal and Beverly and Bob Sadler.

HE WHO laughts last, etc. Larry and Betty Hunt were pretty smug with success of their surprise dinner party for daughter Sharon's 24th birthday, attended by her husband, Pete Azevedo, Burr and Lenell Dilday, John and Carolyn Watkins, Chuck and Sandy Anderson, John and Carol Stratton.

Then Tuesday Sharon and Pete had Larry and Betty over for breakfast to start their silver wedding anniversary out right. Did it ever! The Hunts' children—Pam and Jim Hunt, Sharon and Pete—presented them with a REALLY whopping surprise—an anniversary gift trip to Hawaii. They gave them plane tickets on the spot, with reservations for a jet flight to begin Thursday, giving them just two brief days to get clothing ready and packed. Woosh!

Wednesday Larry walked in with two swimming trunks and announced he was ready but Betty, surveying her summer wardrobe, was feeling a little panicky. But she was determined to leave on schedule if she had to wear just one muu muu the entire two weeks they'll be gone, to be spent entirely on the garden island of Kauai.

THIS HAS been a busy week for Long Beach Yacht Clubbers what with the famous Congressional Cup sailing races going on since last Thursday in our waters. The Congressional is one of the top prestige races conducted annually on the West Coast.

HOSTS' SONG, "SILVER THREADS AMONG THE GOLD"

Commodore Bill Dalessi of LBYC and wife, Margo, entertained at a cocktail buffet party in honor of world renowned skipper, Arthur Knapp Jr. of New York. He came here to represent the Larchmont Yacht Club of New York and his crew, who came from all over the country for the race, reads like a who's who in American sailing competitions.

For this race he skippered a Cal-40 name of Dolly and owned by Lyle Cain of LBYC.

Among those gathering to honor Knapp were staff commodores and wives of LBYC as Bob and Marge Pierce, Dick and Vera Brookins, Jonah and Helen Jones; also Don and Rosemary Leedom, with whom Arthur has been houseguesting, Norm and Bea Scott, Clarence and Marilyn Petty and Arch Palmer.

"TIME CERTAINLY flips," said a happy grin. Just about 19 years ago Dr. Jane Malouf this past week with they hosted a party after formal christening of their granddaughter, Kristina Rodecker. Jane and husband, Dr. John Malouf, had the pleasure of hosting another post-christening party at the Elk's Club for their great-grandson, Michael James, son of Kristna and Michael Ahearn.

The three smiling ladies and the intent young fella in picture far left represent four generations in person of new mama, grandmother, Betty Rodecker and Jane.

For Dr. Jane, who has lived at their resort home at Lake Arrowhead much of the time in the past ten years, commuting to see a great-grandchild is no new experience. She and John have been on the great side of grandparenthood since arrival of year-old Wallace Rodecker IV, son of their grandson, Wallace III, and wife, Diana.

Keeffe-Van Buskirk

Susan Devore Van Buskirk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard G. Van Buskirk, Kensington, and Philip Lewis Keeffe, son of Mrs. Philip M. Keeffe of Long Beach, recited vows in Grace Lutheran Church, El Cerrito.

The bride chose a gown of Rachel lace with fitted bodice and tapered sleeves. The controlled pergola skirt was edged in scalloped lace.

A detachable chapel train fell into a petal-like effect.

Linda Hammond was maid of honor; Ernest L. Martin III was best man. Completing the wedding party were Mrs. Barbara Drobny and Ronda King, cousin of the bride, Robert Sarles and John R. Townsend III.

The new Mrs. Keeffe attended the University of Denver and will graduate from San Jose State College in June. She was a member of Delta Gamma and now is affiliated with Gamma Alpha Chi.

Her husband, a graduate of Wilson High School, attended UC at Berkeley and graduated from San Jose State. He was affiliated with Tau Kappa Epsilon, Delta Sigma and the Alamitos Bay Yacht Club in Long Beach.

Following a honeymoon trip to Las Vegas, the newlyweds will reside in Oakland.

Anderson-Rivett

More than 300 guests witnessed an exchange of vows Saturday in First Church of the Nazarene by Bernard F. Anderson and Ellen Kathleen Rivett.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Rivett, 3670 Palo Verde Ave., was attired in a Cahill gown of candlelight satin and re-embroidered French Alencon lace which extended into a chapel train.

Bridal attendants were Marsha Winskill, maid of honor; Jill Rivett, Karen Anderson and Sally Hickman, bridesmaids. Caryn Daggett was flower girl.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Anderson, Lakewood, asked man. Ushers were Chuck Ruzik, Dennis Jaziek, Dick Calkins, Danny Rivett and Greg Daggett. Steven Rivett carried rings to the altar.

Before departing on a wedding trip to Las Vegas, the bridal pair was honored at a reception in the church and a second at Lakewood Elks Club.

A first home will be made in North Long Beach.

Jeanne Lawler, Douglas Hood reveal summer wedding plans

A summer wedding is planned by Jeanne Yvonne Lawler and Douglas Eugene Hood. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Norman E. Lawler; he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Hood, all of Long Beach.

The bride-to-be, a graduate of Millikan High School, attended Long Beach City College, where she affiliated with Iota Chi Alpha. Her fiance is a graduate of Poly High School, LBCC and Long Beach State College where he is working for a master's degree in structural engineering. He is a member of Sigma Pi.

Rosenberry, Stevenson troth told

A romance which started in 1961 when Leslie Jean Rosenberry and James Geoffrey Stevenson met aboard a ship en route to Europe as American Field Service students will be culminated in a June 11 wedding.

Announcement of their engagement and wedding plans has been made by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Rosenberry of San Luis Obispo.

Parents of the prospective bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. James T. Stevenson, 288 Park Ave.

Both are members of the June graduating class at Occidental College, Los Angeles. Miss Rosenberry, an alumna of San Luis Obispo High School, studied in Germany as an AFS student.

Stevenson was graduated from Wilson High School and studied in Finland. He plans to attend Baylor University School of Medicine in the fall.

WILD WAVES SAY

'Vintage bachelors' toss a soiree

By Iola Masterson
I, P-T Society Editor

THE INVITATIONS were whimsically posh. They were from James Boyd and Marvin Cloyd, who billed themselves as "California's Eligible Vintage Bachelors." Both figure they sport enough snow on their peaks (or, if you prefer, gray in their hair), to qualify as vintage variety. Cast your eyes on the couple of dapper gents (pictured on this page with two elegant ladies) and see if you agree.

Anyway, the debonair fellows entertained at swank and merry cocktail buffet at Marvin's home, 25 La Linda Drive, and 70 guests were there to revel in their hospitality. This included a red carpet spread from door to side walk, Neopolitan combo to play background music, four young chauffeurs in red jackets to park cars.

Everything was by candlelight. The hosts asked Bill Beadle, fellow Civic Light Opera performer, to do the party decorations. Smart as well as talented, Bill figured the vintage boys would look better in the soft light of candle glow. So he unplugged every light in the house (except kitchen) and it was verboten throughout evening for any guests to try and sneak a bright light on.

A few in the jolly crowd — Gene and Rose Bishop, Dr. Walter and Marian Grushong, Bill and Win Nott, Mayor Ed and Mary Wade, Dr. Alex and Luba Kadvany (more on just-returned Luba elsewhere here).

Also Ed and Laura Killingsworth, Dr. Geza and Lia Kremples, Dr. Dave and Shirley Gean, Richard and Karen Roat. Fact that party began at 8 p.m. and last guests didn't depart until after 3 a.m. attests to its rip-roaring success.

NOW ABOUT Luba Kadvany, who is finally back on the local scene after a month's absence. After daughter, Gingi, broke her leg during a family skiing trip at Aspen in late December, it was essential for Luba to go back to Washington, D.C., with her plaster-of-paris-cast girl, an art major at George Washington U. She assisted Gingi get settled in a dorm on campus (she had been living with friends in Virginia) to ease the chore of getting to classes on crutches.

GLOWING with suntans acquired in Hawaii are Paul and Alice Nichol, who returned Thursday p.m. by jet after a month's vacation in the islands. Had a marvelous time on this vacation treat following Paul's retirement as head man of the local Procter and Gamble plant.

The two treated themselves to lots of leisurely golf everywhere they went on all the major islands. At the airport to give them the big aloha welcome home were daughters and sons-in-laws Audrey and "Lus" Hauth, Gloria and Ben Neal and Beverly and Bob Sadler.

HE WHO laughts last, etc. Larry and Betty Hunt were pretty smug with success of their surprise dinner party for daughter Sharon's 24th birthday, attended by her husband, Pete Azevedo, Burr and Lenell Dilday, John and Carolyn Watkins, Chuck and Sandy Anderson, John and Carol Stratton.

Then Tuesday Sharon and Pete had Larry and Betty over for breakfast to start their silver wedding anniversary out right. Did it ever! The Hunts' children—Pam and Jim Hunt, Sharon and Pete—presented them with a REALLY whopping surprise—an anniversary gift trip to Hawaii. They gave them plane tickets on the spot, with reservations for a jet flight to begin Thursday, giving them just two brief days to get clothing ready and packed. Woosh!

Wednesday Larry walked in with two swimming trunks and announced he was ready but Betty, surveying her summer wardrobe, was feeling a little panicky. But she was determined to leave on schedule if she had to wear just one muu muu the entire two weeks they'll be gone, to be spent entirely on the garden island of Kauai.

THIS HAS been a busy week for Long Beach Yacht Clubbers what with the famous Congressional Cup sailing races going on since last Thursday in our waters. The Congressional is one of the top prestige races conducted annually on the West Coast.

HOSTS' SONG, "SILVER THREADS AMONG THE GOLD"

Commodore Bill Dalessi of LBYC and wife, Margo, entertained at a cocktail buffet party in honor of world renowned skipper, Arthur Knapp Jr. of New York. He came here to represent the Larchmont Yacht Club of New York and his crew, who came from all over the country for the race, reads like a who's who in American sailing competitions.

For this race he skippered a Cal-40 name of Dolly and owned by Lyle Cain of LBYC.

Among those gathering to honor Knapp were staff commodores and wives of LBYC as Bob and Marge Pierce, Dick and Vera Brookins, Jonah and Helen Jones; also Don and Rosemary Leedom, with whom Arthur has been houseguesting, Norm and Bea Scott, Clarence and Marilyn Petty and Arch Palmer.

"TIME CERTAINLY flips," said a happy grin. Just about 19 years ago Dr. Jane Malouf this past week with they hosted a party after formal christening of their granddaughter, Kristina Rodecker. Jane and husband, Dr. John Malouf, had the pleasure of hosting another post-christening party at the Elk's Club for their great-grandson, Michael James, son of Kristna and Michael Ahearn.

The three smiling ladies and the intent young fella in picture far left represent four generations in person of new mama, grandmother, Betty Rodecker and Jane.

For Dr. Jane, who has lived at their resort home at Lake Arrowhead much of the time in the past ten years, commuting to see a great-grandchild is no new experience. She and John have been on the great side of grandparenthood since arrival of year-old Wallace Rodecker IV, son of their grandson, Wallace III, and wife, Diana.

Keeffe-Van Buskirk

Susan Devore Van Buskirk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard G. Van Buskirk, Kensington, and Philip Lewis Keeffe, son of Mrs. Philip M. Keeffe of Long Beach, recited vows in Grace Lutheran Church, El Cerrito.

The bride chose a gown of Rachel lace with fitted bodice and tapered sleeves. The controlled pergola skirt was edged in scalloped lace.

A detachable chapel train fell into a petal-like effect.

Linda Hammond was maid of honor; Ernest L. Martin III was best man. Completing the wedding party were Mrs. Barbara Drobny and Ronda King, cousin of the bride, Robert Sarles and John R. Townsend III.

The new Mrs. Keeffe attended the University of Denver and will graduate from San Jose State College in June. She was a member of Delta Gamma and now is affiliated with Gamma Alpha Chi.

Her husband, a graduate of Wilson High School, attended UC at Berkeley and graduated from San Jose State. He was affiliated with Tau Kappa Epsilon, Delta Sigma and the Alamitos Bay Yacht Club in Long Beach.

Following a honeymoon trip to Las Vegas, the newlyweds will reside in Oakland.

Anderson-Rivett

More than 300 guests witnessed an exchange of vows Saturday in First Church of the Nazarene by Bernard F. Anderson and Ellen Kathleen Rivett.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Rivett, 3670 Palo Verde Ave., was attired in a Cahill gown of candlelight satin and re-embroidered French Alencon lace which extended into a chapel train.

Bridal attendants were Marsha Winskill, maid of honor; Jill Rivett, Karen Anderson and Sally Hickman, bridesmaids. Caryn Daggett was flower girl.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Anderson, Lakewood, asked man. Ushers were Chuck Ruzik, Dennis Jaziek, Dick Calkins, Danny Rivett and Greg Daggett. Steven Rivett carried rings to the altar.

Before departing on a wedding trip to Las Vegas, the bridal pair was honored at a reception in the church and a second at Lakewood Elks Club.

A first home will be made in North Long Beach.

Carolyn-Joe Peek to wed Charles Harriman Paap

Mr. and Mrs. Lon Peek Sr. of Huntington Beach, formerly of Long Beach, announced engagement of their daughter, Carolyn-Joe, to Charles Harriman Paap, son of Dr. and Mrs. George Paap of Long Beach.

The wedding, to take place April 2 at Community Church in Garden Grove, will unite two prominent, long-time California families.

Miss Peek attended Progress School in Long Beach and Blessed Sacrament School, was graduated from Westminster High and later attended Orange Coast College. She made her debut at Assistance League's debutante ball in 1962 and was a Junior League debutante in 1963. She was one of the few California debs honored by presentation to the national regent of Daughters of the American Revolution at Hotel Coronado, San Diego.

THE BRIDEGROOM-ELECT, a grand nephew of the late Dr. William Harriman Jones of Long Beach, attended Progress School and was graduated from Chadwick School, Rolling Hills. An alumnus of the University of Michigan, he completed graduate work at USC and now is affiliated with USC and Black Fox Military Academy, Los Angeles.

The betrothal and approaching marriage first was announced at a colorful "Fiesta de Mexico" party hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Peek Sr. and attended by 200 friends. A double celebration, the party also was a welcome home for the hosts' son, Lon Earl Peek II, and his bride, the former Jennifer Knor, upon their return from a honeymoon in Mexico.

Her fiance was graduated from Romeo High School, Romeo, Mich., and studied at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. He is serving a tour of duty in the U.S. Marines and is stationed in Long Beach.

Ellithorpe-Rainwater

An April 23 wedding is planned by Shirley Diane Ellithorpe and Alfonso Frank Rainwater. Their engagement is being announced by the bride-elect's father, Richard N. Ellithorpe, 2012 Petaluma Ave.

Miss Ellithorpe is an alumna of Jordan High School. Her fiance was graduated from Bellflower High School.

Rodgers-Holbrook

Barbara Diane Rodgers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond D. Rodgers, Long Beach, will become the bride of M. Randy Holbrook on June 25. He is the son of Mr. Merrill Holbrook, Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Charles J. Stipac, Long Beach.

Both young persons, graduates of Millikan High School, now attend Long Beach City College.

Franklin-Lippert

Orange Coast College graduates Elizabeth Ann Franklin and Barry Richard Lippert will exchange wedding vows in June. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Franklin and Mr. and Mrs. Earl B. Lippert. Both families reside in Westminster. He is continuing his education at Long Beach State College.

Beresford-Benson

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon R. Beresford, Long Beach, have announced that their daughter, Lyn, will become the May 27 bride of James Benson. He is the son of Mrs. Gertrude Benson, Tucson, Ariz.

Workman-Schulein

Planning to wed on June 26 are Linda Jane Workman and Jeff M. Schulein, both of Long Beach, according to an announcement by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Workman, Fostoria, Ohio. The bridegroom-elect is son of Mrs. Jack Schulein, Long Beach, and the late Mr. Schulein.

Miss Workman attended the University of Toledo and was graduated in 1964 from Bowling Green State University, both in Ohio. She is now teaching at Millikan High School and taking post-graduate studies at Long Beach State College.

Her fiance, a graduate of Jordan High, attended Long Beach State where he affiliated with Zeta Beta Tau.

AT PETROLEUM CLUB

On day men joined the ladies

HAPPY TALK AT HAPPY HOUR . . . Mmes. Wayne Fitzgerald, John Lynch chat with friend.

MRS. JAMES R. HALE . . . new chairman of Petroleum Wives.

"Special notice," said the card. "MEN INVITED," it continued in emphatic capital letters. It was for the regular Petroleum Club Wives luncheon meeting. Very special attraction was the guest speaker, Pat Boggs. Pat is assistant special agent in charge of Los Angeles office of United States Secret Service. What's more, he grew up in Long Beach, is son of the late Dick Boggs, well-known oil man of this area.

That the men—and the women—enjoyed day is proven by these candid pictures.

Carolyn-Joe Peek to wed Charles Harriman Paap

Mr. and Mrs. Lon Peek Sr. of Huntington Beach, formerly of Long Beach, announced engagement of their daughter, Carolyn-Joe, to Charles Harriman Paap, son of Dr. and Mrs. George Paap of Long Beach.

The wedding, to take place April 2 at Community Church in Garden Grove, will unite two prominent, long-time California families.

Miss Peek attended Progress School in Long Beach and Blessed Sacrament School, was graduated from Westminster High and later attended Orange Coast College. She made her debut at Assistance League's debutante ball in 1962 and was a Junior League debutante in 1963. She was one of the few California debs honored by presentation to the national regent of Daughters of the American Revolution at Hotel Coronado, San Diego.

THE BRIDEGROOM-ELECT, a grand nephew of the late Dr. William Harriman Jones of Long Beach, attended Progress School and was graduated from Chadwick School, Rolling Hills. An alumnus of the University of Michigan, he completed graduate work at USC and now is affiliated with USC and Black Fox Military Academy, Los Angeles.

The betrothal and approaching marriage first was announced at a colorful "Fiesta de Mexico" party hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Peek Sr. and attended by 200 friends. A double celebration, the party also was a welcome home for the hosts' son, Lon Earl Peek II, and his bride, the former Jennifer Knor, upon their return from a honeymoon in Mexico.

Public invited

The public is invited to a noon luncheon and card party to be given Monday by the Good Sports Club in the Garden Room, Third Street and Alamitos Avenue.

A SOIREE FOR SYMPHONY

Juniors hit high note

The elegance of old Spain will be recreated in decorations Saturday night when Symphony Juniors of Long Beach hold their 12th annual formal dinner dance at Wilbur Clark's plush new Crest Hotel in Anaheim.

The Madrid Room at the hotel will be ablaze with hundreds of hand-made paper flowers and a forest of potted flowering plants, palms and shrubs. Fountains and candlelight, black wrought iron balconies, screens and sconces will give sophisticated substance to the Spanish theme.

Mrs. Donald Ewing is ball chairman. Mrs. Raymond Hill, decorations chairman, is being assisted by Mmes. John Booth, Dale Leisy, James Macon and William Dudney.

Music for dancing will be furnished by recording artist Bernie Perry and his 10-piece band.

NUMEROUS pre-dinner dance cocktail parties have been planned.

The penthouse suite at the hotel has been reserved by Mr. and Mrs. Courtney Trostle (she is president of Symphony Juniors) where they will entertain more than a hundred guests.

Others who have taken suites to entertain at cocktails are Mr. and Mrs. L. Hinton Howe (she is president of the Long Beach Auxiliary to Southern California Symphony), Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ewing, Drs. and Mmes. James Thompson and John Sewak who are co-hosting; also Messers. and Mmes. Fred Singer, Carl Healy, Robert Porter and Dr. and Mrs. Edgar Hamer.

A MARIACHI band, the Valentinos, will provide additional entertainment at the ball and will play at each of the hotel cocktail parties. When the dinner hour arrives, the musicians will lead guests to the ballroom for a "Pied Piper" entrance.

Symphony Juniors support the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra. Through such benefits as Saturday's ball, they help bring the orchestra to Long Beach for four or more concerts each year.

Reservations for the forthcoming dance, open to the public, may be made with Mrs. C. W. Simmons, 7174 Premium St.

A date for the bride

An exciting array of spring bridal gowns will be presented Thursday, 7:30 p.m., at the Broadway Long Beach. As an added attraction, Mrs. Jean Luban, merchandising director of Bride's Magazine, will be on hand to comment on the fashions.

MRS. JEAN LUBAN

Other Broadway stores in the area will present the same show in their Regency Rooms at 7:30 p.m. on the following dates: Tuesday, the Del Amo store; Wednesday, Anaheim; Thursday, Feb. 17, Downey.

Traditional styles and fabrics — lace, organza, taffeta and satin — will be featured in creations for spring weddings.

Mrs. Luban will offer tips on how to be the loveliest and calmest bride ever. As merchandising director for Bride's, Mrs. Luban travels throughout the United States presenting bridal shows.

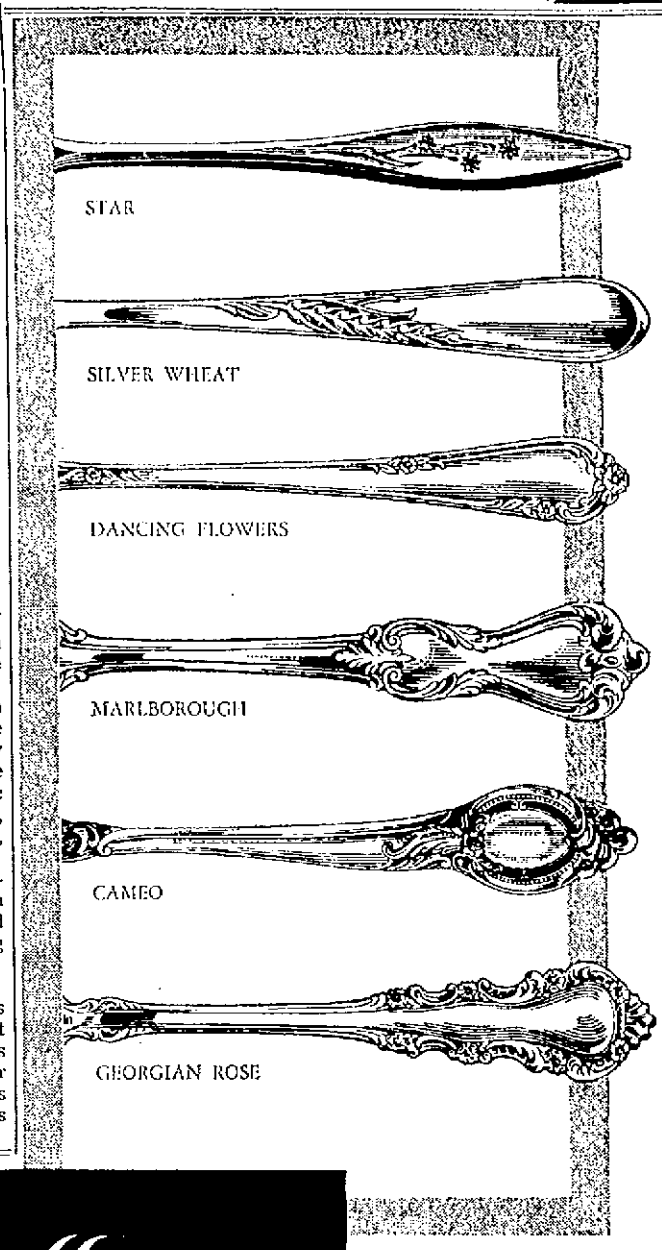

Program to star student musicians

A one-hour program will be presented Monday, 8 p.m., by the Jordan High School music department in Long Beach Municipal Auditorium.

Jerome Bartkus will direct the 75-piece orchestra in classical and popular selections. The A Capella choir also will be featured.

Community singing will be offered at 7:30 p.m. Square dancing will follow the stage show with Joe Marshall as caller.

DEAR ABBY

Fruit of family tree

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You made such a fuss about the teacher who assigned her students the task of making a "family tree." You said it was an "invasion of privacy."

ABBY

You showed your hand, Abby, I'll wager that you have never written to a genealogical society requesting that they trace your family tree. Are you afraid of what they might find? C.J.L.

DEAR C.J.L.: No, I'm afraid they might send me back a bunch of bananas.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: Is it permissible for a girl to wear her grandmother's diamond for an engagement ring? It is a perfect two-carat diamond in an old-fashioned setting.

I would wear it just as it is...so as not to detract from the sentimental value. My parents say that I may have it if I want it. The man I am going to marry is in the service, and his money could be used in other ways.

Besides, I'm sure he couldn't afford to get me a ring to compare with my grandmother's. Would this be proper? SENTIMENTAL

DEAR SENTIMENTAL: An engagement is a compact of hearts. The ring is from the man to his beloved to let the whole world in on it.

Just an eentsy-weentsy diamond from your intended would have more "sentimental" value than grandma's perfect two-carat rock.

If the diamond were HIS grandmother's, it would be fine. Too bad, the wrong grandmother had the rock.

DEAR ABBY

Fruit of family tree

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You made such a fuss about the teacher who assigned her students the task of making a "family tree." You said it was an "invasion of privacy."

ABBY

You showed your hand, Abby. I'll wager that you have never written to a genealogical society requesting that they trace your family tree. Are you afraid of what they might find? C.J.L.

DEAR C.J.L.: No, I'm afraid they might send me back a bunch of bananas.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: Is it permissible for a girl to wear her grandmother's diamond for an engagement ring? It is a perfect two-carat diamond in an old-fashioned setting.

I would wear it just as it is so as not to detract from the sentimental value. My parents say that I may have it if I want it. The man I am going to marry is in the service, and his money could be used in other ways.

Besides, I'm sure he couldn't afford to get me a ring to compare with my grandmother's. Would this be proper? SENTIMENTAL

DEAR SENTIMENTAL: An engagement is a compact of hearts. The ring is from the man to his beloved to let the whole world in on it.

Just an eentsy-weentsy diamond from your intended would have more "sentimental" value than grandma's perfect two-carat rock.

If the diamond were HIS grandmother's, it would be fine. Too bad, the wrong grandmother had the rock.

ENGAGEMENTS ANNOUNCED

Future brides reveal spring dates

Johnson-McNally

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Johnson announce the betrothal of their daughter, Elaine, to Thomas R. McNally, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McNally, Lakewood.

Both are graduates of Dominguez High School, Compton. The bride-to-be is a senior at Pasadena College. Her fiance, who holds a degree from Long Beach State College, teaches at Earl Warren High School, Downey.

Hart-O'Rourke

Mr. and Mrs. James W. Hart of Lakewood announce the betrothal of their daughter, Nancy, to Charles O'Rourke II.

Parents of the prospective bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Charles O'Rourke, San Diego.

A July 23 wedding is planned.

Miss Hart is an alumna of Lakewood High School and Long Beach City College. Her fiance is a student at San Diego State College.

Bishop-Beckett

Engagement and March 11 wedding plans of their daughter, Michele Jo-Ann, and Leon W. Beckett are being announced by Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Bishop, 3322 Gondar Ave.

Parents of the prospective bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Leon W. Beckett of Washington, Mich.

Miss Bishop is an alumna of Millikan High School and attended Long Beach City College. She is a member of Bethel 6, International Order of Job's Daughters.

Her fiance was graduated from Romeo High School, Romeo, Mich., and studied at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. He is serving a tour of duty in the U.S. Marines and is stationed in Long Beach.

Ellithorpe-Rainwater

An April 23 wedding is planned by Shirley Diane Ellithorpe and Alfonso Frank Rainwater. Their engagement is being announced by the bride-elect's father, Richard N. Ellithorpe, 2912 Petaluma Ave.

Miss Ellithorpe is an alumna of Jordan High School. Her fiance was graduated from Bellflower High School.

Rodgers-Holbrook

Barbara Diane Rodgers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond D. Rodgers, Long Beach, will become the bride of M. Randy Holbrook on June 25. He is the son of Mr. Merrill Holbrook, Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Charles J. Stipac, Long Beach.

Both young persons, graduates of Millikan High School, now attend Long Beach City College.

Franklin-Lippert

Orange Coast College graduates Elizabeth Ann Franklin and Barry Richard Lippert will exchange wedding vows in June. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Franklin and Mr. and Mrs. Earl B. Lippert. Both families reside in Westminster. He is continuing his education at Long Beach State College.

Beresford-Benson

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon R. Beresford, Long Beach, have announced that their daughter, Lyn, will become the May 27 bride of James Benson. He is the son of Mrs. Gertrude Benson, Tucson, Ariz.

Workman-Schulein

Planning to wed on June 26 are Linda Jane Workman and Jeff M. Schulein, both of Long Beach, according to an announcement by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Workman, Fostoria, Ohio. The bridegroom-elect is son of Mrs. Jack Schulein, Long Beach, and the late Mr. Schulein.

Miss Workman attended the University of Toledo and was graduated in 1964 from Bowling Green State University, both in Ohio. She is now teaching at Millikan High School and taking post-graduate studies at Long Beach State College.

Her fiance, a graduate of Jordan High, attended Long Beach State where he affiliated with Zeta Beta Tau.

Carolyn-Joe Peek to wed Charles Harriman Paap

Mr. and Mrs. Lon Peek Sr. of Huntington Beach, formerly of Long Beach, announced engagement of their daughter, Carolyn-Joe, to Charles Harriman Paap, son of Dr. and Mrs. George Paap of Long Beach.

The wedding, to take place April 2 at Community Church in Garden Grove, will unite two prominent, long-time California families.

Miss Peek attended Progress School in Long Beach and Blessed Sacrament School, was graduated from Westminster High and later attended Orange Coast College. She made her debut at Assistance League's debutante ball in 1962 and was a Junior League debutante in 1963. She was one of the few California debs honored by presentation to the national regent of Daughters of the American Revolution at Hotel Coronado, San Diego.

THE BRIDEGROOM-ELECT, a grand nephew of the late Dr. William Harriman Jones of Long Beach, attended Progress School and was graduated from Chadwick School, Rolling Hills. An alumnus of the University of Michigan, he completed graduate work at USC and now is affiliated with USC and Black Fox Military Academy, Los Angeles.

The betrothal and approaching marriage first was announced at a colorful "Fiesta de Mexico" party hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Peek Sr. and attended by 200 friends. A double celebration, the party also was a welcome home for the hosts' son, Lon Earl Peek II, and his bride, the former Jennifer Knor, upon their return from a honeymoon in Mexico.

Public invited

The public is invited to a noon luncheon and card party to be given Monday by the Good Sports Club in the Garden Room, Third Street and Alamitos Avenue.

Focus is on school art and that leaves grow on branches. You can tell a great deal about how a child is maturing by his art."

In the fifth and sixth grades, art classes take their cues from social studies subjects such as the Westward Movement.

THROUGHOUT the art program, students are introduced to many media and are encouraged to experiment. In junior high school, each must have at least one semester of art and may elect to take more. No art is required in high school, but a student may elect as much as three years study.

"Object of the school program is to teach students that art is everywhere. It influences all phases of our lives—the buildings we live in, the clothes we wear, the things with which we surround ourselves.

"Good art is based on order and unity. If we get this point over, we increase the student's feeling of sensitivity and his awareness of the things around him. He lives more fully," Mrs. Buerger sums up.

Copland tapes concert comments

many colleges. Anything so surprising about a composer going to make music at a college where they have lots of music making resources?

Temianka: No, of course not. It shouldn't be in the least surprising. But I think that it's not that they are surprised, but they would like to know in your own words what your special warmth or interest or affection is for this kind of Association.

Copland: Well, I like to work with young people, I like to see what's going on inside the schools. I was invited and I thought it would be fun to come.

Temianka: Great! And how do you view the future of these students in the world of music in the state colleges? What do you think they are going to be able to contribute? How are we going to improve that program? I think this is the sort of thing that they would like to be able to write about.

COPLAND: I am not an authority on school music. I have never taught regularly in a public school or university, except in relation to composing. And so I am not qualified to say exactly what ought to happen to them. I hope they will be getting something that will help to further the future of music in America.

Temianka: But you have written an awful lot of music that is especially suitable to colleges because to all of the students your name is a household word.

The paper would particularly like to write about your activities during this past month and year. Everything else they can find in reference volumes. The one thing they cannot find are your specific activities in recent months as a composer, lecturer and conductor.

Copland: My most recent activity was a six-week conducting tour in Europe, where I conducted orchestras in England, Scotland, Poland, Italy and Germany. I have been doing more and more conducting in recent years, which takes up more and more time.

Temianka: Too much time, actually; it interferes to some extent. . . .

Copland: Yes, one has to watch it.

TEMIANKA: Right. One has to watch it so that there is enough time for the creative activities. Now, what have you been writing?

Copland: I have a commission from the Philadelphia Orchestra to write an orchestral work.

Temianka: What kind of work—a symphony?

Copland: Don't know yet—it will be a long work.

Temianka: A long work which is now in the process of creation?

Copland: Yes.

Temianka: What else have you written during the past year?

Copland: I haven't actually finished anything in the past year because of all the conducting I have been doing and other activities.

The "activities" included conducting the Hollywood Bowl Orchestra, the Chicago Symphony and the New York Philharmonic in its post-season French-American Festival of programs of his own works. He was soloist with the same orchestra, playing his "Piano Concerto" for the last of the outdoor concerts which drew more than 70,000 listeners to a single performance in Central Park.

AN EXTRAORDINARILY versatile composer, he has written ballets, film music, operas, symphonies and concertos, has authored four books, written dozens of magazine articles and is in demand as a lecturer.

The Feb. 22 Long Beach concert will open with "An Outdoor Overture (1938), played by the LBSC symphony conducted by Temianka, and will continue with "The Tender Land" (1954) by the College Opera Workshop and A Cappella Choir conducted by Hans Lampl of the music faculty. Copland will conduct his first symphony (1928) and the program will conclude with "Emblems" (1964) played by the LBSC Symphonic Band conducted by Robert Reynolds.

Tickets, which may be ordered from the college music department, are $2 for general admission, $1 for students and $5 for sponsors. The sponsor ticket holders will be invited to meet Copland at a champagne reception after the concert.

And what does the dynamic composer plan for the future?

"More conducting. I get a bang out of conducting!" he declares.—ELISE EMERY

A SOIREE FOR SYMPHONY

Juniors hit high note

The elegance of old Spain will be recreated in decorations Saturday night when Symphony Juniors of Long Beach hold their 12th annual formal dinner dance at Wilbur Clark's plush new Crest Hotel in Anaheim.

The Madrid Room at the hotel will be ablaze with hundreds of hand-made paper flowers and a forest of potted flowering plants, palms and shrubs. Fountains and candlelight, black wrought iron balconies, screens and sconces will give sophisticated substance to the Spanish theme.

Mrs. Donald Ewing is ball chairman. Mrs. Raymond Hill, decorations chairman, is being assisted by Mmes. John Booth, Dale Leisy, James Macon and William Dudney.

Music for dancing will be furnished by recording artist Bernie Perry and his 10-piece band.

NUMEROUS pre-dinner dance cocktail parties have been planned.

The penthouse suite at the hotel has been reserved by Mr. and Mrs. Courtney Trostle (she is president of Symphony Juniors) where they will entertain more than a hundred guests.

Others who have taken suites to entertain at cocktails are Mr. and Mrs. L. Hinton Howe (she is president of the Long Beach Auxiliary to Southern California Symphony), Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ewing, Drs. and Mmes. James Thompson and John Sewak who are co-hosting; also Messers. and Mmes. Fred Singer, Carl Healy, Robert Porter and Dr. and Mrs. Edgar Hamer.

A MARIACHI band, the Valentinos, will provide additional entertainment at the ball and will play at each of the hotel cocktail parties. When the dinner hour arrives, the musicians will lead guests to the ballroom for a "Pied Piper" entrance.

Symphony Juniors support the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra. Through such benefits as Saturday's ball, they help bring the orchestra to Long Beach for four or more concerts each year.

Reservations for the forthcoming dance, open to the public, may be made with Mrs. C. W. Simmons, 7174 Premium St.

A date for the bride

An exciting array of spring bridal gowns will be presented Thursday, 7:30 p.m., at the Broadway Long Beach. As an added attraction, Mrs. Jean Luban, merchandising director of Bride's Magazine, will be on hand to comment on the fashions.

MRS. JEAN LUBAN

Other Broadway stores in the area will present the same show in their Regency Rooms at 7:30 p.m. on the following dates: Tuesday, the Del Amo store; Wednesday, Anaheim; Thursday, Feb. 17, Downey.

Traditional styles and fabrics — lace, organza, taffeta and satin — will be featured in creations for spring weddings.

Mrs. Luban will offer tips on how to be the loveliest and calmest bride ever. As merchandising director for Bride's, Mrs. Luban travels throughout the United States presenting bridal shows.

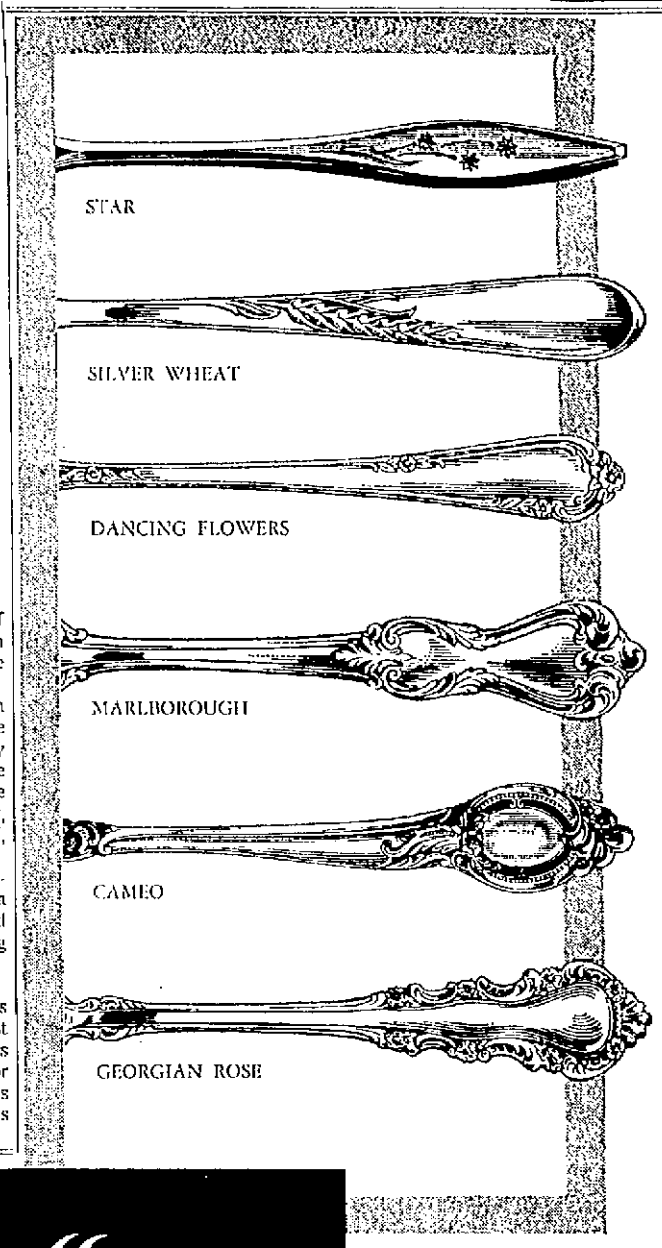

Program to star student musicians

A one-hour program will be presented Monday, 8 p.m., by the Jordan High School music department in Long Beach Municipal Auditorium.

Jerome Bartkus will direct the 75-piece orchestra in classical and popular selections. The A Capella choir also will be featured.

Community singing will be offered at 7:30 p.m. Square dancing will follow the stage show with Joe Marshall as caller.

DEAR ABBY: Is it permissible for a girl to wear her grandmother's diamond for an engagement ring? It is a perfect two-carat diamond in an old-fashioned setting.

I would wear it just as it is...so as not to detract from the sentimental value. My parents say that I may have it if I want it. The man I am going to marry is in the service, and his money could be used in other ways.

Besides, I'm sure he couldn't afford to get me a ring to compare with my grandmother's. Would this be proper? SENTIMENTAL.

DEAR SENTIMENTAL: An engagement is a compact of hearts. The ring is from the man to his beloved to let the whole world in on it.

Just an eentsy-weentsy diamond from your intended would have more "sentimental" value than grandma's perfect two-carat rock.

If the diamond were HIS grandmother's, it would be fine. Too bad, the wrong grandmother had the rock.

LBSC opens invitational drawing exhibit

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

The Seventh Annual Invitational Drawing Show at Long Beach State College, which opens today, gives viewers an opportunity to compare styles and attitudes reflected by 30 artists.

The figurative, still life and abstract drawings in both color and black and white are from private collections, galleries and the artists themselves.

These include Cadmus and De Kooning of New York, Bischoff and Diebenkorn of San Francisco, Sam Francis and Altoon of Los Angeles and Aronson of Pennsylvania.

The public is invited to a reception today from 3 to 5 p.m. Regular hours in the gallery are 8 a.m. to noon and 1 to 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays. Special arrangements may be made for groups, says Donald Dame, gallery director.

"CRAFTSMEN U.S.A. '66," national competition sponsored by the American Craftsmen's Council, has two purposes.

It seeks new talent and serves as a guide to trends in the crafts movement as it is developing in America. The competition is divided into six regional areas, each with its own jury and exhibition.

The Southwest Regional section goes on view Wednesday in the Lytton Gallery of Los Angeles County Museum of Art, 5905 Wilshire Blvd., and will continue through March 13. The show includes 277 pieces of ceramic, wood, metal, jewelry, weaving and other craftswork chosen from more than 1,500 entries from Arizona, California, Hawaii, Nevada, New Mexico and Utah. Of the 277, 48 items will be included in an exhibit at the Museum of Contemporary Crafts, New York, this summer.

Regional jurors were Toshiko Takaezu, potter and weaver of Cleveland Institute of Art; Mary Kretsinger, metals craftsman at Emporia, Kan., and Southwest Harbor, Maine; and Gervais Reed, director of the Henry Gallery, University of Washington, Seattle.

Museum hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Sundays, closed Mondays.

WILLIAM PERSONA, who once worked as an artist for the Long Beach Telegram and as cartoonist for the Hollywood Citizen News, has an exhibit at the Pacific Coast Club. He will meet viewers today at a public reception from 2 to 5 p.m.

Persona, who studied at the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts and Otis Art Institute, Los Angeles, also worked on a newspaper in Sidney, Australia, before going to Mexico to teach in the public schools.

He says, "I feel that the 30 years of experience in scores of art crafts and 15 years of painting several thousands of pictures hardly qualifies me to begin to understand colors and the control of the viscosity of paint. Allowed another 50 years and I might make it."

ARTISTS and craftsmen are invited by the South Coast Art Association to take part in an open art show Saturday and next Sunday at 2475 S. El Camino Real, San Clemente. Artists can sell, commission free, to the public and to dealers.

UCLA WILL mark American Negro History Week with programs covering the historical, socio-political and musical aspects of the life of the American Negro.

Activities will open with a public lecture Tuesday at 3 p.m. in Haines Hall 39 by Arna Bontemps, author, playwright and poet. His topic: "Old Myths-New Negroes."

In conjunction with the lecture, the University Research Library will display the Arthur B. Spingarn Collection of Negroana today through March 6. The 5,000 volumes about the American Negro, dating from the 18th century to the present time, include many first editions. "Prints by American Negro Artists" will be shown at the UCLA Student Union from Feb. 14 through 18.

Another high light of the week will be a symposium on "Negro Aspirations: Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow" Wednesday at 8 p.m. in Haines Hall 39. L. D. Reddick of Baltimore's Coppin State College, will speak on "New Viewpoints for Negro History" at 8 p.m. Thursday in Moore Hall 100. The week will conclude with a concert by the Modern Jazz Quartet and the Dizzy Gillespie Quintet Saturday at 8:30 p.m. in Royce Hall.

Lectures, exhibits and the symposium are free. Tickets for the concert are on sale at the UCLA Concert Ticket Office, 10851 Le Conte Ave., Westwood.

ITEMS FROM the collections of Fred and Barbara Meiers, Gordon Wagner and the Museum of New Mexico are on display at the Palos Verdes Library Gallery. The "Folk Art of Mexico" will continue through March 13 under auspices of Palos Verdes Community Arts Association.

Hours are 1 to 4 p.m. weekdays, 3 to 5 p.m. Sundays.

'New Faces' are bold, excitingly venturesome

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

"New Faces" at Long Beach City College Art Gallery, 4901 E. Carson St., will continue through March 4. It is a bold gathering of four painters and a sculptor, each of whom has received his M.F.A. within the last three years from a Los Angeles area graduate school. The show's director, Jerry Darnell, chose, with the schools' faculties, outstanding artists who were beyond the academic situation but not yet in commercial galleries. Venturesome collectors should have a field day.

* * * *

FRED DRON, the sculptor, does curiously full pendulous forms from which reaching forms thrust. These are cast in bronze or nickel silver on long legs and mounted on thin turned wood pedestals. They are grand and menacing. "Triptych" is a particularly well installed triad.

Dron was schooled in Claremont.

Ian Gatly, formerly of LBSC, is an exciting draftsman. To his sure restraint in pencil or charcoal, he adds mists of black or gray which shimmer, giving enigmatic space to his figures. "Blind Man's Bluff" is a circle of small, coltish lads in which there is a dream quality along with the refreshing acuteness of observation.

* * * *

ANDREW WING, also from LBSC, is tremendously experimental in acrylic paint. There are layers over layers with see-through and resist, and a number of other effects, all of which add up to a romantic, poetic vision. He constructs environments for his paintings which intensify the mood. In "Time Chips in Flow," part of the painting is a "see through" into a mosaic of small wood pieces.

* * * *

LEWIS OTT came from Otis where he reflects the knowledge of color structure of Robert Frame. In that reference, the originality of Ott's own directions are brought more sharply into focus as is "Computer" (a man of crimson rectangles on a silver ground), "Above and Beyond" (vet with medals; lots of flat color areas), and "Troubador" (almost divided between the blue blue and embarassed pink). Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondays through Thursday, and 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Fridays.

Library adds new discs for LP fans

Joan Sutherland sings familiar opera arias in "Command Performance," one of the new recordings in the record section of the main library.

Other additions include:

Leonard Bernstein conducting the New York Philharmonic Orchestra in "Symphony No. 7" by Shostakovich; Vladimir Horowitz's return performance May 9, 1965, "At Carnegie Hall;" "An Evening of Flamenco Music" with the Romeros, Royal Family of the Spanish Guitar; and "Mexico: Its Cultural Life in Music and Art," with Carlos Chevez conducting the Mexican Orchestra and Chorus.

* * * *

"EASY SOLOS for the Trumpet" has been added to the Music Minus One series. Moira Shearer tells the stories of Swan Lake and Sleeping Beauty in "A Child's Introduction to Ballet."

Most recent dramatic addition is "The Master Builder" by Ibsen, featuring Michael Redgrave, Maggie Smith and Celia Johnson. Pope Paul's "United Nations Address" is now available.

Records may be borrowed for two weeks.

Musical arts

Mario Farrar, baritone, and his wife, Louetta, soprano, will entertain members of Musical Arts Club following dinner Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Pelican Restaurant, 701 E. Ocean Blvd. John Ayre, for many years first French horn player with the Halle Orchestra in England under Sir John Barbirolli's direction, will play a concerto by Mozart. James Low of Los Angeles will accompany the three artists.

March 26 auditions at LBSC

Several full-time scholarships for the 1966-67 school year will be awarded by the department of music at Long Beach State College.

Auditions will be held in the music building March 26 from 1 to 5 p.m.

To be eligible for the scholarships, a student must meet the college entrance requirements and his or her musical ability must be in voice, piano, organ, band or an orchestral instrument.

Although students auditioning for scholarships do not have to declare a music major in college, preference will be shown to music majors.

* * * *

THE AUDITION for a faculty committee will last for 15 minutes and the student should be prepared to perform a solo and to sight-read materials selected by the committee.

Deadline for submission of applications is March 10.

10 head CCA drive

Ten women have been named divisional chairmen in preparation for the Long Beach Community Concert Association's membership campaign.

Membership chairman Mrs. Alfred Durfee identified them as Mmes. William F. Jensen, Wade Kittell, Donald Simonsen, Peter Miotta, John O. McDonald, Glenn Manning, Arthur Cozens, Henry Warner, John R. Pownall and Dorothy Judy Klein.

* * * *

THEY WILL MEET Feb. 15 in Chamber of Commerce offices to hear Columbia Concert representative Roy Cooper speak. The association membership drive begins March 21.

Harry J. Krusz was recently named president of the Community Concert Association for 1966-67. He heads a slate of 22 new officers and directors.

'Egypt' topic of film lecture bill

"Egypt, Gift of the Nile" will be presented by Long Beach City College at five high school auditoriums in the fifth International Film Series program of the season.

Beginning at 8 p.m. nightly, the film-lecture is scheduled Monday at Wilson, Tuesday at Jordan, Wednesday at Lakewood, Thursday at Polytechnic and Friday at Millikan High School. Tickets will be available at the door.

Narrated by Ralph J. Franklin, photographer and archaeologist, the film on ancient and modern Egypt will be shown on a wide screen with stereophonic sound.

NORMAN THOMPSON

Thompson, Palance in OC concert

Actor Jack Palance, concert pianist Norman Thompson and the Orange County Symphony Orchestra, directed by Eugene Ober, will combine talents Monday, Feb. 14, for an 8:30 p.m. performance at Melodyland Theater.

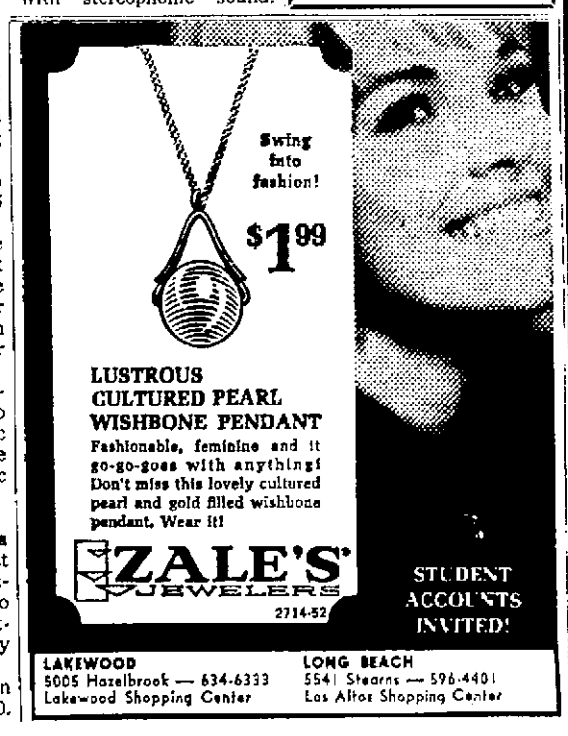

Palance will narrate "A Lincoln Portrait"

Ober will conduct the orchestra in "Overture to Leonora" and Rachmaninoff's "Concerto No. 2," for which Thompson will be soloist.

To mark Valentine's Day, the conductor has scheduled a series of romantic waltzes.

and that leaves grow on branches. You can tell a great deal about how a child is maturing by his art."

In the fifth and sixth grades, art classes take their cues from social studies subjects such as the Westward Movement.

THROUGHOUT the art program, students are introduced to many media and are encouraged to experiment. In junior high school, each must have at least one semester of art and may elect to take more. No art is required in high school, but a student may elect as much as three years study.

"Object of the school program is to teach students that art is everywhere. It influences all phases of our lives—the buildings we live in, the clothes we wear, the things with which we surround ourselves.

"Good art is based on order and unity. If we get this point over, we increase the student's feeling of sensitivity and his awareness of the things around him. He lives more fully," Mrs. Buerger sums up.

many colleges. Anything so surprising about a composer going to make music at a college where they have lots of music making resources?

Temianka: No, of course not. It shouldn't be in the least surprising. But I think that it's not that they are surprised, but they would like to know in your own words what your special warmth or interest or affection is for this kind of association.

Copland: Well, I like to work with young people, I like to see what's going on inside the schools. I was invited and I thought it would be fun to come.

Temianka: Great! And how do you view the future of these students in the world of music in the state colleges? What do you think they are going to be able to contribute? How are we going to improve that program? I think this is the sort of thing that they would like to be able to write about.

COPLAND: I am not an authority on school music. I have never taught regularly in a public school or university, except in relation to composing. And so I am not qualified to say exactly what ought to happen to them. I hope they will be getting something that will help to further the future of music in America.

Temianka: But you have written an awful lot of music that is especially suitable to colleges because to all of the students your name is a household word.

The paper would particularly like to write about your activities during this past month and year. Everything else they can find in reference volumes. The one thing they cannot find are your specific activities in recent months as a composer, lecturer and conductor.

Copland: My most recent activity was a six-week conducting tour in Europe, where I conducted orchestras in England, Scotland, Poland, Italy and Germany. I have been doing more and more conducting in recent years, which takes up more and more time.

Temianka: Too much time, actually; it interferes to some extent. . . .

Copland: Yes, one has to watch it.

TEMIANKA: Right. One has to watch it so that there is enough time for the creative activities. Now, what have you been writing?

Copland: I have a commission from the Philadelphia Orchestra to write an orchestral work.

Temianka: What kind of work—a symphony?

Copland: Don't know yet—it will be a long work.

Temianka: A long work which is now in the process of creation?

Copland: Yes.

Temianka: What else have you written during the past year?

Copland: I haven't actually finished anything in the past year because of all the conducting I have been doing and other activities.

The "activities" included conducting the Hollywood Bowl Orchestra, the Chicago Symphony and the New York Philharmonic in its post-season French-American Festival of programs of his own works. He was soloist with the same orchestra, playing his "Piano Concerto" for the last of the outdoor concerts which drew more than 70,000 listeners to a single performance in Central Park.

AN EXTRAORDINARILY versatile composer, he has written ballets, film music, operas, symphonies and concertos, has authored four books, written dozens of magazine articles and is in demand as a lecturer.

The Feb. 22 Long Beach concert will open with "An Outdoor Overture (1938), played by the LBSC symphony conducted by Temianka, and will continue with "The Tender Land" (1954) by the College Opera Workshop and A Cappella Choir conducted by Hans Lampl of the music faculty. Copland will conduct his first symphony (1928) and the program will conclude with "Emblems" (1964) played by the LBSC Symphonic Band conducted by Robert Reynolds.

Tickets, which may be ordered from the college music department, are $2 for general admission, $1 for students and $5 for sponsors. The sponsor ticket holders will be invited to meet Copland at a champagne reception after the concert.

And what does the dynamic composer plan for the future?

"More conducting. I get a bang out of conducting!" he declares.—ELISE EMERY

A rose grows like this

By Iola Masterson

"Anyone who can cut out paper dolls can whip up paper roses in a jiffy!"

That's the word from Symphony Juniors of Long Beach.

Members have been whipping up jillions of roses and other artificial paper flowers, in enough jiffies to make aforementioned statement with authority.

The roses will be given to women guests attending their 12th annual formal dinner dance Saturday. For formal details of the party see story on page W—.

Mrs. Raymond Hill, professional florist who has won many awards in the decorating field, taught members the tricks of flower-making. Because they found them so easy to do as well as lovely for home arrangements, Juniors pass along the how-to-do directions so you, too, can have bouquets of roses in your home, all seasons.

FIRST OF ALL you need a package (standard size) of vivid red crepe paper (or any color of your choice), green florist's tape, scissors, spool wire, paste and a knitting needle. That's all.

While still folded, cut tissue paper into two and one-half inch strips across the narrow width of paper so strip will be in a continuous piece. Still keeping folded, cut rounded scallops every one and one-half inch (see picture No. 1) along one edge of paper. These will form the petals. Each rose requires a 36-inch-long strip of paper.

Now unfold paper. Curl petals with a knitting needle (picture No. 2) by rolling each individual scallop over needle, then pushing together with thumbs (picture No. 3) to give a crinkled effect. Slip needle out without uncurling petal. To form center of rose, leave a few petals (intact) at right end of strip (picture No. 4). All other scallops along the line should be cupped by gently stretching the paper between thumb and index finger (picture No. 5).

APPLY PASTE to tip of wire and wind petals around it (picture No. 6), gathering a bit so each petal will not be directly in back of another. Fasten with spool wire (picture No. 7). Wind with green florist's tape to cover base of flower (picture No. 8) and on down wire to form natural looking stem (picture No. 9).

You can wind in a few leaves, made from tape or bought from dime store, during application of the tape. Or you can add greenery when arranging finished roses in a vase.

All materials are available in most dime or variety stores at very little expense. The finished roses look just like the real McCoy and can add a dash of color to any spot in the home.

In time, your bouquet might fade—but it won't wilt! Best thing of all, a green thumb is not required to grow these flowers!

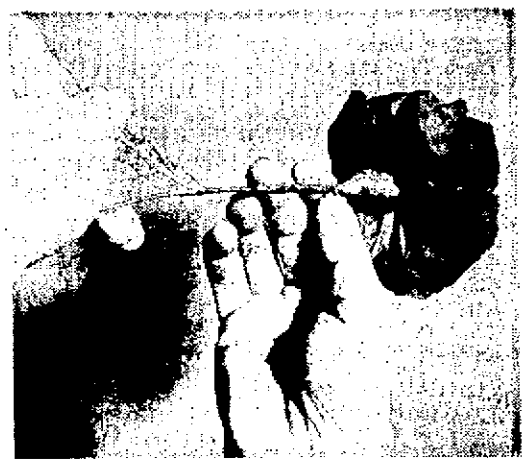

6—Gather strip on wire, staggering petals.

7—Twist of wire keeps flower on stem.

8—Self-adhering florist's tape does job.

9—Finish by twirling tape to end of wire.

Oswald Jacoby

Weak two bid fails strongly

West's weak two spades didn't bother North in the slightest. He had a perfect hand for a takeout double. East saw that the heart suit was wide open against him and jumped to four spades as an attempt to crowd the bidding.

The four spade call did crowd the bidding but South refused to be shut out and tried five hearts. West passed. When you open a weak two bid you don't plan to rebid when your partner jumps to game.

This gave North a tough problem. Just how good was his partner's five heart bid? Finally, North solved his problem by bidding six.

East passed. He thought he might have defense and South was left to play at six hearts.

The hand appears to be doomed to defeat from the start, but strangely enough South had no trouble making it by means of a complicated squeeze play.

* * * *

WEST opened the ace of spades and shifted to a trump. South won in his hand; ruffed his last spade in dummy and ran off four trumps. He discarded two clubs from dummy so that dummy was left with the ace king of clubs and four diamonds.

East had to discard down to six cards also. He realized that he had to hang on to all four diamonds so that meant he had to let two clubs go. Now South cashed dummy's ace and king of clubs and ace and king of diamonds. Then he ruffed a diamond and made the final trick with his eight of clubs.

It was quite a slam to bid and to make. Without the impetus of the weak two bid and the jump raise by East, it is doubtful indeed that North and South would have bid it so this time the weak two must be charged with a conspicuous failure.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD

Off limits for children

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My husband can't pass our neighborhood bar without stopping in. I hate this but there's no use fighting about it any more.

But what I'm most angry about is that he takes our two-year-old and five-year-old sons along. He sits them up at the bar and gives them pop while he has his beer.

I don't believe children should ever go into bars but his friends think it's "cute." I don't see anything cute about it, do you?

What do your readers think: Should children be in a bar?—COMPLAINING WIFE

DEAR C. W.:

Of course, children shouldn't be in bars—and I very much blame the bar for allowing that oaf of a husband of yours to take them there.

In a way I blame you, too. Why do you allow this? Even if you had to put up a fight you should not let this man take the kids a-barring, shall we say.

I'm quit sure if he yanked them along over and above your protests, that you could settle matters by entering right after and announcing clearly you did not want the children there. You'd gain enough sympathy all around to intimidate him and make him use some sense.—M. M.

DEAR MISS MAYFIELD:

My husband is driving me out of my mind! He is always at home, underfoot. No matter how beautiful the day is, he sits inside, watching television until I could just scream.

Occasionally, I go out for a while just to get away from the house. When I get home, he gives me a lecture about "running around all the time." What am I going to do about him?

We could have a happy life, money is no problem, if he would just move around a bit, find something to occupy his time besides just sitting—DISGUSTED

Smooth Out Wrinkles

Wrinkles are riverbeds of dry cells caused by the plasma colloids (water carriers of the skin) having dried out through harsh weather. You can soon bring beauty and the glow of a healthy complexion back and protect your skin against wrinkle dryness. Ask your druggist for oil of Olay and before applying make-up smooth it over the face, neck and hands to lubricate and soften the skin and give it a peaches-and-cream bloom.

LBSC opens invitational drawing exhibit

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

The Seventh Annual Invitational Drawing Show at Long Beach State College, which opens today, gives viewers an opportunity to compare styles and attitudes reflected by 30 artists.

The figurative, still life and abstract drawings in both color and black and white are from private collections, galleries and the artists themselves.

These include Cadmus and De Kooning of New York, Bischoff and Diebenkorn of San Francisco, Sam Francis and Altoon of Los Angeles and Aronson of Pennsylvania.

The public is invited to a reception today from 3 to 5 p.m. Regular hours in the gallery are 8 a.m. to noon and 1 to 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays. Special arrangements may be made for groups, says Donald Dame, gallery director.

"CRAFTSMEN U.S.A. '66," national competition sponsored by the American Craftsmen's Council, has two purposes.

It seeks new talent and serves as a guide to trends in the crafts movement as it is developing in America. The competition is divided into six regional areas, each with its own jury and exhibition.

The Southwest Regional section goes on view Wednesday in the Lytton Gallery of Los Angeles County Museum of Art, 5905 Wilshire Blvd., and will continue through March 13. The show includes 277 pieces of ceramic, wood, metal, jewelry, weaving and other craftswork chosen from more than 1,500 entries from Arizona, California, Hawaii, Nevada, New Mexico and Utah. Of the 277, 48 items will be included in an exhibit at the Museum of Contemporary Crafts, New York, this summer.

Regional jurors were Toshiko Takaezu, potter and weaver of Cleveland Institute of Art; Mary Kretsinger, metals craftsman at Emporia, Kan., and Southwest Harbor, Maine; and Gervais Reed, director of the Henry Gallery, University of Washington, Seattle.

Museum hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Sundays, closed Mondays.

WILLIAM PERSONA, who once worked as an artist for the Long Beach Telegram and as cartoonist for the Hollywood Citizen News, has an exhibit at the Pacific Coast Club. He will meet viewers today at a public reception from 2 to 5 p.m.

Persona, who studied at the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts and Otis Art Institute, Los Angeles, also worked on a newspaper in Sidney, Australia, before going to Mexico to teach in the public schools.

He says, "I feel that the 30 years of experience in scores of art crafts and 15 years of painting several thousands of pictures hardly qualifies me to begin to understand colors and the control of the viscosity of paint. Allowed another 50 years and I might make it."

ARTISTS and craftsmen are invited by the South Coast Art Association to take part in an open art show Saturday and next Sunday at 2475 S. El Camino Real, San Clemente. Artists can sell, commission free, to the public and to dealers.

UCLA WILL mark American Negro History Week with programs covering the historical, socio-political and musical aspects of the life of the American Negro.

Activities will open with a public lecture Tuesday at 3 p.m. in Haines Hall 39 by Arna Bontemps, author, playwright and poet. His topic: "Old Myths-New Negroes."

In conjunction with the lecture, the University Research Library will display the Arthur B. Spingarn Collection of Negroana today through March 6. The 5,000 volumes about the American Negro, dating from the 18th century to the present time, include many first editions. "Prints by American Negro Artists" will be shown at the UCLA Student Union from Feb. 14 through 18.

Another high light of the week will be a symposium on "Negro Aspirations: Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow" Wednesday at 8 p.m. in Haines Hall 39. L. D. Reddick of Baltimore's Coppin State College, will speak on "New Viewpoints for Negro History" at 8 p.m. Thursday in Moore Hall 100. The week will conclude with a concert by the Modern Jazz Quartet and the Dizzy Gillespie Quintet Saturday at 8:30 p.m. in Royce Hall.

Lectures, exhibits and the symposium are free. Tickets for the concert are on sale at the UCLA Concert Ticket Office, 10851 Le Conte Ave., Westwood.

ITEMS FROM the collections of Fred and Barbara Meiers, Gordon Wagner and the Museum of New Mexico are on display at the Palos Verdes Library Gallery. The "Folk Art of Mexico" will continue through March 16 under auspices of Palos Verdes Community Arts Association.

Hours are 1 to 4 p.m. weekdays, 3 to 5 p.m. Sundays.

'New Faces' are bold, excitingly venturesome

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

"New Faces" at Long Beach City College Art Gallery, 4901 E. Carson St., will continue through March 4. It is a bold gathering of four painters and a sculptor, each of whom has received his M.F.A. within the last three years from a Los Angeles area graduate school. The show's director, Jerry Darnell, chose, with the schools' faculties, outstanding artists who were beyond the academic situation but not yet in commercial galleries. Venturesome collectors should have a field day.

* * * *

ED DRON, the sculptor, does curiously full pendulous forms from which reaching forms thrust. These are cast in bronze or nickel silver on long legs and mounted on thin turned wood pedestals. They are grand and menacing. "Triptych" is a particularly well installed triad.

Dron was schooled in Claremont.

Ian Gatly, formerly of LBSC, is an exciting draftsman. To his sure restraint in pencil or charcoal, he adds mists of black or gray which shimmer, giving enigmatic space to his figures. "Blind Man's Bluff" is a circle of small, coltish lads in which there is a dream quality along with the refreshing acuteness of observation.

* * * *

ANDREW WING, also from LBSC, is tremendously experimental in acrylic paint. There are layers over layers with see-through and resist, and a number of other effects, all of which add up to a romantic, poetic vision. He constructs environments for his paintings which intensify the mood. In "Time Chips in Flow," part of the painting is a "see through" into a mosaic of small wood pieces.

* * * *

LEWIS OTT came from Otis where he reflects the knowledge of color structure of Robert Frame. In that reference, the originality of Ott's own directions are brought more sharply into focus as is "Computer" (a man of crimson rectangles on a silver ground), "Above and Beyond" (vet with medals; lots of flat color areas), and "Troubador" (almost divided between the blue blue and embarassed pink). Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondays through Thursday, and 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Fridays.

Library adds new discs for LP fans

Joan Sutherland sings familiar opera arias in "Command Performance," one of the new recordings in the record section of the main library.

Other additions include:

Leonard Bernstein conducting the New York Philharmonic Orchestra in "Symphony No. 7" by Shostakovich; Vladimir Horowitz's return performance May 9, 1965, "At Carnegie Hall;" "An Evening of Flamenco Music" with the Romeros, Royal Family of the Spanish Guitar; and "Mexico: Its Cultural Life in Music and Art," with Carlos Chevez conducting the Mexican Orchestra and Chorus.

* * * *

"EASY SOLOS for the Trumpet" has been added to the Music Minus One series. Moira Shearer tells the stories of Swan Lake and Sleeping Beauty in "A Child's Introduction to Ballet."

Most recent dramatic audition is "The Master Builder" by Ibsen, featuring Michael Redgrave, Maggie Smith and Celia Johnson. Pope Paul's "United Nations Address" is now available.

Records may be borrowed for two weeks.

Musical arts

Mario Farrar, baritone, and his wife, Louetta, soprano, will entertain members of Musical Arts Club following dinner Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Pelican Restaurant, 701 E. Ocean Blvd. John Ayre, for many years first French horn player with the Halle Orchestra in England under Sir John Barbirolli's direction, will play a concerto by Mozart. James Low of Los Angeles will accompany the three artists.

March 26 auditions at LBSC

Several full-time scholarships for the 1966-67 school year will be awarded by the department of music at Long Beach State College.

Auditions will be held in the music building March 26 from 1 to 5 p.m.

To be eligible for the scholarships, a student must meet the college entrance requirements and his or her musical ability must be in voice, piano, organ, band or an orchestral instrument.

Although students auditioning for scholarships do not have to declare a music major in college, preference will be shown to music majors.

* * * *

THE AUDITION for a faculty committee will last for 15 minutes and the student should be prepared to perform a solo and to sight-read materials selected by the committee.

Deadline for submission of applications is March 10.

10 head CCA drive

Ten women have been named divisional chairmen in preparation for the Long Beach Community Concert Association's membership campaign.

Membership chairman Mrs. Alfred Durfee identified them as Mmes. William F. Jensen, Wade Kittell, Donald Simonsen, Peter Miotta, John O. McDonald, Glenn Manning, Arthur Cozens, Henry Warner, John R. Pownall and Dorothy Judy Klein.

* * * *

THEY WILL MEET Feb. 15 in Chamber of Commerce offices to hear Columbia Concert representative Roy Cooper speak. The association membership drive begins March 21.

Harry J. Krusz was recently named president of the Community Concert Association for 1966-67. He heads a slate of 22 new officers and directors.

'Egypt' topic of film lecture bill

"Egypt, Gift of the Nile" will be presented by Long Beach City College at five high school auditoriums in the fifth International Film Series program of the season.

Beginning at 8 p.m. nightly, the film-lecture is scheduled Monday at Wilson, Tuesday at Jordan, Wednesday at Lakewood, Thursday at Polytechnic and Friday at Millikan High School. Tickets will be available at the door.

Narrated by Ralph J. Franklin, photographer and archaeologist, the film on ancient and modern Egypt will be shown on a wide screen with stereophonic sound.

NORMAN THOMPSON

Thompson, Palance in OC concert

Actor Jack Palance, concert pianist Norman Thompson and the Orange County Symphony Orchestra, directed by Eugene Ober, will combine talents Monday, Feb. 14, for an 8:30 p.m. performance at Melodyland Theater.

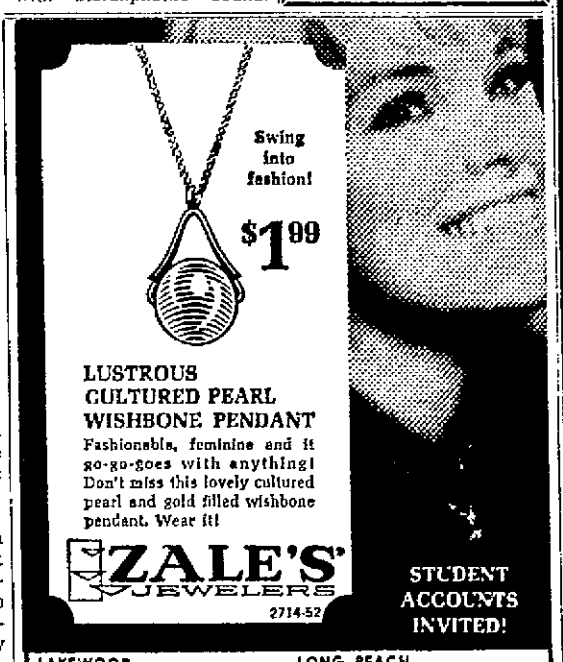

Palance will narrate "A Lincoln Portrait"

Ober will conduct the orchestra in "Overture to Leonora" and Rachmaninoff's "Concerto No. 2," for which Thompson will be soloist.

To mark Valentine's Day, the conductor has scheduled a series of romantic waltzes.

Hospital guild stages fashion benefit

Attire for every spring occasion—be it a pool party or theater opening—will be unveiled Saturday when Pacific Hospital Guild presents its annual champagne luncheon and fashion show at the Petroleum Club, 3636 Linden Ave. Champagne punch will be served from 11 a. m.

In keeping with the theme, "Hawaii Calls," decorations will feature fish nets, large colored glass balls and pieces of driftwood dotted by tropical blossoms.

Sportswear also will reflect the Hawaiian influence. Ensembles from Town and Country will feature the latest trends in furs and gowns.

Predicted to be a favorite: the granny dress —that ankle-length frock which has caught the fancy of teen-agers.

Modeling them will be Pamela Reames, daughter of Dr. Philip Reames of the hospital's board of directors. Miss Reames' grandmother, Mrs. Charles Reames, will model her version of the granny dress.

Mrs. Don Stadt is general chairman. Proceeds have been earmarked for purchase of equipment at Pacific Hospital. Tickets may be obtained through Mrs. W. C. Osborn, 640 Clairborne Drive.

HONEYMOONERS

Newlyweds to establish homes in Long Beach after honeymoons

MRS. STANFORD SCOTT

MRS. JACK LANGSTON

Mrs. DAVID K. KNAPP

Scott-Terakowski

Wedding promises were exchanged Saturday in Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church, Downey, by Stanford W. Scott and Mary Jane Terakowski.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Terakowski, Comstock Park, Mich., and Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Scott of Downey.

For her wedding, the bride selected a floor-length sheath gown with a detatchable chapel train.

Her attendants were Mrs. Susan Van Haften, matron of honor; Vicki Peterson, Gloria Rhodes, Mrs. Judith Neff and Mrs. LuRetta Stasch, bridesmaids.

Dwight Black performed bestman duties. Ushers were Michael McGowan, Jerry Pfaff, Eugene Terakowski and Robert Wapensky.

A reception followed in the Elks Lodge, Downey. Following a wedding trip to Monterey Peninsula, the newlyweds will reside at 7735 Florence Blvd., Downey.

Langston-Matson

Community Presbyterian Church was setting for Friday nuptials uniting in marriage Linda Lou Matson and Jack L. Langston.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Matson, 6325 St. Louis Ave., wore a traditional floor-length gown of Chantilly lace and white satin.

Preceding her to the altar were her sister, Mrs. James Reynolds, matron of honor; Imagene Lorensen and Mary Glascock, bridesmaids.

The bridegroom, son of Mrs. Harley Langston, Florence, S.C., and the late Mr. Langston, was attended by James Reynolds, best man. Ushering the 250 guests were Jerry Reynolds and James Jackson.

Terri Sue Reynolds was flower girl. Gary Reynolds carried rings to the altar.

Following a church reception, the newlyweds departed on a wedding trip. They will be at home at 6163 Linden Ave.

Mrs. Langston was graduated from Jordan High School and attended Long Beach City College.

Knapp-Slagenweit

On a honeymoon trip to San Diego are Mr. and Mrs. David Keith Knapp (Karen Marie Slagenweit) who were married Friday evening at Chapel of the Wedding Bells, Bellflower. They will reside in Long Beach.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy F. Slagenweit, 6441 Keynote St., wore a gown of tulle and lace with sequin and seed pearl trim. The cathedral train was of matching lace.

Jana Lynn Slagenweit was her sister's maid of honor; Sandy Noble, JoAnn Heiserman and Dawn Wilkinson were bridesmaids.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Knapp, Merritt Island, Fla., was served by Neil Robbs, best man, and David Webster, Lenny Barker and Ronald Swirczek, ushers.

Lakewood ceremony unites pair

Honeymooning in South-California following their marriage Saturday in Lakewood Village Community Church are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. McGuire.

The bride is the former Gloria Garcia of Hollywood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marko Garcia of San Pedro Sula, Honduras. The bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. O. J. McGuire, formerly of Long Beach.

A traditional bridal gown of white lace was selected by the bride whose soul attendant was Dora Mindoza.

Ronald Mount was best man, while Shelton V. Eaton and Joseph H. Gilliland ushered the 75 guests to their places.

Mrs. McGuire was graduated from the Guatemala School of Nursing, Guatemala City, Guatemala. Her husband is an alumnus of Millikan High School. They will reside in Hollywood.

Brunch, cards

St. Bartholomew's Altar Society will host a brunch and afternoon of cards Tuesday beginning at 11:30 a.m. in the parish hall.

Britton-Bates vows said during afternoon ceremony

More than 300 guests witnessed an exchange of wedding vows Saturday by Larry R. Britton and Janet Victoria Bates in All Saints Episcopal Church.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Richard C. Bates, Long Beach, and the late Mr. Bates and Mrs. Fred Foltz, Long Beach.

As she repeated nuptial promises, the bride wore a sheath gown of lace over taffeta fashioned with a cathedral-length train.

Miss Carolyn Ann Smith was maid of honor while bridesmaids were Judith Frances and Mrs. Robert Edward Kunkle. Others in the entourage were John L. Farris Jr., best man; Donald W. Ball, Hollis A. Thiel and Robert W. Ewen, ushers.

After a reception in the Petroleum Club, the newlyweds departed for Las Vegas. They will be at home in Lakewood.

Mrs. Britton is an alumna of Long Beach State College.

SANS GREEN THUMB

A rose grows like this

By Iola Masterson

"Anyone who can cut out paper dolls can whip up paper roses in a jiffy!"

That's the word from Symphony Juniors of Long Beach.

Members have been whipping up jillions of roses and other artificial paper flowers, in enough jiffies to make aforementioned statement with authority.

The roses will be given to women guests attending their 12th annual formal dinner dance Saturday. For formal details of the party see story on page W—.

Mrs. Raymond Hill, professional florist who has won many awards in the decorating field, taught members the tricks of flower-making. Because they found them so easy to do as well as lovely for home arrangements, Juniors pass along the how-to-do directions so you, too, can have bouquets of roses in your home, all seasons.

FIRST OF ALL you need a package (standard size) of vivid red crepe paper (or any color of your choice), green florist's tape, scissors, spool wire, paste and a knitting needle. That's all.

While still folded, cut tissue paper into two and one-half inch strips across the narrow width of paper so strip will be in a continuous piece. Still keeping folded, cut rounded scallops every one and one-half inch (see picture No. 1) along one edge of paper. These will form the petals. Each rose requires a 36-inch-long strip of paper.

Now unfold paper. Curl petals with a knitting needle (picture No. 2) by rolling each individual scallop over needle, then pushing together with thumbs (picture No. 3) to give a crinkled effect. Slip needle out without uncurling petal. To form center of rose, leave a few petals (intact) at right end of strip (picture No. 4). All other scallops along the line should be cupped by gently stretching the paper between thumb and index finger (picture No. 5).

APPLY PASTE to tip of wire and wind petals around it (picture No. 6), gathering a bit so each petal will not be directly in back of another. Fasten with spool wire (picture No. 7). Wind with green florist's tape to cover base of flower (picture No. 8) and on down wire to form natural looking stem (picture No. 9).

You can wind in a few leaves, made from tape or bought from dime store, during application of the tape. Or you can add greenery when arranging finished roses in a vase.

All materials are available in most dime or variety stores at very little expense. The finished roses look just like the real McCoy and can add a dash of color to any spot in the home.

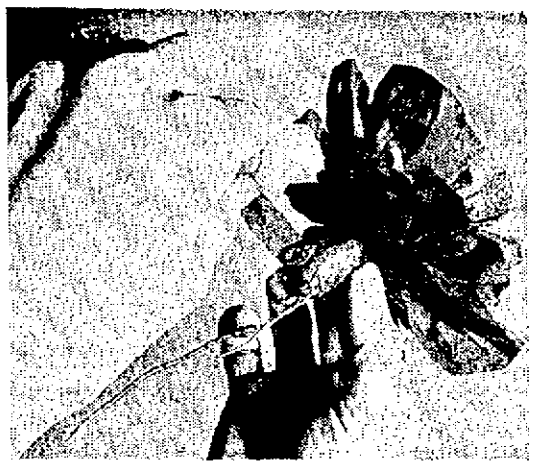

In time, your bouquet might fade—but it won't wilt! Best thing of all, a green thumb is not required to grow these flowers!

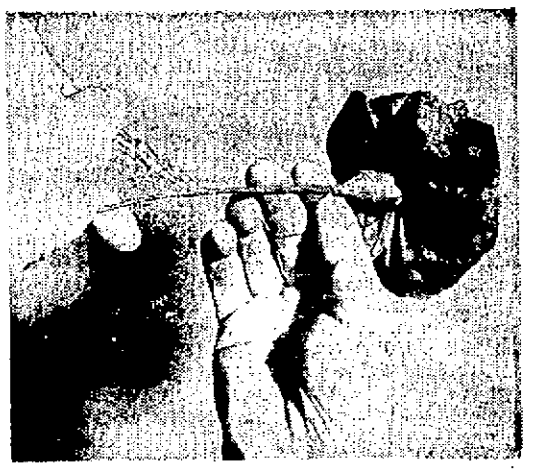

6—Gather strip on wire, staggering petals.

7—Twist of wire keeps flower on stem.

Weak two bid fails strongly

West's weak two spades didn't bother North in the slightest. He had a perfect hand for a takeout double. East saw that the heart suit was wide open against him and jumped to four spades as an attempt to crowd the bidding.

The four spade call did crowd the bidding but South refused to be shut out and tried five hearts. West passed. When you open a weak two bid you don't plan to rebid when your partner jumps to game.

This gave North a tough problem. Just how good was his partner's five heart bid? Finally, North solved his problem by bidding six.

East passed. He thought he might have defense and South was left to play at six hearts.

The hand appears to be doomed to defeat from the start, but strangely enough South had no trouble making it by means of a complicated squeeze play.

* * * *

WEST opened the ace of spades and shifted to a trump. South won in his hand; ruffed his last spade in dummy and ran off four trumps. He discarded two clubs from dummy so that dummy was left with the ace king of clubs and four diamonds.

East had to discard down to six cards also. He realized that he had to hang on to all four diamonds so that meant he had to let two clubs go. Now South cashed dummy's ace and king of clubs and ace and king of diamonds. Then he ruffed a diamond and made the final trick with his eight of clubs.

It was quite a slam to bid and to make. Without the impetus of the weak two bid and the jump raise by East, it is doubtful indeed that North and South would have bid it so this time the weak two must be charged with a conspicuous failure.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD

Off limits for children

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My husband can't pass our neighborhood bar without stopping in. I hate this but there's no use fighting about it any more.

But what I'm most angry about is that he takes our two-year-old and five-year-old sons along. He sits them up at the bar and gives them pop while he has his beer.

I don't believe children should ever go into bars but his friends think it's "cute." I don't see anything cute about it, do you?

What do your readers think: Should children be in a bar? — COMPLAINING WIFE

DEAR C. W.:

Of course, children shouldn't be in bars—and I very much blame the bar for allowing that oaf of a husband of yours to take them there.

In a way I blame you, too. Why do you allow this? Even if you had to put up a fight you should not let this man take the kids a-barring, shall we say.

I'm quit sure if he yanked them along over and above your protests, that you could settle matters by entering right after and announcing clearly you did not want the children there. You'd gain enough sympathy all around to intimidate him and make him use some sense.—M. M.

DEAR MISS MAYFIELD:

My husband is driving me out of my mind! He is always at home, underfoot. No matter how beautiful the day is, he sits inside, watching television until I could just scream.

Occasionally, I go out for a while just to get away from the house. When I get home, he gives me a lecture about "running around all the time." What am I going to do about him?

We could have a happy life, money is no problem, if he would just move around a bit, find something to occupy his time besides just sitting—DISGUSTED

Smooth Out Wrinkles

Wrinkles are riverbeds of dry cells caused by the plasma colloids (water carriers of the skin) having dried out through harsh weather. You can soon bring beauty and the glow of a healthy complexion back and protect your skin against wrinkle dryness. Ask your druggist for oil of Olay and before applying make-up smooth it over the face, neck and hands to lubricate and soften the skin and give it a peaches-and-cream bloom.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY BLAST

New Orleans braces for mad Mardi Gras

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

NEW ORLEANS—"Let me now warn you in the most solemn manner against the baneful effects of the spirit of the party."

Those words spoken by George Washington sound like so much Mumbo Jumbo to the citizenry hereabouts who are about to celebrate the birthday of the Father of our Country with the most flamboyant outburst of revelry in the history of this hospitable southern city, which is noted for such grand outbursts.

Feb. 22 is the Mardi Gras which, naturally, calls for more gyre and gimbal than usual for Washington's Birthday. And if George were alive to take it all in, he'd probably be astonished at the number of George Washingtons in the streets disremembering his own words.

* * * *

DAY AND night parades start snaking through the streets on Feb. 12, and the carnival high-ho will build to a crescendo the final four days.

But interest bloomed weeks ago, and now reservations for rooms are pouring in (visitors are urged to secure hotel space as early as possible), and billboards have sprouted hawking "carnical throws,"—trinkets and baubles. The largess-throwing of these items from floats is always a part of the parades—enough so to blanch a Roman emperor, which may be where the idea originated anyway.

The true sign of local participation in the celebration is the Orleanian who says, "this year I'm going someplace quiet for Mardi Gras." Which means that he has already started his furtive search for costumery. In fact, some complained that the Christmas shopping rush was a tremendous bother in their search for materials.

* * * *

SIXTY-SOME balls are held annually between the Twelfth Night and Carnival Day. Debutantes clackety-clack in high heels attending these endless affairs, which are private and always a highlight of the New Orleans social season.

One of the debutantes will reign as the Queen of Carnival, a filmy peppermint-and-champagne fantasy come true.

King of Carnival is Rex, a royal entity who turns up once a year. His motto is "Pro Bono Publico," and he gives such pithy commands as "behind each mask let there be a smile and behind each smile a heart made glad by the immortal Spirit of Make Believe."

And when a million people go out in the streets and make believe, it's not hard to see why Rex, or anyone else, can only show up for this kind of escape once a year.

* * * *

CARNIVAL has a Latin origin, so it's reasonable to suppose that it ancestors probably were some of the pagan Roman festivals.

Carnival was the kind of thing that might have declined and fallen, but certain to get up and dance again; so early Christian leaders tried to give it Christian attachments.

Carnival, or Mardi Gras, now represents a final fling before the austerities of Lent. Mardi Gras itself is French, meaning "Fat Tuesday." In France, during the Middle Ages, a fatted ox was slaughtered and eaten on the last day before Lent.

Carnival in North America has emerged as an amalgum of rituals piled layer upon layer through the ages. Yet it has contemporary meanings as important as its ancient ones.

* * * *

SO IT IS significant that many of the secret parading societies are named for Greek and Roman gods. It is these groups, all private, that stage parades. And as crests of revelers flow through the streets they are enjoying a sorely needed contemporary therapy — as Rex says, "snatched from the dull realities of life."

Rex's rule is based on one edict: forget. The thousands of costumed Neros who'll be fiddling in the streets at Mardi Gras will be doing just that.

Lake Cachuma ideal for winter vacationers

SOLVANG — Uncrowded by the usual number of summer fun-loving crowds, the mammoth Lake Cachuma recreation area, 15 miles southeast of Solvang along scenic San Marcos Pass Road, is a winter vacationer's paradise.

Unprecedented winter rains have added both to the beauty and pleasure of the entire area. Its oak-covered terrain is verdant, the campsites and picnic and barbecue areas are relatively free of guests and the sprawling lake—seven and a half miles long and largest man-made lake in Southern California—is nearly brim full.

Another plus for the winter outdoorsman, and Isaac Waltons in particular, is the completion of the big $30,000, 105,000 rainbow trout planting program launched in November and completed in January. In addition to catching limits of five trout, or a total of 10 pounds, from both the shore and from boats, anglers are landing giant catfish as well as bass and crappie.

* * * *

CACHUMA PARK is open seven days a week, 24 hours a day, throughout the year. Boating and fishing are permitted from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. Cachuma's marina is open all year and boats and fishing supplies are available at a rental facility. The park also has a general store, tackle shop and snack bar. The park covers 3,000 acres and has facilities for 500 camp and trailer sites.

Cachuma reservoir was built in 1954 by the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation at a cost of $39 million. Since then Santa Barbara County has expended huge sums of money to develop the area.

TRAVEL and RESORTS

Dutchman mine trek March 13

The gleaming gold supposedly guarded by the mysterious Superstition Mountains east of Phoenix, Ariz. still claims attention of would-be finders, and each year seems to add its toll to victims. Yet there is a safe way to soak up the legend of the Lost Dutchman Mine and get into the back country where it is said to be located.

The event is the annual Spanish-attired Dons Club Superstitution Mountain-Lost Dutchman Gold Mine Trek on March 13.

The Dons, a group of Phoenix business and professional men who help perpetuate the lore of the Old Southwest, have built an exceptional base camp at the foot of the 5,000-foot mountain. It's authentically western with Indian homes, palm-thatched ramades and other structures plus a huge amphitheater where the story of "Superstition's Gold" is enacted at night.

* * * *

TREK DAY begins about 8 a.m., and soon groups—each led by experienced Dons—head out over the 9-mile trail into the rugged mountains. The trail passes many of the lost mine landmarks including Geronimo's Cave and Weavers Needle, and returns through scenic Peralta Canyon. Meanwhile, a full program of Indian dances, crafts demonstrations, Mexican mariachis singing and a real cross-section of Western lore and life goes on almost continuously at base camp.

A miner's lunch is served at noon, and a huge beef barbecue at night. After dinner, the legendrama with a cast of 50 actors begins. Climax is a giant firefall down the sheer cliffs of Superstition Mountain.

Complete information on the Trek Day and other Dons Club travelcades may be obtained by writing to the Dons Club, P. O. Box 13493, Phoenix, Ariz.

'Alaska Travel Planner' issued

The "Alaska Travel Planner" for 1966, published by Pacific Northern Airlines and Pan American World Airways in conjunction with Inside Alaska Tours, is now off the press and being distributed to travel agents throughout the nation.

The Travel Planner is set up so that the traveler may pick his own hotels, side trips, optional tours, and so on, and tailor his entire Alaska visit to his own pocketbook. Tour representatives meet and assist travelers in each city under the program.

Further information may be obtained by contacting inside Alaska Tours, Box 631, Kirkland, Wash., your travel agent or the nearest Pacific Northern Airlines or Pan American Airways sales office.

Treaty still stands

On Nov. 25, 1850, Switzerland and the United States signed a Treaty of Friendship and Commerce, which still is in existence today. However, Switzerland has never requested economic or military aid from the United States.

Hawaii sailings to Australia

Combine a business trip to Australia with a quickie vacation is the latest suggestion of P&O-Orient Lines.

By flying to Honolulu and catching a ship there, Sydney can be reached in eight working days, it is calculated by David Hodgson, Los Angeles regional manager for the British-owned company.

The Orsova, sailing from Honolulu at midnight March 11, will reach Sydney at 8 a.m. March 24. Chusan, sailing from Honolulu midnight May 9, will arrive 8 a.m. May 16. In all, the trip to Australia can be made on any of nine P&O-Orient passenger liners this year.

Combined first class air and steamship fares start at $542.

Mexico to build two airports

Mexico will build two new airports, according to the Mexican National Tourist Council, one of them this year at Cuernavaca. This terminal, on the Acapulco highway about 60 miles from Mexico City, will be an alternate for the International Airport in the capital and will cost $2 million. A $5 million airport will be constructed sometime in the near future at the Pacific coast fishing resort of Mazatlan.

Hospital guild stages fashion benefit

Attire for every spring occasion—be it a pool party or theater opening—will be unveiled Saturday when Pacific Hospital Guild presents its annual champagne luncheon and fashion show at the Petroleum Club, 3636 Linden Ave. Champagne punch will be served from 11 a. m.

In keeping with the theme, "Hawaii Calls," decorations will feature fish nets, large colored glass balls and pieces of driftwood dotted by tropical blossoms.

Sportswear also will reflect the Hawaiian influence. Ensembles from Town and Country will feature the latest trends in furs and gowns.

Predicted to be a favorite: the granny dress —that ankle-length frock which has caught the fancy of teen-agers.

Modeling them will be Pamela Reames, daughter of Dr. Philip Reames of the hospital's board of directors. Miss Reames' grandmother, Mrs. Charles Reames, will model her version of the granny dress.

Mrs. Don Stadt is general chairman. Proceeds have been earmarked for purchase of equipment at Pacific Hospital. Tickets may be obtained through Mrs. W. C. Osborn, 640 Clairborne Drive.

HONEYMOONERS

Newlyweds to establish homes in Long Beach after honeymoons

MRS. STANFORD SCOTT

MRS. JACK LANGSTON

Mrs. DAVID K. KNAPP

Scott-Terakowski

Wedding promises were exchanged Saturday in Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church, Downey, by Stanford W. Scott and Mary Jane Terakowski.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Terakowski, Comstock Park, Mich., and Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Scott of Downey.

For her wedding, the bride selected a floor-length sheath gown with a detatchable chapel train.

Her attendants were Mrs. Susan Van Haften, matron of honor; Vicki Peterson, Gloria Rhodes, Mrs. Judith Neff and Mrs. LuRetta Stasch, bridesmaids.

Dwight Black performed bestman duties. Ushers were Michael McGowan, Jerry Pfaff, Eugene Terakowski and Robert Wapensky.

A reception followed in the Elks Lodge, Downey. Following a wedding trip to Monterey Peninsula, the newlyweds will reside at 7735 Florence Blvd., Downey.

Langston-Matson

Community Presbyterian Church was setting for Friday nuptials uniting in marriage Linda Lou Matson and Jack L. Langston.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Matson, 6325 St. Louis Ave., wore a traditional floor-length gown of Chantilly lace and white satin.

Preceding her to the altar were her sister, Mrs. James Reynolds, matron of honor; Imagene Lorensen and Mary Glascock, bridesmaids.

The bridegroom, son of Mrs. Harley Langston, Florence, S.C., and the late Mr. Langston, was attended by James Reynolds, best man. Ushering the 250 guests were Jerry Reynolds and James Jackson.

Terri Sue Reynolds was flower girl. Gary Reynolds carried rings to the altar.

Following a church reception, the newlyweds departed on a wedding trip. They will be at home at 6163 Linden Ave.

Mrs. Langston was graduated from Jordan High School and attended Long Beach City College.

Knapp-Slagenweit

On a honeymoon trip to San Diego are Mr. and Mrs. David Keith Knapp (Karen Marie Slagenweit) who were married Friday evening at Chapel of the Wedding Bells, Bellflower. They will reside in Long Beach.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy F. Slagenweit, 6441 Keynote St., wore a gown of tulle and lace with sequin and seed pearl trim. The cathedral train was of matching lace.

Jana Lynn Slagenweit was her sister's maid of honor; Sandy Noble, JoAnn Heiserman and Dawn Wilkinson were bridesmaids.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Knapp, Merritt Island, Fla., was served by Neil Hobbs, best man, and David Webster, Lenny Barker and Ronald Swirczek, ushers.

Lakewood ceremony unites pair

Honeymooning in Southern California following their marriage Saturday in Lakewood Village Community Church are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. McGuire.

The bride is the former Gloria Garcia of Hollywood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marko Garcia of San Pedro Sula, Honduras. The bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. O. J. McGuire, formerly of Long Beach.

A traditional bridal gown of white lace was selected by the bride whose soul attendant was Dora Mindoza.

Ronald Mount was best man, while Shelton V. Eaton and Joseph H. Gilliland ushered the 75 guests to their places.

Mrs. McGuire was graduated from the Guatemala School of Nursing, Guatemala City, Guatemala. Her husband is an alumnus of Millikan High School. They will reside in Hollywood.

Brunch, cards

St. Bartholomew's Altar Society will host a brunch and afternoon of cards Tuesday beginning at 11:30 a.m. in the parish hall.

Britton-Bates vows said during afternoon ceremony

MRS. LARRY BRITTON

More than 300 guests witnessed an exchange of wedding vows Saturday by Larry R. Britton and Janet Victoria Bates in All Saints Episcopal Church.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Richard C. Bates, Long Beach, and the late Mr. Bates and Mrs. Fred Foltz, Long Beach.

As she repeated nuptial promises, the bride wore a sheath gown of lace over taffeta fashioned with a cathedral-length train.

Miss Carolyn Ann Smith was maid of honor while bridesmaids were Judith Frances and Mrs. Robert Edward Kunkle. Others in the entourage were John L. Farris Jr., best man; Donald W. Ball, Hollis A. Thiel and Robert W. Ewen, ushers.

After a reception in the Petroleum Club, the newlyweds departed for Las Vegas. They will be at home in Lakewood.

Mrs. Britton is an alumna of Long Beach State College.

Senior citizens slate program

Problems of the elderly will be discussed by a member of the Los Angeles County Bureau of Public Assistance at a 1 p.m. Monday meeting of Long Beach League of Senior Citizens.

The public has been invited to the session at Machinists' Hall, 728 Elm Ave.

IN THE HEART OF EUROPE

Land of the alpenhorn

Switzerland lies in the heart of Europe, surrounded by large neighbors, the land of industry, cleanliness, efficiency — and neutrality. And its major industry is tourism.

The Swiss—there are 5½ million of them—are accomplished hosts. Some of Europe's most luxurious resorts and hotels are located in Switzerland, and every region welcomes the traveler with cordiality.

The country is a federal republic of 22 separate cantons (or states), with Berne the capital—a delightful city of mellowed buildings and a Gothic cathedral.

All over the spectacular Bernese Oberland sounds the sustained fruity note of the fantastically long-stemmed alpenhorn.

The biggest city is Zurich with 770,000 inhabitants, an important calling point on British Overseas Airways Corporation's world air routes and less than two flying hours from London.

* * * *

MOST FAMOUS of the Swiss lakes is Lake Leman (or Lake Geneva), at the foot of Mont Blanc. It is the biggest lake in Europe in the shadow of the highest peak in Europe and has on its shores the "international" city of Geneva.

Geneva is Switzerland with a French flavor, but dozens of different tongues are heard in the streets and cafes of a romantically lovely city where many world organizations have their headquarters.

For its food and drink Switzerland borrows the best from its neighbors and adds something deliciously unique — fondue. This is melted cheese flavored with garlic, white wine and cherry brandy, into which you dip crisp cubes of bread. Freshwater fish are excellent everywhere.

* * * *

THE SWISS have some delightful white wines (very seldom exported), light refreshing beers and several liqueurs (Kirsch from cherries, Pflumli from prunes). In all the holiday centers there are elegant tea salons and coffee bars, charming beer gardens and wine cellars.

Switzerland is not entirely a land of cuckoo clocks, wood carvings and music boxes. The big shops in Geneva and Zurich compare favorably with the best in the world.

And climatically the country is one of the cosiest in Europe: pure green and wonderfully warm in summer; pure white and comfortably cold in winter.

FIRST PASSPORT TO EXPO 67, the Universal and International Exhibition to be held in 1967 in Montreal, Canada, was presented to Mayor Sam Yorty of Los Angeles by A. S. Carhart, American Express, and Hon. J. G. Bisson, consul general for Canada in Los Angeles. The admission tickets are called passports.

TWA marks 20 years as global air carrier

Trans World Airlines marked 20 years of service as a global air carrier Saturday.

On Feb. 5, 1946, TWA inaugurated service on international routes, via the North Atlantic, with the first scheduled commercial flight between the United States and Paris, carrying the largest number of revenue passengers ever to fly the Atlantic.

Over this weekend, ceremonies at New York and at Paris launch a year-long observance of the airline's 20th international year. These will be followed by special events at other cities on the carrier's domestic and international routes as anniversaries of extension of transatlantic services occur.

* * * *

TWA HAD already been serving the traveling public on transcontinental routes in the U.S. for nearly 20 years when, in July 1945, the President of the U.S. granted it certificates to serve routes through Europe, North Africa and Asia. Domestic and overseas routes were linked by connection and later by through-plane flights so that today it is the only airline providing single-carrier service between U.S. cities coast to coast and 19 world centers abroad.

The airline's transatlantic flights are today all-jet; 20 years ago the service was begun with then-new piston-powered Constellations, supplemented initially by DC4s.

In the 20-year period the airline has flown approximately 5.8 million passengers a total of more than 16 billion passenger miles on international routes and has made 74,272 scheduled flights across the North Atlantic.

CONTINENTAL Airlines introduces service at Los Angeles with its new Long Beach-made Golden Jet DC-9 short-to-medium range pure jet April 10, it was announced by Norm Geiger, Continental's district manager.

Initial schedules, based on the first two aircraft delivered to Continental will provide DC-9 flights between Los Angeles, El Paso and Albuquerque. Additional schedules will be added as other aircraft are delivered to the company.

Continental has 12 DC-9s on order, with an option to buy six more of the Douglas-built twin-jet planes.

In Continental's configuration, the DC-9 will carry 20 pasengers in first class and 50 in club coach at cruising speeds of about 560 miles an hour over distances ranging from 100 to 1,000 miles.

THIRTY DAYS of unlimited air travel between 31 top ski areas throughout the Rocky Mountain West and Southwest for only $100; up-to-date ski area information and other valuable ski tips are highlights of a new 1966 ski brochure—"Ski Frontierland — available from Denver-based Frontier Airlines.

All of this is included in the carrier's new multi-color ski brochure which gives the "how to get there," "what to do there" and "how much it costs there" information.

A 12-HOUR flight will open the skies of Siberia to international commercial aviation this summer for the first time, linking Europe and Asia by the shortest and most direct route.

This first regularly scheduled service between Moscow and Tokyo has been made possible by the signing of an interim civil air agreement between Japan and the USSR in Moscow, after seven years of negotiation.

Traveling with Delaplane

HONOLULU — There's a lot of high-rise hiding Waikiki beach now. But the new buildings on the drawing boards will more than double the hotel rooms now here. Hawaii had some 650,000 tourists last year, plans for a million in the next few years.

Best feature is the cheap air fare: $100 from the West Coast. Worst feature: The high-rise crowding. Hardly room for a coco palm these days.

* * * *

"I plan to be married in May. We would like to spend our three-week honeymoon in Spain and Portugal. Can you make some suggestions?"

WEATHER is excellent all over at this time of year (with some rain). I'd say a week in Estoril, the seaside resort 20 minutes from Lisbon. Or 10 minutes more up the coast at Cascais. Rent a car for a day and drive up to Obides. The walled Moorish city that a Portuguese king gave to his queen. The castle is now a pousada — a government-owned hotel. Rates are mild. About $5 a day for two with meals last time I was there.

For the second week, fly to Madrid. Spend about five days. Bull fights should still be on. Take in the little outdoor restaurants in the old square called Plaza Mayor. And walk the dim lit little streets in back. That's old Madrid, and this is a well-policed, safe city.

Rent a car and drive south. A day and night in Toledo. It's rich in Roman-Moorish-Visigoth history. A day and night in Aranjuez—it's strawberry time. Tiny strawberries with orange juice poured over them. A day or two in Seville to drink manzanilla and see the best flamenco dancing. Then you have a choice of Malaga on the coast or Granada and the Alhambra. (I'd take Granada. Fine government-owned parador, once a very ancient and important convent.)

Check your airline for this: You can probably fly home through Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands at no extra ticket cost. Or very little additional.

* * * *

"What about electricity? Will we need a converter?"

THERE ARE NO overall converters for all equipment. It's not worthwhile to carry anything anywhere except a razor that switches for any voltage or a travel iron that does the same. That means electric toothbrushes, coffee pots, electric blankets are out. Nearly all razor companies have an electric razor that works on 110 or 220 volts. Plenty of travel irons on the market that do the same. (GE has a good one.) Be sure these come with adapter plugs to fit various European outlets.

"What should we wear traveling by train in the U.S.? Three days."

I'D WEAR city clothing for evening and dinner. And something very casual for daytime. Sweaters, slacks.

*Discover this enchanting new way to Europe —aboard P&O-Orient's great British liners!

You can explore Hawaii, the Orient, India and the Mediterranean. Spend up to seven weeks on one of the "biggest bloomin' ships sailing the seven seas." All for as little as $17 a day—on your way to Europe with P&O-Orient.

THE kimono clad girls in our photograph are welcoming your giant P&O-Orient liner to Kobe, Japan.

You have already seen Hawaii and Yokohama. Ahead of you are the glittering ports of Hong Kong and Singapore. (Or perhaps Manila and the South Seas.) Then Ceylon, India, Aden, Egypt and the Mediterranean.

A memorable holiday exploring some of the last unspoiled lands of the world before your holiday in Europe.

You'll also have a third holiday—your holiday at sea on one of the biggest and fastest liners sailing round the world. Every P&O-Orient liner is completely air-conditioned. Each has at least five open decks for sports or relaxing. Two swimming pools. A half-dozen cafés. Two orchestras. And more to do at night than you'll find in a fair-sized city. You'll luxuriate in P&O-Orient's superb British service with interesting shipmates from every part of the world.

What does it all cost?

Your trip to Europe via the Orient on a great P&O-Orient liner starts at just $1155 first class, $781 tourist.

Or, if time is short, why not sail to the Orient and fly back home? Three weeks as low as $914 first class, $780 tourist, air fare included!

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY BLAST

New Orleans braces for mad Mardi Gras

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

NEW ORLEANS—"Let me now warn you in the most solemn manner against the baneful effects of the spirit of the party."

Those words spoken by George Washington sound like so much Mumbo Jumbo to the citizenry hereabouts who are about to celebrate the birthday of the Father of our Country with the most flamboyant outburst of revelry in the history of this hospitable southern city, which is noted for such grand outbursts.

Feb. 22 is the Mardi Gras which, naturally, calls for more gyre and gimbal than usual for Washington's Birthday. And if George were alive to take it all in, he'd probably be astonished at the number of George Washingtons in the streets disremembering his own words.

* * * *

DAY AND night parades start snaking through the streets on Feb. 12, and the carnival high-ho will build to a crescendo the final four days.

But interest bloomed weeks ago, and now reservations for rooms are pouring in (visitors are urged to secure hotel space as early as possible), and billboards have sprouted hawking "carnical throws,"—trinkets and baubles. The largess-throwing of these items from floats is always a part of the parades—enough so to blanch a Roman emperor, which may be where the idea originated anyway.

The true sign of local participation in the celebration is the Orleanian who says, "this year I'm going someplace quiet for Mardi Gras." Which means that he has already started his furtive search for costumery. In fact, some complained that the Christmas shopping rush was a tremendous bother in their search for materials.

* * * *

SIXTY-SOME balls are held annually between the Twelfth Night and Carnival Day. Debutantes clackety-clack in high heels attending these endless affairs, which are private and always a highlight of the New Orleans social season.

One of the debutantes will reign as the Queen of Carnival, a filmy peppermint-and-champagne fantasy come true.

King of Carnival is Rex, a royal entity who turns up once a year. His motto is "Pro Bono Publico," and he gives such pithy commands as "behind each mask let there be a smile and behind each smile a heart made glad by the Immortal Spirit of Make Believe."

And when a million people go out in the streets and make believe, it's not hard to see why Rex, or anyone else, can only show up for this kind of escape once a year.

* * * *

CARNIVAL has a Latin origin, so it's reasonable to suppose that it ancestors probably were some of the pagan Roman festivals.

Carnival was the kind of thing that might have declined and fallen, but certain to get up and dance again; so early Christian leaders tried to give it Christian attachments.

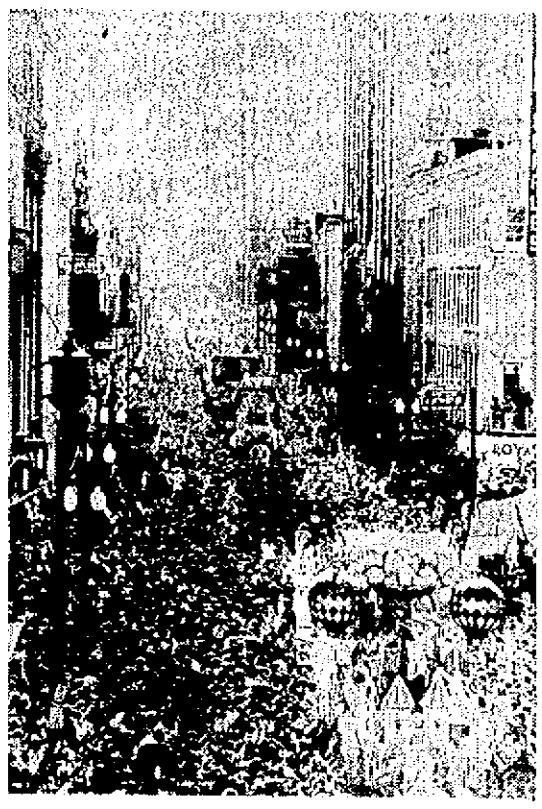

Carnival, or Mardi Gras, now represents a final fling before the austerities of Lent. Mardi Gras itself is French, meaning "Fat Tuesday." In France, during the Middle Ages, a fatted ox was slaughtered and eaten on the last day before Lent.

Carnival in North America has emerged as an amalgum of rituals piled layer upon layer through the ages. Yet it has contemporary meanings as important as its ancient ones.

* * * *

SO IT IS significant that many of the secret parading societies are named for Greek and Roman gods. It is these groups, all private, that stage parades. And as crests of revelers flow through the streets they are enjoying a sorely needed contemporary therapy — as Rex says, "snatched from the dull realities of life."

Rex's rule is based on one edict: forget. The thousands of costumed Neros who'll be fiddling in the streets at Mardi Gras will be doing just that.

Lake Cachuma ideal for winter vacationers

SOLVANG — Uncrowded by the usual number of summer fun-loving crowds, the mammoth Lake Cachuma recreation area, 15 miles southeast of Solvang along scenic San Marcos Pass Road, is a winter vacationer's paradise.

Unprecedented winter rains have added both to the beauty and pleasure of the entire area. Its oak-covered terrain is verdant, the campsites and picnic and barbecue areas are relatively free of guests and the sprawling lake—seven and a half miles long and largest man-made lake in Southern California—is nearly brim full.

Another plus for the winter outdoorsman, and Isaac Waltons in particular, is the completion of the big $30,000, 105,000 rainbow trout planting program launched in November and completed in January. In addition to catching limits of five trout, or a total of 10 pounds, from both the shore and from boats, anglers are landing giant catfish as well as bass and crappie.

* * * *

CACHUMA PARK is open seven days a week, 24 hours a day, throughout the year. Boating and fishing are permitted from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. Cachuma's marina is open all year and boats and fishing supplies are available at a rental facility. The park also has a general store, tackle shop and snack bar. The park covers 3,000 acres and has facilities for 500 camp and trailer sites.

Cachuma reservoir was built in 1954 by the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation at a cost of $39 million. Since then Santa Barbara County has expended huge sums of money to develop the area.

Dutchman mine trek March 13

The gleaming gold supposedly guarded by the mysterious Superstition Mountains east of Phoenix, Ariz. still claims attention of would-be finders, and each year seems to add its toll to victims. Yet there is a safe way to soak up the legend of the Lost Dutchman Mine and get into the back country where it is said to be located.

The event is the annual Spanish-attired Dons Club Superstitution Mountain-Lost Dutchman Gold Mine Trek on March 13.

The Dons, a group of Phoenix business and professional men who help perpetuate the lore of the Old Southwest, have built an exceptional base camp at the foot of the 5,000-foot mountain. It's authentically western with Indian homes, palm-thatched ramades and other structures plus a huge amphitheater where the story of "Superstition's Gold" is enacted at night.

* * * *

TREK DAY begins about 8 a.m., and soon groups—each led by experienced Dons—head out over the 9-mile trail into the rugged mountains. The trail passes many of the lost mine landmarks including Geronimo's Cave and Weavers Needle, and returns through scenic Peralta Canyon. Meanwhile, a full program of Indian dances, crafts demonstrations, Mexican mariachis singing and a real cross-section of Western lore and life goes on almost continuously at base camp.

A miner's lunch is served at noon, and a huge beef barbecue at night. After dinner, the legendrama with a cast of 50 actors begins. Climax is a giant firefall down the sheer cliffs of Superstition Mountain.

Complete information on the Trek Day and other Dons Club travelcades may be obtained by writing to the Dons Club, P. O. Box 13493, Phoenix, Ariz.

'Alaska Travel Planner' issued

The "Alaska Travel Planner" for 1966, published by Pacific Northern Airlines and Pan American World Airways in conjunction with Inside Alaska Tours, is now off the press and being distributed to travel agents throughout the nation.

The Travel Planner is set up so that the traveler may pick his own hotels, side trips, optional tours, and so on, and tailor his entire Alaska visit to his own pocketbook. Tour representatives meet and assist travelers in each city under the program.

Further information may be obtained by contacting inside Alaska Tours, Box 631, Kirkland, Wash., your travel agent or the nearest Pacific Northern Airlines or Pan American Airways sales office.

Treaty still stands

On Nov. 25, 1850, Switzerland and the United States signed a Treaty of Friendship and Commerce, which still is in existence today. However, Switzerland has never requested economic or military aid from the United States.

Hawaii sailings to Australia

Combine a business trip to Australia with a quickie vacation is the latest suggestion of P&O-Orient Lines.

By flying to Honolulu and catching a ship there, Sydney can be reached in eight working days, it is calculated by David Hodgson, Los Angeles regional manager for the British-owned company.

The Orsova, sailing from Honolulu at midnight March 11, will reach Sydney at 8 a.m. March 24. Chusan, sailing from Honolulu midnight May 9, will arrive 8 a.m. May 16. In all, the trip to Australia can be made on any of nine P&O-Orient passenger liners this year.

Combined first class air and steamship fares start at $542.

Mexico to build two airports

Mexico will build two new airports, according to the Mexican National Tourist Council, one of them this year at Cuernavaca. This terminal, on the Acapulco highway about 60 miles from Mexico City, will be an alternate for the International Airport in the capital and will cost $2 million. A $5 million airport will be constructed sometime in the near future at the Pacific coast fishing resort of Mazatlan.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

His best move is wife's recipe

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I, P-T Food Editor

Prentiss Hall Publishing Co. is urging him to write a book called "The Transfer."

He has crossed the country 14 times and has lived in 33 different homes, 12 of them in his 12 years of marriage. NOTE: All he ever lost in all his moving, is a Boston Bean Pot.

The where, when and why of all this in-motion was "where the plant was"—"when a good man was needed," and the "why" was because HE was selected.

PAUL R. STALEY

Today's Chef of the Week, Paul R. Staley, is the new plant manager of Proctor & Gamble, Long Beach. He succeeds "Chef" Paul A. Nichol.

A NATIVE of New Britain, Conn., Staley received a degree from Dartmouth College (he majored in architecture), then graduated from Harvard School of Law. It was in an interview with a professor that he chose Procter & Gamble as his "profession."

He joined the company in 1957, following three years as a Navy Seabee officer. Subsequently, he undertook production management assignments in Quincy, Mass., Sacramento and Kansas City. He comes here from the job of plant manager at the company's Port Ivory division, Staten Island, N.Y.

Asked his theory on the merits of transfer, he replied, "When interviewing a young man starting his career, one of the first things I ask him is, 'would you be willing to transfer?' And, if he's married, will his wife agree? There is nothing quite so important or as enlightening as meeting, knowing and working with people, and being able to adapt to change."

TO STALEY, Proctor & Gamble has unlimited potential. Founded in 1836, the company first made candles —then soap. Today the company is responsible for some 500 products including cake mixes, to say nothing of a few successful "soap operas."

The Staleys (she's Kit) have three sons and a little daughter. Chris, 11, and JES (he's junior), 9, are from Boston. Peter, 5, is a Kansan and Janet, 3, is Californian. Chris shows remarkable evidence of making a name for himself as a swimmer.

Their mode of travel is unique. With two cars, Mom drives two of the youngsters in one, Pop and the other two are close behind. They keep in touch via walkie-talkie.

Staley has a keen interest in politics, reading and football (mostly Dartmouth . . . and rightly so, it was the only undefeated major team this year and he was once its captain!) Mountain climbing with his boys and scouting are high among his interests.

Now that they are here, they're going Long Beach in a big way. They're buying a boat! As for his domestic tendencies, Staley's cooking potential is rather nebulous; but "he's excellent about everything else around the house."

He almost caused a catastrophy, however, when he gave this writer the ONLY copy of his wife's prized recipe for Roast Pork with Grenadine Glaze. We understand her concern! You will, too!

ROAST PORK WITH GRENADINE GLAZE

- 1 6-lb. loin of pork
- 3 tsp. salt
- 1 tsp. freshly ground black pepper
- 1 tsp. dried thyme
- ½ tsp. mace or nutmeg
- 1 cup grenadine syrup, heated

Preheat the oven to 450°.

Rub the surface of the pork with a mixture of salt, pepper, thyme and mace or nutmeg. Place the pork in a shallow roasting pan and roast in the oven for 15 minutes.

Reduce oven heat to 350 degrees and continue roasting approximately 3 hours (30 to 35 minutes for each pound of pork, or until the internal temperature is 185° on a meat thermometer). Baste frequently with the heated grenadine.

Serve the grenadine sauce separately in a warm gravy boat.

Yield: about 12 servings.

Educational employees note confab

A series of workshops and talks by leading educators will highlight the annual conference of California Association of Educational Office Employees, Friday through Feb. 13, in Sacramento.

An open house and officers' reception will launch activities at the Sacramento Inn.

Keynote speaker on Saturday will be Mrs. Marion Wood of Schenectady, N.Y., educational consultant for IBM. "Discovering Your Boss" is title of Saturday's dinner speech by Dr. F. Melvyn Lawson, superintendent of Sacramento City Unified School District.

College patrons to stage tea

A Reciprocity Tea will be presented Friday, 1 p.m., by the Patrons of City College at St. Luke's Parish House.

Guests will be entertained by students of the liberal arts division of LBCC under direction of Mrs. Beverly O'Neil and Mrs. Ellen Lewis.

VIKO CAREFREE FURNITURE

Here's a really wonderful dinette that's more than just a place to eat! Both table and chairs do extra duty throughout the house. The 42" round pedestal table is the smart, new Continental height (26" from the floor). Perfect for dining, games, cards, or quiet conversation. It features a revolutionary new heat-stain-mar-resistant "Permold" melamine plastic top with sculptured feathered edge in choice of satin walnut, or white. Beautiful, graceful pedestal base in Vitawood (tubular steel engraved or finished to look like fine wood). The new "Foamold" chairs (thick, luxurious Urethane Foam, skillfully molded and shaped to assure maximum comfort) are really special! Besides offering "comfort-plus" dining, they're wonderful as occasional swivel chairs for living room, boudoir, watching TV and more.

IN THE HEART OF EUROPE

Land of the alpenhorn

Switzerland lies in the heart of Europe, surrounded by large neighbors, the land of industry, cleanliness, efficiency — and neutrality. And its major industry is tourism.

The Swiss—there are 5½ million of them—are accomplished hosts. Some of Europe's most luxurious resorts and hotels are located in Switzerland, and every region welcomes the traveler with cordiality.

The country is a federal republic of 22 separate cantons (or states), with Berne the capital—a delightful city of mellowed buildings and a Gothic cathedral.

All over the spectacular Bernese Oberland sounds the sustained fruity note of the fantastically long-stemmed alpenhorn.

The biggest city is Zurich with 770,000 inhabitants, an important calling point on British Overseas Airways Corporation's world air routes and less than two flying hours from London.

* * * *

MOST FAMOUS of the Swiss lakes is Lake Leman (or Lake Geneva), at the foot of Mont Blanc. It is the biggest lake in Europe in the shadow of the highest peak in Europe and has on its shores the "international" city of Geneva.

Geneva is Switzerland with a French flavor, but dozens of different tongues are heard in the streets and cafes of a romantically lovely city where many world organizations have their headquarters.

For its food and drink Switzerland borrows the best from its neighbors and adds something deliciously unique — fondue. This is melted cheese flavored with garlic, white wine and cherry brandy, into which you dip crisp cubes of bread. Freshwater fish are excellent everywhere.

* * * *

THE SWISS have some delightful white wines (very seldom exported), light refreshing beers and several liqueurs (Kirsch from cherries, Pflumli from prunes). In all the holiday centers there are elegant tea salons and coffee bars, charming beer gardens and wine cellars.

Switzerland is not entirely a land of cuckoo clocks, wood carvings and music boxes. The big shops in Geneva and Zurich compare favorably with the best in the world.

And climatically the country is one of the coolest in Europe: pure green and wonderfully warm in summer; pure white and comfortably cold in winter.

FIRST PASSPORT TO EXPO 67, the Universal and International Exhibition to be held in 1967 in Montreal, Canada, was presented to Mayor Sam Yorty of Los Angeles by A. S. Carhart, American Express, and Hon. J. G. Bisson, consul general for Canada in Los Angeles. The admission tickets are called passports.

TWA marks 20 years as global air carrier

Trans World Airlines marked 20 years of service as a global air carrier Saturday.

On Feb. 5, 1946, TWA inaugurated service on international routes, via the North Atlantic, with the first scheduled commercial flight between the United States and Paris, carrying the largest number of revenue passengers ever to fly the Atlantic.

Over this weekend, ceremonies at New York and at Paris launch a year-long observance of the airline's 20th international year. These will be followed by special events at other cities on the carrier's domestic and international routes as anniversaries of extension of transatlantic services occur.

* * * *

TWA HAD already been serving the traveling public on transcontinental routes in the U.S. for nearly 20 years when, in July 1945, the President of the U.S. granted it certificates to serve routes through Europe, North Africa and Asia. Domestic and overseas routes were linked by connection and later by through-plane flights so that today it is the only airline providing single-carrier service between U.S. cities coast to coast and 19 world centers abroad.

The airline's transatlantic flights are today all-jet; 20 years age the service was begun with then-new piston-powered Constellations, supplemented initially by DC4s.

In the 20-year period the airline has flown approximately 5.8 million passengers a total of more than 16 billion passenger miles on international routes and has made 74,272 scheduled flights across the North Atlantic.

* * * *

CONTINENTAL Airlines introduces service at Los Angeles with its new Long Beach-made Golden Jet DC-9 short-to-medium range pure jet April 10, it was announced by Norm Geiger, Continental's district manager.

Initial schedules, based on the first two aircraft delivered to Continental will provide DC-9 flights between Los Angeles, El Paso and Albuquerque. Additional schedules will be added as other aircraft are delivered to the company.

Continental has 12 DC-9s on order, with an option to buy six more of the Douglas-built twin-jet planes.

In Continental's configuration, the DC-9 will carry 20 pasengers in first class and 50 in club coach at cruising speeds of about 560 miles an hour over distances ranging from 100 to 1,000 miles.

* * * *

THIRTY DAYS of unlimited air travel between 31 top ski areas throughout the Rocky Mountain West and Southwest for only $100; up-to-date ski area information and other valuable ski tips are highlights of a new 1966 ski brochure—"Ski Frontierland — available from Denver-based Frontier Airlines.

All of this is included in the carrier's new multi-color ski brochure which gives the "how to get there," "what to do there" and "how much it costs there" information.

* * * *

A 12-HOUR flight will open the skies of Siberia to international commercial aviation this summer for the first time, linking Europe and Asia by the shortest and most direct route.

This first regularly scheduled service between Moscow and Tokyo has been made possible by the signing of an interim civil air agreement between Japan and the USSR in Moscow, after seven years of negotiation.

TRAVEL and RESORTS

HONOLULU — There's a lot of high-rise hiding Waikiki beach now. But the new buildings on the drawing boards will more than double the hotel rooms now here. Hawaii had some 650,000 tourists last year, plans for a million in the next few years.

Best feature is the cheap air fare: $100 from the West Coast. Worst feature: The high-rise crowding. Hardly room for a coco palm these days.

* * * *

"I plan to be married in May. We would like to spend our three-week honeymoon in Spain and Portugal. Can you make some suggestions?"

WEATHER is excellent all over at this time of year (with some rain). I'd say a week in Estoril, the seaside resort 20 minutes from Lisbon. Or 10 minutes more up the coast at Cascais. Rent a car for a day and drive up to Obides. The walled Moorish city that a Portuguese king gave to his queen. The castle is now a pousada — a government-owned hotel. Rates are mild. About $5 a day for two with meals last time I was there.

For the second week, fly to Madrid. Spend about five days. Bull fights should still be on. Take in the little outdoor restaurants in the old square called Plaza Mayor. And walk the dim lit little streets in back. That's old Madrid, and this is a well-policed, safe city.

Rent a car and drive south. A day and night in Toledo. It's rich in Roman-Moorish-Visigoth history. A day and night in Aranjuez—it's strawberry time. Tiny strawberries with orange juice poured over them. A day or two in Seville to drink manzanilla and see the best flamenco dancing. Then you have a choice of Malaga on the coast or Granada and the Alhambra. (I'd take Granada. Fine government-owned parador, once a very ancient and important convent.)

Check your airline for this: You can probably fly home through Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands at no extra ticket cost. Or very little additional.

* * * *

"What about electricity? Will we need a converter?"

THERE ARE NO overall converters for all equipment. It's not worthwhile to carry anything anywhere except a razor that switches for any voltage or a travel iron that does the same. That means electric toothbrushes, coffee pots, electric blankets are out. Nearly all razor companies have an electric razor that works on 110 or 220 volts. Plenty of travel irons on the market that do the same. (GE has a good one.) Be sure these come with adapter plugs to fit various European outlets.

* * * *

"What should we wear traveling by train in the U.S.? Three days."

I'D WEAR city clothing for evening and dinner. And something very casual for daytime. Sweaters, slacks.

*Discover this enchanting new way to Europe —aboard P&O-Orient's great British liners!

You can explore Hawaii, the Orient, India and the Mediterranean. Spend up to seven weeks on one of the "biggest bloomin' ships sailing the seven seas." All for as little as $17 a day—on your way to Europe with P&O-Orient.

THE kimono clad girls in our photograph are welcoming your giant P&O-Orient liner to Kobe, Japan.

You have already seen Hawaii and Yokohama. Ahead of you are the glittering ports of Hong Kong and Singapore. (Or perhaps Manila and the South Seas.) Then Ceylon, India, Aden, Egypt and the Mediterranean.

A memorable holiday exploring some of the last unspoiled lands of the world before your holiday in Europe.

You'll also have a third holiday—your holiday at sea on one of the biggest and fastest liners sailing round the world. Every P&O-Orient liner is completely air-conditioned. Each has at least five open decks for sports or relaxing. Two swimming pools. A half-dozen cafés. Two orchestras. And more to do at night than you'll find in a fair-sized city. You'll luxuriate in P&O-Orient's superb British service with interesting shipmates from every part of the world.

What does it all cost?

Your trip to Europe via the Orient on a great P&O-Orient liner starts at just $1155 first class, $781 tourist.

Or, if time is short, why not sail to the Orient and fly back home? Three weeks as low as $914 first class, $780 tourist, air fare included!

Check the schedule below for the sailing most convenient for you. Mail coupon for literature with all the information. Then see your travel agent for reservations. He's an expert at taking care of the details for you.

I. P-T Food Editor

Prentiss Hall Publishing Co. is urging him to write a book called "The Transfer."

He has crossed the country 14 times and has lived in 33 different homes, 12 of them in his 12 years of marriage. NOTE: All he ever lost in all his moving, is a Boston Bean Pot.

The where, when and why of all this in-motion was "where the plant was"—"when a good man was needed," and the "why" was because HE was selected.

Today's Chef of the Week, Paul R. Staley, is the new plant manager of Proctor & Gamble, Long Beach. He succeeds "Chef" Paul A. Nichol.

PAUL R. STALEY

A NATIVE of New Britain, Conn., Staley received a degree from Dartmouth College (he majored in architecture), then graduated from Harvard School of Law. It was in an interview with a professor that he chose Procter & Gamble as his "profession."

He joined the company in 1957, following three years as a Navy Seabee officer. Subsequently, he undertook production management assignments in Quincy, Mass., Sacramento and Kansas City. He comes here from the job of plant manager at the company's Port Ivory division, Staten Island, N.Y.

Asked his theory on the merits of transfer, he replied, "When interviewing a young man starting his career, one of the first things I ask him is, 'would you be willing to transfer?' And, if he's married, will his wife agree? There is nothing quite so important or as enlightening as meeting, knowing and working with people, and being able to adapt to change."

TO STALEY, Proctor & Gamble has unlimited potential. Founded in 1836, the company first made candles —then soap. Today the company is responsible for some 500 products including cake mixes, to say nothing of a few successful "soap operas."

The Staleys (she's Kit) have three sons and a little daughter. Chris, 11, and JES (he's junior), 9, are from Boston. Peter, 5, is a Kansan and Janet, 3, is Californian. Chris shows remarkable evidence of making a name for himself as a swimmer.

Their mode of travel is unique. With two cars, Mom drives two of the youngsters in one, Pop and the other two are close behind. They keep in touch via walkie-talkie.

Staley has a keen interest in politics, reading and football (mostly Dartmouth . . . and rightly so, it was the only undefeated major team this year and he was once its captain!) Mountain climbing with his boys and scouting are high among his interests.

Now that they are here, they're going Long Beach in a big way. They're buying a boat! As for his domestic tendencies, Staley's cooking potential is rather nebulous; but "he's excellent about everything else around the house."

He almost caused a catastrophy, however, when he gave this writer the ONLY copy of his wife's prized recipe for Roast Pork with Grenadine Glaze. We understand her concern! You will, too!

ROAST PORK WITH GRENADINE GLAZE

- 1 6-lb. loin of pork
- 3 tsp. salt
- 1 tsp. freshly ground black pepper
- 1 tsp. dried thyme
- ½ tsp. mace or nutmeg
- 1 cup grenadine syrup, heated

Preheat the oven to 450°. Rub the surface of the pork with a mixture of salt, pepper, thyme and mace or nutmeg. Place the pork in a shallow roasting pan and roast in the oven for 15 minutes.

Reduce oven heat to 350 degrees and continue roasting approximately 3 hours (30 to 35 minutes for each pound of pork, or until the internal temperature is 185° on a meat thermometer). Baste frequently with the heated grenadine.

Serve the grenadine sauce separately in a warm gravy boat.

Yield: about 12 servings.

VIKO CAREFREE FURNITURE

Here's a really wonderful dinette that's more than just a place to eat! Both table and chairs do extra duty throughout the house. The 42" round pedestal table is the smart, new Continental height (26" from the floor). Perfect for dining, games, cards, or quiet conversation. It features a revolutionary new heat-stain-mar-resistant "Parmold" melamine plastic top with sculptured feathered edge in choice of satin walnut, or white. Beautiful, graceful pedestal base in Vikawood (tubular steel engraved or finished to look like fine wood). The new "Foamold" chairs (thick, luxurious Urethane Foam, skillfully molded and shaped to assure maximum comfort) are really special! Besides offering "comfort-plus" dining, they're wonderful as occasional swivel chairs for living room, boudoir, watching TV and more.

Bert's Eye View

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

If Lee Kurty could redefine her interpretation of the word "actress," she knows she would be happier.

Lee has the role of nurse Zoe Lawton in NBC-TV's (channel 4's) Monday-Tuesday "Dr. Kildare" series.

In her own personal dictionary, the word "actress" really isn't related to a type of work.

"It's a way of life," said Lee. "I eat, breathe and sleep acting.

"When I finish a day's work at the studio, I don't just finish. I take it home with me, which makes me not quite pleasant company for a lot of friends."

If acting is indeed her way of life, Lee has faced up to the awareness that there are other facets to living.

* * * *

"I KNOW I'm much too intense," she said. "There's nothing wrong with being intense, but I get myself involved too emotionally.

"I can't even divorce myself from acting on the weekends. I'm always worrying about what I did the previous week

"Half the time I develop problems that aren't even there."

So what is she doing to counteract her intensity?

First, she's trying to enhance her sense of humor. Finding more to laugh about, she believes, will give her a larger sense of freedom.

Second, she's following the advice of her brother Norbert, an engineer, on how to be more logical.

He told Lee to write down the things she felt were bothering her. When she completed the list, she was to specify the pros and cons of each problem.

* * * *

THEN, matching the pros and cons, she would be more logically equipped to judge the revelance of the individual problems.

LEE KURTY

Using the listing procedure, Lee has found she generally ends up with a lot of cross-out problems that really weren't problems in the first place.

"I can see how ridiculous I've been," she said. "And that helps my sense of humor."

However, no comparative list of the advantages and disadvantages of being an actress is ever going to dissuade Lee from following her career.

"My career will always have to be there."

As for marriage, sure, she hopes so someday.

"The trouble is that if I ever find a man who would want to travel with me as much as I must do to play stage engagements, I don't think I'd want him."

Nor, she said, would she ever consider marrying an actor.

"As a girl, you pass a mirror and you automatically pause to check your hair.

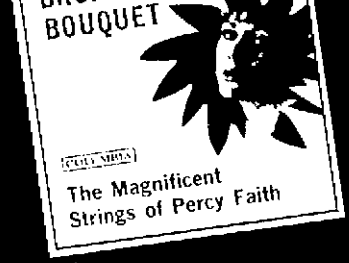

"When you're with an actor, it's a fight to see who gets to the mirror first."

2182. Cuatro Vidas. Mas Acser, Luna Lunera, 9 more

Mary Martin Special Airs Monday Night

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (UPI) — The producer of the forthcoming video special about Mary Martin's adventures in the musical, "Hello, Dolly!" (9 p.m. Monday, channel 4 in color), has a bit of advice for those who would seek to cut their way to success through the broadcasting jungle. It is: "Be a she."

LUCY JARVIS

The advice giver fits the pronoun. She is Mrs. Lucy Jarvis, petite, brown-eyed, deceptively soft-spoken. In short, an attractive woman, and she candidly admits that she doesn't hesitate to use this asset to get things done.

"When you're trying to film a news special," she said, "you must get things done in a hurry. Get permission to go places, do things, film things. Deal with all kinds of hard types, mostly male.

"So, I've used feminine tricks when necessary. I've done such corny things sometimes that you wouldn't believe it. Like using flattery, baking brownies, fluttering my eyelashes. The whole bit."

Among her "victims" have been former Premier Krushchev of Russia, French Minister of Culture, Andre Malraux and the curator of the Louvre Museum in Paris.

As an associate producer on "The Kremlin," she rigged herself in pink chiffon and false eyelashes, got into an official reception in Moscow and snowed Krushchev with sweet talk and fast talk until he granted permission to film inside the Kremlin.

MRS. JARVIS SAID SHE FEATURED flattery in the case of dealing with Malraux and Louvre officials on a documentary called "The Louvre."

"I did the 'Oh, you're so handsome' bit," she explained, "and when I had worn them down a little, I delivered an absolutely shameless coup de grace. I told them, 'If Krushchev trusted me, why can't you? They did."

Her technique of forceful femininity served her well in the making of "Mary Martin 'Hello, Dolly', 'Round the World." It takes Miss Martin's career with the Broadway musical through Japan, Viet Nam and London.

MARY MARTIN ENTERTAINS TROOPS OVERSEAS

A high-voltage smile served Mrs. Jarvis in most cases on this assignment, but there was that incident at Tokyo airport as Miss Martin's plane was landing. Mrs. Jarvis had planned to photograph John Rich, NBC's man in Tokyo, going up the gangplank to greet the star.

However, a Japanese policeman grabbed Rich's arm and wouldn't permit him to ascend.

"John hollered and pleaded," Mrs. Jarvis recalled, "but the man wouldn't let him go. There were the lights, the cameras all set up. Time was being wasted; a whole sequence was going to pot.

"So, I just walked up behind the officer and bopped him on the back of the neck with my pocketbook. He howled and let go of John, and the show went on.

"I wouldn't have been able to do that if I weren't a woman. After all, who else carries pocketbooks?"

Feature City College Instructors on 'Scope'

Three Long Beach City College instructors will be featured over this week's "Scope" series at 7 a.m. Monday through Friday over Channel 7.

Leading off "LBCC week" over the KABC-TV educational series will be Leon Van Oosten of the business administration department, with a discussion of "Common Stock."

Forrest Biard of the physical science department will be seen in three lecture-demonstrations, "On Modern Physics," Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Kevin G. Burne of the English department will discuss "Morality and Modern Literature" on Friday. Additional LBCC programs are scheduled over "Scope" later in the spring semester, produced under the general direction of radio-TV instructor Kenneth Carter.

'Joke Hall of Fame' in Making

By ROBERT MUSEL

NEW YORK (UPI) — Recently Sid Field, the eminent comedy adviser to the Jackie Gleason show, said the public was looking for miracles if it expected a boundless reservoir of fresh jokes on TV programs.

Comes now George Q. Lewis, an authority on comedy development in the United States, with a plea for more old jokes on TV.

Lewis, who trains young comedy writers, is compiling "The Joke Hall of Fame," 2,500 jokes which have stood the test of time. He says some of them go back to the original Joe Miller collection of 1739.

"Any joke which is still around after years or decades or centuries must have a basic appeal," Lewis said. "It's a pity to lose this in the desperate search for something 'new'. All the writer has to do is bring it up to date and TV audiences will laugh as their fathers and grandfathers did.

* * * *

"I'D PERSONALLY rather hear a good old joke than a poor new one. Surveys show most people feel the same."

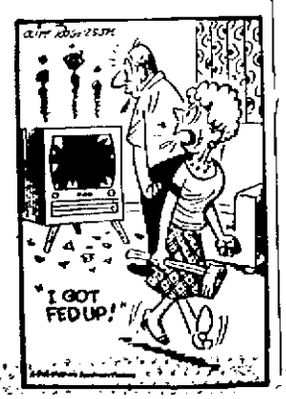

Lewis offered these examples of resilient oldies:

"Pop," said the farmer's son, "this isn't my idea of living. I'm going to Broadway where there's excitement, champagne, beautiful women! Don't try to stop me!" "Who's trying to stop you," cried the farmer. "Take me with you!"

"The doctor put the thermometer into his patient's mouth. "Now keep your mouth closed for three minutes," he said.

The woman's husband gazed in fascination and as time passed he asked: "Doc, how much do you want for that thing?"

"What's cooking?", asked the cannibal chief. "Two old maids." "Darn," said the chief. "Left-overs again."

Program: "Golden Globe Awards" as presented by "The Andy Williams Show" last Monday on channel 4.

To get the job done right you go to a pro. After fiddling around for most of 23 years with their own brand of production, so-called, Hollywood's foreign correspondents yielded to the truism last year and resultantly Monday night's awards telecast was not only comparable to the others (Oscar & Emmy) but can stand on its own two feet as a special with a perennial welcome. It was disciplined to stay within the prescribed time limits, something the others have yet to learn.

Producer Bob Finkel and his director, Bob Henry, long teethed in making specials live up to the word, took it along leisurely as they would their own Andy Williams Show and let the cameras' eye roam to where the millions around the sets spoiled for a look at the styles and glamor of the queens of the Hollywood hive. It was Andy Williams Show time so who better to emcee it? Out of his floppy sweater into tails, he proved an agile wit and restrained conferencier, taking over on his own only to give voice to the five nominated songs and few can do it better. His "Welcome to live tv" when he flubbed a line was instant humor. Smartly, he let the others take the laughs with pretentious aplomb. When the global reporters ran out of presenters he took over in the minor divisions.

The most serious award of the evening, honoring C. B. DeMille, was gagged the most by Dean Martin, whom the recipient, John Wayne, referred to as having "just returned from a New Year's Eve party." Producers of other such specials could "go to school," as the golfers say, on Monday night's lesson. What made it even more complex was the remote from the Cocoanut Grove, a shuddering thought to any producer oriented to his own studio. To make such a documentary entertaining needs the pro touch. Golden Globes got it from Finkel, Henry and their able crew.

Critic Helm of "Variety"

Andy Williams' NBC show was a pocket version of the Academy Awards as the Golden Globes of the Hollywood Foreign Press Assn. were distributed. The feminine stars were beautifully gowned and there were lots of celebrities to look at. The committee in charge of the Academy Awards' annual show could take some tips from the disciplined way it was handled.

Critic Cynthia Lowry of AP

Program: "I Spy," aired last Wednesday on channel 4.

The fact that television programs now offer portrayals of Negro bad guys as well as Negro good guys—as on Wednesday night's episode of NBC-TV's "I Spy"—is distinctly a sign of video progress.

Ever since the civil rights movement put extreme heat on television to use more members of the minority group in acting roles, even Negro performers have been sarcastic and bitterly amused by the fact that most of their parts have been of the sweetness-and-light variety.

Time and again they have told interviewers, networks, producers, directors — anybody who would listen—that they don't want to be cast only as heroic, perfect, altruistic souls

In a sense, part of the problem of the Negro performers who always found themselves in good - guy roles stemmed at times from the extreme zealousness of some civil rights workers and leaders, who — mostly concerned with upgrading the image and status of the Negro — were getting into areas of artistic and creative decision.

Thus, some producers with good intentions felt pressure when some civil rights figures frowned, for instance, on Negroes playing menials — although, following the now - accepted enlightened view, reality demands realization of the fact that there are Negro menials, as well as white menials.

Critic Rick Du Brow of UPI

Negro comedian Godfrey Cambridge was outstanding in his dramatic television debut. He makes a very appealing villain.

SPECIAL

VIET NAM PERSPECTIVE: The UN and the War—Turning from last week's Congressional views to those of United Nations diplomats, Eric Sevareid and Richard C. Hottelet question UN ambassadors from Nigeria, Algeria, Hungary, Philippines, Australia and other nations on their attitudes toward U.S. Viet Nam policy in an hour's special at 1:30 p.m., ch. 2. Charles Collingwood will be seen from Geneva's Palais des Nations where the agreement of 1954 was signed. (For more Viet Nam views, see "Issues & Answers," same hour, ch. 7.)

NEWSMAKERS—With "Mr. Ed" cancelled soon anyway, KNXT delivers the coup de grace early and eliminates the repeats by moving its "Newsmakers" into a new day and time spot at 5 p.m., ch. 2. Maury Green anchors the panel that will interview a controversial pair of guests today—avowed Communist Herbert Aptheker, and his daughter Bettina; leader in the student rebellions at Berkeley. The two give their views of Viet Nam, student protests and Communism in the U.S.

VOICE OF THE DRAGON—A factual account of mass indoctrination and mass persuasion undertaken by the Chinese Communists is detailed in an NBC news special, narrated by Robert MacNeil, at 6:30 p.m., ch. 4. Filmed by a French camera crew during a recent 4-month period behind the Bamboo Curtain, hour includes anti-American demonstrations in Peking, indoctrination of children in kindergarten, training of the vast civilian militia and the grip of the Chinese variety of Marxism on the culture, religion and recreational activities of 700,000,000 people.

DANNY THOMAS—Everyone has a home town—and for the Hollywood actor it's the studio lot. So Danny and his guests, Jim Nabors, Mitzi Gaynor and Sonny and Cher go to the fascinating backlot of MGM, to sing, dance and clown their way through MGM's street settings of New York, Paris, wartime, Latin America and tenements—to a property storage area, and to Stage 5 haunted by the ghosts of Barrymore, Garbo, Gable, Garland and Lanza. In a major production number Danny pursues Miss Gaynor camouflaged as Col. von Thomas of WWI, Count Savillon of Louis IV's France, and as Capt. Nosebeard, a pirate.

NEWSMAKERS—With "Mr. Ed" cancelled soon anyway, KNXT delivers the coup de grace early and eliminates the repeats by moving its "Newsmakers" into a new day and time spot at 5 p.m., ch. 2. Maury Green anchors the panel that will interview a controversial pair of guests today—avowed Communist Herbert Aptheker, and his daughter Bettina; leader in the student rebellions at Berkeley. The two give their views of Viet Nam, student protests and Communism in the U.S.

VOICE OF THE DRAGON—A factual account of mass indoctrination and mass persuasion undertaken by the Chinese Communists is detailed in an NBC news special, narrated by Robert MacNeil, at 6:30 p.m., ch. 4. Filmed by a French camera crew during a recent 4-month period behind the Bamboo Curtain, hour includes anti-American demonstrations in Peking, indoctrination of children in kindergarten, training of the vast civilian militia and the grip of the Chinese variety of Marxism on the culture, religion and recreational activities of 700,000,000 people.

DANNY THOMAS—Everyone has a home town—and for the Hollywood actor it's the studio lot. So Danny and his guests, Jim Nabors, Mitzi Gaynor and Sonny and Cher go to the fascinating backlot of MGM, to sing, dance and clown their way through MGM's street settings of New York, Paris, wartime, Latin America and tenements—to a property storage area, and to Stage 5 haunted by the ghosts of Barrymore, Garbo, Gable, Garland and Lanza. In a major production number Danny pursues Miss Gaynor camouflaged as Col. von Thomas of WWI, Count Savillon of Louis IV's France, and as Capt. Nosebeard, a pirate.

Sports Today

NBA BASKETBALL, 7:30 p.m., ch. 11, by one-hour delay, finds Chick Hearn in Philadelphia as the 76ers host the Lakers.

SPECIAL

MARY MARTIN: Hello Dolly 'round the World — The tour of Mary Martin and the "Hello, Dolly!" company to Tokyo, Viet Nam and London is covered in a Lucy Jarvis-produced color hour at 9 p.m., ch. 4. Opening with Queen Elizabeth's visit to "Dolly" at London's Drury Lane Theatre, hour then goes in flashback to Japan where the company visits shrines, geisha schools, the Kabuki Theatre and the Mikimoto beds of Pearl Island—and on to improvised stages on air strips in Viet Nam where "Foxhole Mary," as the men called her, also visited the injured at base hospitals. (Another "Dolly," Carol Channing, will be seen next week in a CBS special.)

ALEX DREIER — KTTV, which lost George Putnam to KTLA late last year, brings in the "man on the go," award-winning commentator Alex Dreier, to head its nightly 10 p.m. news hours, in color, effective today. Dreier joins Larry Burrell, Bill Welsh, Pat Buttram and Tom Franklin on the shows—and will continue his longtime series on ABC radio.

Cable Signals Eliminating TV 'Ghosts'

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

NEW YORK (UPI)—Such words as "ghosts" and "snow" may disappear from the jargon of television within a few years.

"Ghosts," or double images on the screen, and "snow," or flaky pictures, are caused by faulty reception of television signals. The set may be too far away from the television station or some natural or man-made object may interfere with the signal as it travels from its source.

These nuisances can be eliminated by sending the signal to the set by cable instead of through the atmosphere.

More than 1,700 organizations now are involved in this enterprise, known as Community Antenna Television or CATV. Each system consists of a master antenna mounted on a high tower with connecting cables which bring broadcast signals directly into homes or offices. Roof-top antennas or rabbit ears are not needed.

• • • •

VIKING Industries, Inc. is producing a picture of growth and earnings in the CATV business. Along with the sensational growth of the industry in the last few years, Viking's aggressive management has moved the company into a commanding position.

Innovations and expansion are key factors in this growth, according to Theodore Baum, executive vice president of Viking Industries.

"It costs $40 to $50 per home, as a general rule of thumb, to build a new CATV system from scratch," Baum said in a recent interview. "But a full return on the investment can be obtained in seven years."

• • • •

BAUM noted that CATV got its start in rural areas which were too remote to pick up anything but pictures that were marred by ghosts and snow. In recent years there has been a demand for CATV in urban areas primarily because tall buildings get in the way of ordinary signals.

"We clean the signal and give a perfect picture either in black and white or color," Baum said.

Baum emphasized that CATV is not connected in any respect with pay-TV systems.

Under the CATV systems, the subscriber pays $5 a month for the service and a dollar for each additional set in homes where there is more than one unit.

SPECIAL

MARY MARTIN: Hello Dolly 'round the World — The tour of Mary Martin and the "Hello, Dolly!" company to Tokyo, Viet Nam and London is covered in a Lucy Jarvis-produced color hour at 9 p.m., ch. 4. Opening with Queen Elizabeth's visit to "Dolly" at London's Drury Lane Theatre, hour then goes in flashback to Japan where the company visits shrines, geisha schools, the Kabuki Theatre and the Mikimoto beds of Pearl Island—and on to improvised stages on air strips in Viet Nam where "Foxhole Mary," as the men called her, also visited the injured at base hospitals. (Another "Dolly," Carol Channing, will be seen next week in a CBS special.)

ALEX DREIER — KTTV, which lost George Putnam to KTLA late last year, brings in the "man on the go," award-winning commentator Alex Dreier, to head its nightly 10 p.m. news hours, in color, effective today. Dreier joins Larry Burrell, Bill Welsh, Pat Buttram and Tom Franklin on the shows—and will continue his longtime series on ABC radio.

SPECIAL

16 in WEBSTER GROVES — Climbing aboard the recent bandwagon of probing the inner workings of teenagers, CBS takes its cameras to Webster Groves, Mo., near St. Louis, which census data shows is a representative suburb and where 99% of the 688 teenagers replied to a voluntary questionnaire. The age of 16 was picked because that is the age at which teenagers can legally both drive and drop out of school, and because it's an age at which they begin to question who they are, what they want and where they're going. Charles Kuralt reports the news special at 10 p.m., in color, ch. 2, finding the youngsters regimented conformists, obsessed with getting good grades to get into college, but with little awareness of the world around them and accepting their parents' world without question. Which could be explained by the well-to-do city picked for the study, with 93% white, 78% having their own bank accounts, 86% believing in God and half content with their town for the rest of their lives. (This hour next week looks at the complexities of American divorce.)

Cable Signals Eliminating TV 'Ghosts'

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

NEW YORK (UPI)—Such words as "ghosts" and "snow" may disappear from the jargon of television within a few years.

"Ghosts," or double images on the screen, and "snow," or flaky pictures, are caused by faulty reception of television signals. The set may be too far away from the television station or some natural or man-made object may interfere with the signal as it travels from its source.

These nuisances can be eliminated by sending the signal to the set by cable instead of through the atmosphere.

More than 1,700 organizations now are involved in this enterprise, known as Community Antenna Television or CATV. Each system consists of a master antenna mounted on a high tower with connecting cables which bring broadcast signals directly into homes or offices. Roof-top antennas or rabbit ears are not needed.

* * * *

VIKING Industries, Inc. is producing a picture of growth and earnings in the CATV business. Along with the sensational growth of the industry in the last few years, Viking's aggressive management has moved the company into a commanding position.

Innovations and expansion are key factors in this growth, according to Theodore Baum, executive vice president of Viking Industries.

"It costs $40 to $50 per home, as a general rule of thumb, to build a new CATV system from scratch," Baum said in a recent interview. "But a full return on the investment can be obtained in seven years."

* * * *

BAUM noted that CATV got its start in rural areas which were too remote to pick up anything but pictures that were marred by ghosts and snow. In recent years there has been a demand for CATV in urban areas primarily because tall buildings get in the way of ordinary signals.

"We clean the signal and give a perfect picture either in black and white or color," Baum said.

Baum emphasized that CATV is not connected in any respect with pay-TV systems.

Under the CATV systems, the subscriber pays $5 a month for the service and a dollar for each additional set in homes where there is more than one unit.

Senator Claims Television No Place for 'Never on Sunday'

By ISABELLE McCAIG

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Movies like "Divorce, Italian Style" and "Never on Sunday" don't belong on the television screens in American homes, according to Sen. John O. Pastore (D-R.I.).

Pastore, chairman of the Senate communications subcommittee, addressed the quarterly board meeting of American Women in Radio and Television.

He admonished the communications industry to "please keep Congress out of censorship, out of the field of telling you what programs to show or not to show. The industry must guide itself so it doesn't dirty up the television screen."

* * * *

PASTORE also questioned the taste of a recent network program (NBC) called "How Honest Are You?"

"Even that program dealt with sex," he said. He noted it asked such questions as "Should a married man have relations with another woman?" and "Is adultery wrong?"

"What purpose did this serve for a 12-year-old girl who was watching?" Pastore asked. "And why should this type of thing be projected on television?"

Pastore said television had "a voracious appetite and there will always be the dilemma of programming. Already we are running out of good themes and running into duplication.

* * * *

"IF ONE network has Dr. Casey, the other has Dr. Kildare. Under the law, the industry has a responsibility in programming because you come into the sanctity of the home," he declared.

"Our children and some of our adults spend more time before the television set than they do in church or in school."

The senator said he was concerned as to what direction the industry would take when it gets to the bottom of the barrel of available movies.

"Will 'Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow' or 'Marriage, Italian Style' be shown in the homes of America?" he asked.

"The supreme court of the United States might, from time to time, say that Fanny Hill, Peyton Place and Lady Chatterley's Lover are not pornographic, but does anyone dare to read them on television?" he asked.

SPECIAL

BALLET: London and L.A. —Alan Sloane views the growth of the ballet in Los Angeles as cameras watch Rudolph Nureyev and Margot Fonteyn both backstage at Covent Garden with the Royal Ballet of England, and in L. A. during their 16-city tour of the U. S. The Los Angeles Corps de Ballet is featured, along with Eugene Loring, in 8:30 p.m. hour, ch. 13, screened partly (L. A. portions) in color.

CHRYSLER THEATER—Oscar-winning Simone Signoret stars with George Maharis and Broadway headliner Sam Levine in an electrifying three-character drama of a young playwright's efforts to persuade a famous actress to star in an unconventional play she considers without validity. It soon becomes obvious that experiences in her own life are the cause of her hostility toward the leading lady's motivations. The 9 p.m., ch. 4 color hour was filmed at the Lindy Opera House in L. A., with original background music supplied via a trumpet solo by Dizzy Gillespie. Script writer S. Lee Pogostin and director Stuart Rosenberg both are Emmy winners. (Show next week is a Bob Hope comedy special, with Danny Thomas, Martha Raye, Jill St. John and the Righteous Brothers.)

Senator Claims Television No Place for 'Never on Sunday'

By ISABELLE McCAIG

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Movies like "Divorce, Italian Style" and "Never on Sunday" don't belong on the television screens in American homes, according to Sen. John O. Pastore (D-R.I.).

Pastore, chairman of the Senate communications subcommittee, addressed the quarterly board meeting of American Women in Radio and Television.

He admonished the communications industry to "please keep Congress out of censorship, out of the field of telling you what programs to show or not to show. The industry must guide itself so it doesn't dirty up the television screen."

* * * *

PASTORE also questioned the taste of a recent network program (NBC) called "How Honest Are You?"

"Even that program dealt with sex," he said. He noted it asked such questions as "Should a married man have relations with another woman?" and "Is adultery wrong?"

"What purpose did this serve for a 12-year-old girl who was watching?" Pastore asked. "And why should this type of thing be projected on television?"

Pastore said television had "a voracious appetite and there will always be the dilemma of programming. Already we are running out of good themes and running into duplication.

* * * *

"IF ONE network has Dr. Casey, the other has Dr. Kildare. Under the law, the industry has a responsibility in programming because you come into the sanctity of the home," he declared.

"Our children and some of our adults spend more time before the television set than they do in church or in school."

The senator said he was concerned as to what direction the industry would take when it gets to the bottom of the barrel of available movies.

"Will 'Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow' or 'Marriage, Italian Style' be shown in the homes of America?" he asked.

"The supreme court of the United States might, from time to time, say that Fanny Hill, Peyton Place and Lady Chatterley's Lover are not pornographic, but does anyone dare to read them on television?" he asked.

Dr. ROWAN Says:

You're better off

...taking a little longer to pay, and buying better

DENTAL PLATES

Dental Plates are so important to you . . . can make such a difference in how you feel and how you look . . . you should take advantage of the best materials that modern dental science has developed. Every plate fitted in my office receives the same high standard of close professional attention. Prices vary, depending on the type and quality of the artificial teeth you prefer. For the slight difference in cost, you're better off choosing the best . . . and my Liberal Credit Plan makes it easy for you. On approval of your credit, you can spread the small monthly payments over any reasonable time.

NO CASH DOWN

NO CHARGE FOR CREDIT

No interest, no carrying charges, no bank or finance company to deal with. IT'S AN EXTRA SAVING FOR YOU, because my prices stay low, regardless of how much credit you need. On approval of your credit, you can spread the small monthly payments over any reasonable length of time, without extra charges of any kind. So don't let lack of cash keep you — or anyone in your family — from getting needed dental work completed right now.

UNION DENTAL PLAN SERVICE

My office provides all types of dental work under Union or California Dental Service Programs. Where part of the payment is made by the patient, credit is available.

O.A.S. PENSIONERS WELCOME

Bring your O.A.S. Identification Card for immediate service for X-rays, plate repairs, emergency work. New plates on approval of the O.A.S. We also provide Dental Care under other County programs (A.T.D., A.P.S.B., A.N.D.).

SPECIAL

BALLET: London and L.A.—Alan Sloane views the growth of the ballet in Los Angeles as cameras watch Rudolph Nureyev and Margot Fonteyn both backstage at Covent Garden with the Royal Ballet of England, and in L. A. during their 16-city tour of the U. S. The Los Angeles Corps de Ballet is featured, along with Eugene Loring, in 8:30 p.m. hour, ch. 13, screened partly (L. A. portions) in color.

CHRYSLER THEATER—Oscar-winning Simone Signoret stars with George Maharis and Broadway headliner Sam Levine in an electrifying three-character drama of a young playwright's efforts to persuade a famous actress to star in an unconventional play she considers without validity. It soon becomes obvious that experiences in her own life are the cause of her hostility toward the leading lady's motivations. The 9 p.m., ch. 4 color hour was filmed at the Lindy Opera House in L. A., with original background music supplied via a trumpet solo by Dizzy Gillespie. Script writer S. Lee Pogostin and director Stuart Rosenberg both are Emmy winners. (Show next week is a Bob Hope comedy special, with Danny Thomas, Martha Raye, Jill St. John and the Righteous Brothers.)

DENTAL PLATES

Dental Plates are so important to you . . . can make such a difference in how you feel and how you look . . . you should take advantage of the best materials that modern dental science has developed. Every plate fitted in my office receives the same high standard of close professional attention. Prices vary, depending on the type and quality of the artificial teeth you prefer. For the slight difference in cost, you're better off choosing the best . . . and my Liberal Credit Plan makes it easy for you. On approval of your credit, you can spread the small monthly payments over any reasonable time.

NO CASH DOWN

NO CHARGE FOR CREDIT

No interest, no carrying charges, no bank or finance company to deal with. IT'S AN EXTRA SAVING FOR YOU, because my prices stay low, regardless of how much credit you need. On approval of your credit, you can spread the small monthly payments over any reasonable length of time, without extra charges of any kind. So don't let lack of cash keep you – or anyone in your family – from getting needed dental work completed right now.

UNION DENTAL PLAN SERVICE

My office provides all types of dental work under Union or California Dental Service Programs. Where part of the payment is made by the patient, credit is available.

O.A.S. PENSIONERS WELCOME

Bring your O.A.S. Indentification Card for immediate service for X-rays, plate repairs, emergency work. New plates on approval of the O.A.S. We also provide Dental Care under other County programs (A.T.D., A.P.S.B., A.N.D.).

DR. FRANK C. BAXTER . . . Back on TV

Dr. Frank C. Baxter Hosts Travel Series Debut Today

IN THE FIELD of television, Dr. Frank C. Baxter has won the Peabody, Sylvania and Paul Revere awards plus seven Emmys.

The educational television programs in which he has participated range from three semesters of college credit video Shakespeare to his role as "Dr. Research" in a nationally televised science series.

The former University of Southern California English professor comes back to television today as host-narrator for a new weekly travel series, "Adventure," premiering at 5:30 p.m. in COLOR on channel 5.

Why a travel series?

"Because it came along and they invited me to do it," said Dr. Baxter.

He lit his pipe and added:

"It was Bernard DeVoto (historian-author) who said that it is so hard in our time for a young man to test himself.

"You only grow by reaching, striving, putting your muscles against something sturdier than you are."

AT 69, DR. BAXTER feels he's young enough to put himself to the test of a new experience, that of hosting the travel-adventure series.

"Actually," he said, "I'm just the connective tissue, the catalytic agent. I'm ringmaster and floorwalker."

If there's another reason for accepting that host post:

"I hate to think that there are doors closed to me anywhere in this world. I remember how unhappy I was when I read that I couldn't become a WAC."

It was in 1953 that the door to television first opened for Dr. Baxter. He was asked to present a series, "Shakespeare on TV."

At the time the only television program Dr. Baxter had seen was a wrestling program airing on a video set in a furniture store he had passed.

After making it clear he wasn't a wrestler, Dr. Baxter took eight seconds to reach his decision. His answer was "Yes" and it was television's gain.

THROUGHOUT his varied participation in television programs, he has been adament about only one element.

"I never make any condescending adaptation to the television audience," he said.

"If I want to use a six-syllable word, I use it. I give the audience credit for being interested in the same things I am.

"I have never put any credence in the so-called '12-year-old mentality' of the viewer."

If television has gained by Dr. Baxter's presence, he feels he has tremendously benefitted by the existence of TV.

"It is amazing how much of television can be watched with pleasure by intelligent men," he said.

"To sit in one's home and hear five members of Congress debate what's happening in Viet Nam—what a wonderful thing."

Medal for Perry Como

The Club of Champions Medal, highest award conferred by the Catholic Youth Organization of New York, will be presented to Perry Como on Feb. 15.

Francis Cardinal Spellman, archbishop of New York, will make the presentation at a $50-a-plate benefit dinner.

Como will become the 32nd member of the Club of Champions. He will be cited for "encouragement and inspiration to millions of young people" as well as "strong sense of responsibility, integrity and charity."

Bob Hope was the winner last year.

SPECIAL

DEAN MARTIN — It's a really big "shew" for NBC's Sullivan of the West, when guests Lucille Ball and Kate Smith join Dino in musically reminiscing about the days of vaudeville. Also signing the guest roster for the star-studded 10 p.m. color hour, ch. 4, are Bill Cosby, Rowan and Martin, and Big Tiny Little and his Wild Ones. Lucy plays farm girl Emma Frump, while Cosby discusses karate and gets a lesson in effective espionage from Rowan and Martin. (Lucy will be seen March 22 in a color special on her own network, joining Carol Burnett and Zero Mostel in a comedy-variety hour called "Carol Plus 2".)

DR. FRANK C. BAXTER . . . Back on TV

Dr. Frank C. Baxter Hosts Travel Series Debut Today

IN THE FIELD of television, Dr. Frank C. Baxter has won the Peabody, Sylvania and Paul Revere awards plus seven Emmys.

The educational television programs in which he has participated range from three semesters of college credit video Shakespeare to his role as "Dr. Research" in a nationally televised science series.

The former University of Southern California English professor comes back to television today as host-narrator for a new weekly travel series, "Adventure," premiering at 5:30 p.m. in COLOR on channel 5.

Why a travel series?

"Because it came along and they invited me to do it," said Dr. Baxter.

He lit his pipe and added:

"It was Bernard DeVoto (historian-author) who said that it is so hard in our time for a young man to test himself.

"You only grow by reaching, striving, putting your muscles against something sturdier than you are."

AT 69, DR. BAXTER feels he's young enough to put himself to the test of a new experience, that of hosting the travel-adventure series.

"Actually," he said, "I'm just the connective tissue, the catalytic agent. I'm ringmaster and floorwalker."

If there's another reason for accepting that host post:

"I hate to think that there are doors closed to me anywhere in this world. I remember how unhappy I was when I read that I couldn't become a WAC."

It was in 1953 that the door to television first opened for Dr. Baxter. He was asked to present a series, "Shakespeare on TV."

At the time the only television program Dr. Baxter had seen was a wrestling program airing on a video set in a furniture store he had passed.

After making it clear he wasn't a wrestler, Dr. Baxter took eight seconds to reach his decision. His answer was "Yes" and it was television's gain.

THROUGHOUT his varied participation in television programs, he has been adament about only one element.

"I never make any condescending adaptation to the television audience," he said.

"If I want to use a six-syllable word, I use it. I give the audience credit for being interested in the same things I am.

"I have never put any credence in the so-called '12-year-old mentality' of the viewer."

If television has gained by Dr. Baxter's presence, he feels he has tremendously benefitted by the existence of TV.

"It is amazing how much of television can be watched with pleasure by intelligent men," he said.

"To sit in one's home and hear five members of Congress debate what's happening in Viet Nam—what a wonderful thing."

Medal for Perry Como

The Club of Champions Medal, highest award conferred by the Catholic Youth Organization of New York, will be presented to Perry Como on Feb. 15.

Francis Cardinal Spellman, archbishop of New York, will make the presentation at a $50-a-plate benefit dinner.

Como will become the 32nd member of the Club of Champions. He will be cited for "encouragement and inspiration to millions of young people" as well as "strong sense of responsibility, integrity and charity."

Bob Hope was the winner last year.

I have been wondering when Sonny and Cher will next be on television. I miss them very much.

They are my favorite singers.

Could you please help me?

Richard Hackenberg, Long Beach

Be glad to. Try the Danny Thomas special tonight.

Why has the "Merv Griffin Show" been cut to an hour instead of its previous one-and-one-half hour? Does KTTV edit the tape itself?

Why couldn't Lomax, Belli, Pyne and Duggan occupy the 9 to 10 p.m. slot, thereby leaving Mr. Griffin the 11 to 12:30 slot?

Linda Mino, Los Alamitos

Griffin will return to his 90-minute format on Tuesday.

Westinghouse Broadcasting Co., which syndicates the show nationwide, prepares an hour and a 90-minute version. KTTV didn't edit.

Griffin's show is deemed more suitable for family viewing than the controversial discussion shows. Hence, Griffin received the earlier timeslot.

I'd like to know why they took the first Joy from "Never Too Young" off the air and what's happened to her.

The old Joy was a much better actress than the new one.

Pearl Horton, Lakewood

The new Joy, what is her previous acting experience? Where did they dig her up?

L. Pope, Long Beach

What happened to the original Joy?

Barbara Strassner, Long Beach

The Joy of being free from the demands of a daily serial appealed to the original actress, Robyn Grace.

She's lined up some guest shots on other shows and is awaiting the decision on whether a network will buy a situation-comedy pilot in which she's featured.

The new Joy is Jaclyn Carmichael who has guested on such TV shows as "Mr. Novak," "Paradise Bay," "Perry Mason" and "Petticoat Junction."

Her background is theatrical and includes two years at the Pasadena Playhouse.

What are all you kids doing watching television at 4 p.m. every day? Hit the books or get out and get some sunshine chasing butterflies.

* * * *

On the program "Never Too Young," they say that Tim is Joy's uncle and Rhoda's brother. Where does he really tie in?

I know that Alice just told Joy this because they didn't want her to know the truth about her father, but it confuses me about where Tim comes in.

Brenda Wilson, Artesia

Tim was raised by Alice. I cant tell you exactly where he comes in because it's a deep dark secret until the script hits the air. However, he's not Rhoda's brother, although there is a blood relationship between the two.

Furthermore, I'm my own grandpa and "Never Too Young" is making me older than he is.

Was that man who played the golf pro on "The Perry Mason Show" Jan. 30—the one who was murdered—the same man that plays Dr. Rossi in "Peyton Place?"

Mrs. Katherine Barber, Long Beach

No. Ed Nelson plays Dr. Rossi. Dennis Patrick was the golf pro.

Is Peter Falk's accent really as strong as it is in "Trails of O'Brien?" Does Patrick McGoohan have an accent other than his English one for "Secret Agent?"

Elizabeth Connery, Long Beach

Falk's off-screen accent is just as Damon Runyon Brooklynese as it is on-screen. McGoohan's English accent, by jove, is also authentic.

Wouldn't it be great if Brooklyn's Falk played the English agent and Great Britain's McGoohan was the Runyonesque lawyer? It would be a semantic smorgasbord.

Why isn't the Shake Shop on any more? I really liked that show, especially Planet Patrol.

When Hector Heathcoat and his Friends came on, I could have died.

Deborah Jo Sheets, Long Beach

I'm glad you didn't because Hector is only a temporary replacement in a channel 9 master change-over plan that starts Feb. 21.

He'll be replaced then by Popeye.

As for "The Shake Shop," it just malted away in the sunset. Won't be back. Got a bum shake.

TUROFF IS GROWING • NOW 15 OFFICES NATIONWIDE

1. FREE EXAMINATION by a Turoff trained specialist establishes your individual causes of hair loss.

2. HI-FREQUENCY THERAPY provides short rays to kill bacteria, increases scalp metabolism.

3. EXCLUSIVE ELECTRO-THERAPY developed by Turoff technicians after years of research, results are FAST!

FIND OUT WHAT THIS REMARKABLE HAIR TREATMENT CAN DO FOR YOU

No Other Treatment is quite like the one you get in your Turoff treatment. You recline in comfort in a private booth; you close your eyes and relax . . . your operator first applies pleasant, stimulating hi-frequency therapy. She then continues with laboratory produced chemicals for your particular condition. Her rapid, skillful fingers work them in with manipulations, both by hand and machine massage. Finally, unique Turoff electrical therapy is applied while you continue to relax.

It Has Taken Many Years and over 1 million treatments to bring this unique Turoff treatment to its present perfection. If you have excessive hairfall, itchy scalp, excessive dandruff, thinning areas, we suggest you come in quickly for a FREE HAIR AND SCALP EXAMINATION. There is no obligation.

STOP HAIR LOSS

TUROFF GUARANTEE

Stop Hair Loss; if, within four treatments the Turoff System has not stopped your excessive fall, removed dandruff scales, relieved scalp itch and made your scalp feel better than it has in years, YOUR MONEY WILL BE REFUNDED IN FULL!

NEW SCIENTIFIC METHOD

Turoff treats the problem of premature baldness scientifically, with their own exclusive chemical, physical and electrotherapy. Turoff Clinics alone provide this remarkably successful therapy. Exact formulas and therapy are known only to Turoff. No imitations can equal its power. So astounding have been the results, we have given over one million successful treatments. Prove this scientific thoroughness to yourself.

WITH JUST ONE TREATMENT

dead epidermis, foreign matter and dandruff scales will be removed from your scalp. It will no longer feel itchy and lifeless . . . but will be pleasantly invigorated and alive again. Yes, in just one treatment your hair will start to take on a healthy look with MORE BODY and TEXTURE.

Your VERY FIRST Turoff Treatment will enthuse you. See it, feel it, you will be convinced as other hundreds of thousands have been convinced.

A RECORD OF 1¼ MILLION TREATMENTS

SPECIAL

RESTLESS AMIGO—The environmental problems confronting 750,000 Mexican-Americans living in the eastern portion of L.A. County is probed by Baxter Ward in a program at 7 p.m., ch. 7. Looking at the problems of isolation, language communication, "varrios" or gangs, and police records of youth are Fr. Granville Walfron of the Lincoln Heights parish, Rep. Edward R. Roybal, Judge Philip M. Newman, Humberto Cintron and members of the Cobra Gang.

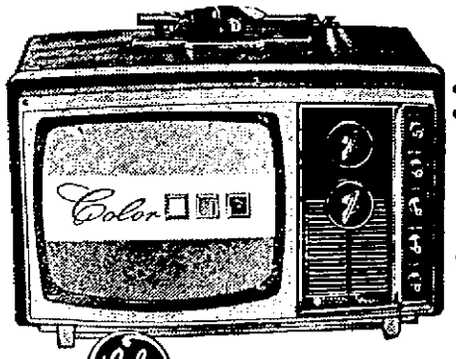

BRIGANTINE YANKEE—Third of four hour specials by the National Geographic Society is narrated by Orson Welles, at 7:30 p.m., in color, ch. 2, as we view an hour's highlights of an 18-month trip around the world on a 96-ft. steel-hulled schooner rigged as a brigantine with 7,775 square feet of sail. Capt. Irving Johnson and his wife make their seventh globe-circling voyage in the Yankee, with a crew of college-age amateur sailors, sailing out of Gloucester through the Panama Canal to the South Seas, across the Indian Ocean and around the Cape of Good Hope to the Atlantic and home. (Final broadcast, April 28, is "The World of Jacques Yves Cousteau.")

L.A. '66: What's Ahead?—Mayor Samuel Yorty heads a list of 13 representatives of city and county offices and departments, each of whom will project progress expected in his department during the year. Cecil Brown hosts the 90-min. analysis at 8 p.m., ch. 28, with the individual reports followed by a roundtable discussion.

FACE OF LINCOLN — Merrell Gage traces the life of Lincoln, as his sculptor's hands slowly create a bust of the Great Emancipator. The 1955 Oscar-winning short subject is reprised in a Lincoln's Birthday tribute at 8:30 p.m., ch. 9.

Sports Today

AAWU BASKETBALL, 2:30 p.m., ch. 5, is a Sports Arena game between USC and Washington State. Frank Sims calls the play.

PHOENIX OPEN Golf Tournament, 3 p.m., ch. 11, has Bill Welsh, Don Davis and Jack Beveridge at the Phoenix Country Club for the last four holes of the third round of the 31st annual tourney. (Final round airs Sunday, same time.)

CBS GOLF Classic, 3:30 p.m., ch. 2, from La Costa, is a first-round match teaming Sam Snead and Gardiner Dickinson against Dan and Dick Sikes (not related).

PRO BOWLERS Tour, 3:30 p.m., ch. 7, is the Mobile (Ala.) PBA Open, with Chris Schenkel and Billy Welu calling the action.

SANTA ANITA Feature Race, 4:30 p.m., ch. 2, is the $50,000-added San Antonio Handicap for 4-year-olds, tune-up for the Feb. 26 Guaranteed Santa Anita Handicap.

WONDERFUL WORLD of Golf, 5 p.m., in color, ch. 4, matches former U.S. Open champ Gene Littler and Canadian ace George Knudson on the Royal Ottawa Golf Club. Gene Sarazen commentates, and offers golf tips.

ABC'S WIDE WORLD of Sports, 5 p.m., ch. 7, finds Charlie Brockman and Stan Benham at Cortina, Italy, for the world 2-man bobsled championship; Jim McKay and Stew MacDonald at Cypress Gardens with the All-American water ski championships; and Bill Flemming and Phil Hill at Daytona Beach, Fla., for the 24-hour endurance Daytona continental sports car race.

GOLDEN GLOVES West Coast Finals, 8 p.m., ch. 5, has Dick Enberg and Mickey Davies bringing 3 hours of live action from the Olympic Auditorium as boxing finalists from California and Arizona compete in the annual event.

SPECIAL

ABC SCOPE: The War in Viet Nam—The weekly public affairs series has departed from its former diversified documentaries, and now focuses weekly on various phases of the escalating war in Viet Nam. Howard K. Smith, winner of two Du Pont awards, serves as anchorman and commentator at 10:30 p.m., ch. 7, as new format continues indefinitely to view the progress of the war, pro and con reactions, the war's effect on other nations and on such areas of universal concern as the draft, taxes and the U.S. business community.

Pan and Fan Mail

I have been wondering when Sonny and Cher will next be on television. I miss them very much.

They are my favorite singers.

Could you please help me?

Richard Hackenberg, Long Beach

Be glad to. Try the Danny Thomas special tonight.

Why has the "Merv Griffin Show" been cut to an hour instead of its previous one-and-one-half hour? Does KTTV edit the tape itself?

Why couldn't Lomax, Belli, Pyne and Duggan occupy the 9 to 10 p.m. slot, thereby leaving Mr. Griffin the 11 to 12:30 slot?

Linda Mino, Los Alamitos

Griffin will return to his 90-minute format on Tuesday.

Westinghouse Broadcasting Co., which syndicates the show nationwide, prepares an hour and a 90-minute version. KTTV didn't edit.

Griffin's show is deemed more suitable for family viewing than the controversial discussion shows. Hence, Griffin received the earlier timeslot.

I'd like to know why they took the first Joy from "Never Too Young" off the air and what's happened to her.

The old Joy was a much better actress than the new one.

Pearl Horton, Lakewood

The new Joy, what is her previous acting experience? Where did they dig her up?

L. Pope, Long Beach

What happened to the original Joy?

Barbara Strassner, Long Beach

The joy of being free from the demands of a daily serial appealed to the original actress, Robyn Grace.

She's lined up some guest shots on other shows and is awaiting the decision on whether a network will buy a situation-comedy pilot in which she's featured.

The new Joy is Jaclyn Carmichael who has guested on such TV shows as "Mr. Novak," "Paradise Bay," "Perry Mason" and "Petticoat Junction."

Her background is theatrical and includes two years at the Pasadena Playhouse.

What are all you kids doing watching television at 4 p.m. every day? Hit the books or get out and get some sunshine chasing butterflies.

* * * *

On the program "Never Too Young," they say that Tim is Joy's uncle and Rhoda's brother. Where does he really tie in?

I know that Alice just told Joy this because they didn't want her to know the truth about her father, but it confuses me about where Tim comes in.

Brenda Wilson, Artesia

Tim was raised by Alice. I cant tell you exactly where he comes in because it's a deep dark secret until the script hits the air. However, he's not Rhoda's brother, although there is a blood relationship between the two.

Furthermore, I'm my own grandpa and "Never Too Young" is making me older than he is.

* * * *

Was that man who played the golf pro on "The Perry Mason Show" Jan. 30—the one who was murdered—the same man that plays Dr. Rossi in "Peyton Place?"

Mrs. Katherine Barber, Long Beach

No. Ed Nelson plays Dr. Rossi. Dennis Patrick was the golf pro.

* * * *

Is Peter Falk's accent really as strong as it is in "Trails of O'Brien?" Does Patrick McGoohan have an accent other than his English one for "Secret Agent?"

Elizabeth Connery, Long Beach

Falk's off-screen accent is just as Damon Runyon Brooklynese as it is on-screen. McGoohan's English accent, by Jove, is also authentic.

Wouldn't it be great if Brooklyn's Falk played the English agent and Great Britain's McGoohan was the Runyonesque lawyer? It would be a semantic smorgasbord.

* * * *

Why isn't the Shake Shop on any more? I really liked that show, especially Planet Patrol.

When Hector Heathcoat and his Friends came on, I could have died.

Deborah Jo Sheets, Long Beach

I'm glad you didn't because Hector is only a temporary replacement in a channel 9 master change-over plan that starts Feb. 21.

He'll be replaced then by Popeye.

As for "The Shake Shop," it just melted away in the sunset. Won't be back. Got a hunk shake.

FIND OUT WHAT THIS REMARKABLE HAIR TREATMENT CAN DO FOR YOU

No Other Treatment

is quite like the one you get in your Turoff treatment. You recline in comfort in a private booth; you close your eyes and relax . . . your operator first applies pleasant, stimulating hi-frequency therapy. She then continues with laboratory produced chemicals for your particular condition. Her rapid, skillful fingers work them in with manipulations, both by hand and machine massage. Finally, unique Turoff electrical therapy is applied while you continue to relax.

It Has Taken Many Years

and over 1 million treatments to bring this unique Turoff treatment to its present perfection. If you have excessive hairfall, itchy scalp, excessive dandruff, thinning areas, we suggest you come in quickly for a FREE HAIR AND SCALP EXAMINATION. There is no obligation.

STOP HAIR LOSS

TUROFF GUARANTEE

Stop Hair Loss; if, within four treatments the Turoff System has not stopped your excessive fall, removed dandruff scales, relieved scalp itch and made your scalp feel better than it has in years, YOUR MONEY WILL BE REFUNDED IN FULL!

NEW SCIENTIFIC METHOD

Turoff treats the problem of premature baldness scientifically, with their own exclusive chemical, physical and electrotherapy. Turoff Clinics alone provide this remarkably successful therapy. Exact formulas and therapy are known only to Turoff. No imitations can equal its power. So astounding have been the results, we have given over one million successful treatments. Prove this scientific thoroughness to yourself.

WITH JUST ONE TREATMENT

dead epidermis, foreign matter and dandruff scales will be removed from your scalp. It will no longer feel itchy and lifeless . . . but will be pleasantly invigorated and alive again. Yes, in just one treatment your hair will start to take on a healthy look with MORE BODY and TEXTURE.

Your VERY FIRST Turoff Treatment will enthuse you. See it, feel it, you will be convinced as other hundreds of thousands have been convinced.

A RECORD OF 1¼ MILLION TREATMENTS

CURB ASTHMA FOR BETTER SLEEP

At the first sign of wheezing, difficult breathing or coughing from recurring Bronchial Asthma or Bronchitis, aggravated by air contaminated by smoking, smog, dust and pollens, take quick acting MENDACO. It combats allergy, relaxes bronchial tubes, thins and helps remove thick, choking phlegm. This usually eases breathing, lessens coughing, thus promoting better sleep. Get MENDACO at druggists. Let it help you.

GETTING UP NIGHTS MAKES MANY FEEL OLD BEFORE THEIR TIME

Sufferers Find Quick Help For Kidney & Bladder Irritation & Secondary Backache or Nerve Tension

As we grow older, many men and women suffer from feeling old, tired, worn out and depressed by losing sleep and worrying about getting up nights, due to common irritation of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Tract. This condition, often due to a germ called the colon bacillus, and non-specific germs resulting from colds, bad teeth and minor infections, may cause frequent, urgent and painful urination. These irritations may also cause strong, cloudy urine and sometimes result in secondary backache, headache and nervous tension. Then you should heed the warning from your nerves and try CYSTEX for quick help.

HOW CYSTEX HELPS

New Improved CYSTEX releases a gentle, soothing bacteriostat to add urine to combat germs which may be causing irritation. This is like a gentle, mildly antiseptic, soothing bath for the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Passages. CYSTEX also contains two of the very best known analgesics for soothing, gentle relaxing relief of discomforting pains due to common Kidney and Bladder Irritations.

WORLD WIDE SUCCESS

Formulated by American scientists, CYSTEX has been helping people (in 72 countries) for 30 years to combat the foregoing irritations and thus feel cleansed and refreshed—and because of less nerve tension able to sleep better and feel more vigorous and cheerful. Get CYSTEX from druggist today. See how fast it can help you.

CURB ASTHMA FOR BETTER SLEEP

At the first sign of wheezing, difficult breathing or coughing from recurring Bronchial Asthma or Bronchitis, aggravated by AIR contaminated by smoking, fumes, dust and pollens, take quick acting MENDACO. It combats allergy, relaxes bronchial tubes, thins and helps remove thick, choking phlegm. This usually eases breathing fast, allays coughing, thus promoting better sleep. Ask MENDACO at druggists. Let it help you.

GETTING UP NIGHTS MAKES MANY FEEL OLD BEFORE THEIR TIME

As we grow older, many men and women suffer from feeling old, tired, worn out and depressed by losing sleep and worrying about getting up nights, due to common irritation of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Tract. This condition, often due to a germ called the colon bacillus, and non-specific germs resulting from colds, bad teeth and minor infections, may cause frequent, urgent and painful urination. These irritations may also cause strong, cloudy urine and sometimes result in secondary backache, headache and nervous tension. Then you should heed the warning from your nerves and try CYSTEX for quick help.

HOW CYSTEX HELPS

New Improved CYSTEX releases a gentle, soothing bacteriostat in acid urine to combat germs which may be causing irritation. This is like a gentle, mildly antiseptic, soothing bath for the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Passages. CYSTEX also contains two of the very best known analgesics for soothing, gentle relaxing relief of discomforting pains due to common Kidney and Bladder irritations.

WORLD WIDE SUCCESS

Formulated by American scientists, CYSTEX has been helping people (in 72 countries) for 40 years to combat the foregoing irritations and thus feel cleansed and refreshed—and because of less nerve tension able to sleep better and feel more vigorous and cheerful. Get CYSTEX from druggist today. See how fast it can help you.

YOUR Independent Insurance AGENT

An insurance agent who displays this emblem has professional status. You can rely on his knowledge and integrity.

"If your home is badly damaged by fire and you must move out during its rebuilding, will your insurance pay rent elsewhere and for your family's restaurant meals?"

Ask any member of this Professional Association affiliated with State and National Associations. Find them in the Yellow Pages.

Extended One Full Week

"CARPET SNEAK" SALE!

So Many Asked For More . . .

We Just HAD TO extend this sale

Five hours last Friday night simply wasn't enough time for most people to select the exact carpet they needed . . . or to make a final decision! Hundreds asked us to extend the sale—and the customers' will is Willbanks' law.

In ADDITION to these money-saving offers from Trend Mills, Willbanks' will feature storewide reductions as much as!

What a Carpet Sneak is . . . and how to be a good one!

A Carpet Sneak is one who refuses to pay the high price of quality wool carpet, but knows how to get it anyway. Interested? Okay, if you have an ounce of sneak in you, here's how.

1. Look for your carpet fantasy. Go to magazines, stores, museums, rich friends.
2. Collect swatches, ads, estimates, mental images, until Your Carpet appears. It's the one you can see in your home when you close your eyes.
3. Show it to your husband.
4. When he says it's very nice but we can't afford it, don't argue.
5. Go to Willbanks'.
6. Show them the kind of carpet you want—no matter what brand, and say give me this in Trend.
7. Sit down before you ask the price.
8. If it makes you nervous because the Trend price is so much less than you expected, reflect on this: Trend is very smart. Our mills were not granted by King James II. They are super automated to turn out huge quantities of superb carpet. Trend styles are the same as high-priced carpet. That goes for fibers, wear, color fastness, and cleanability, too. Trend just costs less, that's all.
9. Later when someone says that's great carpet you have but certainly too rich for Harry and me, try not to look sneaky.

Science for You

By Bob Brown

PROBLEM: Jet propulsion with a skate board.

NEEDED: A skate board, a smooth floor, and an electric fan.

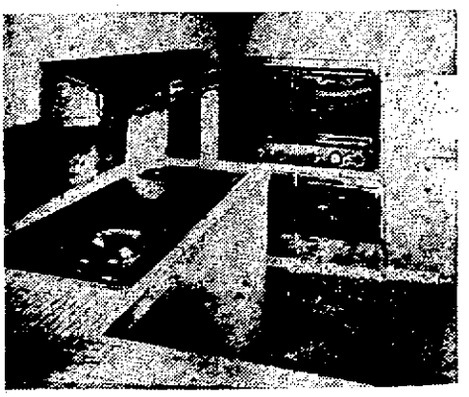

DO THIS: Place the fan on the skate board and when it is turned on, the jet action will push the skate board backward.

HERE'S WHY: Every action has an equal and opposite reaction (Newton). The whirling blades push against the air particles and this produces an equal and opposite push on the fan blades. A component of this force is used to move the fan and skate board backward on the smooth, level floor.

CAUTION: Keep fingers away from fan blades!

Two volumes of these experiments are available in book form under the titles "Science Circus" and "Science Circus No. 2." They may be found in bookstores.

Cover

Massed American Flags set in motion by the gait of matched palominos, thousands of dollars worth of silver gleaming in the early-morning sun have made Long Beach Mounted Police one of the most spectacular units in the annual Tournament of Roses Parade, photographed in full color for Southland's cover by Roger Coar. Leading the Rose Parade, a service the troupe has performed for most of its 30-year history, is only one of many events that today makes this equestrian unit one of Long Beach's favorite Ambassadors of Goodwill. But that's today. For how it was in the beginning, see Joyce Christensen's story on Page 7.

Next Week

As day fades and night takes over, day people move homeward and to the relaxation of the evening hours. That's the time when new crews move in to man the many posts that keep the city taut in the long night. They are essential, these "Night People," and Bill Hazlett, whose assignment as a newspaperman on the night police beat, tells about them in next Sunday's Southland Magazine.

Miracle Coating Eliminates House Painting

An exterior wall coating so tough and durable that it is guaranteed to totally eliminate exterior house painting for over 10 years. This remarkable textured coating is Fiberglass FLEXON.

BEST IN NATION

Homeowners are requested not to spend a single penny on painting their residences until they hear the FLEXON STORY. This remarkable material insulates, waterproofs and beautifies, and every Fiberglass FLEXON job is factory guaranteed for 10 full years against chipping, flaking or peeling.

Fiberglass, a product of Owens-Corning, brings to FLEXON its great strength, its wonderful insulating properties, its resistance to time, weather and chemical attack.

PROVEN OVER MANY YEARS

FLEXON is one of the oldest, tried and true coatings now being marketed and has been applied on thousands of homes and commercial buildings. These buildings have remained in perfect condition after more than 10 years exposure in all types of weather.

SHOT FROM A GUN

FLEXON is applied with heavy duty spray equipment and is actually "shot from a gun" without muss, fuss or odor. FLEXON fuses itself to the wall and fills holes, cracks and covers building defects.

LICENSED and INSURED

Cal-Tex Improvements, Inc., is a state licensed Building Contractor. Most of the work now being done by Cal-Tex is in the greater Long Beach & Orange County area. For a free Home Demonstration without obligation—or for your FREE brochure regarding FLEXON, call GA 3-8411. Also Long Beach Hdqtrs. for KENI-TEX and TEX-COTE.

HELEN ROSE ORIGINALS SPARK 'MADE IN PARIS'

A Fortune on the (Gorgeous) Hoof

ONE - HUNDRED - and - fifty - thousand dollars on the hoof walks back and forth on the runway of a Paris Fashion Salon. Instead of Paris, however, the French salon is in Culver City, at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios. But it could have fooled Paris-born Louis Jourdan, cast as a fashion designer, whose resemblance to a French couturier is purely intentional.

The set is the background for the fashion show sequence featuring 36 Helen Rose Originals in "Made In Paris." The new Joe Pasternak production, in Panavision and color, has glamour and extravagance.

Clad in a Helen Rose wardrobe, Edie Adams romps through romantic mix-ups in glamorous "Made in Paris."

Ann-Margret brings her beauty to set in a $100,000 Helen Rose wardrobe, with exciting living on the side.

Ann-Margret not only revolutionizes French fashions in a $100,000 Helen Rose-designed wardrobe; she shakes up Paris' Left Bank, dances to Mongo Santamaria's rhythms, shimmers to Count Basie's beat, performs a wild Apache, and sings—all the while becoming romantically involved with not one but three leading men.

Extravagance and exotic notes mark the American-produced wardrobe with a French image that is provided in a lavish setting for "Made in Paris."

WEARING a fabulous Helen Rose wardrobe, Edie Adams plays a madcap fashion buyer who romps through romantic mixups.

Jourdan, Richard Crenna and Chad Everett, cast in the leading male roles, romanticize with both girls.

Nine of the country's leading models parade in the gowns, which range from a $5,000 creation dripping in sables to silver-blue fox rompers, a Persian lamb ski suit and stunning evening gowns of deceptive simplicity. It is a complete couturier collection by Miss Rose, who scored a coup in persuading producer Pasternak to use American product to create a French-image wardrobe. But despite the extravavagance and exotic notes, the clothes are not freakish.

ACCORDING to Miss Rose. "High fashion is wonderful. Fads are for fools." The two-time Academy Award-winning designer maintains that it is the woman who comes before the dress. Which brings these models into focus: Jackie Mitchell, Pat Jones, Norma Quine, Pat Quinn, Lydia Stevens, Rosalee Calvert, Ruth Johnson, Maruja Ploss and Norma Clark.

In the studio commissary, their elegance drew plenty of attention, but it is their taste in food which resulted in pure envy. Despite their reed-like slenderness, none forgoes dessert, even to pie and ice cream!

As Rosalee Calvert observed, "I work too hard to worry about my figure. I don't have time to lie around and get lumpy."

Not many of the models were interested in becoming actresses. Norma Quine, when asked, replied, "Do I want to be an actress? No. A star? Yes."

ALL AGREED that women dress for men and that men prefer feminine clothes that are sexy. Exercise dominates their rules for keeping trim (Miss Calvert excepted). Several have trouble keeping their weight up. Wearing a figure-moulding evening formal of white crepe, Lydia Stevens, a dreamy-eyed brownette, 5 feet 9 inches, weighing a mere 116 pounds and with a sense of humor, was asked how she kept her figure.

Her answer: "In the dresser drawer."

It was Miss Stevens who puzzled director Boris Sagal. A few moments before the model appeared on the runway, Miss Rose cautioned her to hold her shoulders back to accentuate the bustline of her gown. Rehearsing backstage, Lydia seemed to to be talking to herself.

"What in the world are you muttering about"? asked Sagal.

Miss Stevens smiled. "Think big! Think big! Think big!" she said.

Our Cover

Massed American Flags set in motion by the gait of matched palominos, thousands of dollars worth of silver gleaming in the early-morning sun have made Long Beach Mounted Police one of the most spectacular units in the annual Tournament of Roses Parade, photographed in full color for Southland's cover by Roger Coar. Leading the Rose Parade, a service the troupe has performed for most of its 30-year history, is only one of many events that today makes this equestrian unit one of Long Beach's favorite Ambassadors of Goodwill. But that's today. For how it was in the beginning, see Joyce Christensen's story on Page 7.

Next Week

As day fades and night takes over, day people move homeward and to the relaxation of the evening hours. That's the time when new crews move in to man the many posts that keep the city taut in the long night. They are essential, these "Night People," and Bill Hazlett, whose assignment as a newspaperman on the night police beat, tells about them in next Sunday's Southland Magazine.

Miracle Coating Eliminates House Painting

An exterior wall coating so tough and durable that it is guaranteed to totally eliminate exterior house painting for over 10 years. This remarkable textured coating is Fiberglass FLEXON.

BEST IN NATION

Homeowners are requested not to spend a single penny on painting their residences until they hear the FLEXON STORY. This remarkable material insulates, waterproofs and beautifies, and every Fiberglass FLEXON job is factory guaranteed for 10 full years against chipping, flaking or peeling.

Fiberglass, a product of Owens-Corning, brings to FLEXON its great strength, its wonderful insulating properties, its resistance to time, weather and chemical attack.

PROVEN OVER MANY YEARS

FLEXON is one of the oldest, tried and true coatings now being marketed and has been applied on thousands of homes and commercial buildings. These buildings have remained in perfect condition after more than 10 years exposure in all types of weather.

SHOT FROM A GUN

FLEXON is applied with heavy duty spray equipment and is actually "shot from a gun" without muss, fuss or odor. FLEXON fuses itself to the wall and fills holes, cracks and covers building defects.

Araby at Indio

By Bob Maxwell

HANDSOME sheiks, harem beauties, camels, bazaars and caravansaries, Moorish buildings, date palms and elaborate date exhibits all highlight the Arabian Nights atmosphere and theme of the colorful 1966 National Date Festival scheduled for Indio, Feb. 18-27.

Here is brought to modern light the mystery and enchantment of ancient Araby. And, as in the thousand and one tales related by Queen Scheherazade, a thousand and one sights and adventures await the visitor.

The National Festival heralds the end of the season's date harvest in this rich agricultural area of the Coachella Valley. Indio is located in the heart of the only major commercial date producing area in the western hemisphere — and midway between Palm Springs and the Salton Sea, California's famed desert winter playground and resort area.

A DIVIDEND sight to people visiting the area is provided by the acres of majestic date gardens that last year produced a crop valued at almost $10 million.

Jockeys get a rough ride in camel races, a feature of the Indio Festival.

Reigning over the National Festival will be Queen Scheherazade and her court of nine princesses. Local townspeople, getting into the spirit of the occasion, come costumed as sheiks and harem beauties.

Popular special entertainment attraction is the free nightly performances of the Arabian Nights Pageant, a musical extravaganza presented with a cast of nearly 150 performers on the exposition's big outdoor Arabian stage.

THE FESTIVAL'S National Horse Show is held each afternoon in the main arena. In 1965, there were more than 3,000 entries in this event that can be viewed from the 5,000-seat stadium grandstand. Hilarious and unpredictable camel and ostrich races are exciting intermission attractions each afternoon at performances of the horse show.

A fast-paced program of professional variety and vaudeville acts will be staged free several times daily.

Shutterbugs can have a field day during the Festival. Popular with photographers is the daily "Picture Party" with the festival furnishing professional models in attractive Arabian costumes who will pose with the fascinating sets and Moorish-designed buildings about the fairgrounds. The two camels, Heba and Sheba, are also available for these photo sessions.

Opening day, Friday, Feb. 18, is "Photographer's Day." Queen Scheherazade and the nine princesses in her Court of Beauty will pose in Arabian costumes. Photographs taken this day can be entered in the "Photo Sweepstakes" contest.

A colorful street parade highlights the exposition's traditional Washington's Birthday holiday festivities.

They Keep Alive The Spirit of the Dons

By JOYCE CHRISTENSEN

Long Beach Mounted Police ride in Mexico City's Independence Day parade in 1946.

THREE DECADES of Southern California parade-goers others from as far south as Mexico City and as far east as Washington, D. C.—have thrilled to the beautifully matched horses and the precision horsemanship of the Long Beach Mounted Police.

Individually its members are prominent businessmen with a penchant for horses and an awareness of California's early history. Collectively they're a fun-loving group of horsemen who thrill to the response of their mounts, the adulation of crowds at a parade.

But today's burnished gold palominos with their snow-white manes and tails—chosen as symbol of the Golden State—and the gleaming, inestimable thousands of dollars worth of silver that adorns saddles of hand-carved black leather, have not always been trademarks of the troop.

"WE WERE A pretty hayseed lot in the beginning," reminisces 84-year-old charter member H. V. Pratt—one of 16—from his retirement home in Arlington.

"Our uniform then consisted of plain chaps, a big hat and the horse we happened to own, or could borrow. Most of them were ponies, mighty serviceable but not of parade caliber. We were usually relegated to a pretty second-rate position in parades."

Idea for the troop was born at the Los Angeles County Fair at Pomona, continued Pratt.

"Al Sherman and I were watching as the Sheriff's Posse rode in.

"Al, who really started it all, said, 'Why couldn't we get together with the boys around Long Beach who have horses and ride in parades, too? We could have a whale of a lot of fun, and we could advertise the city at the same time'."

That was a Sunday, late in 1935. On Monday, they met with then Mayor Carl Fletcher, Chief of Police Joe McClelland and the other city officials. Formation of an official parade unit for the city of Long Beach had begun.

A FEW MORE meetings, selection of a uniform, and 16 men were presented with silver star badges and sworn in as members of the Long Beach Mounted Police. Members today still serve as auxiliary to the Long Beach Police Department without pay, and are subject to call in case of emergency.

Until 1941, the city's chief of police served as president of the troop. In that year, bylaws were changed and Frank Vessels Sr. became the first president elected from the membership. The chief of police continued to serve as honorary president, as Chief William Mooney does today.

As time went on, serviceable ponies were replaced by palominos; chaps with a more appropriate official uniform; the "any western saddle" with one of carved black leather, embellished with silver.

TODAY'S OFFICIAL uniform—the one parade-goers see at the Miss International Beauty Parade each summer—consists of white hat, black gauntlet gloves, black striped pants, black gun belt, silver spurs. The shirt might be white adorned with red roses, familiar to Rose Parade-goers since the troop began leading that parade in the late 1940s; white with Long Beach Mounted Police emblem on the left sleeve; or black. Ties might be red or black. The jacket is Eisenhower-styled green, proud symbol of 1953 when the horsemen were selected to represent the state of California in inauguration festivities of President Dwight D. Eisenhower in Washington, D. C.

Members today—led by Tom Cole, president; Andy Zurick, vice president; Bill Cozart, secretary-treasurer; Fred Dean, captain; Paul Deats, Dr. Carl Bishop, Carl McNulty, Conrad Fischer and Jim Bragg, directors—ride in about one parade a month with one out-of-state trek planned each year.

As the troop moves through its 30th year with many sons riding where their fathers once rode, it is reassuring to know that though suburbia is becoming urbania, zoning restrictions make it more and more difficult to maintain horses, a hard core of men keep alive a little of the spirit of the Days of the Dons.

Troop leaders include Fred S. Dean, captain; Tom Cole, president; Conrad A. Fischer, past president

Shutterbugs can have a field day during the Festival. Popular with photographers is the daily "Picture Party" with the festival furnishing professional models in attractive Arabian costumes who will pose with the fascinating sets and Moorish-designed buildings about the fairgrounds. The two camels, Heba and Sheba, are also available for these photo sessions.

Opening day, Friday, Feb. 18, is "Photographer's Day." Queen Scheherazade and the nine princesses in her Court of Beauty will pose in Arabian costumes. Photographs taken this day can be entered in the "Photo Sweepstakes" contest.

A colorful street parade highlights the exposition's traditional Washington's Birthday holiday festivities.

Harvest Time for Whale Watching

Whale watchers aboard a boat from a Long Beach landing get a closeup of a playful whale as great numbers of migrating whales pass near the Southland coast. Below, a flip of the tail salutes the watchers as whale dives.

By JEROME HALL

IT BEGAN as a mild joke, a small piece of humor that was good for a chuckle on a dull winter's day. "Let's go whale watching," someone offered, and from such an inauspicious beginning evolved the Long Beach chapter of the Society of Whale Watchers.

Now there are hundreds, even thousands of whale watchers.

Almost daily the whale watching cruises ply the Catalina Channel in search of leviathans of the briny deep as they pass close to the Long Beach shore on their annual migration to warm water.

The Southern California coast offers the best vantage point in the world for watching whales, and thousands of persons these days are getting a ringside view of one of nature's remarkable phenomena from the heights above the Palos Verdes beach, which command an almost aerial view of the shoreline waters navigated by the huge California gray whales, a species that measures up to 50 feet in length.

THOUGH ALL large whales have extensive migrating habits, only the California grays travel so close to land. Each year, at this time, they leave arctic waters to breed and spawn in Baja California inlets and the final 600 miles of that 5,000-mile journey is made so close to shore that the whales occasionally wander into Southland harbors for a bit of, presumably, people watching.

Last month a gray whale estimated at 35 feet in length splashed in Long Beach Harbor near Pier A for several hours before heading back to the channel to continue its trip into Mexico waters.

This is harvest time for whale watching. This week the monstrous mammals will begin passing by on their return trip toward the arctic, if timetables are correct. The southward migration which began in mid-December was "the best season yet," according to fishing boat skipper Dick Shaver, who carries boatloads of sightseers from Pierpoint Landing in search of a closeup view of the mastadons of the deep.

THE UNUSUAL sight of the first whales headed north and the stragglers headed south may be the reward for whale watchers in the next few days.

The boat passengers, equipped with cameras and binoculars, seldom are disappointed. Only twice in the past three years has Shaver failed to find whales, though more often than not they are the smaller pilot whales that cavort the year 'round in this part of the Pacific. The pilot whale measures a mere 15 to 25 feet, but provides the whale watchers with a large measure of thrills by swimming close alongside the boats, often diving playfully back and forth under the passengers.

Last month a boatload of whale watchers out of San Diego got a front-row view of one of the remarkable events of nature, an attack by killer whales on the much-larger gray whales. Dr. Theodore J. Walker, an associate oceanographer at the Scripps Institute at La Jolla, was among the 93 passengers on the cruise and he termed it as only the second documented whale war on record, though scientists believe such attacks occur often in the ocean's vastness.

The previous documented whale war was more than 40 years ago.

DR. WALKER described the battle: "The grays dived and the killers leaped clear of the water after them. The next time we saw the combatants was just outside La Jolla Cove, with the grays trying to head toward the beach."

Lifeguards on shore watched, too, and credited the pursuit of the whale-watching boat with frightening off the killer whales, allowing the California grays to continue, apparently unharmed, into Mexican waters.

The annual migration from the frigid north to the breeding grounds of the Baja California coast takes nearly four months. A newborn whale of the largest species is said to grow at the rate of 10 pounds per hour, gaining one ton every nine days. The blue whales, the largest of the cetaceans, grows to be as long as 100 feet and weigh as much as nearly half a million pounds. The California grays are about half that size.

Only 20 years ago the California grays were so rare because of long years of extensive hunting for them that scientists feared they would go the way of their ancestors, the dinosaurs. In days past the whale was a valuable commodity, supporting large portions of nations' economies. In the 17th century the whalebone alone in a single large whale was worth, by today's equivalent, some $10,000.

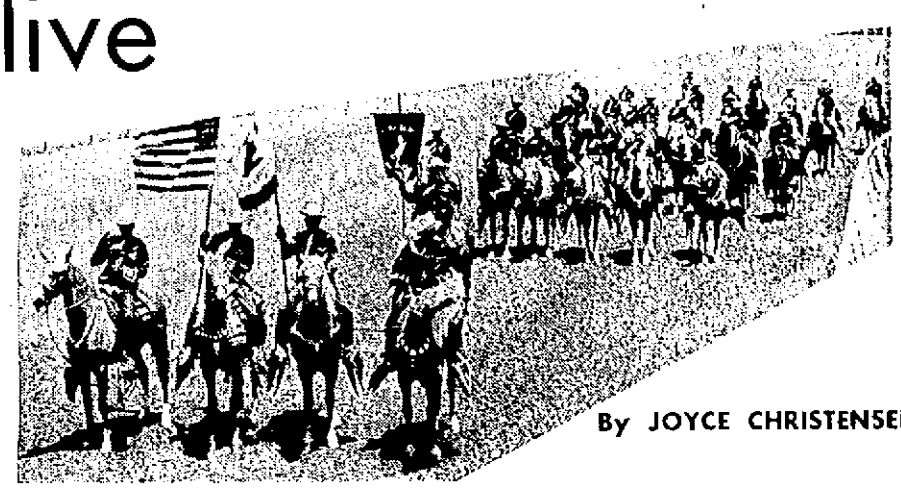

IN 1937 the International Whaling Commission declared the gray whale a protected species, forbidding any killing of them. It is estimated now that the population of California grays may be as high as 8,000.

For obvious reasons, the whale is among the major mysteries of science. Ocean scientists are expressing an increasing interest in the whale, considered to be among the most intelligent of animals.

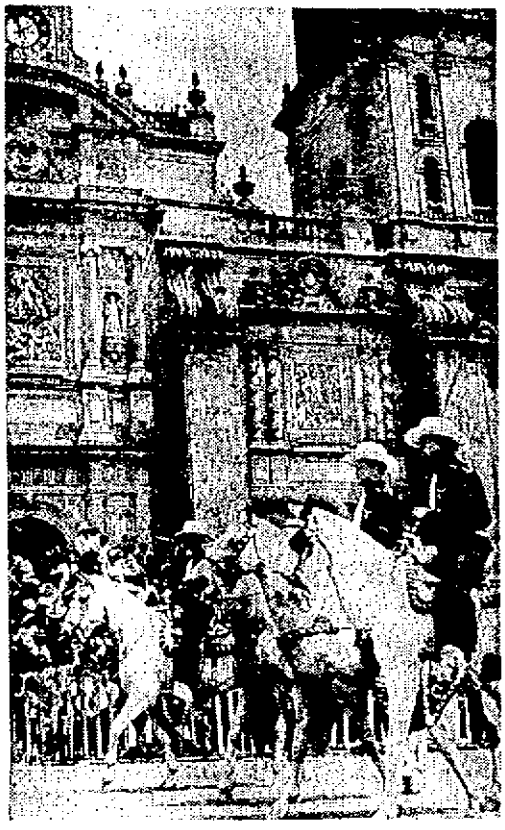

But there are no opinion polls and there is no scientific information on what the whale thinks of all those sightseers who jam themselves on a boat to get a close look at something the leviathans of the briny deep have been doing since their prehistoric decision to abandon their terrestial wanderings for a life among the fish.

History does not record, either, just who it was who said on that dull winter's day, "Let's go whale watching," but he started something that may soon develop into one of the Southland's major tourist attractions this time of the year.

They Keep Alive The Spirit of the Dons

By JOYCE CHRISTENSEN

Long Beach Mounted Police ride in Mexico City's Independence Day parade in 1946.

THREE DECADES of Southern California parade-goers—others from as far south as Mexico City and as far east as Washington, D. C.—have thrilled to the beautifully matched horses and the precision horsemanship of the Long Beach Mounted Police.

Individually its members are prominent businessmen with a penchant for horses and an awareness of California's early history. Collectively they're a fun-loving group of horsemen who thrill to the response of their mounts, the adulation of crowds at a parade.

But today's burnished gold palominos with their snow-white manes and tails—chosen as symbol of the Golden State—and the gleaming, inestimable thousands of dollars worth of silver that adorns saddles of hand-carved black leather, have not always been trademarks of the troop.

"WE WERE A pretty hayseed lot in the beginning," reminisces 84-year-old charter member H. V. Pratt—one of 16—from his retirement home in Arlington.

"Our uniform then consisted of plain chaps, a big hat and the horse we happened to own, or could borrow. Most of them were ponies, mighty serviceable but not of parade caliber. We were usually relegated to a pretty second-rate position in parades."

Idea for the troop was born at the Los Angeles County Fair at Pomona, continued Pratt.

"Al Sherman and I were watching as the Sheriff's Posse rode in.

"Al, who really started it all, said, 'Why couldn't we get together with the boys around Long Beach who have horses and ride in parades, too? We could have a whale of a lot of fun, and we could advertise the city at the same time'."

That was a Sunday, late in 1935. On Monday, they met with then Mayor Carl Fletcher, Chief of Police Joe McClelland and the other city officials. Formation of an official parade unit for the city of Long Beach had begun.

A FEW MORE meetings, selection of a uniform, and 16 men were presented with silver star badges and sworn in as members of the Long Beach Mounted Police. Members today still serve as auxiliary to the Long Beach Police Department without pay, and are subject to call in case of emergency.

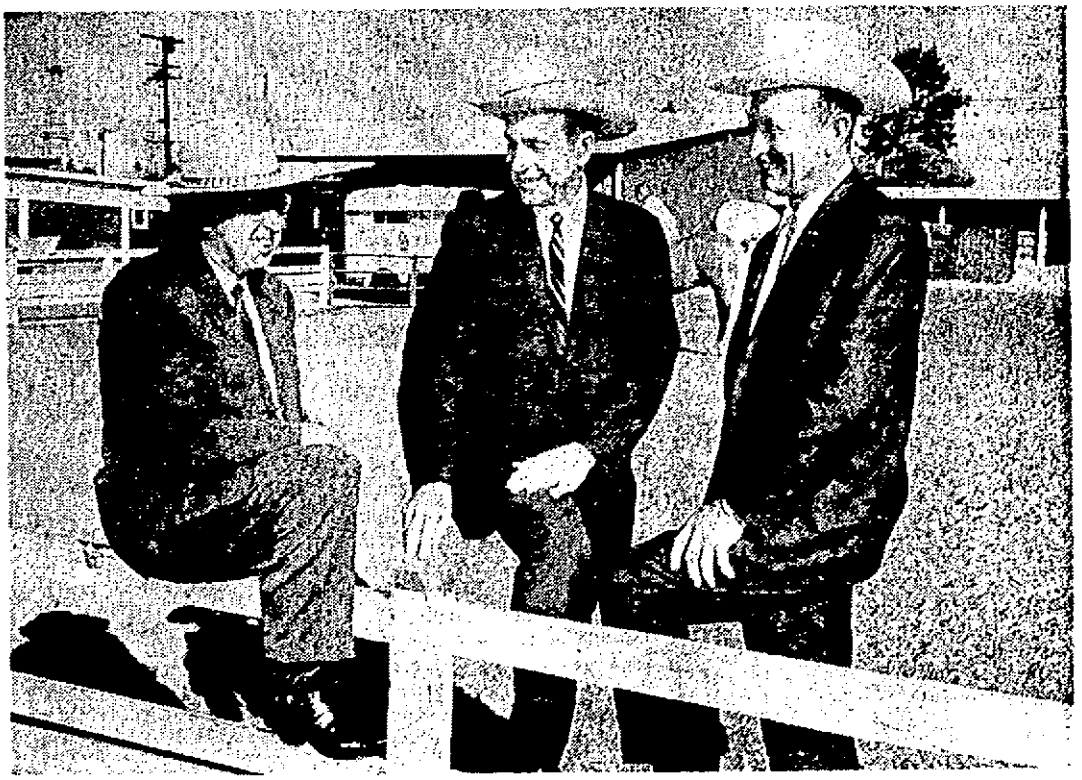

Until 1941, the city's chief of police served as president of the troop. In that year, bylaws were changed and Frank Vessels Sr. became the first president elected from the membership. The chief of police continued to serve as honorary president, as Chief William Mooney does today.

As time went on, serviceable ponies were replaced by palominos; chaps with a more appropriate official uniform; the "any western saddle" with one of carved black leather, embellished with silver.

TODAY'S OFFICIAL uniform—the one parade-goers see at the Miss International Beauty Parade each summer—consists of white hat, black gauntlet gloves, black striped pants, black gun belt, silver spurs. The shirt might be white adorned with red roses, familiar to Rose Parade-goers since the troop began leading that parade in the late 1940s; white with Long Beach Mounted Police emblem on the left sleeve; or black. Ties might be red or black. The jacket is Eisenhower-styled green, proud symbol of 1953 when the horsemen were selected to represent the state of California in inauguration festivities of President Dwight D. Eisenhower in Washington, D. C.

Members today—led by Tom Cole, president; Andy Zurick, vice president; Bill Cozart, secretary-treasurer; Fred Dean, captain; Paul Deats, Dr. Carl Bishop, Carl McNulty, Conrad Fischer and Jim Bragg, directors—ride in about one parade a month with one out-of-state trek planned each year.

As the troop moves through its 30th year with many sons riding where their fathers once rode, it is reassuring to know that though suburbia is becoming urbania, zoning restrictions make it more and more difficult to maintain horses, a hard core of men keep alive a little of the spirit of the Days of the Dons.

Troop leaders include Fred S. Dean, captain; Tom Cole, president; Conrad A. Fischer, past president

The beach that is exposed by the retreat of these minus tides presents an always intriguing scene to the stroller along the strand.

On a sunny afternoon, it's a spectacular way to go home from work—that walk along the beach.

There's always a chance that under a little hump of sand there's something interesting. This time a search, probing finger-deep, discovers a five-inch clam, its thick, hard shell clamped shut as tight—well, as a clam.

NOT MANY beachgoers know that Pismo clams inhabit many Southland beaches, and can be had with a bit of diligence and a disregard for wet feet or other regions. The reward of this day's long walk along the Long Beach surf was four clams, which isn't bad when one is hunting in one's business clothes, staying away from the creeping waves, and has none of the accepted implements for finding shellfish.

Four legal Pismos (minimum size is 4½ inches in diameter) will make a beautiful big pot of chowder. If one is lucky enough to find a limit—10 clams—he will either spread a great clam feast or can pack some of the clam meat with its juice in cartons and put it in the freezer. A limit catch will yield more than two pounds of drained meat.

But hunting telltale humps of sand, or exploring with bare feet in the shallow water, isn't the most efficient way of searching, even though barehanded kids do sometimes come up with buckets of clams, mostly illegal and probably mostly wasted.

One word of caution before anyone takes up clamming—a California fishing license costing $3, obtainable at most any sporting goods store or tackle shop, is required of all persons 16 years of age or more.

A hunter is required by law to measure his clam and, if it is under 4½ inches, return it to the hole it came from and cover it up.

BEST WAY of hunting clams is with a probe or by skin diving.

Clams inhabit areas of sand from average low tide level to a depth of 80 feet of water. In some areas there are literally millions of them, particularly at Pismo Beach, the Central California place that gave them their name. There, in a period of less than three months, more than two million clams were taken from a stretch of four miles, according to records of the State Department of Fish and Game.

Skin divers find them excellent sport in clear water. At Zuma Beach, beds have been found populated by more than 100 mature clams per foot of shoreline. They rest just below the sand, on edge, hinged side seaward, their siphons protruding into the water, pumping away. About 15 gallons of water a day goes into one pipe and out the other to feed a clam. When a skin diver sees the siphons sticking up out of the sand below his goggles, it's a simple matter to dive, excavate the Pismo and pop him into a sack.

ABOVE THE WATER line, however, the siphon won't be showing, and the best way to find the game is with a fork of several tines—an ordinary garden fork or a pitchfork will do fine. The hunter walks along the beach backward, a weather eye to the advancing wave, probing every few inches again, again and again, a few inches into the sand until—plunk! Maybe it's a clam and maybe it's a rock.

Assuming you find some legal clams before your patience is exhausted, your back muscles freeze up, or the tide turns and drives you back — what, then, does one do with his prize? There are a number of delectable choices.

Far back in the centuries, on the coast of distant Brittany, the fishermen used to toss their prizes of the sea into a "chaudiere"—cauldron—for a sort of community feast.

Some brought fish and shellfish, some vegetables, some spices and wine, and everybody shared in the pot. This historic "chaudiere" became the chowder of Newfoundland and then New England.

And although clams may be delicious fried, steamed, in fritters or spaghetti sauce —in dozens of other entrees or eaten just as they come out of the shell—there's nothing like chowder.

DOZENS OF COOKS will argue ways to improve on this recipe—some will even go so far as to recommend tomatoes or omit the milk—but here is a way to prepare chowder that won't disappoint you. (Boston once passed a law against use of tomatoes in chowder. It never should have been allowed to lapse.)

In plenty of butter, cook golden soft a bit of garlic, sliced onions, chopped celery and green onions, if you like, perhaps a hot pepper for piquancy. A little thyme and a bay leaf, maybe a touch of tabasco will add to the spirit of things. Then add the clam juice and diced potatoes. As the potatoes soften add the clams, salt, pepper and milk. It needn't cook long. Finish the job by thickening with flour, and for elegance top each serving with a little sherry wine.

Pismos are so large that the soft middle can be fried, in meal or just plain in butter, while the trimmed parts are used for chowder. The four little muscular "buttons" that hold the clam together can be used raw in cocktails.

THE PREPARING of the clam for the "chaudiere" may depend on how fussy you are. Some people like to eat them as is. The most careful way is to slice the soft part of the clam through the middle and remove the thumbnail-size dark area that is the liver, and the thin black intestine that winds through the soft area. The rest of the clam is all meat.

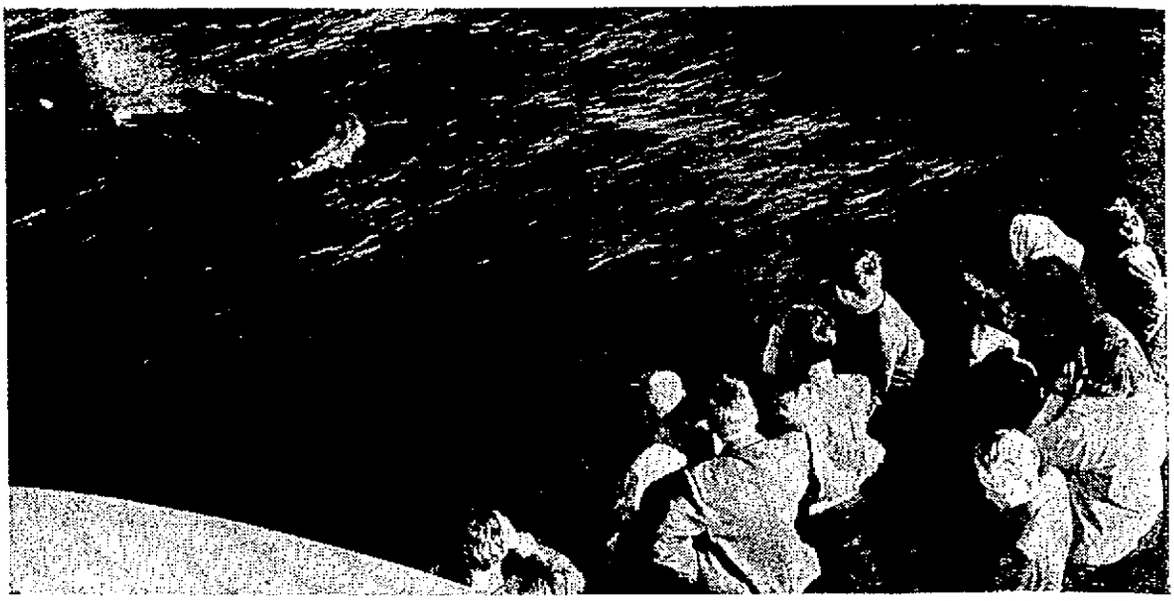

There are those who say to put clams alive in fresh water and they will clean themselves, but it isn't true. Put a clam in fresh water and it will just shut up so tight you'll have a lot of trouble with it.

Rinse the sand off and leave the clams alone in a bucket for a while. They will relax soon, and open slightly. Then pick up each one quickly and before its suspicions are aroused slip a sharp knife between the shells. Wiggle it up and down and slice one of the muscles holding the shells together. Then the clam can be opened easily, exposing the large chunk of meat that is easily trimmed out whole.

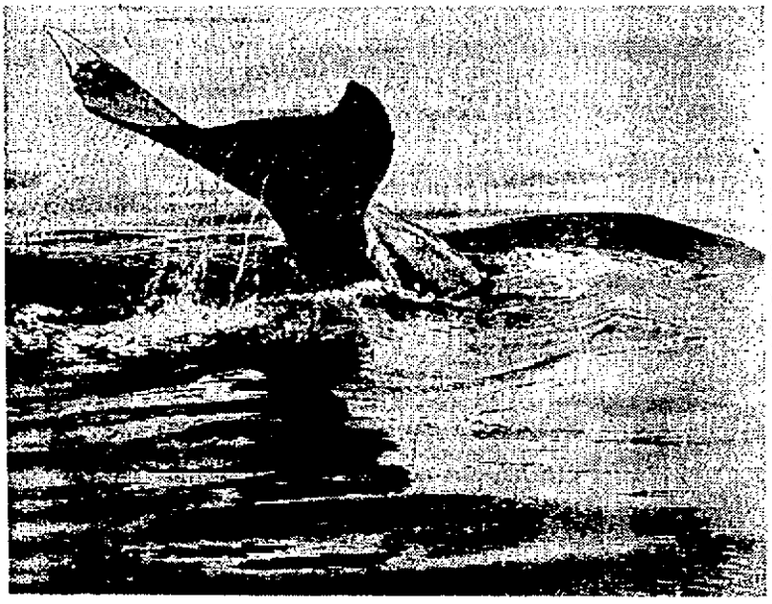

IT USED TO BE believed that a clam was bisexual, but it isn't true. There are boy clams and girl clams, which may account for their being as happy as they are. The girl clam may release as many as 15 million eggs at a sitting.

Most of them must be destroyed as free-swimming larvae in the ocean's plankton, or we'd be up to our ears in baby clams. The others develop shells and bury themselves in the sand. It takes four years for the few of them that survive pollution and predators to become legal clams.

Stuffed Ham Double

Tuck cranberry stuffing between two ham slices for twice the pleasure.

By Mildred K. Flanary
Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

WHATEVER THE occasion, a luncheon with a pink theme is certain to be a hit with the ladies, from pink invitations addressed in maroon ink to pink carnations as the centerpiece or the single blossoms as a decoration for place cards.

Double ham slices are festive for such an occasion, coming as they often do at the retailers in two half-inch slices rather than one inch-thick piece. Put them together with a stuffing to carry out the luncheon colors, cranberry, apple, bread and celery!

Smoked ham comes in many styles — bone in, boned, semi-boneless but in two main types, the "fully cooked" and the "cook-before-eating." For this recipe it does not matter which is chosen since the cooking time for thinly cut "fully cooked" or "cook-before-eating" slices would be about the same.

Double Ham Slices—Tart Stuffing

bread cubes, toasted
⅛ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ cup brown sugar
Water
2 tablespoons brown sugar
2 teaspoons cornstarch
Drain cranberry-orange relish, reserving liquid. Cook apple and celery in butter or margarine. Add drained relish, toasted bread cubes, cinnamon and ¼ cup brown sugar. Mix well. Place one ham slice on rack in open roasting pan. Spoon cranberry-bread mixture over ham slice. Top with second ham slice. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F) 45 minutes to 1 hour or until lightly browned. Add water to reserved cranberry liquid to make ⅓ cup. Combine brown sugar and cornstarch. Add to liquid. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Serve sauce over ham. 6 servings.

2 smoked ham slices cut ½-inch thick
1 package (10 ounces) frozen cranberry-orange relish, thawed
¼ cup chopped apple
¼ cup chopped celery
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
3 slices white bread, cut into cubes or 2¼ cups

Recipe of the Week

FAVORITE with a man in service in Viet Nam, the recipe submitted with the following note is this week's $5 prize winner: "Editor: My husband is in Viet Nam and these are one of his favorites which I made during the holidays for myself and our two adopted little girls. They are most delicious and if I could have mailed them in a package to my husband, for Christmas, I certainly would have."—Mrs. Roland McKinley, 6102 E. Wardlow Rd., Long Beach 90808. The recipe:

Toasted Snow Squares

1 envelope un-flavored gelatin
4 tblsp. cold water
1 cup boiling water
¾ cup granulated sugar
3 egg whites, unbeaten
¼ tsp. salt
1 tsp. vanilla extract
16 graham crackers (rolled fine)

Sprinkle gelatin over cold water and let soak for 5 minutes. Add boiling water, and stir until dissolved. Add sugar, and stir until dissolved. Let cool; then add egg whites, salt, and vanilla. Beat with rotary egg beater or an electric beater at high speed until mixture is light and resembles thick cream. Turn into a 9x9x2 pan and chill. In serving, cut pudding into 1-inch squares, and roll in the graham-cracker crumbs. Arrange in dessert glasses; top with butter sauce. If preferred. Delicious without sauce, and serves 8 to 10.

Butter Sauce

2 egg yolks
⅓ cup granulated sugar
⅓ cup melted butter or margarine
1 tblsp. grated lemon rind
2 tblsp. lemon juice
⅓ cup heavy cream, whipped

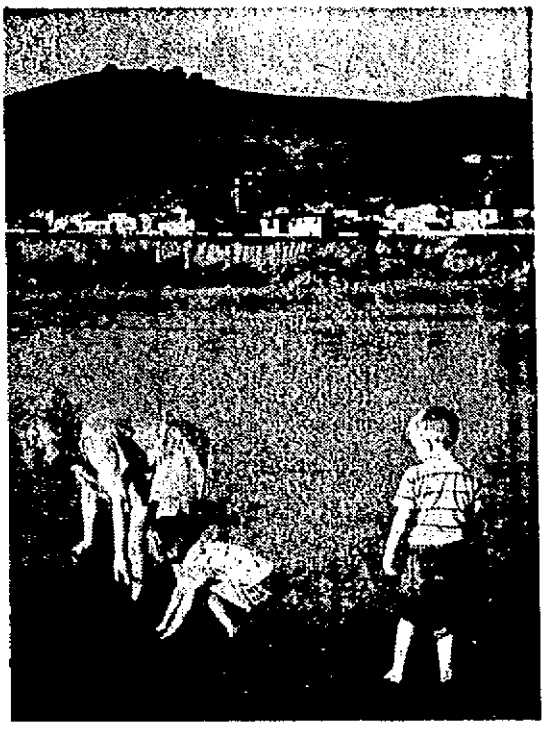

Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored. Gradually add sugar, continuing to beat. Add butter, lemon rind, and juice; blend. Fold in cream, chill.

DOZENS OF COOKS will argue ways to improve on this recipe—some will even go so far as to recommend tomatoes or omit the milk—but here is a way to prepare chowder that won't disappoint you. (Boston once passed a law against use of tomatoes in chowder. It never should have been allowed to lapse.)

In plenty of butter, cook golden soft a bit of garlic, sliced onions, chopped celery and green onions, if you like, perhaps a hot pepper for piquancy. A little thyme and a bay leaf, maybe a touch of tabasco will add to the spirit of things. Then add the clam juice and diced potatoes. As the potatoes soften add the clams, salt, pepper and milk. It needn't cook long. Finish the job by thickening with flour, and for elegance top each serving with a little sherry wine.

Pismos are so large that the soft middle can be fried, in meal or just plain in butter, while the trimmed parts are used for chowder. The four little muscular "buttons" that hold the clam together can be used raw in cocktails.

THE PREPARING of the clam for the "chaudiere" may depend on how fussy you are. Some people like to eat them as is. The most careful way is to slice the soft part of the clam through the middle and remove the thumbnail-size dark area that is the liver, and the thin black intestine that winds through the soft area. The rest of the clam is all meat.

There are those who say to put clams alive in fresh water and they will clean themselves, but it isn't true. Put a clam in fresh water and it will just shut up so tight you'll have a lot of trouble with it.

Rinse the sand off and leave the clams alone in a bucket for a while. They will relax soon, and open slightly. Then pick up each one quickly and before its suspicions are aroused slip a sharp knife between the shells. Wiggle it up and down and slice one of the muscles holding the shells together. Then the clam can be opened easily, exposing the large chunk of meat that is easily trimmed out whole.

IT USED TO BE believed that a clam was bisexual, but it isn't true. There are boy clams and girl clams, which may account for their being as happy as they are. The girl clam may release as many as 15 million eggs at a sitting.

Most of them must be destroyed as free-swimming larvae in the ocean's plankton, or we'd be up to our ears in baby clams. The others develop shells and bury themselves in the sand. It takes four years for the few of them that survive pollution and predators to become legal clams.

Stuffed Ham Double

Tuck cranberry stuffing between two ham slices for twice the pleasure.

By Mildred K. Flanary
Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

WHATEVER THE occasion, a luncheon with a pink theme is certain to be a hit with the ladies, from pink invitations addressed in maroon ink to pink carnations as the centerpiece or the single blossoms as a decoration for place cards.

Double ham slices are festive for such an occasion, coming as they often do at the retailers in two half-inch slices rather than one inch-thick piece. Put them together with a stuffing to carry out the luncheon colors, cranberry, apple, bread and celery!

Smoked ham comes in many styles — bone in, boned, semi-boneless but in two main types, the "fully cooked" and the "cook-before-eating." For this recipe it does not matter which is chosen since the cooking time for thinly cut "fully cooked" or "cook-before-eating" slices would be about the same.

bread cubes, toasted
⅛ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ cup brown sugar
Water
2 tablespoons brown sugar
2 teaspoons cornstarch
Drain cranberry-orange relish, reserving liquid. Cook apple and celery in butter or margarine. Add drained relish, toasted bread cubes, cinnamon and ¼ cup brown sugar. Mix well. Place one ham slice on rack in open roasting pan. Spoon cranberry-bread mixture over ham slice. Top with second ham slice. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F) 45 minutes to 1 hour or until lightly browned. Add water to reserved cranberry liquid to make ¾ cup. Combine brown sugar and cornstarch. Add to liquid. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Serve sauce over ham. 6 servings.

Double Ham Slices—Tart Stuffing

2 smoked ham slices cut ½-inch thick
1 package (10 ounces) frozen cranberry-orange relish, thawed
¼ cup chopped apple
¼ cup chopped celery
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
3 slices white bread, cut into cubes or 2¼ cups

Recipe of the Week

FAVORITE with a man in service in Viet Nam, the recipe submitted with the following note is this week's $5 prize winner: "Editor: My husband is in Viet Nam and these are one of his favorites which I made during the holidays for myself and our two adopted little girls. They are most delicious and if I could have mailed them in a package to my husband, for Christmas, I certainly would have."—Mrs. Roland McKinley, 6102 E. Wardlow Rd., Long Beach 90808. The recipe:

Toasted Snow Squares

1 envelope un-flavored gelatin
4 tblsp. cold water
1 cup boiling water
¾ cup granulated sugar
3 egg whites, unbeaten
¼ tsp. salt
1 tsp. vanilla extract
16 graham crackers (rolled fine)

Sprinkle gelatin over cold water and let soak for 5 minutes. Add boiling water, and stir until dissolved. Add sugar, and stir until dissolved. Let cool; then add egg whites, salt, and vanilla. Beat with rotary egg beater or an electric beater at high speed until mixture is light and resembles thick cream. Turn into a 9x9x2 pan and chill. In serving, cut pudding into 1-inch squares, and roll in the graham-cracker crumbs. Arrange in dessert glasses; top with butter sauce, if preferred. Delicious without sauce, and serves 8 to 10.

Butter Sauce

2 egg yolks
½ cup granulated sugar
⅓ cup melted butter or margarine
1 tblsp. grated lemon rind
2 tblsp. lemon juice
½ cup heavy cream, whipped

Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored. Gradually add sugar, continuing to beat. Add butter, lemon rind, and juice; blend. Fold in cream, chill.

Combination That Spells Satisfaction

By Stella George

Spaciousness of the living room in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Blenkinsop is evident in the photo above. View is toward the front entry.

Huge storage areas and a covered and private balcony are features of this upstairs bedroom, served by bath and a dressing area of ample size.

—Photos by ROBERT SKUMWAY

NO MATTER what term—condominium, apartment or house—is applied to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Blenkinsop, 224 Randolph Place, the combination it presents spells satisfaction for the occupants. It holds the most desirable features of all three named plans and is one of five units, each of which contains 2,500 square feet—2,900 if the attached garage is included. All units have peaked roofs and all television antennas are under the roof in the garages.

The basic plans for the unusual units were done by Mrs. Blenkinsop's brother, Roy Brown. Their mother lives in one apartment, and this is ideal family togetherness since strict privacy can be maintained in all apartments at all times yet close association is possible.

A reverse view (from that on opposite page) of the living room. Each unit on site has 2,500 square feet of floor space. Below, approach to the units.

THE EXTERIOR of the units is Palo Verde stone with siding and plaster. Shake roofs add their own touch of luxury. The homes are arranged around a central yard which is a putting green. A large swimming pool adjoins the lawn area. For outside entertaining there is a galley type kitchen with an electric cook top, sink, and refrigerator. Dressing rooms and restrooms for the pool are available for each home unit.

Mrs. Blenkinsop had assistance in her interior decorating from Charlotte Centoz. Gold carpeting is used in the large living room and on the stairway. A long curved sofa is done in an Oriental print. It faces a long, glass-top coffee table with gilded iron legs. Behind the sofa is an olive green table supporting a green and gold lamp. The fireplace is rich marble. Wing back occasional chairs and a TV are across the way from the sofa.

DINING ROOM chairs are done in deep blue velvet. A large electric kitchen has bar space, and like all the other units, there is a laundry in the garage. Kitchen cabinets are birch, stained walnut. Tile is white. Downstairs, to the right of the entry, is a bedroom and bath, the latter doubling as a guest powder room.

Upstairs there is an outsized den, large bedroom and bath (and dressing room), and ample storage area. A covered balcony is off the bedroom. Called by any name — house, condominium, or apartment — the Blenkinsop residence provides a highly satisfying and comfortable way of life for the happy owners.

Looking over the dining room table into kitchen (left). Cabinets are abundant and the area excels in modern design.

The Forgotten Man

By F. D. Uptain

Edward Everett's vaunted oratorical powers failed to match the appeal of Lincoln's famed address.

BACK IN THE days of Daniel Webster, Henry Clay and Stephen Douglas, there was another golden-voiced orator of equal note. Huge crowds flocked to hear him everywhere he spoke. His quotes were used, whenever a point needed to be made. Frequently his views were sufficient to sway the course of the government.

His name was Edward Everett.

Famous? — Edward Everett?

Everett had graduated from Harvard with highest honors, and returned years later to become one of its professors, then its president. He served in Congress five terms, was governor of Massachusetts four terms, and succeeded Daniel Webster as secretary of state. He was the foremost authority in his time on the life and character of George Washington. But in spite of all those accomplishments, his power of speech was so great that he became more famous for his lectures than his politics.

ONE FATEFUL DAY, Nov. 19, 1863, he was traveling across the beautiful, rolling, fertile farmland to a peaceful borough of Pennsylvania. As he rode, he scanned his written speech, hoping to get the least detail memorized, for he was not a man who read his lines when in front of an audience. His alluding to Athens was most appropriate, he decided, pleased. It was to be a most important occasion. He was tired, but because of his immense popularity and the drawing power of his name, he had been chosen to be the main speaker of the day. How could he refuse?

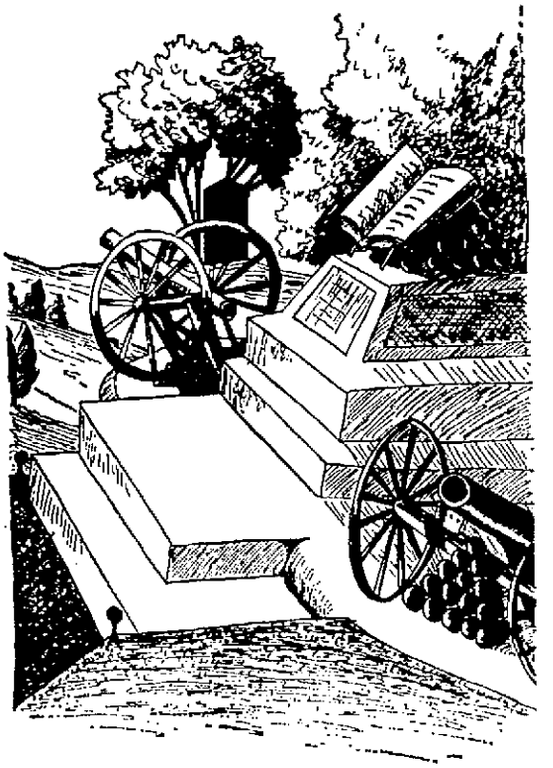

On the platform he was surrounded by famous personages, the President, his cabinet, and many renowned soldiers and civilians. He looked out over the grounds, now well-filled with horses, wagons, people. There was the huge memorial arch-way and directly in front of him on a tall pole flew the Stars and Stripes. He was deeply moved, and after the opening prayer, he rose to speak.

HIS ORATION, as expected, was wildly applauded. The people were uplifted, drained by his two-hour-long dissertation. Most in dazed glory began to leave. The rest, in enthralled numbness barely heard the next speaker who read slowly and tiredly from a written speech. Their applause was mild. Their re-actions were of mixed emotions.

But Edward Everett wrote to his follow-up orator and congratulated him, "I should be glad if I could flatter myself that I came as near the central idea of the occasion in two hours, as you did in two minutes."

And he was right!

For the speaker he wrote to was Abraham Lincoln. The two-minute speech was the famous Gettysburg Address. And Edward Everett became the forgotten man of Gettysburg.

Dressing rooms and restrooms for the pool are available for each home unit.

Mrs. Blenkinsop had assistance in her interior decorating from Charlotte Centoz. Gold carpeting is used in the large living room and on the stairway. A long curved sofa is done in an Oriental print. It faces a long, glass-top coffee table with gilded iron legs. Behind the sofa is an olive green table supporting a green and gold lamp. The fireplace is rich marble. Wing back occasional chairs and a TV are across the way from the sofa.

DINING ROOM chairs are done in deep blue velvet. A large electric kitchen has bar space, and like all the other units, there is a laundry in the garage. Kitchen cabinets are birch, stained walnut. Tile is white. Downstairs, to the right of the entry, is a bedroom and bath, the latter doubling as a guest powder room.

Upstairs there is an outsized den, large bedroom and bath (and dressing room), and ample storage area. A covered balcony is off the bedroom. Called by any name — house, condominium, or apartment — the Blenkinsop residence provides a highly satisfying and comfortable way of life for the happy owners.

Looking over the dining room table into kitchen (left). Cabinets are abundant and the area excels in modern design.

Spring's Promise

AS SPRING tip-toes in on the last footsteps of winter, it holds the promise of gentle winds, open cars, sailboat excursions . . . and fresh-air clothes.

Spring styling is on the up-beat . . . the "now" beat with ever-popular heathers reinterpreted into lightweight homespun and Orlons, snazzy looks fashioned from enamel-bright vinyl and classic sportswear in sharp young patterns.

High on the Spring fashion agenda is the look of subtly blended heathers in spring-garden colors. For the shift from the wintry to the March-hearted, Bobbie Brooks offers heather match-mates in an assortment of sweaters, skirts and blouses that go terrifically total with matching socks, hats and handbags. It's a fresh-air collection of lightweight sportswear that will carry ever so fashionably into warmer sunshine days.

In sunshine or raindrops, the junior miss will create an all-out fashion fuss in slick 'n' shiny vinyl, styled for attention in spiffy young coats. Bobbie Brooks uses this shiny fabric to add a distinctive air of intrigue to her wardrobe with a snazzy "007" vinyl raincoat, slicked white as a whistle and pepped with bright gold accents.

Inevitably, those cool spring days will turn into sand-in-your-shoes days, and the young gadabout will favor the playful look of checkered play coordinates . . . casual and comfortable, and colored cool as an ocean breeze in navy and white. Check the natty accessories—triangles, hats and clutch bags—offered in matching fabrics.

HEATHERED SPIRIT: Go-togethers with a heathered flair capture the look and spirit of spring. The classic-minded cardigan is bound in grosgrain ribbon and knitted from heathery lightweight Orlon. It's featured over a simply stated blouse, sparked with contrast smocking at the neck . . . and knee-skipping kiltie that's plaided, pleated . . . and buckled in leather. Bobbie Brooks completes the total look with matching knee-high socks.

ON DECK: On deck coordinates by Bobbie Brooks are ready for the sun and salty air. The easy-on popover top is checked on the bias and sports clean white banding, piped in navy, on cuffs, neck and pocket. The neat-fitting shipmate is a trim Bermuda walker in solid navy . . . and topping a total look, is the saucy checkered 'kerchief that reverses to a solid color. Crisp Dacron and cotton is the fabric . . . easy to care for . . . comfortable to wear.

The Forgotten Man

By F. D. Uptain

Edward Everett's vaunted oratorical powers failed to match the appeal of Lincoln's famed address.

BACK IN THE days of Daniel Webster, Henry Clay and Stephen Douglas, there was another golden-voiced orator of equal note. Huge crowds flocked to hear him everywhere he spoke. His quotes were used, whenever a point needed to be made. Frequently his views were sufficient to sway the course of the government.

His name was Edward Everett.

Famous? — Edward Everett?

Everett had graduated from Harvard with highest honors, and returned years later to become one of its professors, then its president. He served in Congress five terms, was governor of Massachusetts four terms, and succeeded Daniel Webster as secretary of state. He was the foremost authority in his time on the life and character of George Washington. But in spite of all those accomplishments, his power of speech was so great that he became more famous for his lectures than his politics.

ONE FATEFUL DAY, Nov. 19, 1863, he was traveling across the beautiful, rolling, fertile farmland to a peaceful borough of Pennsylvania. As he rode, he scanned his written speech, hoping to get the least detail memorized, for he was not a man who read his lines when in front of an audience. His alluding to Athens was most appropriate, he decided, pleased. It was to be a most important occasion. He was tired, but because of his immense popularity and the drawing power of his name, he had been chosen to be the main speaker of the day. How could he refuse?

On the platform he was surrounded by famous personages, the President, his cabinet, and many renowned soldiers and civilians. He looked out over the grounds, now well-filled with horses, wagons, people. There was the huge memorial arch-way and directly in front of him on a tall pole flew the Stars and Stripes. He was deeply moved, and after the opening prayer, he rose to speak.

HIS ORATION, as expected, was wildly applauded. The people were uplifted, drained by his two-hour-long dissertation. Most in dazed glory began to leave. The rest, in enthralled numbness barely heard the next speaker who read slowly and tiredly from a written speech. Their applause was mild. Their re-actions were of mixed emotions.

But Edward Everett wrote to his follow-up orator and congratulated him: "I should be glad if I could flatter myself that I came as near the central idea of the occasion in two hours, as you did in two minutes."

And he was right!

For the speaker he wrote to was Abraham Lincoln. The two-minute speech was the famous Gettysburg Address. And Edward Everett became the forgotten man of Gettysburg.

COIN ROUNDUP

Mark History

By Maurice M. Gould

ONE OF THE most sought-after series by American collectors are commemorative half dollars. These coins show various historical events and famous people; the subjects are depicted quite graphically.

Issued in the New England area were:

Bridgeport, Conn., 1936. This commemorative half dollar bears the head of P. T. Barnum, Bridgeport's best known citizen; this coin was struck to commemorate the hundredth anniversary of the city.

Another Connecticut half dollar was issued in 1935 to mark the 300th anniversary of the founding of the colony. The famous Charter Oak is shown on the reverse.

In 1925, the Lexington-Concord Sesquicentennial half dollar was issued to commemorate the two famous battles of the Revolution fought in 1775. The statue of a Minute Man and the old belfry at Lexington are the chief features of this coin.

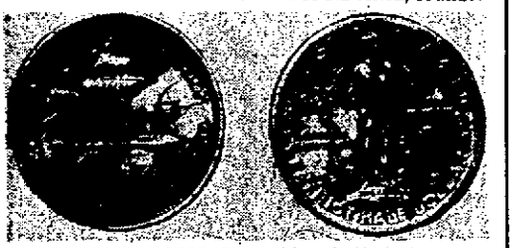

A MAINE Centennial half dollar was issued and sold for a celebration at Portland in 1920. This coin shows the arms of the State of Maine.

Another commemorative half dollar was issued that same year; called the Pilgrim Tercentennary to mark the landing of the Pilgrims in Plymouth, Mass., in 1620, the obverse bears a portrait of Gov. Bradford and the reverse shows the Mayflower.

Some additional coins of this type were struck in 1921, and differ only in the date of 1921, which shows on the obverse of the piece.

THE ONLY commemorative half dollar ever struck for Rhode Island was to note the 300th anniversary of Roger Williams' founding of Providence, and was issued in 1935. The obverse shows Roger Williams in a canoe being welcomed by an Indian. The reverse has the Anchor of Hope with shield.

A half dollar was issued to mark the 150th anniversary of the Battle of Bennington. The obverse of this 1927 coin shows the head of Ira Allen, founder Reverse of 1893 Columbian half dollar; obverse, 1925 Concord-Lexington half.

Vermont. The reverse shows a catamount on a pedestal.

But areas other than New England have their commemoratives.

The Columbia, S. C., Sesqui-centennial commorated the founding of Columbia in 1786. Approximately 8,000 sets of three pieces were issued.

THE NORFOLK, Va., Bi-Centennial was a significant reason for the 1936 commemorative half dollar being struck.

And in 1937, Roanoke Island, N. C., issued their piece to commemorate the 350th anniversary of Sir Walter Raleigh's lost colony. The reverse shows Eleanor Dare with the first white child to be born on the North American continent, Virginia Dare.

The San Diego, Calif., Pacific Exposition in 1935 was the signal for the issuance of a souvenir half dollar.

In 1925, Fort Vancouver, Wash., which was built on the Columbia River in 1825, was the reason for another striking in this historic series.

Texas came in for its share of the commemorative halves, and they were struck in varying numbers from 1934 to 1938; all marked the Texas Centennial.

WISCONSIN, in 1936, celebrated its Territorial Centennial and a commemorative half dollar was issued with the state badger displayed prominently.

And there are many more we don't have room to mention.

Canada has also issued commemorative coins, especially in the silver dollar series. The first one was the 1935 issue which marked the 25th year of the reign of King George V.

When L.A. Was a Pueblo

By Vera Williams
Southland Magazine Book Editor

DRIVING an ox team, Remi Nadeau, a chunky heavy-bearded French Canadian, emigrated from Minnesota to Los Angeles in 1861. He borrowed $600, and founded a teaming business. From 1869 to 1882 he was Southern California's leading freighter, his 100 teams of mules and wagons plying treacherous mountain roads and dusty desert trails in California, Arizona and Nevada. His biggest job was hauling 130 tons a month of silver and lead bars from Cerro Gordo, a new silver camp in the Owens River country, 200 miles to Los Angeles, and then hauling freight back again.

A century later, his great-great grandson, Remi Nadeau of Palos Verdes Estates, has written about his ancestors and many others in "CITY-MAKERS, The Story of Southern California's First Boom" (Trans-Anglo Books, $6.50). Spencer Crump is editorial director and Hank Johnston designed the volume of engrossing text and more than 100 historical photographs.

There were more cattle than people in Southern California in the 1860s and many villages aspired to become metropolis of the promising new land. "City-Makers" tells how the leaders of Los Angeles (then a sleepy pueblo of 6,000) launched a campaign which started its growth as one of the world's largest cities.

"City-Makers" tells of the men who ruled the rich Cerro Gordo and Panamint silver mines that spurred the rise of Los Angeles, and the battles between Angelenos and the Southern Pacific railroad to place and keep the city on the main transcontinental line.

It recounts the exploits of Tiburcio Vasquez, the bandit, whose horsemen terrorized Southern California and added to the region's reputation for lawlessness. It describes the shocking Chinese Massacre when maddened rioters and law-abiding citizens clashed in Los Angeles. It tells the struggle to build the Southern Pacific through rugged Tehachapi mountains — conquered through tunnels which made the iron horse loop-the-loop in order to reach Southern California.

It tells about Robert Widney, the judge who built Los Angeles' streetcar line and promoted land sales to settlers; John G. Downey, Irish immigrant who arrived with so little money that he walked the last 20 miles into Los Angeles, and then became a major landowner and governor of California; Joseph U. Crawford, who began constructing a railroad through the rugged Cajon Pass to compete with the Southern Pacific; Mortimer W. Belshaw, whose Cerro Gordo silver bonanza helped build Los Angeles.

Or particular interest is Nadeau's story of how Phineas Banning built Los Angeles harbor from the mudflats at Wilmington and constructed a railroad to link the wharves with Los Angeles, 20 miles inland—and thus made the City of the Angels a seaport.

This book belongs in the library of every person who loves California.

MICHAEL MEYER has completed his fifth volume of Ibsen translations, "GHOSTS AND THREE OTHER PLAYS: A Doll's House, An Enemy of the People, Rosmersholm" (Doubleday paperback Anchor Original, $1.45).

DR. JOHN E. Eichenlaub maintains that "functional age" need not correspond to "chronological age" in "A DOCTOR'S SECRETS OF YOUTH, HEALTH AND LONG LIFE" (Prentice-Hall, $4.95). He dispenses rejuvenating advice such as how to eat for energy and not weight, how to make anti-wrinkle cosmetics from ordinary household ingredients, how to remove flabbiness and bulges. He discloses a six-second breathing trick which he says erases an inch from waist and hip measurements.

WHATEVER a reader's taste, he or she is likely to find what he wants in "POEMS THAT LIVE FOREVER" selected by Hazel Felleman (Doubleday, $4.95), a welcome addition to any library. The poems are divided under sub-titles: stories and ballads, love, friendship, home and family, humor and whimsey, the ages of man, faith and inspiration, seasons, dawn and dusk and those that can't otherwise be classified are gathered in familiar and varied themes.

IT'S SATISFYING when an important man is rescued from obscurity. Philip Ziegler does this in his biography "ADDINGTON" (Day, $8.75) Henry Addington was speaker of the British House of Commons from the outbreak of the French revolution (1789) to 1801; he was home secretary from 1812 to 1821. In bringing Addington into focus, the author also throws light on better-remembered figures—Pitt, Canning, Liverpool, Castlereagh.

ROSA GUY, born in Trinidad, reared in Harlem and founder of the Harlem Writers Guild, has written a powerful first novel in "BIRD AT MY WINDOW" (Lippincott, $4.95) about Wade Williams, a Harlem man whose life is directed against the forces that created him. Quite by accident, Wade finds out as a child that he is brilliant. The reader is held with compassion and terror as Wade approaches the tragic fulfillment of his life.

IT IS INEVITABLE that Victor Jones be compared to J. D. Salinger. His "THE ALBUM" (Stuart, $4) is a sprightly yarn about Alexander Smart, a Britisher who feels that the world owes him a living. The reader follows him through childhood, art school, prison, the army and German occupation. High points: Smart is put in a cell with a mad, meat-cleaving fanatic; he is surrounded by the German army which is trying to surrender.

"TWICE TWENTY-TWO" (Doubleday, $4.95) is a re-publication, as two books in one, of Ray Bradbury's short story collections, "The Golden Apples of the Sun" and "A Medicine for Melancholy." In all, there are 44 stories.

There is nothing like a brightly flowered plant to liven up the living room on a dull winter day. The choice at this time of the year is exceptional, according to the California Association of Nurserymen.

Thanks to the growers of potted chrysanthemums, you can buy a plant in perfect flower any day of the year.

La Reina Rule

What Your Name Means

Send you name to La Reina Rule in care of the Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90801, for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

MISS RULE: Please give brief data on McCLURE.—T.M., Paramount; J.M., Long Beach.

McCLURE ancestry is usually Scottish. This clan were allied to the MacLeods. McClure is from the Gaelic "Mac-Gilla-Cabaire," or "sons of the adherent of the tatler." Progeny were awarded a coat-of-arms having three red roses on a silver shield. McClure is also a rare Irish name, formerly Mac-Giolla-Uidir, deciphered as "sons of the pale youth," a clan from Armagh. David McClure of Scotland was among early Dauphin County, Pa., settlers prior to 1724.

MISS RULE: Would you analyze BERGERON.—M.B., Lakewood.

BERGERON represents one of the oldest pastoral occupations, the raising of sheep. This French surname means "little shepherd." The usage of Bergeron in France was paralleled in Germany by the surname Shafer, and with Shepherd in Britain. The Bergeron armorial shield from Toulouse, France, is red, decorated with a golden chevron between three silver crosses.

MISS RULE: Kindly give data on BLACKBURN.—S.P., Compton; B.L., Lomita.

BLACKBURN ancestors took their name from their home village of Blackburn in Lancashire, England. "Black-burn," a locality term, meant "dark brook." Lancashire records of 1593 list Edward Blackbourne. When L.A. Was a Pueblo

By Vera Williams
Southland Magazine Book Editor

DRIVING an ox team, Remi Nadeau, a chunky heavy-bearded French Canadian, emigrated from Minnesota to Los Angeles in 1861. He borrowed $600, and founded a teaming business. From 1869 to 1882 he was Southern California's leading freighter, his 100 teams of mules and wagons plying treacherous mountain roads and dusty desert trails in California, Arizona and Nevada. His biggest job was hauling 130 tons a month of silver and lead bars from Cerro Gordo, a new silver camp in the Owens River country, 200 miles to Los Angeles, and then hauling freight back again.

A century later, his great-great grandson, Remi Nadeau of Palos Verdes Estates, has written about his ancestors and many others in "CITY-MAKERS, The Story of Southern California's First Boom" (Trans-Anglo Books, $6.50). Spencer Crump is editorial director and Hank Johnston designed the volume of engrossing text and more than 100 historical photographs.

There were more cattle than people in Southern California in the 1860s and many villages aspired to become metropolis of the promising new land. "City-Makers" tells how the leaders of Los Angeles (then a sleepy pueblo of 6,000) launched a campaign which started its growth as one of the world's largest cities.

"City-Makers" tells of the men who ruled the rich Cerro Gordo and Panamint silver mines that spurred the rise of Los Angeles, and the battles between Angelenos and the Southern Pacific railroad to place and keep the city on the main transcontinental line.

It recounts the exploits of Tiburcio Vasquez, the bandit whose horsemen terrorized Southern California and added to the region's reputation for lawlessness. It describes the shocking Chinese Massacre when maddened rioters and law-abiding citizens clashed in Los Angeles. It tells the struggle to build the Southern Pacific through rugged Tehachapi mountains — conquered through tunnels which made the iron horse loop-the-loop in order to reach Southern California.

It tells about Robert Widney, the judge who built Los Angeles' streetcar line and promoted land sales to settlers; John G. Downey, Irish immigrant who arrived with so little money that he walked the last 20 miles into Los Angeles, and then became a major landowner and governor of California; Joseph U. Crawford, who began constructing a railroad through the rugged Cajon Pass to compete with the Southern Pacific; Mortimer W. Belshaw, whose Cerro Gordo silver bonanza helped build Los Angeles.

Or particular interest is Nadeau's story of how Phineas Banning built Los Angeles harbor from the mudflats at Wilmington and constructed a railroad to link the wharves with Los Angeles, 20 miles inland—and thus made the City of the Angels a seaport.

This book belongs in the library of every person who loves California.

MICHAEL MEYER has completed his fifth volume of Ibsen translations, "GHOSTS AND THREE OTHER PLAYS: A Doll's House, An Enemy of the People, Rosmersholm" (Doubleday paperback Anchor Original, $1.45).

DR. JOHN E. Eichenlaub maintains that "functional age" need not correspond to "chronological age" in "A DOCTOR'S SECRETS OF YOUTH, HEALTH AND LONG LIFE" (Prentice-Hall, $4.95). He dispenses rejuvenating advice such as how to eat for energy and not weight, how to make anti-wrinkle cosmetics from ordinary household ingredients, how to remove flabbiness and bulges. He discloses a six-second breathing trick which he says erases an inch from waist and hip measurements.

WHATEVER a reader's taste, he or she is likely to find what he wants in "POEMS THAT LIVE FOREVER" selected by Hazel Felleman (Doubleday, $4.95), a welcome addition to any library. The poems are divided under sub-titles: stories and ballads, love, friendship, home and family, humor and whimsey, the ages of man, faith and inspiration, seasons, dawn and dusk and those that can't otherwise be classified are gathered in familiar and varied themes.

IT'S SATISFYING when an important man is rescued from obscurity. Philip Ziegler does this in his biography "ADDINGTON" (Day, $8.75) Henry Addington was speaker of the British House of Commons from the outbreak of the French revolution (1789) to 1801; he was home secretary from 1812 to 1821. In bringing Addington into focus, the author also throws light on better-remembered figures—Pitt, Canning, Liverpool, Castlereagh.

ROSA GUY, born in Trinidad, reared in Harlem and founder of the Harlem Writers Guild, has written a powerful first novel in "BIRD AT MY WINDOW" (Lippincott, $4.95) about Wade Williams, a Harlem man whose life is directed against the forces that created him. Quite by accident, Wade finds out as a child that he is brilliant. The reader is held with compassion and terror as Wade approaches the tragic fulfillment of his life.

IT IS INEVITABLE that Victor Jones be compared to J. D. Salinger. His "THE ALBUM" (Stuart, $4) is a sprightly yarn about Alexander Smart, a Britisher who feels that the world owes him a living. The reader follows him through childhood, art school, prison, the army and German occupation. High points: Smart is put in a cell with a mad, meat-cleaving fanatic; he is surrounded by the German army which is trying to surrender.

"TWICE TWENTY-TWO" (Doubleday, $4.95) is a re-publication, as two books in one, of Ray Bradbury's short story collections, "The Golden Apples of the Sun" and "A Medicine for Melancholy." In all, there are 44 stories.

Smoker-Drivers Accident Prone?

By Ben Zinser

Scuthland Magazine Medical-Science Writer

MOTORISTS who are smokers have four times as many traffic accidents as do nonsmoking drivers, a new study shows.

Why this is so is not clear, but the main reason appears to be distraction.

Dr. James L. Malfetti, director of Columbia University's safety education project, says that smoke may get into the motorist's eyes to impair his vision. Attempting to light up while steering "is an invitation to disaster," says Dr. Malfetti.

PROLONGED use of the quieting drug, glutethimide, can sometimes cause a condition which mimics signs of myasthenia gravis.

Reported in the Journal of the Louisiana Medical Society is the case of the 29-year-old woman who had had episodes of double vision for seven months. At first it was thought she had myasthenia gravis, a chronic disease marked by weakness of muscles. Later, the trouble was traced to use of the drug. Double vision no longer occurred when the drug was discontinued.

A LARGE collaborative study shows that intrauterine devices for contraception are acceptable in up to 75% of women receiving them.

Furthermore, the devices protect more than 97% of wearers against pregnancy, the study discloses.

Forty-three researchers submitted data on four types of inside-the-womb devices: large spiral, large loop, large bow and stainless-steel ring.

The report, in the journal GP, is that of the Medical Committee on Planned Parenthood.

A NEW STUDY has again shown an association between two common types of heart diseases and soft water.

The link is between softness of municipal water supply and hypertensive and arteriosclerotic heart disease. These types involve high blood pressure and artery-hardening.

Death rates from these diseases were highest where the water was soft, says a report in the AMA Journal.

Reasons for the link are not clear.

COMPUTERS show a high degree of efficiency in evaluating heart-wave tracings (electrocardiograms), Washington, D. C., researchers report.

The degree of effectiveness is comparable to that of a physician, investigators say.

Computer diagnosis takes no longer than five seconds.

An electrocardiogram helps the physician to diagnose heart disease. The tracing indicates whether the heart is beating properly and whether a once-damaged heart is healing or has healed.

A NEW BLOOD preservative, called CPD for short, enables blood banks to store blood one week longer than ordinarily possible. Addition of CPD makes it possible to store blood safely for at least 28 days. Whole blood usually is treated with the preservative ACD and can be stored for only 21 days in this instance.

A NEW STUDY has challenged the widespread belief that colicky babies tend to have tense, anxious mothers.

Dr. Jack L. Paradise of Bellaire, Ohio, says physicians should make known this finding to mothers. Otherwise mothers may blame themselves for a colicky baby and become more frustrated and anxious. The report is in Pediatric Herald.

Education in Market Boxes

By Ruth C. Ikerman

WHAT I learn from the boxes in which my favorite market packs my groceries is far more fascinating than what I ever picked up in any course in college. Just this week my bread and meat and fruit came home in a box which had contained originally "Parakeet conditioner."

Until the moment I began to unpack my groceries it had never occurred to me that a parakeet might have to be put in condition. Humans, yes, but parakeets no. I thought they were in condition to sing and add their pleasant companionship to the world. It baffled me all through the chores of getting dinner as I wandered into parakeet world and discovered that it has its own problems of survival.

THEN THERE was the night I brought home some cans of tomato juice and fruit juice and bland pear juice for a special diet, only to discover that the box had originally contained some champagne bottles. My little cans of vegetable and fruit beverages had traveled home under false pretenses and in different company than they started out with at the factory.

Then there are the boxes which begin with the big word "Try" and then the rest of the slogan has been cut off as the special wrapper has been removed, or something has been splashed over the ink in transit. It worries me no end to think about what it is I should be trying when the using of it might change my life for the better, if I just knew what to try.

SOMETIMES I grow quite attached to the boxes in which my flour and sugar arrive, for they contain such wonderful recipes. If I don't get time to try the special raisin cookies while the box is with me, I may have to save it when empty, as the designers do change the outside printing to give the housewife something new.

Such change resulted in my losing the best angel food cake recipe I ever had. It had never occurred to me to copy it off in a notebook, for I have become quite used to being educated by the wonderful textbook of the housewife, the box in which kitchen products come into the home.

MISS RULE: Please give brief data on McCLURE. — T.M., Paramount; J.M., Long Beach.

McCLURE ancestry is usually Scottish. This clan were allied to the MacLeods. McClure is from the Gaelic "Mac-Gilla-Cabaire," or "sons of the adherent of the tattler." Progeny were awarded a coat-of-arms having three red roses on a silver shield. McClure is also a rare Irish name, formerly Mac-Giolla-Uidir, deciphered as "sons of the pale youth," a clan from Armagh. David McClure of Scotland was among early Dauphin County, Pa., settlers prior to 1724.

MISS RULE: Would you analyze BERGERON.—M.B., Lakewood.

BERGERON represents one of the oldest pastoral occupations, the raising of sheep. This French surname means "little shepherd." The usage of Bergeron in France was paralleled in Germany by the surname Shafer, and with Shepherd in Britain. The Bergeron armorial shield from Toulouse, France, is red, decorated with a golden chevron between three silver crosses.

MISS RULE: Kindly give data on BLACKBURN. — S.P., Compton; B.L., Lomita.

BLACKBURN ancestors took their name from their home village of Blackburn in Lancashire, England. "Black-burn," a locality term, meant "dark brook." Lancashire records of 1593 list Edward Blackbourne. The family shield is silver, emblazoned with a black cross-stripe between two black stars. Marriage records of York County, Pa., list the wedding of Alexander Blackburn in 1775.

Q. What playwright said, "Satire is what closes on Saturday night"?—C.F.

A. The late George S. Kaufman (1889-1961).

Q. How did Alfred Nobel make the money which he left for the Nobel Prizes?—I.L.

A. He was a noted chemist; with his father, he established a factory in which nitroglycerin was manufactured on a commercial scale for the first time in history. The factory was destroyed by an explosion which killed his brother Oscar and crippled his father. Alfred Nobel later discovered and manufactured dynamite. He and his brothers Ludwig and Robert operated petroleum wells in Russia.

Q. Does the great realist photographer Paul Strand live in the United States? F. L.

A. Strand, an American, has made his home at Orgeval, in the French countryside near Paris, since 1950. From this base in France, he has made many photographic journeys, which are reflected in his picture books. He is said to be one of the most influential American photographers of the last half century.

Q. Do female canaries ever sing?—A.H.

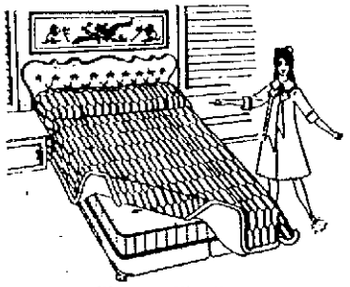

A. Female canaries which try to sing usually produce only a jerky, disconnected song. Occasionally one possesses a clear, full song. Some years ago an experiment was reported in which five females were injected with human male sex hormone, and were soon singing in exactly the same way as male canaries. About five weeks after the injection, the hormone had worn off and only the typical female chirp was heard.

Castle for a Cat

Puss can have a "personal" hideaway catering to a desire to climb in this easy-to-do castle.

By Steve Ellingson

CATS ARE haughty, independent, solitary and smart—and, by nature, they are high climbers. But many cats penned up in city apartments, or homes, don't get an opportunity to vent their urge to climb. So, we designed a castle to be inhabited exclusively by the cat fraternity. It's pictured here with Syn Cat, the Siamese star of Walt Disney's movie "That Darned Cat" and one of his friends.

This is a castle that may be used indoors, much like a bird cage, or outdoors like a bird house. Indoors it's mounted high on a pedestal. An easily climbed spiral stairway ascends to the underside and entry is made through a hole in the floor. Whenever the cat gets the urge to be high perched, and survey the world with that inscrutable look, then he will find that the "cat walk" around the castle is the ideal vantage point. When he gets frolicsome, he can scamper madly up and down the spiral stairway . . . an ideal way to burn up his surplus energy.

AFTER TWO or three meals in the castle, the cat learns that it's his and from then on makes very good use of it. There is a question in my mind about who is amused the most . . . the cat watching people or people watching the cat. In either case, it's hilarious. Cats, I'm sure, have a great sense of humor and love to show off.

The whimsical appearance of the castle makes it decorative as well as entertaining and it may be used in any room in the home. It's both fun and inexpensive to build. Any inexperienced amateur can undertake it with confidence when he uses the full size pattern. You need only trace the pattern parts on wood, then saw them out and put them together. The pattern includes lots of illustrations to show where each part goes.

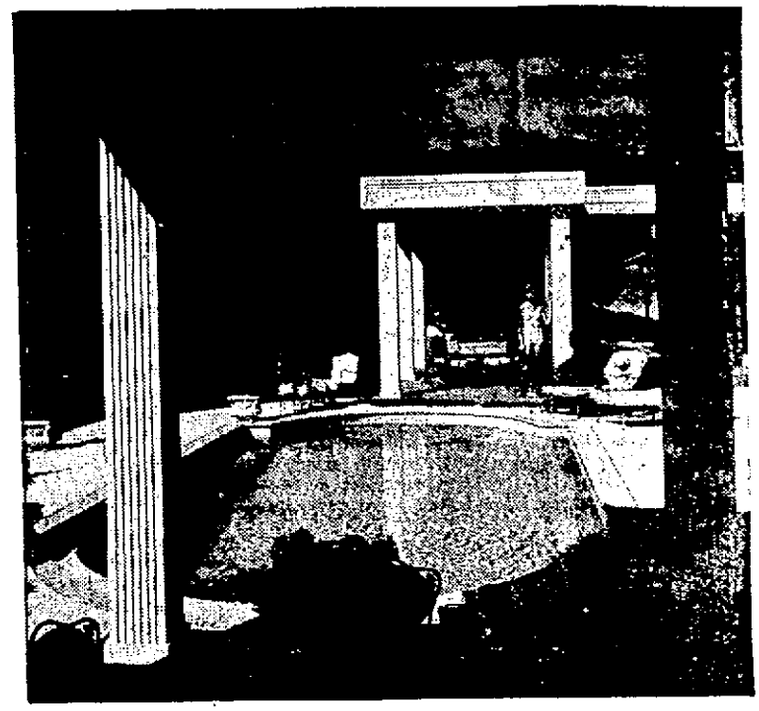

To obtain the full size cat castle pattern number 388, send $1 in currency, check or money order to Steve Ellingson, Southland Magazine Pattern Dept., Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif. 91409.

Bulbs in Pots

All bulbs grow well in pots. Plant several in a pot. In planting, start off with a layer of gravel, cover it lightly with soil and sprinkle in some bonemeal. Then comes another layer of soil and then the bulbs. The most important cultural step lies in guaranteeing the potted bulbs a cool growing spot. Coolness insures adequate root development before top growth starts and this in turn insures taller, more robust plants and blooms. Darkness, too, helps to restrict top growth until the roots are well along.

A gallon can will hold three large daffodils or a half dozen smaller bulbs like Grape Hyacinth. You can crowd them without worrying. When the bulbs are in place, fill the pot to within a half inch of the top and soak it. Don't move the bluhs into a light or sunny spot until the first sign of growth. Then bring them out to let the tops harden off.

Whichever bulbs you plant outdoors, always follow the time honored cultural practice of sprinkling some bonemeal under them. Place a light layer of soil over the bonemeal and put in the bulb—it should not be in direct contact with the bonemeal.

Anthony builds more pools than the next fifteen single pool builders combined!

WHY ANTHONY?

We believe that much of the overwhelming preference for Anthony results from the recommendation of satisfied pool owners. Here are some of the reasons:

DEPENDABLE ACCESSORIES. At our 15 acre facility we manufacture our own top-quality line of pool parts and accessories. Our reputation for the dependability of our filters, heaters, water purifier, and pool cleaner—plus the assurance of service on all equipment from one source—is one of the big reasons many people recommend Anthony Pools.

FINANCIAL BACK-UP. The warranties of a builder or manufacturer depend on his ability to back them up. Ask any builder for his financial statement. Here is Anthony's current financial back-up: Cash, $1,265,567; Total net worth, $3,050,832.

IT'S EASY TO JOIN THE POOL OWNER SET. On ten-year financing, a complete pool can be yours for very low monthly payments. For example, a loan balance of $2000 runs only $26.67 a month. Is it any wonder so many young families are adding an Anthony pool to their way of life?

*Per most recent building permits reported by independent reporting service. Anthony also built more pools than all franchised pool builders combined.

Q. What playwright said, "Satire is what closes on Saturday night"?—C.F.

A. The late George S. Kaufman (1889-1961).

Q. How did Alfred Nobel make the money which he left for the Nobel Prizes?—I.L.

A. He was a noted chemist; with his father, he established a factory in which nitroglycerin was manufactured on a commercial scale for the first time in history. The factory was destroyed by an explosion which killed his brother Oscar and crippled his father. Alfred Nobel later discovered and manufactured dynamite. He and his brothers Ludwig and Robert operated petroleum wells in Russia.

Q. Does the great realist photographer Paul Strand live in the United States? F. L.

A. Strand, an American, has made his home at Orgeval, in the French countryside near Paris, since 1950. From this base in France, he has made many photographic journeys, which are reflected in his picture books. He is said to be one of the most influential American photographers of the last half century.

Q. Do female canaries ever sing?—A.H.

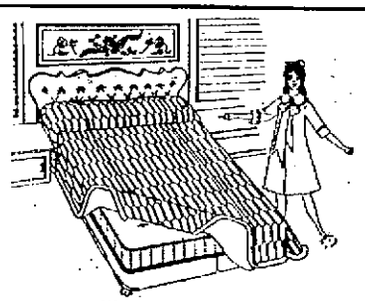

A. Female canaries which try to sing usually produce only a jerky, disconnected song. Occasionally one possesses a clear, full song. Some years ago an experiment was reported in which five females were injected with human male sex hormone, and were soon singing in exactly the same way as male canaries. About five weeks after the injection, the hormone had worn off and only the typical female chirp was heard.

Sledders to 'Mush'

By Eleanor A. Price

CALIFORNIA Sled Dog Club will have its annual Sled Dog Derby next Saturday and Sunday at Fawnskin on the north shore of Big Bear Lake. All dog owners interested in dog sledding may participate for a small fee. Dogs must not have been exposed to or just recovered from an infectious disease within a 30-day period prior to the race. Dogs unfit for this kind of activity will be disqualified, also any physical abuse of a dog or unnatural stimulation will disqualify.

Dogs need not be purebred. However, most will be. Alaskan Malamutes, Samoyeds and Siberian huskies will participate.

THE EVENT starts early. Saturday's schedule: long distance race, 8:30 a.m.; weight pulling, 10:30 a.m.; junior race (kids ages 13 through 17), 1 p.m.; women's race, 2 p.m.; children's race (ages 6 through 12), 3 p.m. On Sunday, a long distance race starts at 8:30 a.m.; lead dog contest, 10:30 a.m.; weight pulling, 11:30 a.m.; auction race, 1 p.m.; two-team relay, 2 p.m.; scavenger race, 3 p.m.

From the rugged North come tales and records of the sport of sledding that are unequalled for excitement, speed and endurance. Sled dog racing may go back almost to the beginning of man's existence. But the first organized and recorded race was held in Nome, Alaska, in 1908 under the direction of Albert Fink and the Nome Kennel Club.

This first race was one of pomp and ceremony, with a holiday spirit in the cold air at the "time of the midnight sun." As many businesses as possible closed, bugling heralds announced the queen of the event and her maidens in their deep-rugged sled, and crowds pushed jovially as bets were taken. Such an enthusiastic beginning for a sport just naturally became a tradition, and one that spread to many parts of the world.

PROBABLY the best known race now, and the most competitive, is the World Championship Race in Anchorage during the "Anchorage Fur Rendezvous," a time when trappers go to this city to auction off fur pelts they have obtained during the winter. It is a tough course 25 miles long over all sorts of terrain. For three consecutive days, the drivers and dogs must cover the same route.

Another California Sled Dog Club race will be held at Wrightwood on March 5-6 with the same daily schedule as the one at Fawnskin. Snow conditions are not required at either event.

AMONG ENTRIES of tortoise shell and calico cats in Continental Cat Club's show today at Orange County Fairgrounds Agricultural Building, Costa Mesa, is Royal Merit Quadruple and Sextuple champion, Pamina of Cherubins, owned by Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Foster of Tustin.

Siberian husky puppies, owned by S-K-Mo Kennels, are bred to enjoy sled racing activity.

Castle for a Cat

Puss can have a "personal" hideaway catering to a desire to climb in this easy-to-do castle.

By Steve Ellingson

CATS ARE haughty, independent, solitary and smart—and, by nature, they are high climbers. But many cats penned up in city apartments, or homes, don't get an opportunity to vent their urge to climb. So, we designed a castle to be inhabited exclusively by the cat fraternity. It's pictured here with Syn Cat, the Siamese star of Walt Disney's movie "That Darned Cat" and one of his friends.

This is a castle that may be used indoors, much like a bird cage, or outdoors like a bird house. Indoors it's mounted high on a pedestal. An easily climbed spiral stairway ascends to the underside and entry is made through a hole in the floor. Whenever the cat gets the urge to be high perched, and survey the world with that inscrutable look, then he will find that the "cat walk" around the castle is the ideal vantage point. When he gets frolicsome, he can scamper madly up and down the spiral stairway . . . an ideal way to burn up his surplus energy.

AFTER TWO or three meals in the castle, the cat learns that it's his and from then on makes very good use of it. There is a question in my mind about who is amused the most . . . the cat watching people or people watching the cat. In either case, it's hilarious. Cats, I'm sure, have a great sense of humor and love to show off.

The whimsical appearance of the castle makes it decorative as well as entertaining and it may be used in any room in the home. It's both fun and inexpensive to build. Any inexperienced amateur can undertake it with confidence when he uses the full size pattern. You need only trace the pattern parts on wood, then saw them out and put them together. The pattern includes lots of illustrations to show where each part goes.

To obtain the full size cat castle pattern number 388, send $1 in currency, check or money order to Steve Ellingson, Southland Magazine Pattern Dept., Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif. 91409.

ANTIQUES

Aristocrat of Needlecraft

Needlepoint circa 1857 exemplifies a hobby-craft that dates back to days of antiquity.

By Helen L. Gillum

NEEDLEPOINT provides extra interest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Comstock of 13321 Fairfield Lane, No. 182 L, Leisure World, and practically all of the items done by Mrs. Comstock. The Comstocks also treasure two examples of needlework made decades ago.

One of these, a 21x25-inch portrait of George Washington, from his time, although faded and worn, still clearly shows the features of the first president. While the picture is mounted on a wooden frame, the fabric has so deteriorated with age that searching for a signature or date is not possible because of damage that might result. However, both Mrs. John F. Kennedy and the Metropolitan Museum of Art have expressed an interest in acquiring the piece, and Mrs. Comstock agrees that the picture would be better off restored and placed in a museum.

THE OTHER needlepoint article, in much better condition is displayed in a glass-covered frame on the living room wall. This embroidery sample is unusual because it is worked on paper, rather than the conventional canvas, silk or linen backing. The cornucopia and flower design retains the original colors, and the date and signature, "E. Maria Pulver, 1857," are still visible in one corner of the 17x18-inch picture.

The basic stitch of needlepoint is considered to be the simplest of all embroidery stitches, but from this one little slanting stitch some of the most beautiful and artistic designs and color combinations in all needlework have resulted. Women were fascinated with its technique from before the days of Queen Elizabeth the First, and it is said that Howard Carter even found a bit of it in an ancient Egyptian tomb. Chinese women did needlepoint of tiny, meticulous silk stitches on silken fabrics centuries ago, and it has not been unusual for men down through history to while away time on this engrossing hobby-craft.

THE VARIETY of articles, both decorative and utilitarian, that made use of needlepoint in years past included fire-screen panels, cushions, chair and bench seats, wall hangings and tapestries, bed curtains, bell-pulls, table covers, rugs waistcoats, petticoats, and carefully-worded proverbs.

PROBABLY the best known race now, and the most competitive, is the World Championship Race in Anchorage during the "Anchorage Fur Rendezvous," a time when trappers go to this city to auction off fur pelts they have obtained during the winter. It is a tough course 25 miles long over all sorts of terrain. For three consecutive days, the drivers and dogs must cover the same route.

Another California Sled Dog Club race will be held at Wrightwood on March 5-6 with the same daily schedule as the one at Fawnskin. Snow conditions are not required at either event.

AMONG ENTRIES of tortoise shell and calico cats in Continental Cat Club's show today at Orange County Fairgrounds Agricultural Building, Costa Mesa, is Royal Merit Quadruple and Sextuple champion, Pamina of Cherubins, owned by Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Foster of Tustin.

Siberian husky puppies, owned by S-K-Mo Kennels, are bred to enjoy sled racing activity.

Bounty in Scrip

By Bob and Jan Young

WHEN Congress gave Thomas Valentine permission to pick and choose 13,316 acres in April 1872, few legislators foresaw that the so-caled Valentine scrip would be used nearly a century later.

In a land deal recently completed, a California power company, Pacific Gas & Electric Corp., sold scrip covering 127 acres for $125 per acre, which concerns some islands located in Michigan.

How and why did Valentine receive such a bounty?

In the early days of the Republic, the United States, to satisfy certain obligations, issued several different kinds of certificates or scrip entitling its legal owner to select a designated amount of acreage in the public domain. The only restriction placed on these scrips was that the land was unoccupied and unappropriated for other purposes, and that mineral rights did not go with the title.

WHILE MOST of the golden fleece seekers headed for the California hills, Thomas Valentine thought he saw a fortune in trading in real estate after he arrived in 1851. Valentine was primarily a printer, but he found time to acquire some California land including the Rancho Arroyo de San Antonio, a 13,316-acre site in Sonoma County, title of which had not been confirmed at that time.

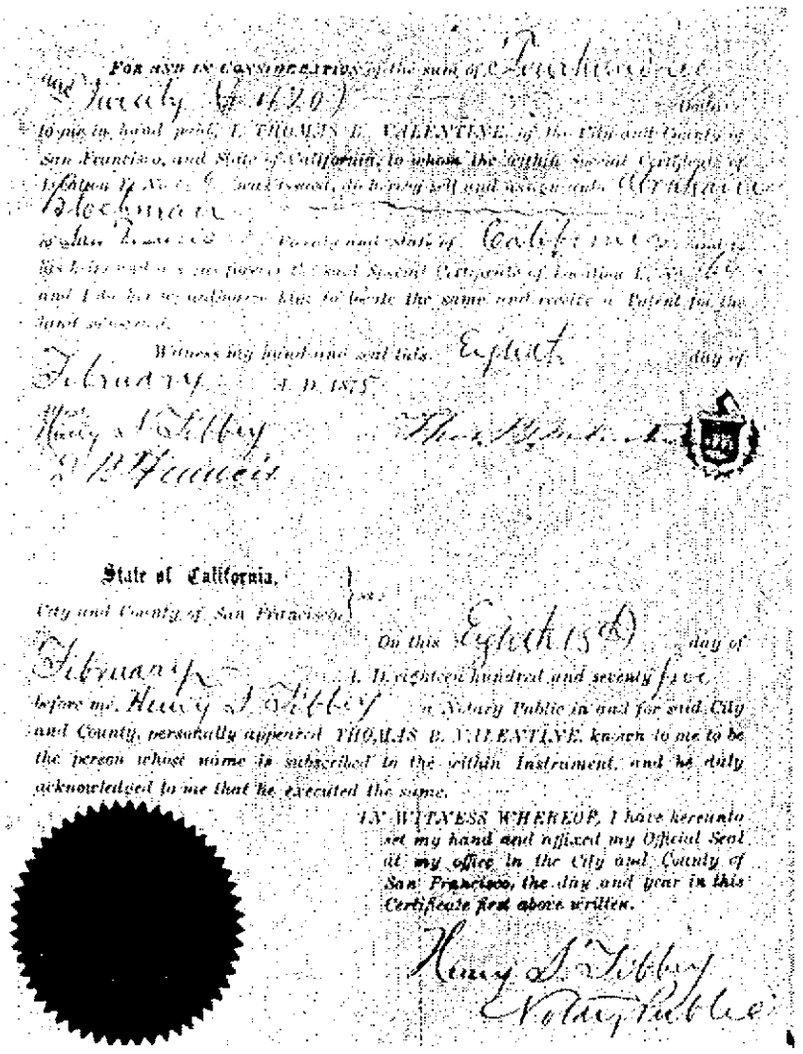

For favors received, Mexican Governor Manuel Michelteorena had given Juan Miranda the three-square-league rancho on Oct. 8, 1844. Miranda made Rancho Arroyo his home, but traded it to Valentine for scrip.

After the War with Mexico, the United States set up a land commission to clear titles of newly acquired land based on private grants made during the Mexican and Spanish periods of California. The Miranda land claim was rejected and the rancho therefore became a part of public lands to be sold with the funds going into the U.S. Treasury.

VALENTINE took up the fight at that point and about 20 years later got Congress to pass an "Act for the Relief of Thomas B. Valentine," which entitled him to land the size of the rancho he had lost. Valentine used some of the certificates himself and sold the rest. Speculators boosted the price of the scrip and in some land booms the certificates brought $1,000 per acre. But perhaps the biggest find of all was when a Californian inspected some old survey maps and saw that a small rock island near the famed Catalina Island was still in public domain. He filed on it and received full title to the guano-crusted rock pile for about $150.

But he had the last laugh. A promotional outfit offered $50,000 for that patented 1.3 acres — which he turned down.

Since 1956, scrip of all varieties, and there were several others issued by the Government, has to be registered with the Bureau of Land Management. And since there isn't much public land left that's worth anything, the famed Valentine scrip is worth about as much as a collector's item as its value in land.

Valentine land scrip was part of a congressional move of nearly a century ago. It was hardly foreseen that it would be used in modern times.

Tips on Gardening

Garden tips for the week . . . for a long season of gladiolus, keep planting the corms every two weeks. Give them any good garden soil in a sunny spot away from large tree roots. Bulbs should be planted 4-6 inches deep and at least 3-4 inches apart. A little bulb food at planting time pays off in larger blooms. When adding to your gladiolus collection, be sure to look for the fine new varieties available this year. They range from tall spikes (some over 6 feet tall) to tiny miniature glads.

You can brighten the January scene with blooming florists' cyclamen set into the ground in pots. The exceptionally large flowers in white or shades of pink or rose play the same role in the winter-spring garden that tuberous begonias do in the summer, putting on a spectacular show when placed near ferns, Japanese maples, rhododendrons or azaleas. They like a rich, acid soil.

Keep on with bareroot planting whenever weather permits. Fine roses, shade trees, flower fruit trees and shrubs are available in economical bareroot form and this is the best way to give them a good start.

If your roses are dormant, prune them now. Clean up fallen leaves and debris around them.

If your ivy needs cutting back, do it now. Don't be afraid to prune heavily. It will burst into strong new growth next month.

Give peach trees the first of two spraytngs now. Finish dormant pruning of deciduous trees, but don't prune spring flowering trees or shrubs until after they bloom. Continue with garden cleanup.

ANTIQUES

Needlepoint circa 1857 exemplifies a hobby-craft that dates back to days of antiquity.

By Helen L. Gillum

NEEDLEPOINT provides extra interest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Comstock of 13321 Fairfield Lane, No. 182 L, Leisure World, and practically all of the items done by Mrs. Comstock. The Comstocks also treasure two examples of needlework made decades ago.

One of these, a 21x25-inch portrait of George Washington, from his time, although faded and worn, still clearly shows the features of the first president. While the picture is mounted on a wooden frame, the fabric has so deteriorated with age that searching for a signature or date is not possible because of damage that might result. However, both Mrs. John F. Kennedy and the Metropolitan Museum of Art have expressed an interest in acquiring the piece, and Mrs. Comstock agrees that the picture would be better off restored and placed in a museum.

THE OTHER needlepoint article, in much better condition is displayed in a glass-covered frame on the living room wall. This embroidery sample is unusual because it is worked on paper, rather than the conventional canvas, silk or linen backing. The cornucopia and flower design retains the original colors, and the date and signature, "E. Maria Pulver, 1857," are still visible in one corner of the 17x18-inch picture.

The basic stitch of needlepoint is considered to be the simplest of all embroidery stitches, but from this one little slanting stitch some of the most beautiful and artistic designs and color combinations in all needlework have resulted. Women were fascinated with its technique from before the days of Queen Elizabeth the First, and it is said that Howard Carter even found a bit of it in an ancient Egyptian tomb. Chinese women did needlepoint of tiny, meticulous silk stitches on silken fabrics centuries ago, and it has not been unusual for men down through history to while away time on this engrossing hobby-craft.

THE VARIETY of articles, both decorative and utilitarian, that made use of needlepoint in years past included fire-screen panels, cushions, chair and bench seats, wall hangings and tapestries, bed curtains, bell-pulls, table covers, rugs waistcoats, petticoats, and carefully-worded proverbs.

Primroses for Spring Color

Primula malacoides, the annual Fairy Primrose, is fast to grow, quick to bloom in the garden.

By Joe Littlefield

ALL of us don't, or can't always set out certain bedding plants at the beginning of a specific planting season due to various reasons. Primroses are a family of shade loving plants we usually start planting in the fall season for spring blooms.

Yet, it is not too late to set out primroses for spring color. One of the fastest growing and quickest to blossom is Primula malacoides, the annual fairy primrose.

This primrose emigrated from China, and has been warmly welcomed in some other parts of the world too. The genus name Primula is a diminutive for primus (first) in allusion to the early spring blooms. The name—malacoides — means mucilaginous, due no doubt to the smooth, slippery feel of the underside of the foliage.

The leafless foot or taller flower stalks comprise whorls of round heads of pink, rose, white, or lilac color dainty blossoms, in tiers.

PLANT SOME in between and in front of camellias, fuchsias, azaleas, massed in a group for more color, or even an occasional plant tucked here and there in the shady garden.

There are other colorful primroses too, such as primula obconica and the perennial type English primroses. Check up on these plants at your local nursery and get some to brighten up those shady spots. Plant some in pots to decorate the patio or porch area, too.

Don't depend upon the fairy primroses to provide the only annual or spring flood of color in your garden. Buy some primula obconicas that are lower growers than the malacoides type, also some English primroses that are perennial blooms and flower later.

But, while you are planting those primroses, be sure to give your fuchsias the pruning they need if you desire shapely blooming plants.

THE CALIFORNIA National Fuchsia Society Board has published a pamphlet on care of fuchsias that is comprehensively helpful and which we're quoting:

"GENERAL: No other plant will repay your efforts as much as this easy to grow plant . . . Fuchsia.

"TYPES: There are five structural types: Bush, pot, basket, tree and espalier.

"LOCATION: Fuchsias are shade loving, but are not confined completely to full shade areas. They will take morning sun but not full sun, except directly on the coast. Inland, they will do best with morning sun, i.e., east or north side of building or in a lath house. Protect fuchsias at all times from excessive winds.

"SOIL: The soil should be on the acid side. A good mixture is two parts sandy top soil, one part oak leaf mold, and one part peat moss or any commercially prepared shade plant mix.

"PINCHING AND PRUNING: To make fuchsias branch, pinch off the tip end of each branch when it becomes five inches long. This will help out the structure and make it more bushy, particularly the basket and wall pocket types. Do not prune fuchsias until the danger of frost is over for your location, because new growth is susceptible to frost. When you trim, new growth will start in about two weeks. Prune to create frame work for the way the fuchsia was trained.

"WATERING: The ground should be kept moist at all times, but not soggy wet. The frequency of watering will depend on the weather in your location. Frequent spraying of foliage is desirable. Baskets may have to be watered daily depending on the weather, size of plant and location.

"PESTS: White fly, mealy bug, thrips, aphids, and red spider are the worst. Pests that attack fuchsias are visible except thrip which are difficult to locate. This may be identified by the new leaves getting shiny and have a tendency to crinkle. There are several good sprays available.

"FERTILIZING: Use a good liquid fertilizer that is high in organic nitrogen for pots and baskets. After new growth appears to be well started (two or three weeks after first feeding) apply liquid fertilizer about every thirty days until fall.

"CARE OF NEWLY PLANTED FUCHSIAS: Young fuchsia plants need only to be tip pinched, not pruned the first year. They should be staked when needed, or trained for form wanted. Do not fertilize newly planted fuchsias until they have started to grow in their new location; two weeks to a month following planting is suggested."

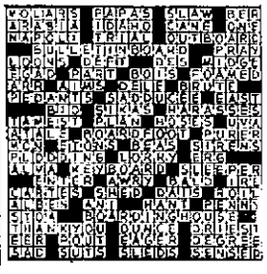

Pansy Blend

AMONG All-America Selections for 1966 in the floral division is Giant Majestic Mixed Pansy, product of a carefully blended formula mixture of many separate F1 hybrid colors or varieties, including the White with Blotch. This formula provides a well-balanced color mixture, all new giant varieties with striking blotches, never before offered. With the same vigorous plants, free blooming even to hot weather, those who desire striking assorted colors and largest flowers on sturdiest plants will delight in Giant Majestic Mixed. Start seeds of pansies early and set out plants as early in spring as soil can be worked in cold areas. They are usually hardy through more southern winters. See the varied and happiest floral expressions in pansy faces. They practically talk you into it, these "Miss Americas."

Garden Clubs

Spring garden problems will be discussed and slide of a trip to New Zealand will be presented by Joe Littlefield, garden consultant, at a meeting of Long Beach Fuchsia Society at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Machist Hall, 728 Elm Ave. A plant table is planned. Anyone interested is invited.

tonic - Italian hero name "Lando-Franco," portraying forever the forefather as a "land-owning free man." The Lanfranco armorial shield granted at medieval Venice is red, emblazoned with a silver, double-headed eagle.

MISS RULE: Would like to learn about HOLGUIN.—J.C., Long Beach.

HOLGUIN is an old French surname that evolved from a Teutonic warrior title used many centuries ago. Holguin began as "Holdwin" meaning "gracious, benevolent friend and protector." Holguin may also have a Spanish background, meaning "sons of the merry-maker."

MISS RULE: Please analyze LUNDGREN. — O.I., G.L., Long Beach.

LUNDGREN is one of the Swedish nature descriptive surnames adopted in the past 200 years to replace the profusion of names such as Peterson and Anderson, and to make for diversification. Lund-Gren deciphers simply as "tree - branch in the grove."

MISS RULE: Please give genealogy on BARTLETT.—E.H., Long Beach; D.B., Huntington Beach.

BARTLETT, originally "Bartle-ett," was an ancient French baptismal name taken from the Biblical "Bartholomew" meaning "son of the furrows; a farmer." Bartlett referred to "young Bartholomew." The picturesque Bartlett shield is black, decorated with three silver falconer's gloves, symbolizing the medeival sport of falconry.

Primroses for Spring Color

Primula malacoides, the annual Fairy Primrose, is fast to grow, quick to bloom in the garden.

By Joe Littlefield

ALL of us don't, or can't always set out certain bedding plants at the beginning of a specific planting season due to various reasons. Primroses are a family of shade loving plants we usually start planting in the fall season for spring blooms.

Yet, it is not too late to set out primroses for spring color. One of the fastest growing and quickest to blossom is Primula malacoides, the annual fairy primrose.

This primrose emigrated from China, and has been warmly welcomed in some other parts of the world too. The genus name Primula is a diminutive for primus (first) in allusion to the early spring blooms. The name—malacoides — means mucilaginous, due no doubt to the smooth, slippery feel of the underside of the foliage.

The leafless foot or taller flower stalks comprise whorls of round heads of pink, rose, white, or lilac color dainty blossoms, in tiers.

PLANT SOME in between and in front of camellias, fuchsias, azaleas, massed in a group for more color, or even an occasional plant tucked here and there in the shady garden.

There are other colorful primroses too, such as primula obconica and the perennial type English primroses. Check up on these plants at your local nursery and get some to brighten up those shady spots. Plant some in pots to decorate the patio or porch area, too.

Don't depend upon the fairy primroses to provide the only annual or spring flood of color in your garden. Buy some primula obconicas that are lower growers than the malacoides type, also some English primroses that are perennial blooms and flower later.

But, while you are planting those primroses, be sure to give your fuchsias the pruning they need if you desire shapely blooming plants.

THE CALIFORNIA National Fuchsia Society Board has published a pamphlet on care of fuchsias that is comprehensively helpful and which we're quoting:

"GENERAL: No other plant will repay your efforts as much as this easy to grow plant . . . Fuchsia.

"TYPES: There are five structural types: Bush, pot, basket, tree and espalier.

"LOCATION: Fuchsias are shade loving, but are not confined completely to full shade areas. They will take morning sun but not full sun, except directly on the coast. Inland, they will do best with morning sun, i.e., east or north side of building or in a lath house. Protect fuchsias at all times from excessive winds.

"SOIL: The soil should be on the acid side. A good mixture is two parts sandy top soil, one part oak leaf mold, and one part peat moss or any commercially prepared shade plant mix.

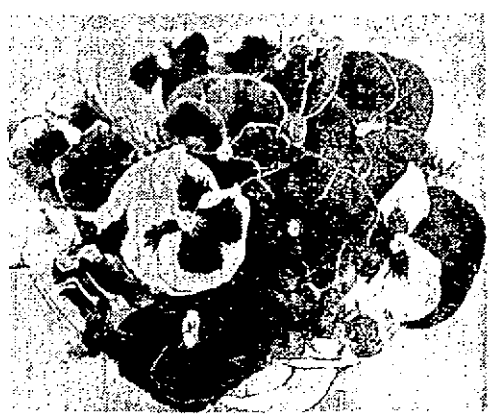

"PINCHING AND PRUNING: To make fuchsias branch, pinch off the tip end of each branch when it becomes five inches long. This will help out the structure and make it more bushy, particularly the basket and wall pocket types. Do not prune fuchsias until the danger of frost is over for your location, because new growth is susceptible to frost. When you trim, new growth will start in about two weeks. Prune to create frame work for the way the fuchsia was trained.

"WATERING: The ground should be kept moist at all times, but not soggy wet. The frequency of watering will depend on the weather in your location. Frequent spraying of foliage is desirable. Baskets may have to be watered daily depending on the weather, size of plant and location.

"PESTS: White fly, mealy bug, thrips, aphids, and red spider are the worst. Pests that attack fuchsias are visible except thrip which are difficult to locate. This may be identified by the new leaves getting shiny and have a tendency to crinkle. There are several good sprays available.

"FERTILIZING: Use a good liquid fertilizer that is high in organic nitrogen for pots and baskets. After new growth appears to be well started (two or three weeks after first feeding) apply liquid fertilizer about every thirty days until fall.

"CARE OF NEWLY PLANTED FUCHSIAS: Young fuchsia plants need only to be tip pinched, not pruned the first year. They should be staked when needed, or trained for form wanted. Do not fertilize newly planted fuchsias until they have started to grow in their new location; two weeks to a month following planting is suggested."

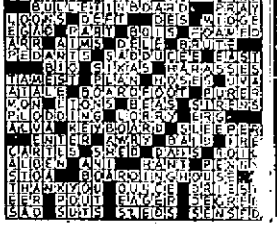

Pansy Blend

AMONG All-America Selections for 1966 in the floral division is Giant Majestic Mixed Pansy, product of a carefully blended formula mixture of many separate F1 hybrid colors or varieties, including the White with Blotch. This formula provides a well-balanced color mixture, all new giant varieties with striking blotches, never before offered. With the same vigorous plants, free blooming even to hot weather, those who desire striking assorted colors and largest flowers on sturdiest plants will delight in Giant Majestic Mixed. Start seeds of pansies early and set out plants as early in spring as soil can be worked in cold areas. They are usually hardy through more southern winters. See the varied and happiest floral expressions in pansy faces. They practically talk you into it, these "Miss Americas."

Garden Clubs

Spring garden problems will be discussed and slide of a trip to New Zealand will be presented by Joe Littlefield, garden consultant, at a meeting of Long Beach Fuchsia Society at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Machist Hall, 728 Elm Ave. A plant table is planned. Anyone interested is invited.

THE TINKLE of bells—soft and appealing—causes heads to turn in the beautiful dining room at the Wayfarer Restaurant, 2230 Pacific Coast Hwy., Lomita.

Guests searching for bells discover instead that the sound is being produced by a smiling man strolling about gently striking two sparkling wine glasses together. The man is host Jimmy Richmond and he plays the wine glass serenade whenever he serves a red, white or pink vintage at his superlative establishment.

Jimmy, who formerly owned restaurants in Long Beach, is a restaurateur's restaurateur — meaning (1) he has the experience and knowledge necessary for running a top dining house and (2) he looks the part. He is a charming, jovial host who has a small mustache and the courtly manners of a continental gentleman. His restaurant attracts guests from throughout the greater Los Angeles area because of the quality of its French-Italian-American cuisine, its decor, reasonable prices and impeccable service.

The restaurant, which has seating for 225, features table d'hote dinners priced from $3, including hors d'oeuvres, wonderful soup, mixed green salad, beverage and dessert. Among the entrees: chicken Jerusalem, $3.50; eastern scallops, $3; stuffed muchrooms, $3.25; frog legs sauteed with almonds, $4, plus such delights as beef Stroganoff, choice steaks and lobster. One of the most popular delicacies is Francois Special, $4.95, consisting of a half order of grenadine beef and a half order of veal frito picatta, served with rich bordelaise and bearnaise sauces, plus unique green Italian noodles.

tonic - Italian hero name "Lando-Franco," portraying forever the forefather as a "land-owning free man." The Lanfranco armorial shield granted at medieval Venice is red, emblazoned with a silver, double-headed eagle.

MISS RULE: Would like to learn about HOLGUIN.—J.C., Long Beach.

HOLGUIN is an old French surname that evolved from a Teutonic warrior title used many centuries ago. Holguin began as "Holdwin" meaning "gracious, benevolent friend and protector." Holguin may also have a Spanish background, meaning "sons of the merry-maker."

MISS RULE: Please analyze LUNDGREN. — O.L., G.L., Long Beach.

LUNDGREN is one of the Swedish nature descriptive surnames adopted in the past 200 years to replace the profusion of names such as Peterson and Anderson, and to make for diversification. Lund-Gren deciphers simply as "tree - branch in the grove."

MISS RULE: Please give genealogy on BARTLETT.—E.H., Long Beach; D.B., Huntington Beach.

BARTLETT, originally "Bartle-ett," was an ancient French baptismal name taken from the Biblical "Bartholomew" meaning "son of the furrows; a farmer." Bartlett referred to "young Bartholomew." The picturesque Bartlett shield is black, decorated with three silver falconer's gloves, symbolizing the medeival sport of falconry.

MISS RULE: Would like data on SISK.—M.M., H.S., Long Beach.

SISCK, from ancient "east" Germany, developed from the Wendish - Slavic word "Syck" meaning "harvester or reaper."

OPENING AT BELLFLOWER

THE TINKLE of bells—soft and appealing—causes heads to turn in the beautiful dining room at the Wayfarer Restaurant, 2230 Pacific Coast Hwy., Lomita.

Guests searching for bells discover instead that the sound is being produced by a smiling man strolling about gently striking two sparkling wine glasses together. The man is host Jimmy Richmond and he plays the wine glass serenade whenever he serves a red, white or pink vintage at his superlative establishment.

Jimmy, who formerly owned restaurants in Long Beach, is a restaurateur's restaurateur—meaning (1) he has the experience and knowledge necessary for running a top dining house and (2) he looks the part. He is a charming, jovial host who has a small mustache and the courtly manners of a continental gentleman. His restaurant attracts guests from throughout the greater Los Angeles area because of the quality of its French-Italian-American cuisine, its decor, reasonable prices and impeccable service.

The restaurant, which has seating for 225, features table d'hote dinners priced from $3, including hors d'oeuvres, wonderful soup, mixed green salad, beverage and dessert. Among the entrees: chicken Jerusalem, $3.50; eastern scallops, $3; stuffed muchrooms, $3.25; frog legs sauteed with almonds, $4, plus such delights as beef Stroganoff, choice steaks and lobster. One of the most popular delicacies is Francois Special, $4.95, consisting of a half order of grenadine beef and a half order of veal frito picatta, served with rich bordelaise and bearnaise sauces, plus unique green Italian noodles.

Closed Tuesdays, the Wayfarer serves luncheon and dinner daily. Sunday dniners are offered from 4 to 11 p.m.

SUNDAY TREAT—Because of its fashionable atmosphere, top professional service and exceptional cuisine prepared by versatile chefs, King Arthur's Steak House, 5511 E. Spring St., near Bellflower Blvd., has taken its rightful place as one of the Long Beach area's most popular restaurants. Featured daily and Sunday are juicy top sirloin and New York cut steaks, succulent prime rib au jus, Australian lobster tail, other sea foods and fried chicken, priced from $2.75 to $4.75. Included are soup du jour, outstanding salad, oversize baked potato, garlic toast and rolls.

Personality Parade

Want the facts? Want to spike rumors? Want to learn the truth about prominent personalities? Write Walter Scott, Parade, 733 Third Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017. Your full name will be used unless otherwise requested. Volume of mail received makes personal replies impossible.

Q. Can you give a report on the health of actress Pat Neal who underwent brain surgery last year?—D. L. Melmic, Portland, Ore.

A. Pat Neal has regained her power of speech, is still crippled in one leg, suffers periodically from lapses of memory, will probably be unable to renew her acting career, at least in the near future.

Q. I would like to know why Burt Lancaster's 18-year-old son, William, married Kippy Kovacs, 16-year-old daughter of the late Ernie Kovacs, twice.—Nella Knox, Hays, Kan.

A. The young couple eloped to Tijuana, Mexico, on June 18, 1965, and were married there. Because of doubt about the legality of the Mexican wedding, they were married six months later in Los Angeles.

Q. What experience in military strategy did Robert McNamara have before he was appointed Secretary of Defense?—Abner Crabbe, Nuevo, Calif.

A. None. Defense Secretaries are appointed civilians not professional soldiers.

Q. How accurate are the casualty figures on the Vietnam war issued by the Pentagon? Did we really kill more than 32,000 members of the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese in 1965?—Charles Farber, Newark, N.J.

A. The figures of American casualties are accurate. Our figures of enemy casualties are guesswork.

Q. I have been told that Prince Charles of Britain has been taken out of Gordonstoun and is being transferred to school in Australia because he has developed a strong interest in a Scotch girl. What's the scoop?—Leslie Crowley, Mattapoisett, Mass.

A. No truth to that rumor. He is being sent to school in Australia to broaden his knowledge of other English-speaking peoples.

Q. I would like to have the real name and former occupation of the actress Capucine, and whether she is really marrying actor Bill Holden.—Louis Packer, Detroit, Mich.

A. Real name: Germaine Lefebvre, former model in Paris for Givenchy. Holden is not divorced from his present wife, the former Brenda Marshall.

Q. I read recently that television programs in this country are created to appeal basically to the 12-year-old mind? Is that so?—Justin Raymond, Chicago, Ill.

A. Generally, yes.

Q. Maury Wills, the great baseball player, was booked into Las Vegas as a singer a few weeks ago. How did he do?—Teke Johnson, Ft. Worth, Tex.

A. The critic for Variety, the show business trade paper, wrote of Wills's act: "Whatever his mark on the ball diamond, Wills is not a performer, has only a mildly pleasant singing voice, and knows almost nothing about how to use it."

Q. Arthur Schlesinger and Theodore Sorensen have written books about John F. Kennedy as monuments to his greatness. Is there any evidence in the record of his administration that Kennedy was a great President? What will history note him for?—Richard A. Kent, Cambridge, Mass.

A. Kennedy had the potential for greatness. He will best be remembered, of course, as an assassinated President. The accomplishments of his administration were relatively few. As a personality he inspired the youth and some of the best minds of the nation to hold government service in a high and favorable light.

Q. How old was Dylan Thomas when he died? What was his relationship with the poet and novelist, Pamela Hansford Johnson?—Allen Dreyfuss, Miami, Ohio.

A. Thomas died at 39. Pamela Johnson was his first love when he came to London. Thomas proposed marriage, but Miss Johnson, wise beyond her years, declined the proposal. Later it was accepted by Caitlin Macnamara whom Thomas did marry.

Q. Is Hubert Humphrey all washed up as a Presidential candidate? Is it true that Lyndon has sunk him?—S.L., Washington, D.C.

A. Humphrey's political image has slumped considerably since he became Vice-President. It is extremely difficult for any politician to thrive in the shadow of Lyndon Johnson.

Q. Is it true that the federal government opposes capital punishment in this country?—Daniel Gold, Jacksonville, Fla.

A. Yes, the Justice Department will support its abolition for federal offenses in this session of Congress.

Q. Who said: "Write it in your heart that every day is the best day in the year."?—Adrian Levy, New York, N.Y.

A. Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Q. When I was in Hollywood recently I was told that an elderly figure prominent in the entertainment world, not too long ago married, will soon become the father of a child not his. I'm sure you know who I mean. Is the story true?—E.R.R., Santa Barbara, Calif.

A. The story is that the elderly gentleman lived with his fiancée for years. He proved marriage-shy because of previous unfortunate marital experiences. In a desperate move to force the marriage issue his fiancée got herself artificially inseminated, then announced to the man that she was pregnant. His ego flattered, he thereupon agreed to marry her and did so. He believes he fathered the child.

Q. I understand that when Jackie Kennedy went skiing at Sun Valley the Secret Service men refused to let photographers take pictures of her falling down in the snow. Is that true? Can Jackie Kennedy ski?—Vic Healey, Boston, Mass.

A. The Secret Service did not prevent photographers from taking photos of Mrs. Kennedy. She is a beginning skier, but they took no photos of her falling.

Q. In an interview the French designer Courrèges mentioned that a creation of his was delivered to the Duchess of Windsor only after he had received her check. Does that mean the Duchess usually does not pay her bills?—T.K., Malden, Mass.

A. Not at all. It's just that some members of the jet set expect free dresses from various designers in exchange for publicity. Courrèges declines to make such deals, insists upon being paid for his merchandise. The Duchess, of course, as any of her female friends will tell you, insists upon paying.

THE LADIES' WIGMAKER IS DISTRESSED

A CATCHY NEW WORD GAME THAT EVERYONE CAN PLAY

by FRED BLUMENTHAL

Here's a new word game anyone can play, any time, anywhere. It's simple but challenging and requires nothing more than the players' own mental agility. It was dreamed up recently by four newsmen at Washington's National Press Club, and it so fascinated them that they immediately abandoned all talk of Vietnam, LBJ and other weighty topics of the day.

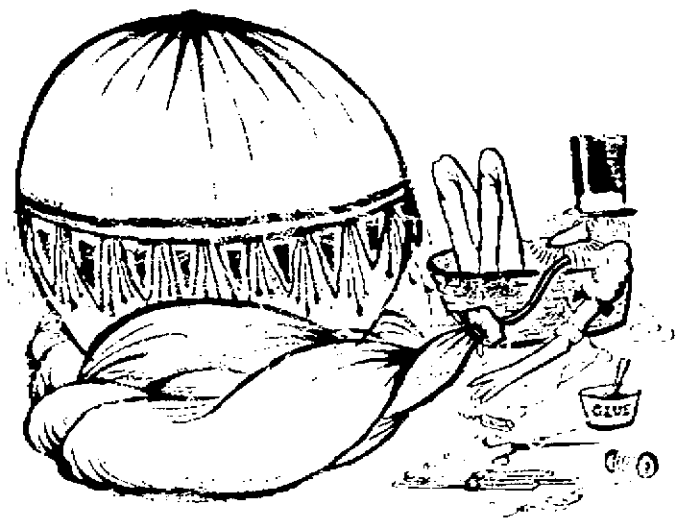

Here's how it works. Just find a word that "explains" how or why someone came on "hard times" in his profession or occupation. Don't try to be too literal—just logical. Take a look at these examples:

BALLOONMAKER . . . . . DEFLATED
BANKER . . . . . DISINTERESTED
STEEPLEJACK . . . . . EXPIRED

One hint: When you're playing, start with the word that "explains" and match it to the appropriate profession. Then, when you challenge your opponent in the game, name the "hard times" victim first. For instance, throw out "prospector"—and hope no one comes up with the answer: "exclaimed." Got it?

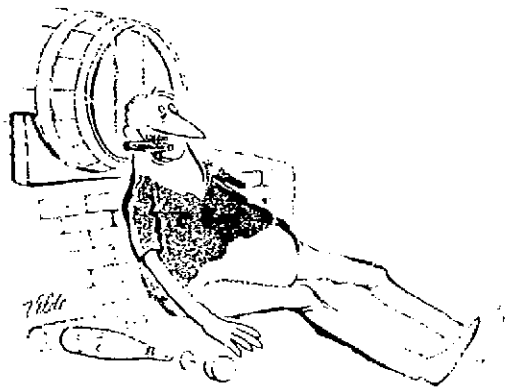

And one warning: Playing this game can be like eating peanuts: once you start, it's awfully hard to stop. Here are some more examples—and you can probably do better!

THE LADIES' WIGMAKER IS DISTRESSED

A CATCHY NEW WORD GAME THAT EVERYONE CAN PLAY

by FRED BLUMENTHAL

Here's a new word game anyone can play, any time, anywhere. It's simple but challenging and requires nothing more than the players' own mental agility. It was dreamed up recently by four newsmen at Washington's National Press Club, and it so fascinated them that they immediately abandoned all talk of Vietnam, LBJ and other weighty topics of the day.

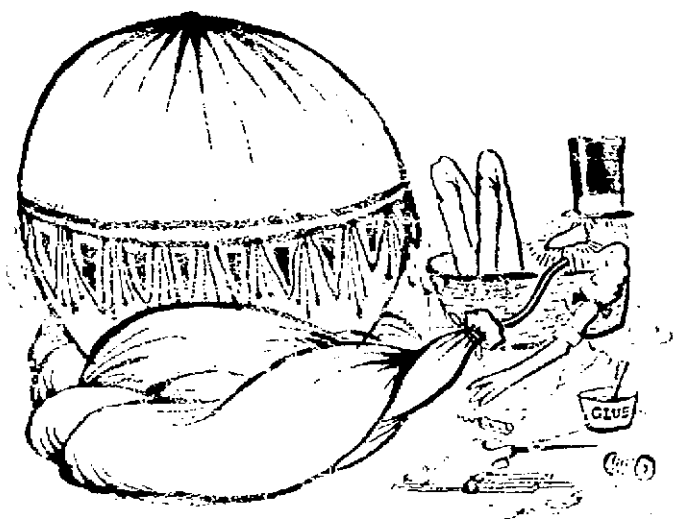

Here's how it works. Just find a word that "explains" how or why someone came on "hard times" in his profession or occupation. Don't try to be too literal—just logical. Take a look at these examples:

BALLOONMAKER . . . . . DEFLATED
BANKER . . . . . DISINTERESTED
STEEPLEJACK . . . . . EXPIRED

One hint: When you're playing, start with the word that "explains" and match it to the appropriate profession. Then, when you challenge your opponent in the game, name the "hard times" victim first. For instance, throw out "prospector"— and hope no one comes up with the answer: "exclaimed." Got it?

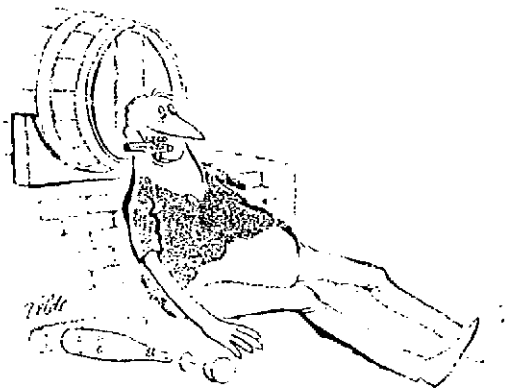

And one warning: Playing this game can be like eating peanuts; once you start, it's awfully hard to stop. Here are some more examples—and you can probably do better!

BELLRINGER—extolled
CHOIR SINGER—disenchanted
STATISTICIAN—disfigured
SYMPHONY CONDUCTOR—disconcerted
PEACE MARCHER—designed
INTERIOR DECORATOR—deteriorated

DINO, DESI & BILLY–

Hottest Young Trio in the Business

by LLOYD SHEARER

Dino, Desi and Billy are sons of Dean Martin, Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz, and retired real estate man Otto Hinsche.

HOLLYWOOD.

There are at least a thousand music combos in this country playing better rock 'n' roll music than Dino, Desi & Billy. But there is none more in demand at the moment or more unique.

Dino, 14, is the son of Dean Martin. Desi, 13, is the son of Desi Arnaz and Lucille Ball. And Billy, 14, is the son of a retired American furniture manufacturer, Otto Hinsche, who married a Filipino beauty in Manila after World War II.

These three kids, with the best show business contacts in the world, have zoomed within one year to the top rung of the entertainment ladder. They have recorded four singles, which together have sold 1½ million copies, two best-selling albums, I'm a Fool and Our Time's Coming. They've played on Hollywood Palace ($1500), Hullabaloo ($2500), the Sammy Davis Show ($3000), Dean Martin Show ($3500), Ed Sullivan Show ($4500) and their current asking price for TV appearances is $7500.

Last summer they played one-night stands in Honolulu, Bakersfield, Fresno, a few other cities for as little as $1500 and $2000, but this summer their manager, Mack Grey, is asking a $5000 minimum.

"I don't expect you to believe this," says Grey who incidentally is the senior Dean Martin's sidekick, "but I'm actually trying to discourage appearances by these kids. That's a helluva thing for a manager to do. But this whole package has developed into a runaway. Dino, Desi, and Billy are wanted by every medium in show biz, but their parents have told me over and over again, 'The most important thing right now in the lives of these boys is their schoolwork. That counts most.'

"And that's how we're playing it," continues Grey. "The minute these kids fall down in school, their act folds, and they know it, so they're trying to keep their minds on their books. But it sure ain't easy. They are averaging 7000 pieces of fan mail per week. Each of them has two girls who do nothing but open and answer sacks of mail, and they're four months behind. To tell you the truth the whole thing has mushroomed into a fabulous snowball. Success in show biz especially at an early age, can become a monster. I'm trying to control it, man. But it ain't easy. These kids are so hot they're sizzling. There must be 40 million young girls in this country, and I think almost every one of them is after these guys."

Dino, Desi, and Billy appeal primarily to girls in the 11 to 15 age group. It is these girls who buy their recordings, watch them on TV, write them fan letters and pursue them relentlessly when they make personal appearances which are limited exclusively to summer vacation periods.

In Honolulu this past summer the trio was mobbed on the beach. Their home phone numbers are changed and unlisted every 90 days. From average, unidentifiable schoolboys they've become the celebrities of the prendolescent world.

"The secret of their success," offers Lucille Ball, "is that youngsters identify with them. They're the heroes of their own age group. They know what sort of music they like, and what appeals to them also appeals to millions of others."

"They're no flukes," declares Dean Martin. "They're a trio who've caught on mostly, I think, because of their age. Kids feel at home with them and their music."

SINATRA DISCOVERY

The honor or responsibility for having discovered Desi, Dino, and Billy goes to Frank Sinatra. The singer was dining at Dean Martin's house one evening last year when he heard strange but strong musical sounds blasting through the walls of the dining room.

"Who's making the racket?" he asked.

"Dino and his pals," Martin explained. "And please, Frank, no complaints! You gotta put up with it only for a little while. I gotta hear it every single !@#$e%&X night."

"Let's give a listen," Sinatra suggested. He made his way to the game room of the lavish Martin mansion, caught the three boys rehearsing. "I want your guys to record that tune," he declared, "exactly as you're playing it now." Sinatra is the founder of Reprise Records, a recording company which Warner Brothers took over several years ago when it began to founder.

A few days later the trio recorded "I'm a Fool." It sold 800,000 copies, and a new act was born. Dino, Desi, and Billy signed a recording contract. While school is in session they have been limited by parental decree to honoring that contract on weekends.

Each of the three boys now attends a different high school, but when they first got together as a musical unit they were schoolmates at Beverly Hills Catholic School.

As Desi, "the operator" of the group, tells it: "We met about two years ago in the school playground. Dino and Billy played the guitar. They asked if I could play the drums. I said sure which was the truth, so we formed this combo. First we played at school, then we played at parties for $5 an hour, then we cut our first record for Reprise. It caught on, and we started getting TV and other dates. Now we don't play at parties any more.

"Our big song, 'I'm a Fool' was written by Joey Cooper of the Shindigs, but Dino's writing a lot of our new material. Dino is very talented. So is Billy who also plays the piano. I'm the leader of the combo. Dino and Billy think I'm wild. They call me 'The Star,' but that's because I'm interested in all aspects of this business, the production, the engineering, the staging. You might say I was born into show business, and I sure love music.

"I think," Desi, Jr. confesses, "the real reason they let me be leader is that right now they're interested in girls, and I'm not; so they let me handle the details while they talk to their friends on the phone. Girls sure like to use that phone."

Dino, Desi, and Billy are typical of all boys only in terms of physical development and reaction to today's teenage mores. They wear boots, their hair long, listen to the Beatles, The Rolling Stones, the Beach Boys, other rock 'n' roll combos.

Their background and environment is atypical in that they were each born into families of great wealth. Their parents are loaded. Dean Martin is a millionaire several times over. Lucille Ball is certainly one of the wealthiest women in show business. Otto Hinsche did so well in Beverly Hills real estate that he's been able to retire and live on his income property.

The D. D. & B. trio lives in a world of swimming pools, tennis courts, Rolls-Royces, chauffeurs, film stars, private secretaries—the whole Hollywood bit. Money means relatively little to them. "Our equipment," says Desi casually, "costs about $2500. I don't really know."

To them such celebrities as Frank Sinatra, Jack Benny, Danny Thomas, Milton Berle and a host of others are not celebrities at all. They're neighbors. Beverly Hills neighbors of the same financial and social echelon.

None of the three is yet spoiled thanks to strict parental supervision. Dino's parents, Jeanne and Dean Martin, come from poor stock, know the value of a dollar, have lectured their son on the same. Young Dino, tall at 14-5-feet-9 and growing, is outgoing and friendly but well-mannered, obedient, and respectful of his elders. Desi, Jr., extrovertive, alert, curious, cute, seems the most Hollywood of the three. He wears ascots, delivers authoritative opinions, is a handsome, delightful boy. Girls of all ages find him most attractive. Billy Hinsche whose grandfather was a top music critic in Germany is the most talented member of the trio. He plays guitar by ear. His father owned a prosperous rattan furniture business in Manila when the Japanese overran it in World War II and put him in an internment camp. Billy's mother, the former Celia Bautista, is proud of her son's musicality but insists strongly that he get "a good, strict Catholic education."

Proud father Dean Martin lends an approving ear to hottest rock 'n' roll trio in show business. Most devoted followers are girls in the 11 to 15 age group.

Like the children of most performers these three are creatures of what is basically a nonintellectual environment. Having tasted popular success at an early age, they plan to remain in show business and make some facet of it their career. At the moment therefore, education to them is a time obstacle to be faced and lived through rather than an experience to be enjoyed and absorbed.

SCHOOL vs. SHOW BIZ

They are all good students, but understandably enough, do not attach to schooling the same emphasis their parents do. They are in the process of becoming specialists rather than well-rounded young men, because most of their spare time is concentrated on rock 'n' roll which is richly rewarding in money and fame.

Just how long Dino, Desi, and Billy will last as a teenage attraction is difficult to say. Little Desi believes: "We'll last as long as the kids want us, and as long as we want to stay together. The three of us get along fine, so your guess is as good as mine."

Billy's father, Otto Hinsche, says, "It's difficult to tell at this point whether this act is a passing fancy or a lasting interest with the boys. Certainly it's not doing them any harm. If we were to make them quit and concentrate on their education, we'd be guilty of frustrating them, because this is something they genuinely like to do. Our problem as parents is to prevent it from becoming an obsession while at the same time continuing their education. We don't want these kids tied down so that they don't enjoy their youth, so that they have lost the opportunity of free choice.

"They realize they're lucky. They've gotten all the breaks; through the accident of birth they know the right people. They're doing what they want to do, so in a certain sense they're blessed. The world is filled with millions of kids, roaming around, getting into trouble, unable to find themselves or get interested in anything.

"It's much better to have kids carry a guitar than a switch blade. Desi, Dino, and Billy are three young gentlemen. Regardless of how you feel about this music —and I must tell you there are some adults who can't stand it—they're a credit to their generation."

WHAT LUCILLE BALL AND JEANNE MARTIN THINK ABOUT THEIR SONS' SUCCESS

LUCILLE BALL

• Asked how she feels about the sensational success of her son, who turned 13 three weeks ago, Lucille Ball says, "Frankly, I'm concerned. For years I've patiently explained to young Desi that success requires painstaking perseverance, years of practice and hard work. Over and over I've drummed that into his head. Suddenly he comes along with two other cute-looking boys, darling boys. They form a trio, and wham, right out of the bag, they're a tremendous success. It's been too easy, too quick, too unrealistic, too atypical. And worse yet, it's disproved everything I've taught him about success in life.

"Without discouraging him I've tried to point out that the success of Dino, Desi and Billy may turn out to be a flash in the pan. That if he and his pals want to maintain what they've got, they will just have to constantly work on and improve their act. They just can't sit back and say, 'We've got it made.' They've got to work to improve their music, their presentation, their style, their format. Right now they're cute and the young girls go ga-ga over them. Tomorrow it may be different and they've got to plan for tomorrow.

"I've also told Desi that right now his first job, his first duty, his first responsibility, is to his schoolwork. He's a 'B' student and if he falls below that grade his drums and tambourines and the rest of his equipment go right into the garage and stay there. He knows I'm serious about it and the result is that he's working harder than ever on his books and has recently gotten some 'pluses' in different subjects.

"Our big problem lies in preventing him from getting spoiled. This is what ruins most kids who meet with too early success. Instead of attributing their success to a few lucky breaks or the way they comb their hair, they attribute it to a talent that they don't have or worse yet that is undeveloped and remains that way because they've become too smug to develop their potential."

JEANNE MARTIN

• Jeanne Martin, mother of 14-year-old Dino, says "I think the success of Dino and his friends is well deserved. I'm happy about it and not in the slightest concerned. Dino is not the best scholar in the world. He is a good boy, a religious boy, the most devout Catholic we have in the family and one of the most natural athletes in the world, but he is only a 'C' student in school. He loves music, he loves show business. It's a business which provides a man with a broad education. I'm truly happy that he's found something at an early age to which he can devote his time and energy.

"I must tell you that I have gone all out in promoting these boys. I heard them rehearsing, playing, practicing for weeks and they were terrific. So terrific that I talked Nick Vanoff, producer of Hollywood Palace, the ABC network TV show, to hire them for their first TV appearance sight unseen. I was so enthusiastic about them that Nick agreed to give them a chance and it paid off.

"I am not worried about these three boys because they are capable of handling success despite their age. They are exceptionally good boys, moral boys, well behaved boys who don't get out of line very often. There is nothing wrong with success—only with people who can't handle it."

My Favorite Jokes

by Lou Alexander

EDITOR'S NOTE: Lou Alexander, born Lou Gostel in New York City, 33 years ago, is the son of the well-known burlesque comic, Jo-Jo Gostel. No wonder that he, too, is a comedian. As a child Lou was raised by his father—his mother died when he was an infant—and by age 10 he and his dad were working together in theaters all over the country. A decade ago Alexander joined the Marine Corps, was assigned to the Special Services Division, entertained the troops. After receiving his discharge he returned to show business, got himself booked into the Flamingo and Riviera in Las Vegas, the Bon Soir in New York, the Playboy in Hollywood, and on all the top variety TV shows of the networks. Lou lives in Los Angeles with his wife, recently finished his first movie role in La Vita Hollywood which opens next month. Herewith some of his favorite jokes:

A timid little employee approached his boss. "May I please, sir," he asked, "take next Wednesday off? My wife and I are celebrating our silver wedding anniversary."

The boss frowned. "Look here," he cracked, "do I have to put up with this every 25 years?"

Did you hear about the two tigers who met in the jungle? One tiger said to the other, "Where the heck have you been? You smell like gasoline."

Recently I went to a discothèque for the first time. They wouldn't let me in. My pants were too loose.

If you've never been to a discothèque let me describe one to you. It's a place where they pack together into a very small room a wild mob of boys and girls who dance, twist, jerk, frug, jump up and down all night. I just wish I had the deodorant concession.

After you've been in a discothèque for five minutes, you swear everyone's wearing the same perfume . . . Gymnasium #5.

With the new fad in sloppy clothes today, it looks like all the kids go to the same Vietnam tailor.

I'm sure you heard about the wife of a Dallas millionaire. Her car went out of control and sideswiped six other cars. She didn't have to report the accident to the police because it all happened in her own garage.

I predict that the City of Los Angeles is going to come up with a new product which eliminates 75 per cent of the smog. It's called a streetcar.

Now that George Murphy is senator from California, have you heard what people are saying? I overheard one man ask another: "What do you think of Murphy's act?" The second replied, "I like his singing, but I'm not too crazy about his dancing."

Can you imagine what will happen in California if Ronald Reagan ever gets elected governor? The audience will not only criticize his act, but writers will be sending him scripts.

I predict that Cassius Clay will lose his next fight by stepping on his tongue.

A little girl pointed to a woman who was seven months pregnant and asked, "What's that?"

The woman replied, "That's my baby."

The little girl asked, "Is it a boy or a girl?" The woman replied, "It's too soon to know." The little girl then asked, "Do you love it?"

"Of course," the woman said. "I love it very much."

"Then why," inquired the little girl, "did you eat it?"

Suddenly he comes along with two other cute-looking boys, darling boys. They form a trio, and wham, right out of the bag, they're a tremendous success. It's been too easy, too quick, too unrealistic, too atypical. And worse yet, it's disproved everything I've taught him about success in life.

"Without discouraging him I've tried to point out that the success of Dino, Desi and Billy may turn out to be a flash in the pan. That if he and his pals want to maintain what they've got, they will just have to constantly work on and improve their act. They just can't sit back and say, 'We've got it made.' They've got to work to improve their music, their presentation, their style, their format. Right now they're cute and the young girls go ga-ga over them. Tomorrow it may be different and they've got to plan for tomorrow.

"I've also told Desi that right now his first job, his first duty, his first responsibility, is to his schoolwork. He's a 'B' student and if he falls below that grade his drums and tambourines and the rest of his equipment go right into the garage and stay there. He knows I'm serious about it and the result is that he's working harder than ever on his books and has recently gotten some 'pluses' in different subjects.

"Our big problem lies in preventing him from getting spoiled. This is what ruins most kids who meet with too early success. Instead of attributing their success to a few lucky breaks or the way they comb their hair, they attribute it to a talent that they don't have or worse yet that is undeveloped and remains that way because they've become too smug to develop their potential."

JEANNE MARTIN

• Jeanne Martin, mother of 14-year-old Dino, says "I think the success of Dino and his friends is well deserved. I'm happy about it and not in the slightest concerned. Dino is not the best scholar in the world. He is a good boy, a religious boy, the most devout Catholic we have in the family and one of the most natural athletes in the world, but he is only a 'C' student in school. He loves music, he loves show business. It's a business which provides a man with a broad education. I'm truly happy that he's found something at an early age to which he can devote his time and energy.

"I must tell you that I have gone all out in promoting these boys. I heard them rehearsing, playing, practicing for weeks and they were terrific. So terrific that I talked Nick Vanoff, producer of Hollywood Palace, the ABC network TV show, to hire them for their first TV appearance sight unseen. I was so enthusiastic about them that Nick agreed to give them a chance and it paid off.

"I am not worried about these three boys because they are capable of handling success despite their age. They are exceptionally good boys, moral boys, well-behaved boys who don't get out of line very often. There is nothing wrong with success—only with people who can't handle it."

My Favorite Jokes

by Lou Alexander

EDITOR'S NOTE: Lou Alexander, born Lou Gostel in New York City, 33 years ago, is the son of the well-known burlesque comic, Jo-Jo Gostel. No wonder that he, too, is a comedian. As a child Lou was raised by his father —his mother died when he was an infant—and by age 10 he and his dad were working together in theaters all over the country. A decade ago Alexander joined the Marine Corps, was assigned to the Special Services Division, entertained the troops. After receiving his discharge he returned to show business, got himself booked into the Flamingo and Riviera in Las Vegas, the Bon Soir in New York, the Playboy in Hollywood, and on all the top variety TV shows of the networks. Lou lives in Los Angeles with his wife, recently finished his first movie role in La Vita Hollywood which opens next month. Herewith some of his favorite jokes:

A timid little employee approached his boss. "May I please, sir," he asked, "take next Wednesday off? My wife and I are celebrating our silver wedding anniversary."

The boss frowned. "Look here," he cracked, "do I have to put up with this every 25 years?"

Did you hear about the two tigers who met in the jungle? One tiger said to the other, "Where the heck have you been? You smell like gasoline."

Recently I went to a discothèque for the first time. They wouldn't let me in. My pants were too loose.

If you've never been to a discothèque let me describe one to you. It's a place where they pack together into a very small room a wild mob of boys and girls who dance, twist, jerk, frug, jump up and down all night. I just wish I had the deodorant concession.

After you've been in a discothèque for five minutes, you swear everyone's wearing the same perfume . . . Gymnasium #5.

With the new fad in sloppy clothes today, it looks like all the kids go to the same Vietnam tailor.

I'm sure you heard about the wife of a Dallas millionaire. Her car went out of control and sideswiped six other cars. She didn't have to report the accident to the police because it all happened in her own garage.

I predict that the City of Los Angeles is going to come up with a new product which eliminates 75 per cent of the smog. It's called a streetcar.

Now that George Murphy is senator from California, have you heard what people are saying? I overheard one man ask another: "What do you think of Murphy's act?" The second replied, "I like his singing, but I'm not too crazy about his dancing."

Can you imagine what will happen in California if Ronald Reagan ever gets elected governor? The audience will not only criticize his act, but writers will be sending him scripts.

I predict that Cassius Clay will lose his next fight by stepping on his tongue.

A little girl pointed to a woman who was seven months pregnant and asked, "What's that?"

The woman replied, "That's my baby."

The little girl asked, "Is it a boy or a girl?"

The woman replied, "It's too soon to know."

The little girl then asked, "Do you love it?"

"Of course," the woman said. "I love it very much."

"Then why," inquired the little girl, "did you eat it?"

anecdote of the week

In one of his last interviews Somerset Maugham was asked by a reporter which of his many quotations he liked best. He chose this one: "American women ask from their husbands qualities which English women don't even expect from their butlers."

Male guests at Golden Door get facial, manicure, pedicure as part of beauty treatments. Heated "booties" allow better penetration of lotions into skin.

Spa director Anne Marie Bennstrom puts guests through a Spartan routine of maximum exercise, minimum diet.

BOYS' DAY AT THE BEAUTY FARM

ESCONDIDO, CALIF.

Probably the last time you thought about it (at age 14, say) you figured creamy facials, pound-melting classes in modern dance and anything referred to as a "hot herbal wrap treatment" just had to be designed for ladies with lots of leisure.

Not so! Here, north of San Diego, at a luxurious health and beauty spa called the Golden Door, a select few of America's well-heeled (and often overweight) business executives periodically subject themselves to a regimen that's a cross between wrestling Gorilla Monsoon and being the Rose Bowl Queen.

During stays of one or two weeks, the men—usually hard-bitten, two-fisted tycoons—willingly undergo beauty treatments, sauna and steam baths, massages, an 800-calorie-per-day diet, yoga exercises, bubble baths and similar ministrations—all in a negative-ion-charged atmosphere called Climat de Beauté.

The Golden Door was established in 1958 as a posh slimming retreat for ladies with time and money. But, as they are sometimes known to do, the ladies couldn't wait to tell of their experiences. A few listeners included husbands. As a result the Golden Door was pressured into setting aside two weeks four times each year for pruning, pummeling and pampering men.

At rates ranging from $500 to $550 per week, a limit of 20 male guests endure a daily schedule that calls for breakfast in bed starting at 8 A.M., beautifying from 9 to 10:20, exercises and pool dips until a 1 P.M. lunch, steam and massage from 2 to 3:20, spot reducing from 3:20 until 4, the "hot herbal wrap treatment" until 4:40 and then a "country lane" walk before dinner at 6. After dinner, guests receive what the Golden Door calls "the intangibles," such things as "a philosophy of beauty," "absorbing discussions that threaten to continue past your bedtime" and "lessons that carry beyond our Golden portals and remain with one always."

Rubberband exercise fights formation of double chin. Facial movement works band from nose tip to below chin.

Golden Door routine calls for an hour hike each day. Guests wear sweatsuits during day, dress casually at night.

BRITAIN'S LOVABLE "QUEEN MUM"

by RENÉ LECLER

LONDON.

One day last summer the plump, comfortable woman who is known to all in Britain as "The Queen Mum" was visiting a small town in the English Midlands. Seeing some superb dahlias in the garden of a working man's cottage, she opened the wooden gate, admired the flowers and told the woman on the doorstep: "Your husband must be a keen gardener." The woman's face clouded and she replied: "My husband died four years ago."

The Queen Mum took her hand. "I am so terribly sorry, my dear," she said. "You must feel very lonely. Let's talk about it." She marched into the cottage and sat down for the traditional cup of tea. For half an hour while dignitaries waited outside and the royal timetable went to pot, the two women talked about what it's like to lose a husband and live on alone.

The Queen's mother knows all about it. Since that dark February morning 14 years ago today when the King's valet knocked on her bedroom door and said: "Ma'am, the King is dead," she has lived alone, sat by while her eldest daughter was crowned Queen and her youngest married off to a photographer. Once she told a friend: "If there is one thing worse than being a widow, it is being a widowed Queen. One day you have all the limelight and the attention and the next people are surprised to find that you are still around."

Mother and daughter at the races: At 66 Queen Mum is active, fond of extravagant hats.

EVERYBODY'S MOTHER

The way she has overcome her loneliness is typical of this outwardly soft, inwardly tough daughter of a Scottish earl. With her feather boas, her strings of pearls, her comfortable but hardly fashionable figure, she has become the prototype of everybody's mother and she plays her part to perfection. Not long ago when she was asked what her private pleasures were, she replied, with no hint of self-consciousness: "Curling up with a box of candy and a long whodunit."

Once, when she met the late Ian Fleming at a garden party, she told him: "Your James Bond is an interesting type but I still prefer the Thin Man." She keeps every Sherlock Holmes story ever published and is an honorary member of the Holmes Club. She was never more pleased with herself than last fall when the alarm system of her London palace failed to reveal an accidental intrusion. A member of her household suggested that they should call Scotland Yard or at least the policeman on duty outside the gate. "Never!" said the Queen Mother. "Let's just see how this thing works." For an hour, she went around the house trailing her court servants behind her to inspect every connection. Eventually they found the fault in the cellar: a bottle of champagne had dropped on its side and severed a thin piece of wire.

The Queen Mother is now more active than she has ever been, and in the first six months of 1965 she fulfilled over 90 public engagements. "The day I can't meet people any more," she once said, "that's the day I shall die." And people certainly meet her halfway. They write to her by every mail—mostly women of her own age, sharing problems and memories with her. When she was asked whether all this did not make her sad, she replied with a phrase of which a sage would have been proud: "Memories are everyone's second chance at happiness."

Recently, when a teenage girl wrote to her about difficulties with her boy friend, the Queen Mother invited one of Britain's most famous women novelists to dinner, and the two women spent the entire evening sorting out the girl's problems.

She also enjoys herself. She goes to the theater once every two weeks and is inordinately fond of pop music. She was one of the few adults in Britain to be really pleased last year when the Beatles got their medal from the Queen.

Although she only keeps a very small staff, the Queen Mother maintains a truly royal state. Her reception rooms are regularly aired and used, her kitchens stand ready to prepare lunch for 50 people should the need arise and even her collection of pictures is regularly inspected by restorers. When someone suggested a year ago that perhaps her 74-room London residence, Clarence House, was a trifle big for her, she was indignant: "It's just the right size for me!" she exclaimed. "Besides, any ceiling lower than 12 feet gives me the vapors. I am not the cottage type!"

In any case, Britain's Queen Mother can well afford to live in any style she wishes. She is reputed to have inherited a fair share of the great financial inheritance of her mother-in-law, the late Queen Mary, and her financial acumen has become almost a family joke. Last summer, Prince Philip, who uses a market intelligence service, complained bitterly that some shares had unaccountably dropped a good deal in one week. The Queen Mother grinned.

"Don't tell me!" said the Queen's husband. "You sold yours last week." She had.

CENTER OF THE STAGE

The Queen Mother's life was not always as it is now. As a whole generation of Britons remember, it began as the wife of a shy, kindly but rather irascible royal prince who, after the Windsor affair, was catapulted onto a throne that he neither wanted nor expected. For 10 years he and his wife, the former Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, had lived in semiobscurity in an ordinary London house with their two young daughters. Suddenly they were the center of the realm. Then came World War II and, as it was for so many people in Britain, the war was the Queen Mother's finest hour. The fact that she had not been born royal helped a lot—she could mix easily with people and share their troubles.

When the bombs began falling on London, she was once asked publicly whether she oughtn't to leave London and take her children to safety. Her reply has never been forgotten. "My husband won't leave his capital," she said. "I won't leave my husband and my children won't leave me." The morning after two bombs fell on Buckingham Palace causing considerable damage, the Queen was touring London's blitzed East End, unaccountably beaming. When someone asked her why she felt so cheerful, she replied, "At last, I can show my face to these poor people.We have been bombed, too, you know."

When George VI died on February 6, 1952, she thought her life was finished. She moved from Buckingham Palace in a daze to make room for the new Queen and her family and took up residence in Clarence House. For six months she hardly left it. She spent entire days going through old papers and photographs, rereading letters and refusing to talk to people. Referring to her husband, she told a friend: "Bertie may have been the King to millions but I had only one husband."

FOR GOOD?

Soon after the Queen's Coronation, the Royal mother left London for good —or so it seemed. With only one companion sitting in the back of a high-wheeled, ancient Daimler limousine, she toured Britain staying with friends and relatives. Eventually, she made it to her native Scotland and one day, on the wild, storm-tossed shores of the Pentland Firth— about as far north as anyone can go in these islands—she discovered an ancient ruin, all that was left of the 14th century Castle of Mey.

In a fit of black melancholia, the Queen Mother bought this strange place and announced that this was the place where she would live out her life. She furnished it sparsely, and lived there, almost alone. Then one day, her companion, Lady Doris Vyner, recalls: "The Queen looked at the living room and said brightly: 'What this place needs is some pink carpet.' From that day on the widowed Queen changed. She flurried around, spending a fortune on Mey and then, without warning, she left it and returned to resume her old life. Two years had passed.

Today, she is "Granny" to the entire royal family, and she plays her part with relish, spoiling her nine grandchildren and great-nieces and nephews until the parents complain. As for her daughters, it is always Margaret who runs to her. The Queen Mother once told a friend: "Elizabeth does not need me much; she does things just the way I would have done them."

The Golden Door was established in 1958 as a posh slimming retreat for ladies with time and money. But, as they are sometimes known to do, the ladies couldn't wait to tell of their experiences. A few listeners included husbands. As a result the Golden Door was pressured into setting aside two weeks four times each year for pruning, pummeling and pampering men.

At rates ranging from $500 to $550 per week, a limit of 20 male guests endure a daily schedule that calls for breakfast in bed starting at 8 A.M., beautifying from 9 to 10:20, exercises and pool dips until a 1 P.M. lunch, steam and massage from 2 to 3:20, spot reducing from 3:20 until 4, the "hot herbal wrap treatment" until 4:40 and then a "country lane" walk before dinner at 6. After dinner, guests receive what the Golden Door calls "the intangibles," such things as "a philosophy of beauty," "absorbing discussions that threaten to continue past your bedtime" and "lessons that carry beyond our Golden portals and remain with one always."

Sound like fun? Sound ridiculous? In any event, get in line! The waiting list is a mile long!

CHERRY CLOVERLEAF BUNS

Want to brighten up a rainy afternoon? Bring out a platter of warm cherry buns to serve with big cups of steaming hot tea or coffee and watch the sunny smiles come out. Chopped walnuts and pieces of red maraschino cherries give these buns a crunchy topping. If you like to serve a timely sweet, save the recipe for George Washington's Birthday later this month. There is a little extra work involved in preparing these buns, but you'll agree it's time well spent from the moment you sniff the oven aroma of baking until the last delicious bite.

Cherry Cloverleaf Buns

1 package active dry yeast
1 cup warm water (105° to 115°)
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup butter or margarine, melted and cooled
1 egg, slightly beaten
3½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
¾ cup sugar
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 jar (8 oz.) red maraschino cherries
¼ cup chopped walnuts
⅓ cup butter or margarine, melted

Dissolve yeast in warm water. Stir in 2 tablespoons sugar, salt, ¼ cup butter and egg. Add 2 cups flour; beat until smooth. Gradually add remaining flour. Knead on lightly floured board until smooth and elastic. Place dough in greased bowl and cover with damp towel. Let rise in warm place until double in bulk. Meanwhile, mix ¾ cup sugar with cinnamon. Drain cherries; cut in fourths. Combine with walnuts. Punch down dough; pinch off pieces and shape into 1-inch balls. Dip in remaining melted butter, then in cinnamon-sugar mixture. Place 3 balls in each greased 3-inch muffin pan. Sprinkle with cherry-walnut mixture. Cover; let rise until doubled. Bake at 350° for 30 minutes. Serve warm. Makes 18 large buns. BRITAIN'S LOVABLE "QUEEN MUM"

by RENÉ LECLER

LONDON.

One day last summer the plump, comfortable woman who is known to all in Britain as "The Queen Mum" was visiting a small town in the English Midlands. Seeing some superb dahlias in the garden of a working man's cottage, she opened the wooden gate, admired the flowers and told the woman on the doorstep: "Your husband must be a keen gardener." The woman's face clouded and she replied: "My husband died four years ago."

The Queen Mum took her hand. "I am so terribly sorry, my dear," she said. "You must feel very lonely. Let's talk about it." She marched into the cottage and sat down for the traditional cup of tea. For half an hour while dignitaries waited outside and the royal timetable went to pot, the two women talked about what it's like to lose a husband and live on alone.

The Queen's mother knows all about it. Since that dark February morning 14 years ago today when the King's valet knocked on her bedroom door and said: "Ma'am, the King is dead," she has lived alone, sat by while her eldest daughter was crowned Queen and her youngest married off to a photographer. Once she told a friend: "If there is one thing worse than being a widow, it is being a widowed Queen. One day you have all the limelight and the attention and the next people are surprised to find that you are still around."

Mother and daughter at the races: At 66 Queen Mum is active, fond of extravagant hats.

EVERYBODY'S MOTHER

The way she has overcome her loneliness is typical of this outwardly soft, inwardly tough daughter of a Scottish earl. With her feather boas, her strings of pearls, her comfortable but hardly fashionable figure, she has become the prototype of everybody's mother and she plays her part to perfection. Not long ago when she was asked what her private pleasures were, she replied, with no hint of self-consciousness: "Curling up with a box of candy and a long whodunit."

Once, when she met the late Ian Fleming at a garden party, she told him: "Your James Bond is an interesting type but I still prefer the Thin Man." She keeps every Sherlock Holmes story ever published and is an honorary member of the Holmes Club. She was never more pleased with herself than last fall when the alarm system of her London palace failed to reveal an accidental intrusion. A member of her household suggested that they should call Scotland Yard or at least the policeman on duty outside the gate. "Never!" said the Queen Mother. "Let's just see how this thing works." For an hour, she went around the house trailing her court servants behind her to inspect every connection. Eventually they found the fault in the cellar: a bottle of champagne had dropped on its side and severed a thin piece of wire.

The Queen Mother is now more active than she has ever been, and in the first six months of 1965 she fulfilled over 90 public engagements. "The day I can't meet people any more," she once said, "that's the day I shall die." And people certainly meet her halfway. They write to her by every mail—mostly women of her own age, sharing problems and memories with her. When she was asked whether all this did not make her sad, she replied with a phrase of which a sage would have been proud: "Memories are everyone's second chance at happiness."

Recently, when a teenage girl wrote to her about difficulties with her boy friend, the Queen Mother invited one of Britain's most famous women novelists to dinner, and the two women spent the entire evening sorting out the girl's problems.

She also enjoys herself. She goes to the theater once every two weeks and is inordinately fond of pop music. She was one of the few adults in Britain to be really pleased last year when the Beatles got their medal from the Queen.

Although she only keeps a very small staff, the Queen Mother maintains a truly royal state. Her reception rooms are regularly aired and used, her kitchens stand ready to prepare lunch for 50 people should the need arise and even her collection of pictures is regularly inspected by restorers. When someone suggested a year ago that perhaps her 74-room London residence, Clarence House, was a trifle big for her, she was indignant: "It's just the right size for me!" she exclaimed. "Besides, any ceiling lower than 12 feet gives me the vapors. I am not the cottage type!"

In any case, Britain's Queen Mother can well afford to live in any style she wishes. She is reputed to have inherited a fair share of the great financial inheritance of her mother-in-law, the late Queen Mary, and her financial acumen has become almost a family joke. Last summer, Prince Philip, who uses a market intelligence service, complained bitterly that some shares had unaccountably dropped a good deal in one week. The Queen Mother grinned.

"Don't tell me!" said the Queen's husband. "You sold yours last week." She had.

CENTER OF THE STAGE

The Queen Mother's life was not always as it is now. As a whole generation of Britons remember, it began as the wife of a shy, kindly but rather irascible royal prince who, after the Windsor affair, was catapulted onto a throne that he neither wanted nor expected. For 10 years he and his wife, the former Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, had lived in semiobscurity in an ordinary London house with their two young daughters. Suddenly they were the center of the realm. Then came World War II and, as it was for so many people in Britain, the war was the Queen Mother's finest hour. The fact that she had not been born royal helped a lot—she could mix easily with people and share their troubles.

When the bombs began falling on London, she was once asked publicly whether she oughtn't to leave London and take her children to safety. Her reply has never been forgotten. "My husband won't leave his capital," she said. "I won't leave my husband and my children won't leave me." The morning after two bombs fell on Buckingham Palace causing considerable damage, the Queen was touring London's blitzed East End, unaccountably beaming. When someone asked her why she felt so cheerful, she replied, "At last, I can show my face to these poor people. We have been bombed, too, you know."

When George VI died on February 6, 1952, she thought her life was finished. She moved from Buckingham Palace in a daze to make room for the new Queen and her family and took up residence in Clarence House. For six months she hardly left it. She spent entire days going through old papers and photographs, rereading letters and refusing to talk to people. Referring to her husband, she told a friend: "Bertie may have been the King to millions but I had only one husband."

FOR GOOD?

Soon after the Queen's Coronation, the Royal mother left London for good—or so it seemed. With only one companion sitting in the back of a high-wheeled, ancient Daimler limousine, she toured Britain staying with friends and relatives. Eventually, she made it to her native Scotland and one day, on the wild, storm-tossed shores of the Pentland Firth—about as far north as anyone can go in these islands—she discovered an ancient ruin, all that was left of the 14th century Castle of Mey.

In a fit of black melancholia, the Queen Mother bought this strange place and announced that this was the place where she would live out her life. She furnished it sparsely, and lived there, almost alone. Then one day, her companion, Lady Doris Vyner, recalls: "The Queen looked at the living room and said brightly: 'What this place needs is some pink carpet.' From that day on the widowed Queen changed. She flurried around, spending a fortune on Mey and then, without warning, she left it and returned to resume her old life. Two years had passed.

Today, she is "Granny" to the entire royal family, and she plays her part with relish, spoiling her nine grandchildren and great-nieces and nephews until the parents complain. As for her daughters, it is always Margaret who runs to her. The Queen Mother once told a friend: "Elizabeth does not need me much; she does things just the way I would have done them."

Folding dustpan: Here's a one-piece unbreakable plastic dustpan (above) that folds when you squeeze the handle to fit corners, mop boards and moldings for a cleaner sweep and to pour into containers of all shapes and sizes. It has high sides, deep dust pocket, hole in handle for hanging. Beige, blue or green: 98¢ in stores. Foley Mfg. Co., Dept. PP, 3300 5th St. NE, Minneapolis, Minn. 55418.

Automatic clothesbrush: Good for the whole family—even your youngsters can use it effectively and safely—a new cordless rechargeable brush vacuums out dust and dirt and sweeps up hair and lint from clothes. You can use it, too, for small cleaning jobs such as lamp shades, curtains. 12-oz. brush operates about 12 days on a charge, recharges overnight. $14.98. General Electric, Dept. PP, 1285 Boston Ave., Bridgeport, Conn. 06602.

New idea in cookware: Now come aluminum pans with a no-stick Teflon finish all over—inside and out—and locked into the aluminum so it can't flake, chip or peel. Steel spatula or other metal utensils won't hurt the finish. Under ordinary cooking conditions, you can clean a pan with a quick rinse in warm, sudsy water—but if you want to use a soap pad, you can do so without harm. 8" fry pan, $7.95; 10", $9.95. Also: 1½-, 2-, 3-qt. saucepans at $7.95, $8.95, $9.95—and 5-qt. Dutch oven at $14.95—all with covers. Hendry, Dept. PP, Box 183, Upper Montclair, N.J.

Engine cleaner: Removing grease, grime and gum from dirty car, lawnmower and other engines—and from items such as barbecue grills—should be easier with a new penetrating aerosol preparation you spray on, then hose off. It has 3½ times usual spray pressure, maker claims, allowing it to get into deep, tight corners. $1.98. R C Industries, Dept. PP, Box 356, Medina, Ohio 44256.

Baby nail scissors: Safe way to cut a baby's nails is with these new scissors (above) that have a nail slot to prevent accidents. You simply insert a nail in the slot, cut, and there is no danger of pinching, pricking or cutting skin. Round ends are added safety feature. $1.98 postpaid. *Hollis Co., Dept. upon reproduction to the exclusion of sexual behavior, is too limited," says Wallace C. Fulton, president of the Sex Information and Education Council of the United States (SIECUS). "We are sexual from the time we are born until the time we die. Yet though we attack head-on all sorts of other human dilemmas, we avoid sex. And we're never going to solve the personal and social problems caused by sex until we establish man's sexuality as a health entity rather than something to be avoided, leered at and sniggered over."

TO OUR DISADVANTAGE

Our failure to face the question openly, according to many authorities in the field, works to the disadvantage of ourselves, our children and society in general.

Too often, the experts say, adults are uninformed when it comes to their own sexuality and thus are denied complete fulfillment in their own personal lives.

"Most of us know very little about sex," says Dr. Reuben Solway, a physician practicing in Westport, Conn., where he is a member of the Board of Education and an outspoken exponent of sex education. "What knowledge we have is often superficial, at best. We need —and need now—programs of sex education for all groups within our society."

Adults also need sex education in their role as parents.

"Surely the home should be the source of the child's first sex education," points out Miss Helen Manley, executive director of the Social Health Association of Greater St. Louis. "Aroused with curiosity, children may try to get answers and information from parents. But too often youngsters find parents 'busy.' Actually they are uninformed and embarrassed."

But a child made to feel embarrassed for what to him is a perfectly natural question is going to feel guilty about the entire subject.

Turned aside by normal sources of information, children pick up on their own a hodgepodge of misinformation.

"About all that can be picked up on the streets and off newsstands and bookshelves," Dr. Solway says bluntly, "are crude and sometimes bewildering accounts of sex. In a society such as ours this back alley ignorance and trash can only lead to hedonism in its worst forms. Kids learn nothing about the feelings, meanings and responsibilities of sex in their lives."

REAPPRAISAL NEEDED

Thirdly, authorities say sex education for adults is needed to enable them to arrive at reasonable and workable attitudes regarding sex in a rapidly changing world.

"We have discarded past conceptions of sex without bothering to replace them," says the Rev. John L. Thomas, S.J., of the National Jesuit Social Service Center at St. Louis University. "I think a serious reappraisal of contemporary sexual patterns is long overdue."

Many authorities agreed that one place to start this "serious reappraisal" is through sex education for adults. But unfortunately, most adults have no idea what sex education is all about.

To many it means instruction in reproductive biology, being told "the facts of life." Some are wary of sex education because they think it means "how to" lessons. Still others think sex education means learning about birth control.

The fact is that modern sex education includes all these and much more.

"Sex is a life force," states Dr. Mary S. Calderone, executive director of SIECUS and nationally recognized authority on family life and planning, "and the idea of sex education is to help society develop a sense of informed responsibility about it."

Mrs. Helen F. Southard, a psychologist and a National YWCA authority on sex education, says that to handle sex rationally in their lives "people need to know the meaning of sex, need help in determining their feelings about it and its purpose."

Lester A. Kirkendall, professor of Family Life at Oregon State University, describes modern sex education as "training people emotionally and intellectually to be able to make intelligent and well-informed choices among an array of competing alternatives."

Talking at the University of Notre Dame recently, Dr. Calderone told the students, "Men are generally unaware of or unconcerned about the impact they have on the life of every young girl with whom they share an emotional bond. As a result, the behavior of many young men is all too often irresponsible."

BLAMES PARENTS

Part of the blame, Dr. Calderone feels, can be placed on adults who have lost the ability to "bring up sons with the strength and self-confidence to set standards and develop the moral values by which human beings must live."

What kind of adult education would counteract the botch we've made of sexuality in our society? Authorities have varying suggestions.

"Courses presently conducted for young people in schools and churches, for example, could be easily adapted to an appropriate adult level," declares Mrs. Southard. "Many public agencies and private foundations and organizations make available audio and visual teaching aids to those interested in sex education."

Properly qualified teaching personnel are on hand to inform interested adult groups through schools, clinics and "Y"'s.

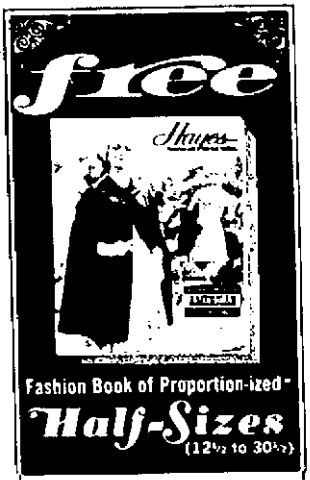

"Sex education doesn't require a medical doctor as a teacher," points out SIECUS's Fulton. "The most important thing is sincerity and an open attitude, a willingness genuinely to learn—even if it means tossing aside some of one's most cherished beliefs."

Such programs can be instituted through social and civic groups, PTA organizations and church adult discussion groups.

Dr. Solway believes a step in the right direction would be to offer sex education as part of existing adult education programs.

"Ideally," he says, "sex education should be the province of parents. But parents can't be expected to do a good job unless they themselves know what the subject is all about. And we have only to read a newspaper to realize that adults—many of them parents—often have no idea of how to handle their own sexuality, let alone instilling proper and necessary attitudes and behavior in their kids.

"Really," Dr. Solway concludes, "I think sex education for all ages would do a great deal toward helping people handle many of their public and private problems." ■

REAL ESTATE RESEARCHERS. Before big companies decide to build or expand nowadays, they hire real estate researchers, a new breed of cat, to advise them on feasibility, cost, site, and development. Take Walt Disney, as shrewd a cookie as ever came down the pike. For years Disney has been anxious to erect a second Disneyland somewhere in the U.S.A. Years ago he hired Economics Research Associates, headquartered in Los Angeles, to scout the country for likely sites. ERA moved into the New York area, decided after a preliminary survey that at best a New York Disneyland would enjoy only a four-month season. Sites in the Midwest presented the same difficulty. ERA moved into Florida decided that was the state. But where in the state? Nine location studies were made. Palm Beach and Ocala seemed like excellent spots, but the final depth study proved that the maximum, all-year tourist penetration was in the Orlando area. ERA then set about buying up land under dummy names, never revealing their client's identity. Approximately $5 million was paid for 27,000 acres outside Orlando. Harrison Price, president of ERA whom Disney put in business, says, "If we had ever mentioned Walt's name that land would have cost us at least $50 million."

ATOMIC BOREDOM. Women adapt to boredom much more readily than men. Approximately 150 people were confined for six days in a bomb shelter in Dortmund, Germany. The men suffered acutely from lack of cigarettes and alcohol, grew irritable when they weren't playing cards, required a firm hand to direct and keep them in line. The women quickly organized themselves into work and exercise groups, did not react irascibly to boredom. The test, designed to furnished psychologists with data on the reaction of individuals to boredom and danger, proved that for men, inaction is a danger potentially more grave and unsettling than bomb peril.

LASTING LABOR PEACE. In the past 25 years Sweden has had only two labor strikes, one in 1946, the other in 1953. How come? Swedish unions have the right to strike but rarely use it. The government has the right to intervene in strikes but rarely uses it. Several possible explanations: Swedish union leaders are well-educated in economics, finance and management techniques. There is no criminal element in the labor movement. The area of negotiations between labor and management is extremely narrow, because in Sweden working hours, holidays, sick leave, unemployment insurance, pensions, and vacations are decreed by Parliament and apply to all Swedes. The spirit between labor and management is one of cooperation, not antagonism.

SEX CHOICE. The majority of married couples want their first-born to be a boy. If it's a question of adopting a child, however, then frequently they prefer a girl. Thus they satisfy the parental instinct but do not relinquish the hope of eventually having a son of their own.

TARNISHED IMAGE. Robert McNamara, the brilliant, dynamic, superefficient Defense Secretary, built up as the number one whiz kid of two administrations, has come upon hard times imagewise. Once considered almost infallible he is now the object of growing disenchantment both in and out of Congress. After seven inspection trips to Vietnam his assessments of the war there appear consistently wrong. European observers who admire his cost accounting maintain that McNamara's defense advice to President Johnson has proven fallacious. They fault McNamara for not realizing that the number one U.S. enemy in Asia is not little North Vietnam but massive Red China. It is no secret to McNamara that Red China is currently stockpiling nuclear weapons, that it will have operational by 1967 a medium-range ballistic missile, that it plans to equip submarines with nuclear rockets, that it is preparing its people for a war against the U.S., that until it is ready to wage such a war it wants the Viet Cong and Ho Chi Minh to keep fighting the U.S. endlessly. McNamara is accused of having fallen into a Red Chinese trap from which he refuses to extricate himself because he would then have to admit an error in basic judgment.

PARADE'S SPECIAL

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

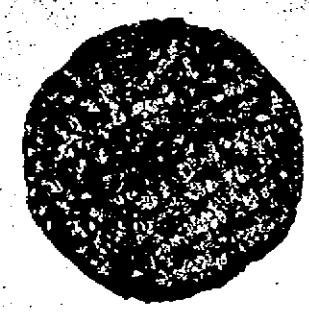

BECAUSE OF THE VOLUME OF MAIL, PARADE CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES ABOUT THIS COLUMN.

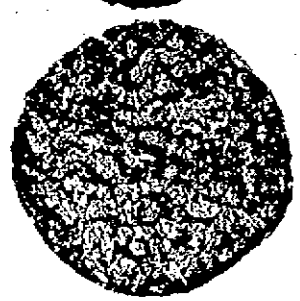

CRASH PROGRAM. When officers of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers union met in San Francisco recently, private meetings were secretly held between them and military officials. Subject discussed was uniforms. The government wants the garment industry to start a crash program to produce 1.5 million pairs of pants, 2 million jackets, 500,000 military overcoats, other G.I. wearing apparel.

REAL ESTATE RESEARCHERS. Before big companies decide to build or expand nowadays, they hire real estate researchers, a new breed of cat, to advise them on feasibility, cost, site, and development. Take Walt Disney, as shrewd a cookie as ever came down the pike. For years Disney has been anxious to erect a second Disneyland somewhere in the U.S.A. Years ago he hired Economics Research Associates, headquartered in Los Angeles, to scout the country for likely sites. ERA moved into the New York area, decided after a preliminary survey that at best a New York Disneyland would enjoy only a four-month season. Sites in the Midwest presented the same difficulty. ERA moved into Florida decided that was the state. But where in the state? Nine location studies were made. Palm Beach and Ocala seemed like excellent spots, but the final depth study proved that the maximum, all-year tourist penetration was in the Orlando area. ERA then set about buying up land under dummy names, never revealing their client's identity. Approximately $5 million was paid for 27,000 acres outside Orlando. Harrison Price, president of ERA whom Disney put in business, says, "If we had ever mentioned Walt's name that land would have cost us at least $50 million."

65 AND BEYOND. It's tough to be old in America. Government statistics show that at age 65 and over, 23% of the old-timers live on charity; 27% are dependent on pensions, social security and relatives; 19% are retired and living on investments and savings; and 31% must still work.

20% SUGAR!

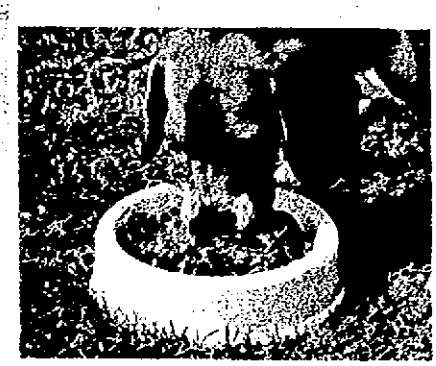

Products like this may contain up to 20% sugar (sucrose) added as a preservative.

NO SUGAR!

Friskies adds absolutely no sugar—because it needs no preservative.

And a can of Friskies contains 20% more protein than two patties of the leading sugar-preserved dog food. In fact all the protein, carbohydrates, vitamins and minerals a dog is known to need. So feed your dog Friskies. It's the fully nourishing canned dog food that has no sugar preservative. From a world leader in nutrition— Carnation

ATOMIC BOREDOM. Women adapt to boredom much more readily than men. Approximately 150 people were confined for six days in a bomb shelter in Dortmund, Germany. The men suffered acutely from lack of cigarettes and alcohol, grew irritable when they weren't playing cards, required a firm hand to direct and keep them in line. The women quickly organized themselves into work and exercise groups, did not react irascibly to boredom. The test, designed to furnished psychologists with data on the reaction of individuals to boredom and danger, proved that for men, inaction is a danger potentially more grave and unsettling than bomb peril.

-A NEST THAT ONLY A FEW SHORT MONTHS AGO BUSTLED WITH LIFE...

-BUT NOW STANDS EMPTY AND FORLORN, A SYMBOL OF THE FEARSOMENESS OF WINTER...

SUMMER'S BIRDS, WHERE ART THOU? WHY HAST THOU FLOWN FROM US?

HOW SAD AND STILL IS OUR FOREST, WITHOUT THY CHEERING SONG AND BIRDIE-FROLIC!

SUMMER'S BIRDS, SUMMER'S BIRDS, WHAT ARE WE TO DO WITHOUT YOU?

YOU NEVER HEARD OF WINTER'S BIRDS?

THE DEER HUNTER WHO WEARS BRIGHTLY COLORED CLOTHING HAS NO LESS LUCK THAN HIS DULLY DRESSED PARTNER...

FOR DEER, -LIKE MOST MAMMALS, ARE COLOR BLIND!

ONLY MAN AND SOME OF THE MONKEYS CAN DISTINGUISH THE REDS, BLUES, YELLOWS, AND OTHER PARTS OF THE SPECTRUM

TO THE AVERAGE MAMMAL'S EYES, THE LANDSCAPE RESEMBLES A BLACK AND WHITE TV PICTURE...

HOWEVER, MANY OTHER CREATURES, SUCH AS BIRDS, MOST REPTILES, MANY INSECTS, AND FISH, HAVE FULL OR PARTIAL COLOR VISION

TO COMPENSATE FOR COLOR BLINDNESS...KEEN HEARING, SENSITIVE NOSES, THE ABILITY TO SPOT THE SLIGHTEST MOVEMENT...GIVE MAMMALS THE EDGE OVER THE HUNTER

Little Orphan Annie

"THINGS WHICH YOU DO NOT HOPE HAPPEN MORE FREQUENTLY THAN THINGS WHICH YOU DO HOPE."-PLAUTUS (254-184 B.C.). WELL, PAL, THINGS ARE ABOUT THE SAME, AFTER 2,000 YEARS!

OH, F'R HEAVEN'S SAKE, SANDY! THAT COUGAR, OR WHATEVER Y'VE BEEN SMELLIN', WON'T COME WITHIN A MILE O' HERE!

GR-R-R-R!

C'MON, QUIET DOWN AND EAT YOUR SUPPER!

SANDY'S JUST BEING A GOOD WATCHDOG!

WUFF!

HAD AN OLD BEAR, YEARS AGO, USED TO COME SNIFFING AROUND! SCARED THE COWS AND HORSES HALF CRAZY, BUT NEVER MEANT ANY HARM!

IT WAS ONLY AROUND LESS THAN A WEEK, THAT LAST YEAR; MAYBE THAT'S HER, COME BACK TO CALL ON US!

ALWAYS SAID, THIS IS ABOUT THE MOST PEACEFUL SPOT A BODY COULD ASK FOR. SOMETIMES I'VE SORT OF WISHED WE COULD GET A LITTLE COMPANY!

SANDY! WHAT ON EARTH? IT'S ONLY TH' WIND OUTSIDE IN TH' BUSHES 'R SOMETHIN'! WHY DON'T YOU RELAX?

AR-RRR!

HARK! WHAT WAS THAT? LIKE A STEP ON THE PORCH?

OH, PA! CAN'T BE. YOU'RE AS BAD AS SANDY!

NOK! NOK! NOK!

EH? HELLO! DON'T GET MANY VISITORS! COME IN! COME IN!

WE BEEN HUNTIN'! GOT LOST! SAW YOUR LIGHT!

YOU MUST BE HUNGRY AND NIGH FROZE! YOU BOYS JUST FOLLOW ME!

NO, SANDY! STOP IT!

GR-RR!

DON'T MIND SANDY! HE'S JUST NOT USED TO STRANGERS!

YEAH?

Y'HEARD WHAT TH' KID SAID!

ARRR-R!

HAROLD GRAY 2-6-66

THE BOOBS

THAT'S ALL FOR ME, BOYS!

WHAT'S THE RUSH, PETE... YOU MIGHT AS WELL BOWL ONE MORE GAME. YOU'RE LATE FOR DINNER ANYWAY!

I'M GOING TO GET IT! I PROMISED MY WIFE I'D BE HOME BY THREE SHARP AND IT'S ALMOST FOUR NOW!

PAT REALLY MUST BE MAD! SHE DIDN'T EVEN BOTHER TO CALL... HOO BOY!

DOGGONIT! WHY DIDN'T I DRIVE! I COULD'VE SAID I HAD A FLAT TIRE!

WHY AM I RUNNING... THE ROAST IS PROBABLY BURNED TO A CRISP BY NOW!

I'LL GET THERE SOON ENOUGH TO FACE THE MUSIC!

I WONDER HOW I'LL LOOK WEARING A BOWL OF MASHED POTATOES?

WELL! HOW ABOUT THAT? EVERYBODY SOUND ASLEEP AND DINNER NOT EVEN STARTED!

WHAT A LUCKY BREAK! HEY, HOW LONG DO I HAVE TO WAIT FOR MY DINNER? IT'S AFTER FOUR O'CLOCK AND I'M STARVED!

OH, MY! I MUST HAVE DOZED OFF! I'M SORRY!

WAIT A MINUTE! WHAT TIME DID YOU GET HOME?

UH... A LITTLE AFTER THREE...

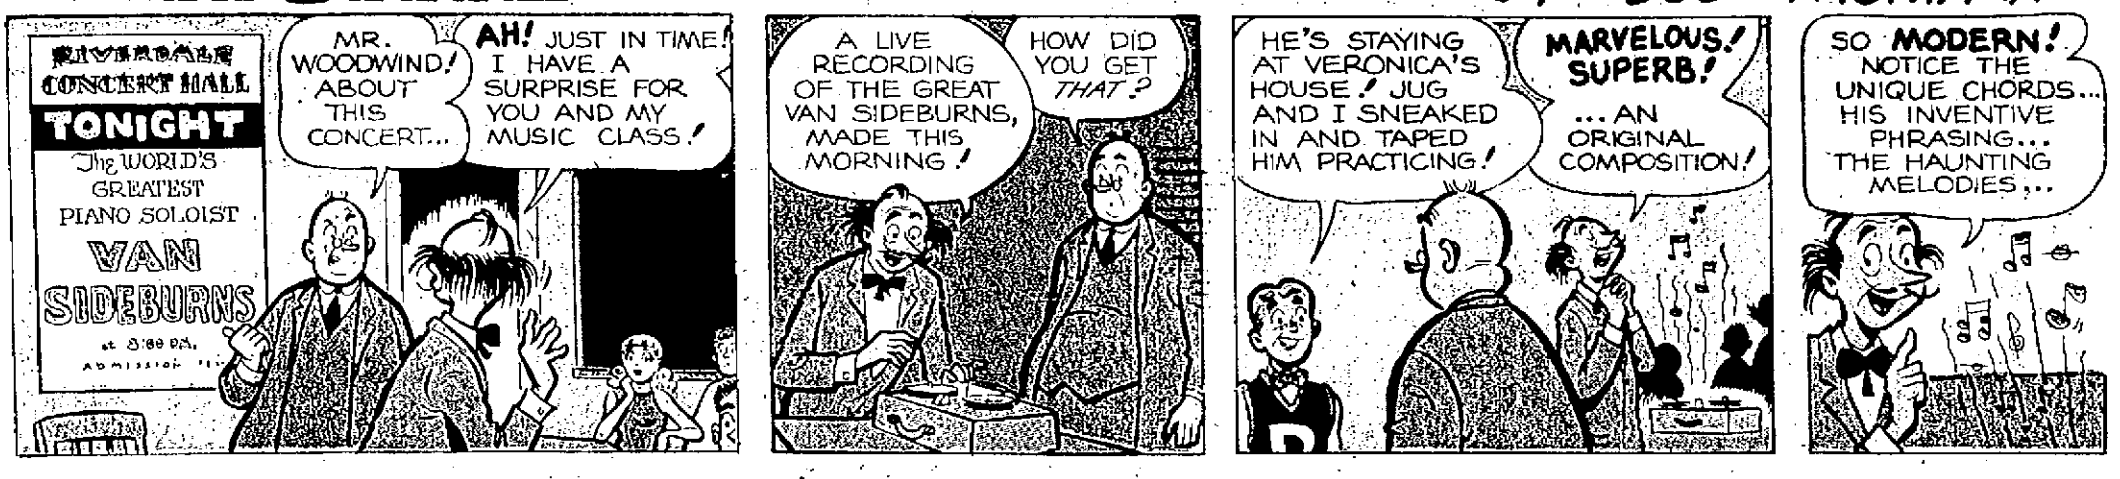

DADDY... I HEARD YOU COME IN!

HOW LITTLE... ABOUT AN HOUR?

OKAY, LET'S COMPROMISE! I'LL TAKE YOU OUT TO DINNER!
